MEXICAN AFFAIRS TAKE ON MORE WARLIKE ASPECT; WASHINGTON MAY ORDER MORE TROOPS TO VERA CRUZ

HUERTA TELLS MEDIATORS UNITED STATES HAS BROKEN FAITH AS TO AN ARMISTICE

DICTATOR'S NOTE MAY BE ONLY A RUSE

Is Unofficially Interpreted as Possible Excuse for Hostilities.

Bryan Denies Charge and Promises Statement in Reply.

Washington, May 8. — Secretary Bryan admitted early today that this government had received a note from the South American mediators seeking to solve the Mexican crisis, in which complaint is made by the Huerta government that American operations at Vera Cruz are in violation of the armistice.

Asked as to the details of the mediating envoys' note, Mr. Bryan said: "It simply sets forth what Huerta says. A reply to the note will be made."

It was suggested in unofficial circles that Huerta's note was in fact a move preparatory to opening hostilities, with the alleged violation as an excuse.

Mediators Silent.

Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil and Ministers Naon of Argentina and Suarez of Chile were astir early. None of the mediators would discuss the news emanating from Mexico City regarding the Huerta protest, forwarded through Acting Minister of Foreign Relations Esteva Ruiz and later confirmed here by Secretary Bryan. That the envoys or one of them would go to the state department to negotiate further regarding the protest against American military operations was said to be probable by those in close touch with the mediation developments.

When the United States would reply to the envoys' note was not made known. President Wilson is said to have been informed last night of the Huerta government's communication, and it is said that the subject would be discussed at the cabinet meeting today.

No Reply Prepared.

When Secretary Bryan left the cabinet meeting he said that no reply had yet been formulated to the Huerta communication forwarded by the mediators. In the Huerta message, he stated, question was raised as to the sending of an army to take the place of naval forces at Vera Cruz.

Asked if the unusual activity of the

FRAUDS LAID TO LAWYER AND WIFE

F. H. Griffin and His Spouse Are Arrested in Massachusetts.

Boston, May 8.—Francis H. Griffin, a New York attorney, and his wife, Clara H. Griffin, were arrested at Groton today, charged with using the mails to defraud. Government officials claim that by fraudulent representations the Griffins havve obtained between $300,000 and $600,000.

It is charged that Mrs. Griffin represented to many persons that she had contracts for stenographic work in connection with anti-trust prosecutions by Federal and state authorities. Owing to the secrecy attending such investigations Mrs. Griffin claimed, it is charged, that she was unable to obtain from banks the funds needed to carry out her contracts. She represented her expenses as heavy, but profits large.

It is charged that Mrs. Griffin obtained the desired funds from individuals, though she had no contracts as representated. One man, whose name is withheld, supplied $100,000 and two others furnished $40,000 each, it is asserted.

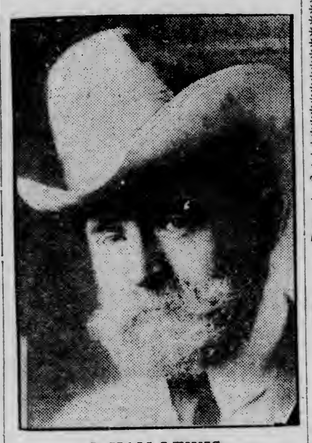
TWO BODIES WASH ASHORE AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 8.—The bodies of two men believed to be those of the Lawrence avenue cribkeeper and one of his assistants who were drowned Feb. 5 in the ice floes of Lake Michigan, were washed ashore at the foot of East Oak street today.

Three men were drowned near the Lawrence avenue water tank Feb. 5 when a boat capsized. They were: William Cannell, cribkeeper; Stephen Varley, assistant cribkeeper, and William Ulrich.

The men were entertaining two women at the crib, and the accident occurred when they attempted to go ashore in a storm for supplies.

SENATOR EULOGIZES VERA CRUZ VICTIMS



J. HAM LEWIS.

Washington, May 8.—Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois spoke today in eulogy of the American bluejackets and marines who fell in the first fighting at Vera Cruz.

"Behold them," exclaimed the senator, "the first four completing the ever-present mystic square, personifying all:

"Daniel A. Haggerty, an Irishman, a descendant of those who marched with Patrick Cleburne from the South, and Phil Sheridan from the North.

"John Schumacher, the German, the descendant of those who fought for us under Steuben.

"George Poinsett, of the generation of those who marched with Lafayette, and

"Samuel Meisenberg, the Jew, the child of a people without a country, but now a son saluted by every nation.

"We call to the watching world to attest to the civilization of men the attachment of America for her children and the praise and triumphs she ever pays to the hero, who serves her cause."

PUT BLAME ON ROCKEFELLER

United Mine Workers' Officers Issue Statement on Strike.

Colorado Strike Horror Laid By Women to State Guards.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 8.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., could have prevented the loss of life in Colorado by favoring a settlement of the coal strike through a meeting of the operators and miners, according to a statement issued today by the international executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, in session here. The statement also declares that "there can be no turning back or turning aside. The sacrifices already made are too great."

The statement reviews the strike and continues:

"We deplore the loss of life, acts of violence and destruction of property which have taken place. We are for peace and the establishment of right relations between employers and employes. We have exercised our efforts at all times toward righteous dealings."

Conferences Were Refused.

The miners asked for a conference time after time, it is said, and quit work only after they had been refused a hearing repeatedly.

"Ninety-five per cent of all the employes ceased work and still are idle," the statement asserts. "The statement widely circulated by the coal operators' representatives that ten per cent of their employes were attempting to force ninety per cent is absurd and unqualifiedly false. The small number of employes are Mexicans, Japanese and incompetent strikebreakers.

"A long list of persecutions culminated in the massacre of Ludlow on April 20. The brutality of the gunmen seemed at that time to have reached its climax. After the battle was over, eleven children, ranging in age from 6 months to 10 years, and two women whose bodies were blackened and burned, were taken from the smoking ruins of their destroyed homes. The state of Colorado was covered with shame, while the whole nation looked on with awe. No fouler crime or more brutal deed was ever recorded on the pages of American history.

Could Have Been Avoided.

"This is an awful sacrifice, all of which could have been avoided if John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who occupies such a powerful position in the financial world, would have spoken one word favoring settlement through a meeting

SAN LUIS POTOSI TAKEN BY REBELS

Washington, May 8.—San Luis Potosi has fallen into the hands of Constitutionalists, according to information which Secretary Bryan transmitted to one of his callers today.

AMERICAN SOLDIER MEXICAN PRISONER

Private Parks, Orderly to Col. Taggart, Held By Gen. Maas.

Vera Cruz, May 8.—Private Parks, orderly for Lieut.-Col. Elmore F. Taggart, Twenty-eighth infantry, and two of the officers' horses disappeared yesterday beyond the American lines and into the lines of Gen. Gustavo Maas, where the soldier and the animals presumably are being held. An effort made during the day to communicate with Gen. Maas and request him to return Private Parks and the horses proved ineffectual.

LOST BOY RETURNS AFTER THIRTY YEARS

Walks in as Family Is Talking of Him at Reunion.

Tomah, Wis., May 8.—A family party was being held yesterday at the home of Frank Taylor here. All relatives from the country round were gathered. All of the family known to be surviving was present. Talk turned on Albert Taylor, who as a boy of 15 ran away with a circus in 1884 and had been reported dead soon after in the West. The door opened. A portly stranger entered.

"Hello, mother!" he cried, and grasped an aged woman in his arms.

It was Albert Taylor, who in all his absence had sent home no word. He is now a prosperous merchant at Seattle, Wash.

Region between Vera Cruz and Mexico City, which the United States troops must traverse if an advance on the Mexican capital is determined upon at Washington.

SNIPER RIDDLED BY MACHINE GUN

Bluejackets Quickly Avenge Wounding of Navy Lieutenant.

Norfolk, Va., May 8.—Officers of the collier Orion, now here from Vera Cruz, tell of the wounding there of Lieut. Lannon of the battleship New Hampshire, as he, with a landing party, approached the shore. A sniper, hidden under a wharf, shot the officer, wounding him seriously but not fatally. The machine gun in the bow of the American boat riddled the sniper.

FIFTY ARRESTS FOR MURDER OF CHILD

Authorities Admit They Have No Conclusive Evidence.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 8.—In spite of the identification of Nick Former by Elizabeth Klimeck, District Attorney R. H. Jackson decided today he had no evidence on which to hold the man for the murder of little Florence Dove at North Braddock. More than fifty arrests have been made in connection with the crime, one of the most atrocious ever committed in Allegheny county, but the state constabulary, police and county authorities today admitted they were without a promising clew.

TWO KILLED BY SOUTHERN STORM.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8.—Two persons were killed in Mississippi, a number of others injured and thousands of dollars damage done to growing crops yesterday by storms that swept several southern states. Hail destroyed growing cotton and corn in South Carolina and in Eastern Tennessee hail did great damage to crops.

Vera Cruz, May 8.—Dr. Edward Ryan, who was condemned to death at Zacatecas and later released, is reported to have arrived today at Puerto Mexico, together with 600 other refugees from the capital. They will go direct to New Orleans on board the Esperanza.

SEEK FACTS OF MURDERS

Washington Inquires Into Reported Killings in Mexico.

More Foreigners Leave Capital—Daniels Tells Naval Policy.

Washington, May 8.—Officials here today sought additional information of the reported killing of two Englishmen and an American subject in Guadalajara. Confirmation of the reports were lacking. That rumor was the only news of lawlessness in Mexico's interior, although the fate of Acting Consul Silliman, reported to have been arrested near San Luis Potosi, still caused uneasiness.

The exodus of foreigners from Mexico City continued. Six hundred American refugees were on their way to Vera Cruz under the protection of the Brazilian flag. It was expected they would be given safe conduct over the break in the railroad some distance outside of Vera Cruz and reach the protection of the American outposts today.

Essentials of Policy.

Essentials of the American policy in Mexico, up to the present time, were reiterated today in a statement by Secretary Daniels, replying to complaints against the withdrawal of United States warships from the river at Tampico and to criticism of the department's refusal to take some refugees back to Tampico after they had been removed from the danger zone.

Secretary Daniels' statement concludes:

"Tampico is now a closely beleaguered city, exposed to constant attacks from the outside from a continually augmenting enemy. The Constitutionalist forces, according to all reports, are gradually increasing in numbers in the territory around about.

REFUGEES LEAVING FOR HOME CITIES

Over 600 Arrive at New Orleans on Steamer Monterey.

New Orleans, La., May 8.—Refugees from Mexico City, brought to New Orleans aboard the steamer Monterey, began leaving for their homes in various parts of the country today. Six hundred and twenty-three came to the city last night from Quarantine, where the Monterey had been since Sunday. The collier Cyclops with ninety-two refugees from Tampico aboard, took the place of the Monterey at Quarantine.

Alphonse J. Lipinasz, American consul at Frontera, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Vincenzo di Giorgio. He will remain here awaiting orders from Washington.

NEW FIRE ESCAPE KILLS INVENTOR.

Dallas, Tex., May 8.—W. D. Tudor of Pueblo, Col., leaped to his death from the top of the Central fire station yesterday while demonstrating a patent fire escape. The patent failed to work through the breaking of a spring which Tudor had expected to break his fall.

FUNSTON IN NEED OF MORE REGIMENTS

Firing of the Oil Wells at Tampico Is Reported.

New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Militia May Be Called.

British Embassy Urges Mexicans to Protect Oil Fields.

Washington, May 8. — The Mexican situation assumed a more warlike aspect today. Activities in the war department, which began last night on the receipt of long confidential advices from Gen. Funston, were renewed through the morning and were brought to the attention of President Wilson and the cabinet when the regular session began at 11 o'clock.

While this activity disclosed that every preparation was being made for possible eventualities, yet Secretary of War Garrison said just before entering the cabinet meeting that "no additional troop movements have been ordered."

Say Funston Needs Men.

It has been learned on high authority that the war department had under consideration today early and adequate reinforcement of the command of Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz, to carry out any movement that might be necessary into the interior of Mexico.

The question of placing a large force of Americans in Vera Cruz, that would be strong enough to defend that port against any attack, or to undertake a possible campaign against Mexico City, was later laid before the president and his cabinet by Secretary of War Garrison.

War department officials it was stated declared that reinforcements were needed at Vera Cruz, at the late conference of Secretary Garrison and the general staff last night. The secretary and his advisers went over the entire military situation at Vera Cruz and other points in Mexico before reaching this decision.

Got Cipher Message.

Secretary Garrison called the conference after a cipher telegram from Vera Cruz had been delivered to him at the White House, where he was attending the wedding of the president's daughter. He left the festivities hurriedly and summoned his aides to the war department.

Among dispatches received was one which reported the firing of the oil

State Senator Dunwoody of Joplin has announced his candidacy for the nomination for United States senator to succeed William J. Stone. Others mentioned in connection with that office include Judge A. D. Nortoni of St. Louis and Arthur N. Sager, former district attorney, St. Louis.

BROKERS LIABLE FOR STOLEN FUNDS

Court Says They Must Make Good Patron's Peculations.

Binghamton, N. Y., May 8.—A jury in the state supreme court here today handed down a verdict of $53,000 against C. I. Hudson & Co., New York brokers, establishing a precedent by holding that brokerage firms are responsible for moneys expended with them which had been obtained by illegal methods.

The action was brought by Deyo & Hitchcock against Hudson & Co. to recover $50,000 spent in speculation by William Carver, a member of the firm who mysteriously disappeared. The jury returned a verdict for the full amount asked.

BOTH WOODMEN'S FACTIONS CONFIDENT.

Rock Island, May 8.—Head officials of the Modern Woodmen of America declare that returns from Wednesday's elections of Woodmen camps have assured the regulars control of the coming head camp in Toledo by a vote of 220 to 66 delegates. This computation did not include 150 delegates from the states of Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota, where bolting delegations were named. The insurgents were conceded Wisconsin, Utah, Missouri and Kansas. The total number of delegates in the head camp is 436.

The insurgents, counting the bolting states with them and having few direct returns, insist they will have 245 delegates, or a majority of 27 in the head camp. They predicted that further returns will strengthen their position.

Mayor's Proclamation

Complying with the request that a period of time be designated during which public-spirited citizens and civic organizations improve those parts of the city where rubbish has accumulated during the winter and spring months, and during which time citizens of Duluth may carry on an active campaign to brighten up, clean up and paint up the city generally, as well as to plant and care for lawns and parks, I hereby designate the ten days beginning Monday, May 11, 1914. The citizens of the City of Duluth will co-operate with the newspapers and civic organizations to make these ten days a big success from a clean-up standpoint.

The Commissioner of Public Works promises to add to the regular force of teams and men in order to assist in removing promptly the waste matter piled up in the alleys and in the vacant lots.

The Health Department welcomes the movement as one that will be highly beneficial to our city and citizens.

I would respectfully urge upon all public-spirited citizens to assist by cleaning their own yards, and other property, by assisting in the removal of rubbish from waste places near their homes, by refraining from scattering refuse of any kind and by brightening up and cleaning up their own property and urging the same upon their neighbors. Such action will give Duluth a thorough house-cleaning and will be of inestimable aid in raising the standard of health in the city.

W. I. PRINCE, Mayor.

TEN DAYS TO CLEAN CITY

Winter Rubbish Must Go—Time to Prepare Gardens.

The ten days beginning Monday, May 11, have been designated as cleaning time in a proclamation issued by Mayor Prince.

During that period all citizens and organizations are urged to unite their energies to make Duluth a "spotless town" by removing the winter's accumulations of rubbish and preparing flower gardens and lawns.

The city administration is planning to do its share towards improving the appearance of the city. The works division has planned to add to its force of teams and men to clean streets, avenues and alleys and the park department will give the parks their annual spring trimming. The health department will co-operate, directing its energies chiefly towards the cleaning up of back yards and vacant lots. Filth breeds disease and for that reason the health officials are deeply interested in the civic house cleaning, accomplishments in that direction improving health conditions throughout the city.

"Complying with the request that a period of time be designated during which public-spirited citizens and civic organizations improve those parts of the city where rubbish has accumulated during the winter and spring months and during which time citizens of Duluth may carry on an active campaign to brighten up, clean up and paint up the city generally, as well as to plant and care for lawns and parks, I hereby designate the ten days beginning Monday, May 11, 1914. The citizens of the city of Duluth will co-operate with the newspapers and civic organizations to make these ten days a big success from a clean-up standpoint.

"The commissioner of public works promises to add to the regular force of teams and men in order to assist in removing promptly the waste matter piled up in the alleys and in the vacant lots.

"The health department welcomes the movement as one that will be highly beneficial to our city and citizens.

"I would respectfully urge upon all public-spirited citizens to assist by cleaning their own yards and other property, by assisting in the removal of rubbish from waste places near their homes, by refraining from scattering refuse of any kind and by brightening up and cleaning up their own property and urging the same upon their neighbors. Such action will give Duluth a thorough house-cleaning and will be of inestimable aid in raising the standard of health in the city."

CENTRAL WILL CONTINUE TO SERVE AS ALARM CLOCK.

Duluthians will continue to be awakened by the telephone, regardless of contrary action taken in many of the larger cities of the country, according to F. E. Lister, manager of the Duluth Telephone company. The number of calls is very small, Mr. Lister said, and for this reason the local exchange will not discontinue calling early risers.

GOOD NEWS FOR STOCKHOLDERS

Recent Court Decision Relieves Butte & Superior of Heavy Liability.

The recent decision of the circuit court of appeals at San Francisco reversing the decision of the lower court in the Minerals Separation company's oil flotation patent case is expected to finally relieve the Butte & Superior Mining company of what would otherwise have been a heavy liability.

Taking into consideration the present strong position of the company in the way of cash reserves and its large current monthly profits through its mining operations, it is now believed that the time is not far distant when the directors will be in a position to inaugurate the payment of dividends.

In arriving at its decision in the oil flotation patent case the court of appeals held that the only material difference between the Minerals Separation patent and the prior art is the smaller quantity of oil used. This is taken to be neither an invention nor a discovery under the patent law sufficient to render the Minerals Separation process patentable. It was considered by the court that to sustain the patent would be to give the owners a monopoly of something others had discovered.

Attorneys for the Butte & Superior Mining company believe that the decision will place an effectual damper on the general business of the Minerals Separation company in this country and will mean the loss of millions of dollars in royalties. Senator W. A. Clark recently signed a contract with the company for the use of the process in his new smelter.

TERRE HAUTE MAYOR FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Terra Haute, Ind., May 8. — Mayor Donn Roberts, charged with conspiracy to corrupt elections, was found not guilty by a jury in the circuit court here late last night. The jury was out thirty-five minutes.

Mayor Roberts and sixteen other city officials and former officials were indicted about three months ago on charges of having committed election frauds. The trial of the mayor was the second to be called, William Huffman, a city official, having been found guilty and sentenced to serve from three to ten years in the state penitentiary last March.

It was alleged that Mayor Roberts had hired repeaters to vote at the city election last November and the registration here last October. The trial has been under way for six weeks and was bitterly contested.

Mayor Roberts took the stand and denied that he had ever hired a repeater or in any way sought to corrupt an election.

DIGGS ACQUITTED OF SECOND CHARGE.

San Francisco, Cal., May 8.—Maury I. Diggs, former state architect, was acquitted by a jury which tried him on an indictment charging a statutory offense against Ida Pearring, a minor.

Diggs gained notoriety last year when he was tried and convicted of violation of the Mann white slave law, following an elopement from Sacramento, Cal., to Reno, Nev., with two girls, in company with Drew Caminetti, son of Anthony Caminetti, commissioner general of immigration.

WHAT BOYS MAKE OR DO

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the fourth annual exposition of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. was opened to inspection at the Central association building. It will be officially opened with special exercises this evening, including an address by Mayor Prince and will come to a close tomorrow evening, when the prizes will be awarded to the boys having the best exhibits and the official banner to the school winning the most awards.

The exhibits range from a home-made top, rabbits and cats to a self-propelling aeroplane, a complete working telephone system and cakes and pies made by the boys of Duluth. The exposition includes anything that has been made or collected by the boys of the city.

Norman McLeod, secretary of the boys' department, is in charge of the exhibit. He has divided the exhibits into three sections, those for boys under 13 years of age, another for those from 13 to 16 and the third for those from 16 to 20 years of age. These are each divided in six divisions, as follows: Industry, art, pets, collections, stories and domestic science.

Hundreds of exhibits have been entered by boys from all parts of the city, each school aiming to make the largest exhibit in the effort to win the school banner that is to be awarded tomorrow evening.

Many Pets Shown.

Some of the boys have baked bread, cakes and pies for the exposition and these are being shown in the domestic science divisions of each section. There are large collections of rabbits, cats and pigeons on display, while at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon a special exhibition of dogs will be made. The prizes will be awarded at the same time, so that the owners may take the animals away.

In the industry division the boys are showing articles that can be made in the manual training school or with a jack-knife. The art section contains hundreds of drawings and sketches made in the public schools, while the collections on display show stamps, buttons and coins.

MANAHAN ATTACKS MINNEAPOLIS PAPER

Denounces Questioning of His Motives in Grain Exchange Probe.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, May 8.—In the house today, Representative James Manahan of Minnesota, spoke to a question of personal privilege, denying that he had any ulterior motive in proposing the investigation of grain exchanges.

"My motive for urging this investigation," said Manahan, "appears clearly in the resolution itself. The Minneapolis chamber of commerce is an intolerable monopoly. My purpose was and still is to destroy that monopoly."

The reason for Mr. Manahan's speech was an editorial printed in the Minneapolis Journal shortly after his resolution was introduced. Referring to H. V. Jones, editor of the Journal, Mr. Manahan inquired, among other things, whether "Jim Hill owned his pen and his paper."

"Pledge Their Pens?"

He recited the fact of the acquisition of the Journal by H. V. Jones and his brother, and then demanded:

"Where did they get the money, and did they pledge their pens when they got it?"

"He seeks to discredit me as a member of this house," said Mr. Manahan. "But that is only incidental. His real purpose is to divert attention from the grain monopoly with which he was associated in the past, and which he knows still is robbing the producers of the Northwest. He serves as a debtor the selfish purposes of the owners-in-hiding of his sanctimonious sheet."

Believes Lodges Will Create Better Feeling Between Capital and Labor.

Thomas Carling, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, who is in the city today, declared his belief in the efficacy of what he classed as the three great fraternal organizations of the United States, the Knights of Pythias, the Masonic order and the Odd Fellows, to aid in creating better feeling among the various classes of the country and to thus bring about a better understanding between capital and labor.

In the course of a talk with The Herald, Mr. Carling stated that in the fraternal organizations of the United States all men meet under equal conditions, and that this very fact has acted as a leveller of social distinctions and has also brought about a better understanding between different sections of the country, and different classes.

"The Knights of Pythias lodge has achieved an increase of some 22,000 members during the last year," said Mr. Carland, who, by the way, hails from Macon, Ga., and not from South Carolina, as has been reported locally. "During the present year I believe that this increase of membership will be nearly doubled. All dissatisfactions, all misunderstandings and disaffections have been adjusted or done away with. There is complete and perfect harmony in the ranks of the lodge. This fact and the further fact that the national election is out of the way promise to bring about the largest increase in the history of the order.

"You know that though it may seem strange to you it is nevertheless true that the growth of a fraternal order often reflects the industrial condition of the country. Now before the national election, for instance, there was a waiting, a desire to see the policy of the new administration.

"Naturally I believe implicitly in the good that comes through fraternal orders. The fraternal order is the coming meeting ground of the mechanic, the artisan and the business man. This meeting and mingling cannot fail but create a better understanding and understanding is the greater remover of prejudice.

"Fraternalism has brought about so great an understanding, in fact, that though religion and politics are not discussed in the lodges, nevertheless the fraternal orders exert a potent influence in the settlement of grave national questions."

Mr. Carland paid an eloquent tribute to the hospitality of the people of Minnesota, stating that the hospitality that had been so cordially extended to him upon his trip to several sections of the state, rivaled if not surpassed the famed hospitality of the South. "And you know," he said, "that we Southern people delight in the belief that we are the most hospitable people in the world."

LABORER DIES IN AMBULANCE

Taken ill while at the Bethel last evening, Peter Max, 32 years old, died at 10:30 o'clock this morning while being taken to the poor farm in an ambulance.

The driver of the ambulance first went to the courthouse to obtain the necessary order for Max and when he returned to the ambulance he found the man dead. The driver notified the coroner and the body was removed to the Crawford undertaking rooms.

Nothing is known about Max. He came to the Bethel last night complaining of a slight illness. He was dressed like a laborer and it is believed worked in the woods during the winter.

WORKS DIVISION TO HAVE NEW AUTO

Bids for Street Improvement; Transfer Request Withdrawn.

But one bid was received for furnishing the city engineering department with a new automobile and that was from Leonard McNamara for the Studebaker, the ownership of which has been in dispute.

McNamara submitted the same terms as those discussed at the time the city officials looked over the machine in his garage, $1,000 cash and the E. M. F. automobile used by the works division.

The works division will settle the controversy by accepting the car, which has been standing in the Armory for several weeks. McNamara asserted that the city had closed the deal and the city denied it, with the result that the car has been out of commission. The new machine is a six-cylinder car, fitted with top, windshield, speedometer and electric horn, and is electrically lighted and started.

Bids were opened by the works division this morning for the improvement of Vernon street from the west line of Bryant's addition to Grand Forks avenue. The prices had not been figured by 2 o'clock this afternoon so that the successful bidder was not known.

* * *

M. Danculovich this morning withdrew his application for the transfer of a saloon license from the downtown section to Gary. Safety Commissioner W. A. Hicken and the other members of the council feel that two saloons in that suburb are enough for the present and were opposed to allowing the transfer.

WILL EXPEDITE RUCKER BILL.

Washington, May 8.—A special rule to expedite consideration in the house of the Rucker bill, providing temporary machinery for the direct election of United States senators, was reported by the rules committee. The bill would authorize the election of senators in elections when members of the house are chosen, preceding the expiration of a senate term. The procedure governing the election of representatives-at-large or of state officers would govern the senate elections.

The special rule will allow only two hours' general debate on the bill, which is expected to be brought in within a short time. The bill has already passed the senate.

CATARRH TROUBLE ENDED BY HYOMEI

Surely try Hyomei—nature's remedy for catarrh, head colds, sniffles, or croup of infants—a treatment that not only instantly clears the head and gives prompt and lasting benefit in all cases of catarrhal troubles, but is perfectly harmless and pleasant to use.

When using Hyomei you are treating your catarrh troubles with the natural remedy — no roundabout method, but a direct-to-the-point way. It's folly to doctor catarrh of the breathing organs with stomach medicine; instead, breathe Hyomei. Its curative and antiseptic medication will immediately reach the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs; quickly heal and soothe the raw and inflamed membrane. You feel better at once.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, cold in the head, bronchitis, and weak or husky voice, that it is always sold by Boyce drug store under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed. Ask any druggist for a complete Hyomei outfit, $1.00 size. It contains inhaler and bottle of liquid.

BUTTER GOES UP ONE CENT

Eggs Are Firm With Importations From China a Fixed Feature.

A slight upward swing in butter may be said to be the feature of the local produce market today. The market in the product is gradually firming up in the East as a result of an improved demand for fresh stock. Contracts covering a considerable tonnage of butter for June packing are reported to have been already entered into, and from the present indications, it is regarded as probable that the product will go into store next month at around 26 cents a pound, or about 7 cents a pound cheaper than a year ago. It is thought that on that basis, American dealers should be able to hold their ground in competition with the imported product next winter.

Prices of butter are a cent up all around from last week, the Bridgeman-Russell company quoting the best creamery at 26@27 cents a pound; first creamery at 25@26 cents; imitation creamery at 20@21 cents and dairy at 19@20 cents.

Egg Market Firm.

Fresh eggs are firm at 19@20 cents a dozen, and present indications are that prices will hold for a time at around that basis.

Owing to a feeling of uncertainty regarding the market at the outset, it is commented upon in trade circles that dealers delayed contracting for their full quota of April storage supplies, and they were compelled to do some scrambling for them at the last, resulting in bringing about a stiff market.

It is expected that considerable eggs will be put away in Northern Minnesota during the present month, as they rank about equal in quality to the April product farther South. Northern Minnesota eggs are now quoted ½@¾c above the Iowa article. Receipts have been liberal so far this month, but they are now beginning to drop off. This is attributable to the fact that hens began to lay earlier than usual last winter, and are now due to let up. Warehouse figures show that on May 1 there were 17,000 cases more eggs in store than a year ago, so that the market is well supplied.

The fact that 200,000 cases of egg fillers were ordered recently by Chinese interests from an American manufacturer, is considered significant by persons connected with the Eastern trad. A beginning in the export of eggs from China to the United States was made during the past winter. The experiment is said to have been found a paying one both for buyers in China and dealers who handled the eggs in this country. It is therefore regarded as probable that importations from over there will become a permanent feature of the trade here during the winter season. Formerly Chinese eggs were shipped in coffins specially fitted for the purpose, but it is now to be noted that more modern methods are to be adopted. The order for 200,000 cases of fillers means that importations of 6,000,000 dozen eggs are to be provided for at the outset.

The cheese market is weak, owing to the factories not having generally started operations for the season. While no reductions in quotations have as yet come about, changes are expected within the next few days.

Poultry is offering on the same price basis as a week ago. Live poultry is, however, slightly easier, with farmers through this district now beginning to ship hens in more freely. Frozen supplies are getting scarce.

Strawberries More Plentiful.

Fruits and vegetables are beginning to offer in greater variety and supplies are of better quality, according to the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company.

Strawberries are the feature in fruits, and with shipments starting to come from Tennessee, the quality is better. Prices are unchanged. The orange market is stronger, and lemons are also up with the increased demand for them.

Apples are being more firmly held in view of stocks being rapidly cleaned up. The quality of the remaining fruit is considered exceptionally good for the season.

California cherries are available today for the first time this season.

Potatoes are slightly higher owing to farmers' deliveries having been affected by the recent break up of the roads. Lower prices are, however, looked for in the near future.

New cabbage from Louisiana and Mississippi is now to be had at reasonable prices.

BARES MYSTERY OF BILLARD COMPANY

Washington, May 8.—A detailed statement of the transactions of the Billard company with the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad was made before the interstate commerce commission yesterday by John L. Billard, who organized the concern.

He outlined the method by which, with the aid of Charles S. Mellen, then president of the New Haven, and a loan from the New England Navigation company, a New Haven subsidiary, he took over the stock of the Boston & Maine railroad owned by the New Haven, which the Massachusetts courts decided the New Haven could not hold.

After holding the stock a year, Billard said, he resold it to the Boston Railroad Holding company, another New Haven subsidiary, at a profit of $25 a share. In payment he took $16,250,000 in notes of the New England Investment & Security company, a New Haven concern, and the Billard company was formed to handle this transaction.

Billard put $2,000,000 into the Billard company, he said, and sold to it the New England Investment company notes, receiving back the $2,000,000 cash and $14,250,000 in Billard company notes in payment. These Billard notes, in accordance with an arrangement with Mr. Mellen, he said, were bought by the New England Navigation company.

WOULD PROVIDE FOR BIGGER ARMY.

Washington, May 8.—A resolution that would permit the president to increase the regular army above the 100,000 statutory limitation, was introduced in the senate by Chairman Chamberlain of the military affairs committee. The resolution would authorize the president to recruit each unit of the army up to full war strength, "in time of war or when war is imminent, or on other occasions of grave national emergency requiring the use of the regular army."

The unit strength, fully recruited, would exceed the 100,000 limitation.

LINED UP FOR THE CONTEST

All Candidates for Legislative Honors Now Known.

Few Aspirants Have No Opposition for Nomination in Primaries.

With the closing of the day's business at the office of the county auditor yesterday evening ended the time when candidates for state, congressional and legislative offices can file for the June primaries or the November election. Of course state and congressional filings were made with the secretary of state, and so, also, were legislative filings where more than one county is embraced in a district. The only office so affected in this part of the state is that of senator from the Fifty-seventh, which takes in the First and Second wards of Duluth, the towns of Ault, Duluth and Lakewood, in St. Louis county, and all of Lake and Cook counties.

The time for filing for county offices does not expire until May 27.

Five candidates for the lower house of the legislature filed yesterday. They are: E. J. Kenny and Bert N. Wheeler, Fifty-seventh, the latter withdrawing as a candidate for lieutenant governor on the Prohibition ticket; Thorgier F. Olsen, Fifty-ninth; Harold K. Chance of Greaney, Sixtieth, and Louis B. Osborn, Sixty-first.

There will be senatorial contests in the primaries in only the Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth districts and for the house in the Fifty-seventh, Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first. Following are all of the candidates who have filed for legislative honors:

Fifty-seventh—For senator, Charles E. Adams, Alex G. McKnight and James Eides, two be nominated and one to be elected; representative, Rev. Ray E. Hunt, William J. North, E. J. Kenny and B. N. Wheeler, two to be nominated and one to be elected.

Fifty-eighth—For senator, Senator T. M. Pugh, Richard Jones and J. R. Randall, two to be nominated and one to be elected; representative, Edward R. Ribenack, Anton Borgen, C. L. Hood and John E. Jensen, two to be elected in November.

Fifty-ninth—For senator, George M. Peterson and P. C. Phillips, one to be elected in November; representative, William L. Bernard, E. N. Nelson, Leo Laukki, T. F. Olson and J. E. Foubister of Duluth, M. N. Triplett of Floodwood and John Mattson of Kelsey, four to be nominated and two to be elected.

Sixtieth—For senator, John A. Healy of Hibbing and William Brown of Chisholm, one to be elected in November; representative, Fred Bessette of Gheen, Charles R. Woods and J. H. McNiven of Chisholm, Samuel C. Scott and D. T. Collins of Hibbing and Patrick J. Greaney and Harold K. Chance of Greaney, four to be nominated and two to be elected.

Sixty-first—For senator, O. H. Griggs of Virginia, to be elected in November without contest; representative, J. M. Gill and L. M. Osborn of Virginia, Solomon Sax of Eveleth, James W. Osborne of Ely and Charles T. Murphy of Aurora, four to be nominated and two elected.

Accompanied by State Grand Chancellor Fred Atwood and Maj. Gen. Arthur Stabbot of St. Paul, Mr. Carling arrived in this city at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. System Awakens With Pure Blood

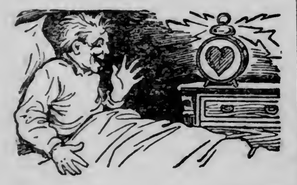
In Mind and Body the Change is Wonderful.



After the depression, the stagnation, the despair over some blood disorder, it is fine to wake up to what S. S. S. has accomplished for you after a few days' use. It puts the nerves and blood in harmony; it arouses the cellular activity of the liver, kidneys, lungs, and other excretory organs to remove from the blood the body wastes that cause nearly all sickness.

This means that all decay, all breaking down of the tissues, is checked and repair work begins. S. S. S. has such influence on all local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and afford a proper relative assistance to each other. More attention is being given to catalytic medicine than ever before and S. S. S. is one of the highest achievements in this line. For many years people relied upon mercury, iodide of potash, arsenic cathartics and "dope" as remedies for blood sickness, but now the pure, vegetable S. S. S. is their safeguard.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist without charge, address Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Co., 537 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

West End

NEW STREET IS NEEDED

City Asked to Take Over Railroad Street at Once.

West End Commercial Club Discusses Important Measures.

The West End Commercial club went on record last night as favoring an immediate opening of Railroad street from Garfield avenue to Sixth avenue and appointed a committee to ask the city to immediately take over the street and use the material now being taken off Superior street in fixing up the thoroughfare. W. L. Bernard was appointed chairman of the committee.

It was contended that it is necessary to do this at once, because during the paving of Superior street east of Garfield avenue, team traffic will be almost impossible between Duluth and Superior unless such a route is furnished. Members also claimed that by opening Railroad street time would be saved in hauling not only by city teams, but also by every merchant in the western end of the city, who may have goods to bring from the docks and wholesale houses.

Members of the club said the city is hesitating about taking over the street because of fear that the award which might be made by the courts in the condemnation proceedings now before the courts, would be too high for the cit yto bear. The members said that this should not be the chief consideration, as the courts would doubtless act fairly to the city and that the improvement was necessary at any cost.

Considerable discussion was held by the members on a resolution introduced by S. W. Hill asking the club to disapprove of the proposed sending of delegates at the expense of the city to Philadelphia to attend a national gathering of the American Water Works association. The club voted the resolution down.

Property owners on Twentieth avenue asked support of the club in a request to have Twentieth avenue paved when the city begins paving First street. Petitions for paving the latter thoroughfare have been prepared by the property owners, but as yet no action has been taken by the city.

James Maghan, chairman of the garden contest committee, reported that nearly 1,000 children from the Ensign, Lincoln, Adams and Monroe schools had entered the contest. He said that the campaign for subscribing the money would be started at once and that it was proposed to raise about $100. He also outlined a plan for a general exhibit to be held in the West end following the close of the garden contest.

GIVES THE CITY SUBSTANTIAL LIFT

Traction Company Will Haul Refuse and New Material for Paving.

Duluth and the property owners on Superior street will be saved considerable money in laying the new pavement between Fifteenth and Thirtieth avenues, according to a communication received yesterday afternoon by Commissioner Murchison from Herbert Warren, manager and vice president of the Duluth Street Railway company. Mr. Warren has offered the service of flat cars for the hauling of material taken off the street as well as the hauling of material needed in the work.

Mr. Warren stated in his communication that all extra cost in the paving of the thoroughfare occasioned by the rails being in the street will be borne by the company. He announced also that it was the intention of the company to lay a tile drain under the surface between the tracks at the company's expense.

The hauling of the old material away and the hauling of the new material is one of the heavy items of expense connected with the laying of the new paving. The old material will be hauled to any suitable dumping grounds designated by the city.

The work of loosening the surface has progressed rapidly, the large traction engine used in the work having so far ripped up the surface between Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth avenues.

PLANNING TROUBLE FOR NORTH DAKOTA

I. W. W. Organizer Boasts Outfit Will Again Bother Farmers.

Fargo, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Yes, the I. W. W. are back in North Dakota and we mean business," declared John Conroy, who claims to be an organizer, and that his former home was in Worcester, Mass. "This year we are after the farmers," continued Conroy, "and we intend to make them do some high stepping if there is a good crop in North Dakota this summer. We first planned to create some trouble for the agricultural brothers during the spring, but because of the idle men in Eastern manufacturing and contracting circles, there are more applicants for work this spring than usual. One of the results has been a depression in the prices paid monthly farm laborers from $5 to $10 per month. This year the farmer's seem to be getting all the men they want for $25 to $30. Last year the average wages were $35 to $40. We found by sad experience last year that the farmers were the worst enemies of the I. W. W. We are here to get even.

Minot Headquarters.

"Minot is our best headquarters, though we intend to have others at Fargo, Grand Forks, Devils Lake and Bismarck. We had men at Valley City and Jamestown, as well as some of the smaller towns in the southern part of the state. It was deemed best not to try to start anything now till the harvest and the threshing season, when we will get busy. Our plan is to have organizers in every county, in each locality and especially among the larger farmers. In July, August and September, when the proper time comes, we intend to make Mr. Farmer dance to our music or there will be a strike that will leave the grain rotting in the fields."

Why Your Stomach Hurts

Some Common-Sense Advice

BY A DOCTOR.

Pain in the stomach, variously called indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, heartburn, stomach ache, etc., is usually atttributed to some unnatural, abnormal or diseased condition of the stomach itself. Nothing, however, could be farther from the truth. Nineteen times out of twenty the stomach is absolutely healthy and normal, the pain and discomfort being entirely due to the acidity and fermentation of food which irritates and distends the stomach, although if this condition is allowed to run on, in time the constant irritation of the acid is likely to eat into the stomach walls and produce ulcers of the stomach. Medicine is useless in such a case. The acid and fermenting food must be removed by a stomach pump or an emetic, or you must neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little water; this latter is far the simpler and the safer method. Bisurated Magnesia almost immediately neutralizes the dangerous acid and by correcting the food contents enables even a tired, weak stomach do digest almost any food without difficulty. Physicians advise that bisurated magnesia should be kept in every home and a little taken after every meal whenever the slightest tendency to food fermentation is shown.

How to Make Your Hair Beautiful

Ten Minutes' Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy.

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old-fashioned home recipe consisting of plain Bay Rum, Lavona (de Composee), and a little Menthol Crystals. These three mixed at home in a few minutes, work wonders with any scalp. Try it just one night and see. Get from your druggist 2 oz. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ drachm Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked on your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease. In ten days you will find fine downy new hairs sprouting up all over your scalp and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Any druggist can sell you the above. The prescription is very inexpensive and we know of nothing so effective and certain in its result.

DANIELS REFUSES TO ORDER WARSHIPS BACK TO TAMPICO

Says It Would Mean Sacrifice of Foreigners' Lives.

Washington, May 8.—Bitter complaints by representatives of American interests at Tampico, who called on Secretary Daniels and charged that the navy had failed to protect citizens of the United States and their property at the beseiged Mexican port, have caused the secretary to issue a formal statement reviewing the operations of the naval vessels and justifying all steps taken up to the present time.

Mr. Daniels declared that the course of the government had made it possible to bring all Americans out of the Tampico district in safety, and that its first efforts always had been to protect lives first, though property interests had not been disregarded.

Acted on British Advice.

The statement threw new light on some of the circumstances that have guided the department in its actions and announced that Admiral Mayo refrained from sending his ships into the river at Tampico to bring out Americans, only upon the urgent request of the British naval commander there, who asked that for the sake of all foreigners he be allowed to take out the Americans.

The American vessels were withdrawn from Tampico in the first place, the secretary said, because it was thought their presence at Vera Cruz would be essential. Later, he explained, it would have been impossible for Admiral Mayo to have gone into the river with his ships to rescue refugees.

Saved American Lives.

"Even had it been possible, however," continued the statement, "under cover of the guns of the ships available, to have brought these refugees in the city of Tampico itself safely on board, word of aggressive action by the Americans would have spread to the surrounding country far swifter than any relief expedition could have traveled to their rescue and it is almost certain that reprisal on American citizens would have followed and lives would have been lost. So clear was this that the captain of the British man-of-war earnestly advised Admiral Mayo not to send any ships back to Tampico, basing his recommendation on his judgment that it would be precarious and that it would only result in the loss of life.

Briton Took Up Task.

"So earnest was the British captain, and so confident of this, that he offered to undertake the work of collecting all of the refugees and taking them out to our ships if we would only refrain from further arousing resentment, which was nearly at white heat at that time, by sending our ships up the river. This was reported by Admiral Mayor as follows, under date of April 23.

"'Arranged as last resort to go in this morning to bring out Americans. Felt almost sure such action would precipitate hostilities. British captain, whom I informed of my purpose, requested me, for the sake of all foreigners, not to come in, but that he would send out Americans, to which I agreed.'

"As has been said before, the fact that our citizens, and the foreigners looking to us for protection, were getting out in safety, is the best answer to any question as to the judgment shown in this procedure. So much for the remaining outside of our ships and of the reason why the Americans were carried on the British ship from Tampico to our squadron.

Unsafe to Go Back.

"In the present situation it does not seem safe to assume the responsibility of sending not only men, but helpless women and children, deliberately back into a danger from which they have just been rescued. What excuse could the secretary of the navy give to the American people if by his orders American citizens are carried back to meet that death later, owing to the chaotic conditions which must result from war now raging between the Federals and Constitutionalists?"

Oil Men Worried.

New York, May 8.—Representatives of sixty-eight oil companies with interests in the region of Tampico met here last night and adopted resolutions asking President Wilson to restore American gunboats in Tampico harbor and afford protection for Americans operating in the oil district. A committee of five was appointed to place the request before the president.

According to the resolutions, there is great danger that the oil wells near Tampico will take fire, resulting in perhaps the complete destruction of a great source of the world's supply.

Chemist Knows Duffy's Virtue

That's why he refused to accept a substitute and was willing to wager money that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is absolutely pure. Its well-known reputation as a promotor of longevity is again in evidence:

MR. BEN. J. KISTER.

"After nine years I am back in Colorado again and I am still using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. In Cincinnati I met with an interesting experience. You'll remember I am a Chemist and I know the virtue of Duffy's. I suggested to a friend that he try it. We went to a wholesale liquor store where he traded and asked for it, and were advised that we didn't want Duffy's, but a substitute was suggested. I broke in then and told him he did not know what he was saying, that Duffy's was the best whiskey and tonic made. He replied by saying there was no fusel oil in such and such a whiskey. While I am not a betting man I offered to wager $100 or $500 that there was fusel oil in the two he mentioned. A few days later when I called at his store, he said, 'I give up—you're right; I am going to have Duffy's in my store.' And that is where my friends and his friends have been buying it ever since. I am now nearly seventy years old, but as strong and hardy as a young man of twenty-five. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has helped me to keep my age."—Ben. J. Kister, 1646 Arapahoe St., Denver, Colo.

VILLA WANTS NO EMBARGO

He Talks of Need of Arms and Ammunition to Secure Peace.

Declares Friendship for United States and Its People.

Torreon, May 8.—A plea for the lifting of the embargo on arms as the swiftest, surest and most humanitarian method of bringing peace to Mexico was made in an interview yesterday by Gen. Francisco Villa, general-in-chief of the Constitutionalist army.

"The embargo is protracting this struggle uselessly and is placing a burden on the whole of Mexico which can serve no good," he said. "I hope the American government understands that the placing of the embargo is interfering seriously with the plans of the Constitutionalists. See what we did in the brief time the embargo was lifted. Gomez Palacio, Torreon, San Pedro de las Colonias and even Monterey were Constitutionalist successes due to the lifting of the embargo. Mexico must be pacific and should be pacified quickly. We cannot gain this end quickly while we suffer from lack of ammunition.

Capturing Ammunition.

"We can continue this struggle for better social and economic conditions in Mexico by capturing our ammunition from the enemy, as we have done largely in the past; but such a method would necessarily drag the war over a long period. I believe, therefore, that every humanitarian consideration argues for the lifting of the embargo. The sooner we can secure the arms and ammunition we need, the sooner the country will be pacified and normal conditions restored. I am sure the American people will have no difficulty in understanding this."

After reviewing the aims of the Constitutionalists, Gen. Villa said of his attitude toward the United States and Americans in event that hostilities should ensue between the two countries:

Would Protect Foreigners.

"I wish that you would make it clear to the people of the United States that I am anxious for all Americans connected with industries in Mexico to return and again take up their pursuit. I wish to add that the foreigners now in Mexico, and those who return, will have nothing to fear should it ever come to war between Mexico and the United States, and I give my word that everything possible would be done by me to protect them. Should they desire to leave the country, in such an event I would place enough rolling stock at their disposal to take them and all their movable property out of Mexico."

Gen. Villa's face was serious as he made this statement, which he emphasized with vigorous gestures, but as he concluded his face broke into a smile and he said:

"Why Talk of War?"

"But why talk of war with the United States? It would be extremely foolish for two reasonable and intelligent men to fight over a drunken man; and would it not be the height of folly for the United States and Mexico to come to blows over a man like Huerta? It seems to me that the entire civilized world would laugh, should this come to pass."

Gen. Villa reiterated his belief in the good will of the American people toward Mexico.

"After all," he said, "our interests are mutual. A boundary is only an imaginary line of political import. Socially and economically, the Rio Grande has never proven a stiff barrier to the nations separated by it. I believe that all enlightened Americans and Mexicans take this stand. I know I do.

Always for Peace.

"However, there is much in society. The Mexicans would remain Mexicans just as the Americans prefer to remain Americans. For that reason we Mexicans would defend our country to the last. I take the liberty to say that before a war between the United States and Mexico would be terminated, few Mexicans would be left alive. It is not every American who believes this, yet I dare say that Americans who have lived in Mexico will agree with me that the Mexican loves his country as much as the man of any other race. He would not be a good citizen if he did not.

"But I am now and always have been for peace."

Gen. Villa told of the efforts he was making in preparation for an effective campaign against Saltillo and San Luis Potosi. He dwelt on the fact that the majority of the 15,000 men he reviewed Wednesday were mounted, and spoke enthusiastically of the fine character of their mounts.

The next moves in Villa's war plans, it is said, depend somewhat on the developments after the arrival of Gen. Carranza, who is expected today. Hundreds of box cars for transporting troops have been concentrated about Torreon, and large stores of provisions and forage have been assembled. All available troops from the North are being brought here.

FORREST CAVALRY MEN WOULD ENLIST

Confederate Veterans Are Ready to Fight Against the Mexicans.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 8.—Gen. Bennett H. Young of Louisville, Ky., late yesterday was re-elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans at the annual reunion here. Richmond, Va., was chosen as the place for the 1915 reunion. One hundred survivors of Gen. Forrest's famous cavalry troop yesterday offered their services to President Wilson in the event of war with Mexico.

MEXICAN FEDERAL GUNBOAT DISABLED

Morelos Is Lying Half Submerged Near Mazatlan.

San Diego, Cal., May 8.—Lying half submerged on the base near Mazatlan is the Federal gunboat Moreles, disabled first by bombs dropped by a rebel aviator believed to be Didier Masson, and then subjected to a severe fire from insurgent field pieces, according to passengers who arrived here on the Mexican steamer Benito Juarez. The gunboat was wrecked during a brisk battle April 26, when the rebels were given great assistance by the aviator and his deadly bombs.

Col. y Romero, one of the Constitutionalist leaders in the state of Sonora, arrived on the Benito Juarez. His mission is to purchase a boiler at San Francisco for the rebel gunboat Tampico, which is disabled in Topolobampo harbor. The Tampico was hulled in three places during the recent engagement with the Guerrero and Morelos, Romero said, but divers are repairing the vessel and expect to have her floated within two weeks.

"Huerta's Days Numbered."

Romero declared the rebels are planning a simultaneous attack against Salina Cruz, Acapulco and other west coast cities held by the Federals, in order to acquire as much territory as possible during the meeting of the South American mediators May 18.

"Zapata and Villa have wagered $50,000 that each will be the first to enter Mexico City," said Romero. "Huerta's days are numbered. Rebels boast that he will fall within fifteen days. This appears to be well founded. His execution within that period is inevitable, unless he flees the country."

When the Benito Juarez sailed from Mazatlan, the cruiser California, destroyer Perry and the Japanese cruiser Idzumo were anchored in the harbor.

Italy Will Exhibit.

Washington, May 8. — Secretary Bryan has received the formal note of acceptance on the part of the Italian government to officially participate in the Panama-Pacific international exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915. Assurance of acceptance previously had been given R. A. Morris of Chicago, United States commissioner general to Italy. An appropriation of 2,000,000 lire has been made by the Italian parliament.

Cumberland Man Fined.

Cumberland, Wis., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Gilfillan, who was charged with assault with intent to commit murder was found guilty of assault and battery and fined $100 and costs.

Father Appreciates Mother's Advice

"SAY, MA, that advice you gave me the other day surely was right," says Pa.

"What advice, Pa?" asked Ma. "I give you SO MUCH THAT IS GOOD."

"YES, THAT'S TRUE, but this is the best yet."

"I am glad you appreciate some of it, any way. What was it?"

"WELL, you remember your telling me about wearing one of those Summit Town and Country Shirts with a soft attached collar; I bought some the other day. They surely are fine. See! I have one on now. Look at the collar," replied Pa.

"WELL, BLESS MY HEART! so it is, and it LOOKS just like one of those regular starched collars, too, don't it?"

"There is more STYLE and COMFORT in one of these Summit Town and Country Shirts than I thought was possible in a shirt," replied Pa, and there's a full line carried at all of the LEADING STORES.

G. O. P. HAS LONG BALLOT

Other State Tickets at June Primaries Are Very Brief.

Two Parties Have No Tickets—Halbert Has Opponent.

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—The Republicans will have the only long ballot at the primaries of June 16. The Progressives and Democrats will have a little slip with two names each, while the Socialists and Prohibitionists will have none at all. The time for filing expired yesterday.

Under the new primary law all candidates for partisan office that have no opposition for nomination do not go on the primary ballot at all.

The Progressives did not expect to have any ballot at the primary, but when H. T. Halbert went to file late yesterday he found that E. N. Westerlund of Mound, Hennepin county, had filed ahead of him.

When T. J. Sharkey of Staples, who was indorsed for railroad commissioner, declined to file, Halbert induced John C. White of Chatfield to file in his place. But White, in filing at noon, had filed as a Republican, and Halbert left the capitol hurriedly to find another candidate for Progressive railroad commissioner.

Secretary of State Julius Schmahl is the only Republican candidate whose name will not appear on the primary ballot. No one filed against him for the nomination.

The Progressive candidates went in a body to the capitol to file. The candidates below governor whose names will not appear on the primary ballot are: Lieutenant governor, J. F. Spencer, Rochester; secretary of state, J. C. Lewis, Nashwauk; auditor, Will Curtiss, St. James; treasurer, P. G. Jacobson, Madison; attorney general, A. V. Ricke, Minneapolis.

The Democratic candidates below governor are. Lieutenant governor, C. M. Andrist, Minneapolis; secretary of state, N. N. Berwheim, Little Falls; auditor, A. J. Rush, Mankato; treasurer, E. M. Engelbert, Benson; attorney general, N. M. Cronin, Minneapolis; railroad and warehouse commissioner, Loren A. Smith.

B. N. Wheeler of Duluth, Prohibition candidate for lieutenant governor, withdrew yesterday, and A. W. Piper filed in his place. William Hokanson of Winthrop filed on the "dry" ticket for railroad commissioner.

A total of 201 candidates for state, congressional and legislative positions had filed when the office closed. Only candidates running in more than one county filed at the capitol. In 1912 there were only 99 filings, there being no election for state senator that year.

There is only one Democratic contest for congress, this being between Harry Swenson and A. S. Dowdall of Minneapolis in the new Tenth district. On the Republican side there are contests in seven of the ten districts, the only Republicans who are unopposed at the primaries being C. R. Davis of the Third, F. C. Stevens of the Fourth and A. J. Volstead of the Seventh.

Three candidates against Congressman Stevens filed with County Auditor George J. Ries yesterday, but all are on different tickets. C. C. Van Dyke filed as a Democrat, C. E. Learned as a Progressive and William Mahoney as a Socialist.

J. Q. Mackintosh of Stillwater filed as a Progressive candidate for congress in the Third district, and Carlos Avery of Hutchinson, executive agent of the state game and fish commission under Governor Johnson, filed as a Democrat, making a three-cornered fight for Congressman Davis in November.

A. J. Volstead of Granite Falls, Seventh district, is the only present member of congress who has no opposition either for nomination or election.

HOUSE PASSES THE NAVY APPROPRIATION

Two Battleships and Other Vessels Are Provided For.

Washington, May 8.—The annual naval appropriation bill, carrying $139,560,334 and providing for the entire administration naval construction program, was passed by the house without a roll call. The building program includes two battleships, one to be built in some government navy yard; six torpedo boat destroyers; one sea-going torpedo boat; three coast defense submarine torpedo boats, to be constructed on the Pacific coast, and four submarines.

The "little navy" men made their final stand against two battleships on a motion to send the bill back to the committee, which was defeated, 201 to 106. Democratic Leader Underwood, Republican Leader Mann and other prominent figures in the house supported the motion.

SAYS U. S. ATTORNEY ATTEMPTED MURDER

Washington, May 8.—Judge A. A. Wilder of Honolulu has filed charges with the department of justice against Jeff F. McCarn, United States district attorney in Hawaii, alleging that McCarn endeavored to kill an attorney in court at Honolulu a short time ago. Judge Wilder is endeavoring to have the district attorney ousted from office.

Spring's Here, Fellows!

Ha! Ha! Overcoats Coming Off! Can't Hide the Shabby Suit Now! But Don't Think of Paying $25 or $30 for a New One.

Take it from your Uncle Dud, (and I know something about duds, too). When you pay $25 or $30 for a suit of Spring Clothes, you're playing a good joke on yourselves. It's nonsense. Fifteen dollars is all you need pay for the finest fabrics and latest styles in this man's town, and that's straight.

Here's the idea fellows, and you're business men enough to get me, I know. I'm a little branch, a selling outlet, for the great and famous Glasgow Woolen Mills, where woolens, beautiful Spring patterns, that will make your eyes pop out of your heads, are figured in carload lots. Direct from the looms they come to our 117 stores and from there they come direct to you.

Ponder that men! There's no wholesaler's profit to add on; no jobber's profit, no sub-jobber's profits; no tailor's slice to boost the cost way up to the clouds. Those beautiful materials come direct from us to you. That's the reason why I can fit you out with the swellest Spring and Summer fabrics, the kind the ordinary tailor must ask $25 and $30 for, for $15. He's got to add on all those other profits, and of course you pay for it. I don't and that's the diff.

Now that's plain horse sense, fellows. It's just a difference in the ways of doing business. So don't let any one tell you that you can't get a first-class, right up to snuff made-to-order suit for $15. The fabrics I give you are the real pure, all-wool, fresh from the sheep's back. You can't duplicate them any place in town under $25 and $30. And styles, and fit? You just ought to see them. You'll be tickled stiff. Come in and let me prove it. Let me save you $10 on your Spring Suit. Just ask for George H. Mills, Mgr. Glasgow Woolen Mills Store, 333 West Superior street. And say, if you want a swell pair of trousers made-to-measure, now's the time. I'm selling my regular $5, $6 and $7 pants for $2.75. And, take it from me, they're pippins!

Tomorrow afternoon special films will be shown for children at one of the Minneapolis moving picture houses. "Jack and the Bean Stalk," "The Three Bears" and "The Land of Oz" will be the films and while they are being run Mrs. R. B. Liggett of Duluth will tell the stories. Between the films Mrs. Liggett will tell other stories suitable for children.

The Parents' and Teachers' associations of Lake Harriet and Robert Fulton schools of Minneapolis have begun a movement to have film programs for children. The show tomorrow will be the first one under the new order. The aim is to have special programs for children so their mothers will know just what they are seeing when they go to moving picture shows. In addition to the amusement afforded there will be educational advantages to be derived, as an attempt will be made to supplement school work with films. For instance, pupils of the two schools especially connected with the new project have been reading "The Land of Oz," to be shown on the screen tomorrow.

The women of the Lake Harrit district recently assumed censorship of the Harriet theater at which these special children's matinees will be given. In addition to preparing programs suitable for children they are planning special educational and entertainment programs for grown persons.

SPEAK AT ROME.

American Women on International Council Program.

Rome, May 8.—American methods of rural life was the subject of an address today before the International Council of Women by Miss Janet Elizabeth Richards of Washington. The success of these methods, she said, had been proved by the fact that foreigners were sending their sons to America to study them. Miss Richards was the bearer of greetings from the Daughters of the Revolution, from the Daughters of 1812 and from the Federation of Women's Clubs of the District of Columbia.

Mrs. A. H. Proudfoot of Chicago brought greetings to the congress on behalf of Baroness Bertha von Suttner, who was awarded the Nobel peace prize in 1909, and for whom Mrs. Proudfoot was acting as proxy.

Queen Mary of England has consented to become a patron of the English council of women, according to an announcement made today by Mrs. Creighton, one of the British delegates. Mrs. Creighton added that the English council was in favor of woman suffrage, but not of militants who are represented only by an insignificant minority of the women of England.

WHITE HOUSE BRIDE IN WEDDING GOWN

—Copyrighted by Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. WILLIAM G. McADOO.

Washington, May 8.—William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, and Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, youngest daughter of the president and Mrs. Wilson, were married at the White House at 6:10 o'clock last night before a small group of friends. The bridal gown was made of ivory white satin and trimmed with real old point lace. This charming creation was the principal part of a trousseau made by Fifth avenue modistes. The bodice was softly draped with satin, which crosses in front and is brought to a point below the shoulders, front and back. The V-shaped neck is finished with folds of soft tulle. The long mousquetaire sleeves are made of tulle. The real old point lace is gracefully draped over the right shoulder to the left side of the waist and is fastened with a spray of orange blossoms; the lace then continues as a border to the long transparent tunic of tulle which graduates to the side of the skirt at the train. The long sweeping train is three and one-half yards in length. A cap effect bridal wreath, especially executed with orange blossoms and long draped veil, was very effective.

Much interest was shown in the real old point lace used on the gown. It is a master piece and a work of art in lace making. Unique in design and perfect in execution, it is said this famous art treasure, which is a part of a world-famous collection, may find its place as an antique in a national collection.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

Will H. Rogers, whose songs and clever imitations are proving one of the real hits of the closing vaudeville bill at the Orpheum this week, is a former Denver university student.

Rogers had ambitions to be a singer, and he attended the conservatory of music at the Denver university for three years. He earned his way through the university by working in an automobile garage. While there he was accustomed to imitate with his voice and lips the sounds of automobiles, and one day he attracted the attention of the manager with an amusing imitation of a motorcycle. The manager urged him to cultivate his talent, and he did so. After a short tour in concert he found himself in New York without an engagement. He then thought of his imitations, and was given a tryout at the Fifth Avenue theater. He was promptly booked for a tour, and has been in vaudeville ever since.

Tomorrow night the last performance of vaudeville for the present season will be given at the Duluth theater. The closing week has been one of the best of the season in point of attendance, and Manager Billings announced yesterday that the theater would wind up its most prosperous season to date, Saturday night.

Sunday the first of the feature films will be shown. It will be a reproduction of the famous Indian wars of the United States, which were staged for the motion picture camera by many of those who participated in the original wars.

Judging from the applause and the number of encores Al Abbott had to make last evening, he is easily the hit of the vaudeville bill that opened at the Empress theater yesterday for the remainder of the week.

The audience has unable to get enough from the young man and to satisfy his admirers Abbott sang a second German song. His act contains a variety of impersonations. Abbott possesses a pleasing voice and with this as an asset and his ability to impersonate he presents a most entertaining act. It includes imitations of a number of people at a dinner party, who were called upon to sing or recite at an impromptu vaudeville entertainment.

Walter Terry and his Fiji Girls have a good musical act, containing many popular songs songs and some good comedy. The headline sketch tells of Hamilton Deatherbone, a missionary, coming to the Cannibal isle, where he is imprisoned and later made king by the queen. Terry is effective as the missionary, as he not only acts the part well, but also looks it.

Several dogs, who are musically inclined, introduce a program at the opening of the bill. Their director, Rand, deserves considerable credit for the manner in which he has trained these animals. Thompson and Berry present a singing and talking act that hardly reaches the average of its kind.

"The Silent Witness," an interesting motion picture film, in which the dictaphone plays the important part, closes the bill, which will continue until tomorrow evening, with the regular daily matinees.

MANUAL TRAINING TEACHERS MEET.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 8.—Interest at today's sessions of the Western Drawing and Manual Training association convention here centered in the question as to where next year's convention will be held. Among the strongest contenders are Chicago, Toledo, Grand Rapids, Mich., Kalamazoo, Buffalo and San Francisco. Chicago is pulling the strongest and will doubtless get the meeting, according to a prominent official.

L. D. Harveys, president of Stout institute, Menomonie, Wis., opened the sessions with an address on "Design in General Education; an Analysis of Its Claims and Its Accomplishments."

General round table discussion, followed by inspection of exhibits, the largest display ever shown at a similar meeting, completed the morning's session.

OBSERVATIONS

—By PEGGY PEABODY—

People of Common Sense Prevail.

I must own to liking people who are up in the morning in good season, who eat three proper meals a day at regular hours and who sleep in real beds at night, and not in the sort that double up to look like a piano or bookcase during the day. Somehow I associate breakfast at midday and beds that fold up into almost any known piece of furniture at the touch of a spring with bohemianism and eccentricity.

Fortunately for me and others of my taste, the ordinary mortals seem to be gaining ground. It is no crime nowadays to express your own opinions and live up to them, even though you only aspire to plain citizenship. Not so long ago if you were not running after an "ism" or riding a hobby you were hopelessly out of it, and so commonplace that you were by way of being called eccentric because you were not caught by fads and fancies.

More and more are we becoming free enough to do as we choose and to find happiness in being ourselves. The number of people who have deserted the ranks of those who attempted many things they did not understand and posed as something they could never hope to be to join the cult of the ordinary, proves that a goodly part of the eccentricity rampant a few years ago was a pose pure and simple. It is noticeable in the tones of people's voices on the street or in any public place.

Once it was considered the thing to be considered delicate, high-strung, queer or artistic. Now one strives to be natural and the more natural one is the better one is liked, though some still cling to eccentricity and make it pay. Still, it is an attitude that is fast falling into disfavor and is as out of date as a long-haired artist in a paint-stained velveteen jacket, smelling awfully of tobacco. Little sympathy is expressed nowadays for a sick person unless very sick, and those who pretend to ills and weaknesses are not even tolerated. So it will be with all persons who are other than they really are, for it is always discoverable. Real eccentricity rings true enough.

Posing as something out of the ordinary is too much trouble, in the first place, and in the second there is always a time limit on such procedure. Then we are learning that the greatest men and women are the most simple and natural, and since it is easier to be ourselves we are taking to it and coming to know that it is better than shamming our lives away and not enjoying a minute. There is room for improvement as far as shamming goes, but we are on the mend in some respects at least.

ELEVEN JURORS FOR BECKER TRIAL FOUND

New York, May 8.—Five jurors were added to the six already in the box at the examination of talesmen at today's session of the trial of Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. With ten men selected at noon it was considered probable that the list would be completed before today's adjournment.

Dio L. Holbrook, a marine engineer, was chosen as Juror No. 10, and Philip Loff, a civil engineer, took his seat in the box at Juror No. 11.

Additional jurors secured during the forenoon were: Paul D. Camors, a bond salesman, Juror No. 7; No. 8, Robert Baxter, clerk; No. 9, Willoughby R. Smith, clerk.

Becker appeared in a new spring suit. Because he had not been allowed to receive his wife in the Tombs, he came into the courtroom a half hour before the forenoon session opened, to talk to her. District Attorney Charles S. Whitman will make his opening address on Monday at the latest, and possibly tomorrow.

PAY LAST HONORS TO GEN. SICKLES.

New York, May 8.—New York turned aside today from its preparation for paying tribute to the men who died at Vera Cruz, to do homage to a veteran of the Sixties. Members of the United States army, comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, a regiment of the New York National guard and the Old Guard, forming a procession ten blocks long, marched slowly up Fifth avenue as a funeral escort for the body of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles.

A gun caisson of the field battery of the national guard of New York, draped in black, stood at the door of the Sickles house and received the coffin, covered with the United States flag and bearing the sword, cap and epaulets of the dead general. Flanked by members of Phil Kearney Post, G. A., the caisson moved slowly up the avenue. Flags along the line of march hung at half mast, and as the body passed along the street every head was bared, although rain was falling.

After the services the body was taken to the Pennsylvania station to be sent to Washington for interment in Arlington cemetery.

DIES OF WOUND.

Mysterious Man Expires Under Unusual Circumstances.

Louis Fabin, a laborer of foreign birth died yesterday morning at St. Francis hospital following a short illness of what physicians believed to be typhoid fever. An autopsy was held over the body last evening and it was found that the cause of death had been a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

Fabin came to the hospital only a few days ago and after being examined it was said that there was little the matter with him. Small red spots were noticed on the abdomen but the physicians believed these to be from the effects of typhoid.

The man said he had come from Hibbing and police officials are inclined to believe that he is a fugitive from justice who has recently been in a shooting scrape and wished to hide his indentity. The Hibbing authorities were notified but no man of such a description is known nor has there been any recent shooting affray there they claim.

Injured Man in Bad Way.

James Bell, the laborer who was injured by a fall on Sunday into the hold of the steamer Eddy, is still in an unconscious condition at St. Mary's hospital. Little hope is held by attending physicians for the man's recovery. Bell lost his footing while handling rails which were being unloaded from the steamer and fell on his head into the hold, a distance of about twenty-five feet.

Woman Held Up.

Three diamond rings valued at $100 each, were taken from Mrs. J. C. Bell at Third street and Hammond avenue late last evening, according to information received at the Duluth police headquarters this morning. Mrs. Bell said she had been on her way to her husband's restaurant on Third street, when she was accosted by a man who demanded her valuables. She gave the description of the man as being smooth-faced, wore a brown slouch hat, and was about five feet eight inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds.

WITHHOLDS HIS DECISION

Supreme Court Will Pass on the Law Fixing "Dry" Territory.

Judge Fesler Will Wait for Opinion Before Deciding Delicate Point.

Judge Bert Fesler will reserve his decision on the constitutionality of the state law which makes it an offense to sell intoxicants within one-half mile of "dry" territory until after the supreme court has passed upon a case involving an interpretation of the local option law on the same point.

A Martin county case, similar in many respects to the Carlton county proceeding which Judge Fesler has under advisement, was argued before the high tribunal this week by Frank B. Kellogg, the well known St. Paul attorney, and Lyndon A. Smith, attorney general.

Judge Fesler now has before him the question of whether the state law, which prescribes that intoxicating liquors shall not be sold at retail within a half-mile of "dry" territory operates in such a manner as to close the saloons of a "wet" village less than one mile square, which is bounded on all sides by a "dry" township, and if so, whether or not, the law is constitutional.

The point was raised in habeas corpus proceedings brought to test the legal rights of those engaged in the saloon business in the village of Moose Lake and to determine whether or not Moose Lake will be a "wet" or "dry" village in the future. For the purpose of making a test case, Joseph King and H. K. Lower were arrested for selling liquor without a license, the claim being made that in spite of the fact that the villagers had voted "wet" by a large majority, their licenses were void for the reason that their saloons are within one-half mile of dry territory, the township of Moose Lake, which surrounds the village and of which the village is a part, voted "dry" at the last election and it is the contention of County Attorney H. S. Lord of Carlton county that the saloons in the village of Moose Lake must close.

In the Martin county case before the supreme court, a much similar question is involved. Joseph Miller and Christ E. Sinn, licensed liquor dealers in the village of Triumph, Martin county, whose places of business are within one-half mile of the corporate limits of the village of Monterey, which voted "dry" at the last election, were denied writs of habeas corpus by the Martin county district court. An appeal was taken to the supreme court and Frank B. Kellogg, official trust-buster of the Roosevelt administration, was engaged to attack the constitutionality of the law. His contention was that the law is unconstitutional because it disfranchised the citizens of the village of Triumph, who had voted "wet" and denied them the equal protection of the law.

An early decision is expected in the case before the supreme court. Judge Fesler will then dispose of the Carlton county matter.

injections in these cases were one, two and four, respectively. Of the remaining twelve patients, ten received one and two received four injections. Five of the ten patients who received one injection developed abscesses at the site of the injection and were therefore unsuitable for further injections, according to the inventor. The other five patients were not rejected, either because they did not see the improvement they had been led to expect or because they had become worse and had lost confidence in Friedmann. As to their present condition, five of them are now unchanged and five are worse than a year ago.

"One patient, who had four injections, feels well and presents signs of an arrested lung process, but he has not gained in weight and has developed a new tuberculous process in another part of the body. The second patient with four injections has tuberculosis of the knee joint and is now decidedly worse than before. The infiltrate of the fourth injection broke down and discharged pus.

"Where abscesses resulted at the site of the first injection, the vaccine apparently produced no additional harmful effect. The disease remained uninfluenced. Friedmann neglected to prevent abscess formation, although he claimed to know how. To be very charitable, one might judge from one single case that decided natural healing tendencies, aided by common sense treatment, will not be hindered by the remedy. When in a quiescent case the first subjective and objective symptoms of a new outbreak appear and one wishes to check it, the remedy is absolutely worthless for that purpose. It cannot prevent the tendency to spread, if a case is so disposed. The method of its administration has been anything but careful and intelligent. For these reasons, and on account of the absence of curative and preventive powers in this series, it cannot be recommended."

RICHES FOR NEGRO BOY

Ten-Year-Old Dan Tucker Gets $190 Royalty a Day.

Cushing, Okla., May 8.—Running wild, free and irresponsible as a colt, oblivious to the events of the world as an Eskimo, in a four-room house on a rocky Oklahoma farm of 80 acres, lives a 10-year-old negro boy who doesn't know that he is one of the richest boys in the state, and if he did, the fact would carry no significance to his brain. Little "Dan" Tucker often sings for his supper, but he doesn't have to—he doesn't have to do anything for his subsistence, and probably never will. The month of March saw deposited to his credit $12,000 and every day he makes not less than $190.

Dan Tucker is the son of James and Elizabeth Tucker, children of slaves of the Creek Indians freed by the Civil war. By virtue of a treaty made between the United States and the Creek Indians at Fort Smith, Ark., in 1866, slaves formerly belonging to the Creeks, and their descendants, were given an equal share with their former owners in the government allotment of the old Creek lands in the Indian territory. And that is how Dan Tucker now owns 160 acres of land lying fifteen miles east of Cushing, Okla., in the heart of the newly developed Cushing oil fields. The land was allotted to him in a supplementary division made by the government in 1905, and Dan had been enrolled as an eligible by his father.

A Land Flowing With Oil.

For years the land was reputedly no account. Far from a stream, no ten acres of it slanting the same way, and the surface rocky and hilly, resisting cultivation. Two years ago, long after Dan's parents had given up hope of return from the land, the Prairie Oil and Gas company arranged a lease, the object being oil. Frank Wheeler had just made his well known strike on land almost adjacent, and Dan's land looked very promising to the oil experts. Well, of course they struck oil—lots of it. They couldn't miss it. Oil is rushing out of that portion of Creek county like water from a lawn sprinkler.

The terms of Dan's lease are the ones usually made between the owners and the development companies. Dan gets one-eighth of the gross proceeds from his oil wells and the Prairie Oil and Gas company does all the work and stands all the expense of operation. Dan's father, "Jim" Tucker, a common negro farmer near Porter, Okla., had years ago accumulated his eighty-acre farm and a lot of debts. He knew how to plant the corn and shuck the ears—if any corn grew from the seed, but he knew very little about being a guardian. When young Dan's income rose to more than $200 a day from the wells on the Cushing farm, it became evident that guardianing was out of Jim Tucker's line. Dan's oil earnings for the month of February amounted to more than $4,000, and such an amount was away over his father's head, so to speak.

His Wealth Piling Up.

Consequently on March 8 Jesse Watts, an attorney of Wagoner, Okla., was appointed Dan's guardian, and during the following thirty days there was deposited to the credit of the guardian $12,000. In the last month there has been a gradual decrease in the price of oil, until it stands today at 75 cents a barrel. The daily output of the well has correspondingly decreased, and last week Dan's wells were putting out about two thousand barrels a day, piling up Dan's share daily at something over $190.

The extent of Dan's fortune is a variable quantity, and cannot be estimated fairly because of the many influences that affect it. The wavering price of crude oil, the uncertain time that the wells will continue their output, may eventually bring Dan's income down to less than $50 a day. On the other hand, there is every reason to believe that an abundance of oil is available on other portions of Dan's allotment and that better facilities will soon be made for conveying the product to the refineries. Pipelines, more railroads and more oil wells can't mean anything but more money for Dan for years to come.

And little Dan, chasing chickens and feeding two or three pigs on old "Jim's" farm, doesn't know that the world extends any farther than to Muskogee, eighteen miles away. To tell him that he made $12,000 last month means hardly as much to him as to tell him he has another pig to feed.

In money matters, Dan's mind grasps the significance of amounts up to about 25 cents, but beyond that the thought of money is unnecessary and uncalled for, according to Dan's theory. His father is paid $50 a month to provide for him, and send him to school. Dan resents both, and insists that all the provision he needs is someone to ring the dinner bell. Five months of school a year are a good many more than Dan sees any use for, and he is inclined to think that if education and culture are necessary for one to be rich gracefully he will be content to roam about in old "Jim's" pasture the rest of his days, and let someone else take the money who will be willing to prepare himself for it.

Another Child's Millions.

Another negro child near Muskogee, whose experience is unparalleled except by Aladdin and Cinderella, is little Sarah Rector, 11 years old, an orphan, crude, black and uneducated, yet worth more than $4,000,000. Sarah and her little brother of 8 years, Mannie, came into a quarter section of worthless farm land but fine oil land, in the same manner that Dan Tucker received his. Sarah's parents both died several years ago. Her mother died of that dread "white plague," which attacks negroes more than it does whites, and her father's term in the Oklahoma penitentiary was interrupted by his death.

And Sarah plodded ahead, begging and borrowing from the neighbors, and was never heard nor thought of until the oil promoters hunted up the owner of some land northeast of Cushing. B. B. Jones, a zealous oil promoter with a little money, located her finally and executed an oil lease upon her share of the quarter section. The first well they 'brought in" was the biggest in the history of the Cushing field. The first twenty days it was operated it paid to Sarah her eighth share of $60,000. And for months afterwards the receipts held up almost as great, and it is only in the last few weeks that it has become apparent that more wells must be drilled on her land. Mannie's land is wholly undeveloped and no doubt will prove as oily as did Sarah's.

The Rector girl is cared for by a guardian and lives with him and her brother near Muskogee, in a five-room house built for $1,100. Sarah has the disease which killed her mother and is being treated for it.

HUSBAND ACCUSES SCHUMANN-HEINK

Two Affinities, One an Appleton Lumberman, He Says.

Chicago, May 8.—Statutory charges involving a Paterson, N. J., policeman and a lumberman entered into the divorce proceedings of Mme. Schumann-Heink Rapp today. The charges were made by William Rapp, Jr., in an answer to the suit for divorce brought by the noted singer.

Rapp charges in his bill, which is not sworn to, that Mrs. Rapp became infatuated with a policeman in Paterson and brought him on to Chicago with her. He also charges that later she sent the policeman to Ann Arbor, Mich., to have his voice trained.

Makes Second Charge.

Another charge is that the great singer was unduly familiar with a wealthy Appleton, Wis., lumberman. The document details numerous occasions in which they were in each other's company at her home, 3672 South Michigan avenue. Rapp cites an automobile trip made with the lumberman to Culver, Ind., where he charges the singer and the lumberman spent the night in a cottage occupied only by them; her daughter and a governess. The names of the policeman and the lumberman are not mentioned.

Mr. Rapp declared his wife was "insanely jealous" and frequently accused him without cause of intimacy with women. He recites that Mrs. Rapp would accuse him publicly of love for other women, and mentions one specific case in connection with an invalid woman they met while aboard a steamer on their way to Germany in 1911. He asserts that she ransacked his desks, investigated his bank account and opened his mail.

The Policeman "Affair."

Quarrels over the bringing up of the Schumann-Heink children added to his miseries at home, he declares.

The singer and her husband disputed over penances which she made in connection with an imagined sin on her part relating to the death of a former husband, Curt Paul Funfstuck.

It is charged that the complainant is a woman of a jealous nature and that she, on various occasions, accused the defendant without cause of having been intimate with women with whom he spoke.

It is expected that the case will be reached some time next week.

NOT CURATIVE OR PREVENTIVE

Says Friedmann Vaccine Treatment Cannot Be Recommended.

Washington, May 8.—In a paper entitled "Subsequent Report of Patients Who Received Injections of Friedmann Vaccine a Year Ago," Dr. George Mannheimer of New York declared emphatically before the clinical section of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis here today that the Friedmann vaccine had exhibited "neither curative nor preventive powers" and that it could not therefore be recommended.

"In March, 1913," said Dr. Mannheimer, "eighteen patients were treated under my supervision. Of these, fifteen can be followed up, and of that number three are dead. The number of

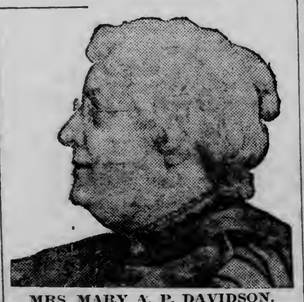
Old People Need a Bowel Stimulant

The Ideal One Is a Mild Laxative-Tonic That Will Keep the Bowels Gently Active

Healthy old age is so absolutely dependent upon the condition of the bowels that great care should be taken to see that they act regularly. The fact is that as age advances the stomach muscles become weak and inactive and the liver does not store up the juices that are necessary to prompt digestion.

Some help can be obtained by eating easily digested foods and by plenty of exercise, but this latter is irksome to most elderly people. One thing is certain, that a state of constipation should always be avoided, as it is dangerous to life and health. The best plan is to take a mild laxative as often as is deemed necessary. But with equal certainty it is suggested that cathartics, purgatives, physics, salts and pills be avoided, as they do but temporary good and are so harsh as to be a shock to a delicate system.

A much better plan and one that thousands of elderly people are following, is to take a gentle laxative-tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which acts as nearly like nature as is possible. In fact, the tendency of this remedy is to strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles and so train them to act naturally again, when medicines of all kinds can usually be dispensed with. This is the opinion of many people of different ages, among them Mrs. Mary A. P. Davidson of University Mound Home, San Francisco, Cal. She is 78 and because of her sedentary habits had continual bowel trouble. From the day she began taking Dr.



MRS. MARY A. P. DAVIDSON.

Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin she has had no further inconvenience and naturally she is glad to say kind things of this remedy.

A bottle can be bought of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar. People usually buy the fifty cent size first, and then, having convinced themselves of its merits, they buy the dollar size, which is more economical. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. Elderly persons of both sexes can follow these suggestions with every assurance of good results.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

IS INDICTED FOR MURDER

True Bill Against Charles P. Lawler, Who Killed His Sister-in-Law.

Grand Jury in Partial Report Thursday Returns Twelve Indictments.

In a partial report made to Judge Fesler yesterday afternoon, the May grand jury returned twelve indictments and one no true bill. Three of the indictments were secret. The indictments made public were returned against:

Charles P. Lawler for murder in the first degree. Lawler, 54, shot and killed his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Lawler, at the Astoria hotel on the evening of April 10 and then turned his gun on himself in an ineffectual attempt at suicide. The police claim to have an admission from Lawler that he committed the crime.

Walter J. Sullivan for bigamy. Sullivan, 28, is charged with having contracted marriage with Helen L. Swan of this city on Nov. 15 last, while his first wife, Grace Sullivan of Minneapolis, was already married to him.

Herbert McCall for burglary in the third degree. McCall, 37, is accused of having broken into D. A. Miller's jewelry store, 217 West Superior street, March 15, when $1,500 worth of jewelry is reported to have been stolen from the display window. McCall was arrested shortly after the burglary while in a Superior pawn shop.

Stefan Pilo for grand larceny in the second degree. Morley, 22, is charged with having robbed his roommate, Joe Semcrysryn, of $63 on the night of March 22 at the Montreal hotel. Pilo was caught at the interstate bridge while attempting to cross to Superior. Pilo claims that the whole affair was a joke on his roommate.

John Koskl for robbery in the second degree. Koskl, 28, 234 South First avenue east, is alleged to have waylaid Alex Kurhela, 38, the victim of two robberies on the night of April 20, and to have extracted five silver dollars from him.

John Baris for robbery in the first degree. Baris is charged with having, at the point of a loaded revolver, forced Fred Hoffman to hand over a watch, $10 in cash and other valuables on the night of April 29.

John Morley for grand larceny in the second degree. Morley is alleged to have stolen $20 in cash and a $5 watch from Thomas Golls at a West Superior street hotel on the evening of March 15.

Fred N. Linn for grand larceny in the second degree. Linn is accused of having stolen plumbing tools belonging to the E. S. Farrell company from a chest at the new Zelda theater, 309 West Superior street, April 16.

Victor Linn for burglary in the third degree. He is charged with having broken into the dwelling of Oscar Johnson at Taft in the town of Grand Lake and to have taken a quantity of clothing, two watches and some money.

Inheritance Assessment Is Fixed By the Probate Court.

Taxes totaling $1,344.49 will be paid on inheritances from the estate of the late P. R. Vail of Virginia, formerly a member of the state legislature, who died Jan. 20, 1913. The Vail estate, after all claims had been paid, was valued at $142,171.71 and was left to a widow and four children.

The widow will pay a tax of $662.81 on her inheritance and each of the children have been assessed $180.42. The amounts were determined yesterday in probate court.

Indict Dawson Fire Suspect.

Madison, Minn., May 8.—Anton G. Holtan, who has been detained in the county jail here since the Dawson explosion and fire which cost two lives, was indicted by the grand jury at the May session of the district court. The charges brought against him are arson in the first degree and murder in the third degree.

STEEL PLANT SUBURBS

IS ENTIRELY A COUNTY MATTER

City Has Nothing to Do With Fond du Lac Bridge.

The proposed bridge over the St. Louis river at Fond du Lac is a state and county proposition, and not an intercity scheme, according to County Commissioner Charles Kauppi. Mr. Kauppi contends that whether or not the bridge is built at Fond du Lac, it will not in the least affect Superior or Northern Wisconsin.

"The proposed bridge, if built, will connect the state highways and provide a roadway for farmers in Carlton county to get to markets in the vicinity of the steel plant as well as the city of Duluth," said the commissioner. "The state and county are vitally interested in this proposition as well as the city.

"It would be an impossibility for us to say to people of Wisconsin, 'build a roadway through six or seven miles of wilderness from our state highway to connect with the steel plant bridge.' Even if this was done, the county would have no authority to spend any of the $35,000 appropriated for the purpose of building an approach at the steel plant interstate bridge. That is entirely a city proposition."

Mr. Kauppi said that the state and county had planned to bear the expense of building the highway through the half mile of Wisconsin territory necessary to connect the proposed bridge over the St. Louis with the county highway in Carlton county.

The connecting of this latter county highway with a road into the city and to the steel plant will be, it is said, of vital interest to the residents of New Duluth and Gary. It is expected that when this road is put through, the farmers from the vicinity of Wrenshall will have a ready market for their produce in the steel plant vicinity, which will be, it is contended, of vital interest to both the farmers and the residents.

DEATH COMES WITHOUT WARNING

Hugh McDonald, 50 years old, was found dead in bed at 6:30 o'clock this morning by his sister, Mrs. McEachen, with whom he had been making his home for the last twenty years. His sister had gone to call him to go to his work at the Thompson Furniture factory, where he was employed as finisher.

Mr. McDonald had never been ill or shown signs of illness during the twenty years he has been making his home with his sister, according to Mrs. McEachen. Dr. Gilbert of New Duluth was called, but was unable to do anything, the man evidently having died early in the night.

Coroner McCombs was notified and he ordered the body taken to Richter's undertaking rooms. A autopsy will be held there this afternoon. The funeral arrangements will probably be made this evening.

NEW DULUTH CLUB PLANS BANQUET

Eberhart and Miller May Be Among the Speakers.

Plans for the third annual banquet of the New Duluth Commercial club to be given next Thursday evening at the Kulaszevicz hall are about complete. The program will probably be ready to be announced in full next Tuesday.

Several well-known speakers have already promised to be present to address members of the club. Among these will be Mayor W. I. Prince, William E. McEwen, James P. Boyle and Charles S. Mitchell. It is probable that Congressman C. B. Miller and Governor A. O. Eberhart may be present, but as yet the committee has been unable to definitely announce their presence.

Plans are being made to entertain about 200 guests during the evening. The supper will be served by women's societies in New Duluth.

Arrangements have already been made for a special train to bring a large delegation of Duluth guests to the affair. This special train will leave Duluth at 6:45 and West Duluth at 6:55 p. m.

The various committee in charge are:

Hall and decorations—A. C. Campbell, Nobel Sampson, Charles Pearson, John Berger.

TOO MUCH MAIL FOR ONE CARRIER

New Delivery Service Popular But Another Man Is Needed.

The popularity of mail carrier service in the suburbs is increasing daily since the service was put into effect in the residential district. The business district received its first delivery on April 1 and the residential district on May 1.

Every home is now being provided with numbers so as to enable the carrier to find the places. From the amount of mail and the size of the district the people of the suburb are of the opinion that it will be necessary for the department to place an additional man in the service. At present two deliveries are being made through the business district and one in the residence part. On some days, especially on Mondays, the mail is said to be so heavy that the carrier can make only one trip within the eight hours specified by the law.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN GOVERNORSHIP.

J. E. Myers, a prominent insurance agent of Minneapolis, and formerly a resident of Duluth, is in the city on business today. Mr. Myers is always interested in Duluth and makes frequent trips here to keep posted on the city's progress. This year he is deeply interested in the fight for governor of the state chiefly because of his desire thot a capable man may be chosen by the successful candidate for governor as insurance commissioner of the state.

"That office," said Mr. Myers this morning, "is far more important than most people realize. To my opinion it is far more important for the people as a whole than the office of governor for it affects directly more lives and property than any other office in the state. Whoever is elected governor should be urged to look after the office of state insurance commissioner and appoint to it only a man who is able, capable and honest."

THE DECLINE OF THE MORNING PAPER.

The Chicago Record-Herald lost four hundred thousand dollars last year, and its owner, who is also the owner of one of the most prosperous evening papers in the world, if not the most prosperous, recently expressed a willingness to let the bondholders do what they pleased with it.

The Record-Herald is one of the best and ablest newspapers in the country—but it is a morning paper.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, another morning paper, has lost money for years; and now the two are to be consolidated.

In New Orleans the Times-Democrat and the Picayune, morning papers, have been forced to unite because the field will no longer support both.

In San Francisco and Denver, old established morning papers have lately disappeared.

Commenting on some of these newspaper events the Philadelphia Public Ledger, another morning paper, says: "The number of wrecks in journalism recently is significant of the higher cost of newspaper living."

It IS significant of that, but of much more.

The coincidence that all the wrecks are wrecks of morning papers and that the survivors are evening papers, and that while many old and strong morning papers are passing out of the field no evening papers are vanishing, is too great to be accounted for by the mere high cost of newspaper living.

While probably there will always be at least one morning paper in each community, or at least a morning edition of an evening paper, the decline of the morning paper and the rise of the evening paper are parts of a permanent and very substantial change brought about by conditions that made it inevitable.

The fact is that the morning newspaper is waning because it is not getting advertising patronage, while the evening paper is getting it. And that, in turn, is due to the two facts that the evening paper not only has more readers, but is more closely read.

The evening paper is read because it comes at the close of the day's work when the whole family has time to read it, advertisements and all. The morning paper, on the other hand, is skimmed merely, because it comes at a time when few have leisure to do more than glance at headlines before they get about the day's duties.

This has always been true. There is no change in this respect. Where the change has come has been in the improvement in facilities for gathering and distributing the day's news, which enables the evening paper to lay before its readers at the evening meal a full account of the day's happenings in the world. When these facilities were few and feeble, the day's news could not be gathered in the time at the disposal of the evening paper, and so the more leisurely period of the morning paper was necessary. Now, with wires in every evening newspaper office that lead to every nook and cranny of the world, and with news-gathering organizations equipped for lightning work, the day's news reaches the evening paper almost immediately, and is ready for its readers at twilight, when they have leisure to digest it.

These facts, and not primarily the higher cost of newspaper living, though this has been the straw that broke the camel's back, are responsible for what is happening in Chicago, in New Orleans, in San Francisco, in Denver, and elsewhere.

And there is still another thing—the development of stronger local newspapers in the smaller communities. The bulk of the morning newspaper's circulation always has been sent by night and morning trains to communities within a radius of a hundred miles or two. The development of strong local papers in these communities has curtailed this circulation; while the evening paper, always the leader in local circulation, has by its superior news-collecting facilities gained also its full share of the outside mail circulation besides completely filling the local field.

Speaking of the St. Paul election, one is tempted to remark, "Powers win with Winn Powers."

CLEAN-UP TIME!

Mayor Prince has by official proclamation fixed the ten days beginning next Monday as Duluth's formal clean-up period.

Though many, seizing dry intervals between showers, have already put the home grounds in readiness for summer, most have not. And now everybody can get to work together, and make a sort of festival of it.

Yards should be raked. Rubbish should be hauled away or burned. Ashes should be removed. Bare spots in lawn or boulevard should be stirred up with an iron rake, and grass and white clover seed planted. Gardens should be leveled and planted. The soil around trees and shrubs should be spaded up, and the winter's mulch spaded in. Trees, shrubs, bushes, roses, vines and flowers should be planted. Fences should be repaired.

In short, everything everywhere should be made spick and span and clean and sightly, so that the summer visitors who will soon be here will exclaim: "Here, at last, is Spotless Town!"

It's good healthy work, too. After winter's sluggishness, the blood needs stirring up, and this is a bully way to stir it.

By the end of the ten days Duluth should be a Spotless Town indeed, and it will be if everybody does his share—and if the authorities, as they promise to do, see that those who will not are MADE TO.

Haven't heard from Gen. Coxey's army for some time. Must be it's changed its course and is heading for Mexico.

THE RECALL OF APPOINTIVE OFFICERS.

Every public official in Minnesota, ELECTIVE OR APPOINTIVE, shall be subject to recall from office by the electors of his official or electoral district as herein provided.—Proposed constitutional amendment.

What under the sun, can anybody tell, did the legislature mean by providing for the recall of appointive officers?

Minnesota wants the recall, and doubtless it will adopt the constitutional amendment providing it that will be submitted to the voters next November.

And the voters have no choice between a recall system applying only to elective officers and one that includes appointive officers as well.

If they want the recall, they must take the recall of appointive officers as well as the recall of elective officers.

For the plan submitted by the last legislature—surely without due consideration—provides for both.

The theory of the recall and the short ballot—which is coming—is that the voters should be required to pass upon a few officials as possible, and that these few elective officials shall appoint all others and become responsible for their good behavior in office.

To center responsibility, and to escape the perils of centered power by the use of the recall—this is the modern theory of government.

And here comes the legislature of Minnesota with a proposal to scatter this centered responsibility again by making appointive officers amenable directly to the popular will!

What does it mean, anyway, this recall of appointive officers?

A game warden flies in the face of local sentiment. Immediately, a recall petition, and the whole state has to vote on whether that game warden shall be kept or discharged.

A clerk in a county office becomes unpopular by a certain crispness of manner. Presto! a recall is filed against him, and the whole county must vote.

A janitor is an "appointive official." What is to prevent somebody who covets his job getting up a recall petition and having an election?

Doubtless the legislature meant well, but it proceeded foolishly, it seems to us, when it provided for the recall of appointive officers.

And now the gossips will begin to talk every time Margaret Wilson acts civilly toward anybody of the other sex.

THE INNOCENT CONVICT.

Fifteen years ago George Boucher was convicted of a murder committed at Benton Harbor, Michigan, and sentenced to the state prison for life.

The other day another man confessed that he committed the murder. Boucher was innocent, and had forfeited fifteen years of his life unjustly.

What happens in a case like that?

Boucher is pardoned—pardoned for an offense he never committed. That's all. The state does not even apologize, still less do anything to make it up to Boucher for the terrible wrong it had done him.

The king, you know, could do no wrong; and the democratic state has carried on the tradition. So Boucher can't even sue the state for damages. And the state has no way of doing anything at all for him. All it can do is to "pardon" him.

So Boucher, who went to prison at forty-five, at sixty is turned loose to shift for himself. Inured to injustice, expecting nothing but injustice all his life long, the prison regimen has become a part of his life. He cannot easily, if at all, find a niche to fill in the busy world from which he has lived apart for nearly a generation.

And in most states, such is the survival of barbarism that Boucher would have been hanged fifteen years ago, and the discovery of his innocence would never even have penetrated to his consciousness.

The state CAN do wrong, and DOES do wrong. It is as likely to do wrong as the king. It has done terrible wrong in the Boucher case; and it does wrong still more grievous by failing to provide itself with means for relief in such circumstances.

By being the first daughter of a president to marry a cabinet officer, Eleanor Wilson showed that she is her father's own child when it comes to the precedent business.

HOW ABOUT THAT GARDEN?

Have you started that back yard garden yet?

This is planting time, but there is plenty of time yet to plant pretty nearly everything that you will care to grow, whether flowers or vegetables.

Sweet peas and annual poppies should be in by now; and onion sets and radishes and lettuce and the like can go in any time. So can the smooth peas—the wrinkled kinds should wait for warmer weather.

A little later everything can go in except the corn and beans and cucumbers, which should go in with the tomato plants the first week in June.

Anyway, have a garden in your back yard. Have it for the profit there is in it—profit in cheaper and fresher vegetables and in cut flowers for the house the summer through.

Have it for the pleasure there is in it—the pleasure of working in the soil and seeing things grow under your care.

Have it for the health it gives—the health of invigorating work in the open air that gives you good appetite, good digestion and sound sleep—the health of splendid all-round exercise that gives play to your muscles, vigor to your blood and new tone to your liver and other interior arrangements by its bending and twisting and heaving.

Have it for the contentment which all these things bring—the joy in life and the satisfaction of a well-kept and fruitful back yard that will yield use and beauty instead of tin cans and ash heaps.

The United Kingdom produced over thirty-seven million barrels of beer last year. What's the matter with the tea habit over there?

Something About Water.

Erie Herald: Most of us realize the importance of pure water when we can't get any. But ordinarily we never give it a thought, even when we're newly mounted on the water wagon.

Do you know, for instance, that 75 per cent of the carcass you carry around when you put on your clothes in the morning is pure water, H(2)O? That, assuming the scales register you at 150 pounds, 113 of those would go in steam if you should happen to get to a certain very hot place?

Well, that's a fact. A man is almost as well watered as a railroad. And here's another fact: Just to keep the mixture in you at the right degree of fluidity, just to make up for the body's evaporation and leakage, you need, every day, to take into you, through food and drink, an ounce of water for every pound and seven-tenths you weigh.

Say you weigh 150 pounds. This means that you need a daily water dosage of more than half a gallon simply to keep from becoming crusty and dusty.

But there's one fine thing about water as a beverage; you don't need to be afraid of an overdose. Don't be afraid to go to it heartily and often.

The Thinker.

Back of the beating hammer
By which the steel is wrought,
Back of the workshop's clamor,
The seeker may find the thought.
The thought that is ever master
Of iron and steam and steel,
That rises above disaster
And tramples it under heel!

The drudge may fret and tinker
Or labor with dusty blows,
But back of him stands the thinker,
The clear-eyed man who knows;
For into each plow or saber
Each piece and part and whole,
Must go the brains of labor
Which gives the work a soul!

Back of the motor's humming,
Back of the belts that sing,
Back of the hammer's drumming,
Back of the cranes that swing,
There is the eye which scans them,
Watching through stress and strain,
There is the mind which plans them—
Back of the brawn, the brain.

Might of the roaring boiler,
Force of the engine's thrust,
Strength of the sweating toiler,
Greatly in these we trust.
But back of them stands the schemer,
The thinker who drives them through,
Back of the job—the dreamer
Who's making the dream come true!
—Berton Braley in the American Machinist.

Tilting the Lid.

Boston Transcript: Peck—My wife's will is law.

Heck—So is my wife's, but occasionally I can bribe her not to enforce it.

Wilson, Villa et al

Editorial in Life.

"Thank Heaven we have a president in whose loyalty and character, in whose sincerity of purpose we can trust absolutely. I trust him in this emergency. I have differed with him on questions of policy and shall doubtless differ with him again. Men raised in different environments and associations must differ, but I have confidence in the character and purpose of the president.

"He is my president and I shall stand with him in his leadership."

So Mr. Root at the banquet of the American Society of International Law on April 25. Happily the president does not lack backing in his difficult labors, but such words are welcome to all of us. All manner of men and some women have been saying all manner of things about our Mexican troubles, and differences on questions of policy abound as Mr. Root suggests, but the mind of the country, with negligible exceptions, is all for backing up the president in whatever he has to do. People differ with him on questions of policy, but there are few left but have confidence in his character and purpose; few that doubt in present perplexities, that no matter how bad a scrape we may be getting into, he will prove fully competent to do his part to pull us through. We are all getting to know him, and at least he is not a president about whom there is much fear that he will be hard when he should be soft, or soft when he should be hard.

As to policy, including the refusal to recognize Huerta, our neighbor, the Globe, seemed to get it about right when it said: "Find out what a person's attitude is toward democratic ideals and it is not difficult to make a correct guess as to whether or not he is a critic of the president."

People who have felt that the most to be hoped for from a government of Mexico was the protection of the property of foreign owners and the compulsion of a sort of order by an autocrat, have favored Huerta as being the likeliest means to that end in sight. People whose faith or hopes have been stronger and who have wanted more than that for Mexico and believed it possible to get more, have felt as President Wilson did, that nothing to help rivet Huerta on to the Mexicans ought to be done.

As for Villa, in spite of Senator Lodge's warnings and the reprobations of all the wise, we feel, for our own part, a hazardous and doubtless reprehensible disposition to warm to that unruly fighter. It seems he can fight. The real objection to Huerta is not that he is a treacherous criminal, but that he is a backward-looker. The main attraction about Villa, in spite of all they say about his prodigious indiscretions of deportment, is that he seems to be a forward-looker. Among all the Mexicans in sight he is the only one that looks to have real bounce in him. About the only choice we have in Mexicans is a choice of illusions. Is it not pardonable, in circumstances in which so few consoling hallucinations can be found, to imagine for a moment that the Lord has picked up Villa out of one of Dumas' novels to be a means of grace to Huerta and a help to Mexico and to us?

He may be dead or in our hair before these words reach any readers, but certainly, at this writing, there is a little passing comfort in the thought that in spite of Mr. Lodge, and even Mr. Root, we have not insisted yet in including Villa and his men among the Mexicans we feel a call to fight. We are often reminded just now that you can do anything with bayonets but sit on them, and that to conquer a weak country is less trouble than to occupy it. The democratic ideal includes the notion of getting most of the work in Mexico done by Mexicans, and no efficient Mexican should be wasted.

The Passing of the Barn

Indianapolis News: There is something to ruminate over in the passing of the barn. The disappearance of this ancient and honorable institution has been apparent to most of us for some time; it is not a fact that bursts upon us with the force of sudden discovery. We have seen the garage come and the barn go, but only now and then, particularly when some old landmark associated with our boyhood days fell before the march of progress, have we paused to reflect that there may be something in the change that is not entirely apparent on the surface.

To those of us who were boys in those benighted years when we referred to an automobile as a "horseless carriage" and considered it an impracticable fancy to be classed with perpetual motion, the barn holds hallowed place in our memories. What matters if it sheltered, more often than not, the winter's woodpile and was the scene of our painful struggle with the buck and saw? What care we—now that it is a matter merely of reflection—that here also was the scene of humiliating chastisement with the parental hand wielding a convenient harness strap? These unpleasant recollections fade before the memory of rainy afternoons in the haymow—

When I play in our stable loft,
The good old hay's so dry and soft,
An' feels so fine, an' smells so sweet,
I 'most forget to go an' eat.

And the barn was our haven and our refuge. Here, if the mood seized us, we found solitude, or, if we craved companionship of our own species, what was better than the comradeship of old Dobbin and the sympathetic friendliness of the spotted dog? The barn fitted our moods; it was the scene of our joys and sorrows; it was the repository of our secrets. And here, on more gala occasions, assembled the boys of the neighborhood. It was the meeting house, the social center of boydom. It was boydom's castle.

The garage, we know, is a necessity, and we know we lament the passing of the barn in vain. Time moves on and the automobile must be housed. But perhaps we may be pardoned if, with the passing of the old and the advent of the new, we sigh for what used to be, and feel something in our hearts akin to sympathy for the barnless boy of today. We do not envy him. The garage is a poor substitute. It lacks sentiment. As for ourselves, we feel no shame in dropping a tear on the wreckage that litters the barn site—where now, anon, the garage will rise in trim, cold, mowless inhospitality.

Pointing Out the Benefits.

Lippincott's: A certain youngster was one day suffering greatly by reason of an aching tooth. His mother was endeavoring to calm him against the necessary visit to the dentist.

"You'll have it out, won't you, dearie?" the mother pleaded. "It won't hurt much, and then the ache will all be over."

But the unhappy child continued to howl with pain. His brother, a year older, was likewise distressed, and added his pleadings to those of the mother.

"Do have it out, dear," repeated the mother.

"Yes, Dick, have it out," added the brother. "It will be one less to clean, you know."

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the course of a chautauqua tour one summer, Champ Clark had occasion to take a train at a small town in Indiana for another point in that state.

The speaker of the house looked at his timetable, but, timetable-like, it gave little information about the stops.

"I suppose I can get off this train at Red Key?" or whatever town it was, suggested Clark, interrogatively, as he came up to the station agent's window to get a ticket.

The station agent did not know the tall, able-bodied stranger, and he was piqued at the insult to the town. Just because the train stopped there was no sign it stopped at every little station along the line, was it?

"Yes," he replied, "you can get off there, but you'd better make up your mind right now if you're going to try it, and let me know so's I can tell an undertaker where to meet you."

Senator Ashurst of Arizona was attacked on the floor of the senate one day in regard to the expense he had placed the government to for the number of telegrams it had sent to his state in connection with something or other then under consideration.

Ashurst strolled into the cloakroom a little later and remarked that it was the second time in his life that his motives had been questioned.

"And I can't proceed," laughed Ashurst, "as I did on the other occasion."

It seemed that when he was district attorney in his county in Arizona there was a law against having a saloon within a certain distance of a church.

One saloon keeper got the idea into his head that by slipping Ashurst a piece of money he might be able to evade the law. Also he arranged to have a witness concealed in Ashurst's office.

When the man came in with the $50 Ashurst wondered if there might not be a witness tucked away somewhere within hearing distance. The only available spot was back of the coal box.

"By the way," he remarked pleasantly to the saloon keeper, "here's something that will interest you." And he picked up a six-shooter from his desk.

"You know," he went, "I take considerable pride in being something of a shot with this thing. For instance, I'll bet you I can shoot a circle of six holes in that coal box yonder. Now watch me."

That ended the bribing industry.

Louis W. Strayer, one of the most capable political correspondents in Washington, is a notoriously calm man. When he was city editor back in Pittsburg he was about the best city editor in the business because of that same quality of calm. No matter what happened Strayer quietly refused to get fussed or excited.

Once in his earlier days, Strayer was sent as a reporter to cover the goings on at the big Homestead strike. Practically all the reports sent out were first censored by strike leaders, who were large, able-bodied men with fists the size of the ordinary sugar-cured ham of modern commerce. It was annoying to have such men as that take a piece of copy and scratch out everything they didn't want to be printed, but there was no other way. One ambitious young correspondent tried to thwart their plans and he was found in the gutter a little later, half unconscious with a big dent in his head.

* * *

One evening the correspondents got so tired of being watched by the strike leaders and the strike leaders of watching the correspondents that they got up a big free-for-all poker game. Louis Strayer, being a calm, thoughtful, conservative young man, did right well at the game, and to help things along he had a phenomenal run of luck. Once when one of his newspaper associates was dealing, Louis drew four tens and with them took in a right sizeable jackpot. Just a couple of hands later, when Louis himself was dealing, he happened to get four queens. Most of the others seemed to have got hands that pleased them, too, for everybody stayed and Louis was in a fair way to make a killing. But as he looked at his four queens and thought of the four tens he had just had, he glanced over the top of his cards at the face of a striker who had killed a man or two in his time. The next man around the table looked like a person who would delight in strangling little children. Strayer continued this inventory and then glanced back at his hand.

He threw the cards on the table, face downward, remarking:

"I can't stay with one little pair."

A young man next to him, who had already put down his hand, had been looking over Strayer's shoulder.

"Did I play that right?" inquired Strayer.

"Exactly right," replied the young man.

Away With Doubt.

A something wondrous sweet and strange
Awakens with the morn,
The heart leaps up in ecstasy
As with a life newborn.
There is a rapture in the sky,
A note exultant in the cry
Of bird and insect and the stream
With the woodland deep
In gleeful lyrics shouts and sings
The joy it cannot keep!

A mystery pervades the air,
The birds are whispering
A secret to the field and wood,
The leaves are gossiping,
And tree and vine and bough and bole
Are thrilling with a pulse of soul.
And even daylight's common beam
Grows tender and more kind
As it with fond embrace would win
You to its gentle mind.

O mystery most wonderful,
Proclaiming year by year
The hope our longing hearts so crave,
And all who will may hear
The word that quickening Nature saith,
"Behold in me the death of Death!
O sons of men, away with doubt,
Death's mockery defy!
Lo, God within and Earth without Declare, ye shall not die!"

Keeping Up With Minnesota Editors

Press Comments on Current Events.

Good for Any Office.

Cokato Enterprise: By declining to run for governor for the Progressive party, Ole O. Sageng has proven himself to be worthy the support of the voters of Minnesota for any office he might choose to run for hereafter. His arguments and decisions for doing things mark him as a man of ability and one who is alert to the crying needs of the public. Political success awaits him.

They're Not Looking for Trouble.

Elk River Star-News: I. A. Caswell will have no opposition for the Republican nomination for clerk of the supreme court. "Shy" would be a hard man to beat and it is evident the politicians realize the fact.

"Raise Hell and Sell Papers."

St. Peter Herald: The late H. P. Hall's laconic advice to "raise hell and sell papers," seems to be the motto which has been adopted by the Menace and similar publications as the motive for their attacks on the Catholic church. That they are meeting with some degree of success in promoting circulation sales is shown by the fact that their number is increasing, and that their campaign of abuse and vilification is attracting attention is apparent from the frequent comments made upon it. Even now in Minnesota we are witnessing the disgusting spectacle of an individual endeavoring to raise himself from obscurity and win a seat in congress by his tirades against "Romanism." These agencies, in their efforts to arouse the unthinking and the fanatical, distort facts shamelessly and circulate the most malicious slanders. In all communities members of the Catholic church are to be found among the best and most progressive citizens, and they are entitled to the religious liberty guaranteed all denominations under the Constitution. The propaganda of the Menace and its ilk is dangerous and disgraceful. Happily, the American people are blessed with the saving grace of common sense, and they will not be misled by it.

Much Truth to It.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: Some United States senators have belligerently declared that "we don't have to beg England's pardon." Oh, yes, we do; for the bad taste, bad manners, bad judgment of some United States senators.

It Depends on Whose Ox Is Gored.

Isanti News: The recent state conference of anti-machine Republicans was almost criminal, according to the governor's statement. The conference was composed of representative citizens from all parts of the state, but the delegates did not look good to the governor. Perhaps a gathering of brewery men and officeholders would be a more representative gathering in the interests of the state and its greatest of statesmen, Adolph O Eberhart!

Japan Is Qualifying.

Cambridge North Star: Having indicted the chief purchasing agent of their navy for making illegal contracts, the Japanese have reduced their naval appropriation $35,000,000 for this year. If that represented the commissions collected by the accused official last year, we must say that Japan deserves to take its place at the head of the civilized nations.

Passing Strange, Indeed.

Isanti News: The campaign manager for Mr. Preus, candidate for state auditor, has been appointed state bank examiner by Governor Eberhart. There have been strong denials of the charge that Preus is the machine candidate for auditor, but isn't it strange that his chief supporters are so intimate with the powers!

Big and Little Grafters

Lincoln Steffens in the Metropolitan: The graft system of Boston, Mass., and all other cities and states, is humanly founded and spiritually sustained by the hope of men (and women and children), high and low, worker and idler, farmer and laborer, of getting a graft.

In other words, the big grafts are founded on the little grafts. The big gamblers live on the little gamblers, but we are all gamblers and grafters—at heart. Great wealth cannot be earned by an individual; it can be got under the system, but an individual cannot produce it. The workers produce it, and, if one or a few individuals have got it they can make the workers who produced it produce also interest and rent on it—for the few. That's how wealth measures poverty, increases it and exploits labor. And the solution is to change the system so that each man has actually to work for and produce all he gets. This means to cut off all the sources of unearned wealth. But this means cutting off all the gambler's chances, not only of great, but of little wealth: "enough to live on without working." And here you have the conclusion which hurts: This means that all men (and women) shall work, productively, always.

The fundamental, most inspiring truth found in the muck of Boston and every other city, state or nation where I have worked, is that men (and women and children) do big, hard jobs better and more willingly than they do little, easy jobs.

The man who "they" told me was the worst politician in Boston, promised me that if I ever saw the time when any act of his would really put over any real, fundamental reform there he would help.

"Don't tell anybody I'm a reformer," he said, contemptuously. "I'm not. I am—what I am, and I'm going on being what I am. I hate their little reforms as I hate their great, big grafts. But," he said, "if they ever set out to do the real thing right, come to me; you, not them; I have no use for them; you come; pass me the word, and," his eyes reddened and his mouth tightened, "I'll give you the whole damned works."

I hadn't asked him to be honest, you see. There is no inspiration in that. I had asked him to help make Boston the beautiful, happy city Boston might be. He had seen the vision; he had glimpsed a big idea. Some vision of a hopeful future for mankind on earth is as necessary to convert a people as an individual, and in a city (or a state or nation) such an inspiration is as indispensable to carry the masses through the period of apparent sacrifice as it is to convert their leaders.

A Nice Distinction.

New York World: Rabbi Stephen S. Wise was asked by a young member of his congregation, puzzled over a charge pressed against his stepfather, what was "bigamy."

"Well," said the rabbi, "in some countries it is a crime and in others it's a religion."

He then proceeded to elucidate.

Mark Twain's War Prayer.

New York Evening Post: Dr. Henry Neumann, in an address at the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture, at the Brooklyn Academy of Music Sunday, quoted from an unpublished article by Mary Twain on the subject of war. He said:

"A few years before his death, Mark Twain wrote an article entitled 'The War Prayer.' It describes how a regiment gathers in a church before it departs for the war and prays for victory. As the prayer concludes a white-robed stranger enters the church and says: 'I have been sent by the Almighty to tell you that he will grant your petition if you still desire it after I have explained to you its full import. You are asking for more than you seem to be aware of. You have prayed aloud for victory, over your foes, but listen now to the unspoken portion of your prayer and ask yourselves if this is what you desire.'

"Then the stranger speaks aloud these implications of their words: 'O, Lord, help us to tear the soldiers of the foe to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale forms of their patriot dead; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; help us to wring the hearts of their unoffending widows with unavailing grief. Blast their hopes, blight their lives, water their way with tears.'

"Mark Twain never published this article. His friends told him it would be regarded as sacrilege. Is it really sacrilege to say that men cannot pray for victory in war without asking for these inevitable implications of their petition? What would it mean if we remembered this when the war spirit is abroad?"

How We Go to Sleep.

London Globe: Sleep begins in its first phase by a state of distraction, which brings on states of absent mindedness, accompanied always by numerous and separate hallucinations, closely connected with the length of the absent minded states. Immediately afterwards, in a second phase, these states of distraction pass into a very delicate motor disturbance, due to the absence of parallelism in the axes of the eyes, or by the deviation of their conjugate movements, says the "Family Doctor."

Finally, in a third and final phase, which indicates the very near approach of actual sleep, the vasomotor system seems to conform to laws very different, from those that regulate its mechanism during waking hours.

Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

GROWING IRRITABLE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

After that frog makes as many jumps as there are foolish questions and answers in the puzzle department of the Open Court he will be close enough to the end of that log to fall off. If that fellow who said nine jumps had said 9,000,000, he would have been closer but still not correct. You can't get to the end of a log by jumping half the distance you are from it, dividing it by two. Any ordinarily bright school boy can work all the problems that I have seen in the Open Court in from two to five minutes each. A SUBSCRIBER.

"DOWN IN TEXAS ON THE RIO GRANDE."

To the Editor of The Herald:

I inclose poem which T. A. K. asked for in Monday evening's Herald—"Lasca," or, as he called it "Down in Texas on the Rio Grande." This is my favorite poem and I hope you will enjoy it as much as I have.

BILLIE.

Duluth, May 6.

I want free life and I want fresh air,
And I sigh for the canter after the cattle,
The crack of the whips like shots in battle,
The medley of horns and hoofs and heads
That wars and wrangles and scatters and spreads;
The green beneath and the blue above,
And dash and danger, and life and love,
And Lasca!

Lasca used to ride
On a mouse-gray mustang, close by my side,
With blue serape and bright-belled spur;
I laughed with joy when I looked at her!
Little she knew of books or creeds;
An ave maria sufficed her needs;
Little she cared save to be by my side,
To ride with me, and ever to ride,
From San Saba's shore to Lavaca's tide.
She was as bold as the billows that beat,
She was as wild as the breezes that blow;
From her little head to her little feet
She was swayed, in her suppleness, to and fro
By each gust of passion; a sapling pine
That grows on the edge of a Kansas bluff,
And wars with the wind when the weather is rough,
Is like this Lasca, this love of mine.
She would hunger that I might eat,
Would take the bitter and leave me the sweet,
But once, when I made her jealous for fun,
At something I'd whispered, or looked or done,
One Sunday, in San Antonio,
To a glorious girl on the Alamo,
She drew from her girdle a dear little dagger,
And—sting of a wasp!—it made me stagger!
And I wouldn't be maundering here tonight;
But she sobbed, and, sobbing, so swiftly bound
Her torn reboso about the wound
That I quite forgave her. Scratches don't count
In Texas down by the Rio Grande.

Her eye was brown—a deep, deep brown;
Her hair was darker than her eye;
And something in her smile and frown,
Curled crimson lip, and instep high,
Showed that there ran in each blue vein,
Mixed with the milder Aztec strain,
The vigorous vintage of old Spain.
The air was heavy, the night was hot,
I sat by her side, and forgot—forgot;
Forgot the herd that were taking their rest;
Forgot that the air was close oppprest,
That the Texas norther comes sudden and soon
In the dead of night or the blaze of noon;
That once let the herd at its breath take fright,
And nothing on earth can stop their flight,
And woe to the rider and woe to the steed
Who falls in front of their mad stampede!
Was that thunder? No, by the Lord!
I spring to my saddle without a word,
One foot on mine, and she clung behind.
Away on a hot chase down the wind!
But never was fox hunt half so hard,
And never was steed so little spared,
For we rode for our lives. You shall hear how we fared
In Texas down by the Rio Grande.

The mustang flew, and we urged him on;
There is one chance left, and you have but one—
Halt, jump to the ground, and shoot your horse;
Crouch under his carcass, and take your chance;
And if the steers, in their frantic course,
Don't batter you both to pieces at once,
You may thank your stars; if not, goodbye
To the quickening kiss and the long-drawn sigh,
And the open air, and the open sky,
In the Texas down by the Rio Grande.

The cattle gained on us and then I felt
For my old six-shooter, behind my belt;
Down came the mustang and down came we,
Clinging together, and—what was the rest?
A body that spread itself on my breast,
Two arms that shielded my dizzy head,
Two lips that hard on my lips were pressed;
Then came thunder in my ears
As over us surged the sea of steers;
Blows that beat blood into my eyes,
And when I could rise, Lasca was dead.

I dug a grave a few feet deep,
And there in earth's arms I laid her to sleep;
And where she is lying no one knows,
And the summer shines and the winter snows,
And for many a day the flowers have spread
A pall of petals over her head.
And the little gray hawk hangs aloft in the air,
And the sly coyote trots here and there,
And the blacksnake glides and glitters and slides,
Into a rift in a cottonwood tree;
And the buzzard sails on,
And comes and is gone,
Stately and still as a ship at sea;
And I wonder why I do not care
For the things that are like the things that were,
Does half my heart lie buried there,
In Texas, down by the Rio Grande?

TWO CHICAGO PAPERS UNITE

Record-Herald and Inter-Ocean Bought By James Keeley.

Purchaser Will Leave Tribune at Once—Chapin Manager.

Chicago, May 8.—The Chicago Record-Herald and the Chicago Inter-Ocean were purchased yesterday by James Keeley, general manager of the Chicago Tribune. The transfer of the papers was announced shortly after George Wheeler Hinman, holder of the majority of the Inter-Ocean bonds, had bought the Inter-Ocean for $50,000 in a receiver's sale in the Federal court.

The two papers will be merged and published as the Record-Herald. W. W. Chapin, formerly in charge of the San Francisco Call, will be associated with Mr. Keeley in the management of the papers, according to the announcement. Mr. Chapin, it was said, will manage the business affairs and Mr. Keeley the editorial department.

Mr. Keeley, it was said, would sever his connection with the Tribune at once.

Inter-Ocean Founded in 1865.

The Inter-Ocean was founded in 1865 as the Republican, with Charles A. Dana as editor. Dana left within a year and after the fire of 1871 the Republican was reorganized as the Inter-Ocean with J. Young Scammon as proprietor. In 1873 Frank W. Palmer of Des Moines, Iowa, purchased the stock and became editor-in-chief, and in 1875 a new corporation, with William Penn Nixon at its head, bought the property. H. H. Kohlsaat, Charles T. Yerkes, George Wheeler Hinman and again Mr. Kohlsaat succeeded in turn to the ownership of the paper until it was thrown into the hands of a receiver several weeks ago.

The Record-Herald is the development of combinations of three papers. The Daily Times was founded in 1854 and four years later the Chicago Herald appeared, owned by Cyrus H. McCormick. In 1860 McCormick bought the Times and consolidated the two papers as the Chicago Times-Herald. A year later Wilbur F. Storey purchased the paper and dropped the word Herald from its name.

Second Times-Herald.

In 1881 Frank W. Palmer started another Herald, which in 1894 was combined with the Times, which again became the Times-Herald, and was sold to Herman H. Kohlsaat.

In 1901 the Times-Herald was combined with the Record, owned by Victor F. Lawson, and became the Record-Herald. Mr. Kohlsaat retained control of a majority of the stock, however, until its sale in 1902 to Frank B. Noyes, who in 1910 returned the editorship to Mr. Kohlsaat. In 1912 Mr. Lawson obtained control of the paper.

April 1, Mr. Lawson notified the holders of Record-Herald bonds—valued at $2,500,000 that on May 1, he would turn over his $3,000,000 stock in the paper to them. A committee of bond-holders was named, which arranged the sale of the paper to Mr. Keeley.

First Issue Monday.

"The Chicago Record-Herald and the Chicago Inter-Ocean were purchased yesterday (Thursday) by James Keeley. The two papers will be consolidated on Monday, and will be published as the Chicago Record-Herald and Inter-Ocean.

"Mr. Keeley will be editor and Mr. W. W. Chapin, recently publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and the San Francisco Call, will be publisher.

"The Record-Herald and Inter-Ocean were purchased free of all debts and obligations of every kind.

"The consolidated paper will be independent in politics and every other phase of activity.

"Clean lines and accuracy, in so far as it is humanly possible, will control its news and advertising columns, and sanity will be the governing factor in the editorial treatment of men, women, measures and affairs.

MAN SHOT BY COL. JAMES BULGER DIES

Denver, Colo., May 8.—L. F. Nicodemus, proprietor of the Savoy hotel, who was shot Wednesday by Col. James C. Bulger, died late yesterday at a local hospital.

Bulger refused to discuss the shooting or make any statement as to the contributing causes.

The shooting took place in the hotel lobby after R. K. Starkweather, one of the proprietors, had ordered Bulger to leave the hotel following a quarrel with several patrons.

Bulger came to Denver about three weeks ago, and when the Mexican situation became acute opened headquarters and began organizing a regiment of volunteer cavalry. He was a filibuster operating in Northern Mexico with the Federal army against the Orozco revolutionists in 1912. He was with the Mexican army for several months, but held no commission, being attached to a force of American and other foreign soldiers of fortune who were fighting for Madero.

In the summer of 1912 he was attached to the Madero secret service at El Paso. He attempted suicide by shooting himself while in the office of his chief, but sustained only a slight scalp wound, from which he recovered.

Before entering the Mexican army he took part in the Nicaraguan revolution and other revolts in Central American. During one of these campaigns he was wounded in the leg. It was in Central America that he received his rank of colonel in one of the armies of the Central American republics.

SOCIALISTS PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

The most energetic and far-reaching campaign ever conducted by the Socialists in St. Louis county is promised this coming summer and fall. The strongest efforts of the Socialists heretofore have been confined to the presidential years, but 1914 will be an exception.

The St. Louis county organization will have its candidates in the field notwithstanding the non-partisan law.

P. G. Phillips, former alderman from the old Eighth ward will be the candidate for senator from the Fifty-ninth district, Richard Jones will make the campaign for senator in the Fifty-eighth, and E. N. Edes is the aspirant for senatorial honors in the Fifty-seventh. Leo Lauki has filed for representative from the Fifty-ninth, and Erick Erickson has filed for the nomination of county commissioner from the Sixth district, Edward Blackwood is expected to file for the office of sheriff in a few days.

The county executive committee of the Socialist organization has canvassed the situation thoroughly and the candidates who have filed were pleased with the idea of testing out the Socialist strength under the non-partisan act. Owing to the fact that the organization in the northern part of the county has not yet reached the strength of that in the southern part of the county, no candidates for the legislature were placed in running in the Sixtieth and Sixty-first districts, the committee desiring first to test out the strength by the number of votes counted in those districts for governor and congressman.

At no time has the Socialist organization been better equipped to wage a campaign say the committeemen. A steady, persistent growth has been manifested all along, and funds to carry the work are coming in rapidly, they assert.

Thirty thousand pieces of literature have been ordered so far and negotiations are on with the state and national offices to place a speaker and organizer in the field this summer. The Socialists feel confident of gaining a place on the legislative ticket.

The campaign in the Eighth congressional district will be made by William E. Towne, who was the party's candidate for representative from the old Fifty-first district in 1912, under the direction of the party's state office in Minneapolis. A tour of the district will be made, opening with a meeting at Hibbing tomorrow evening.

As in the county of St. Louis the Socialist organization all through the Eighth district is in a vigorous attitude and prospects for eclipsing the vote polled by Morris Kaplan in 1912 are encouraging.

It is claimed that in the new reapportionment all of the strongest Socialist counties out of the old Eighth have been grouped into the new district, about which the Socialists are congratulating themselves.

The primary campaign will come to a close on June 15, with a meeting that will be addressed by Eugene V. Debs, four times the party's candidate for president of the United States.

BOND ISSUE BILL IS REPORTED TO HOUSE

Washington, May 8.—The bill for Federal control of the issues of stocks and bonds embracing drastic requirements that the interstate commerce commission shall pass upon in advance any issue of railroad securities and give them ample publicity, was favorably reported to the house by the interstate commerce committee. The bill was amended to declare that "nothing herein shall be construed to imply any guaranty or obligation as to such issues on the part of the United States."

This amendment was adopted after long discussion as to whether the public would be deceived by any possible effort to claim governmental guarantee in the marketing of securities. The bill was drawn by Representative Rayburn of Texas and Representative Simms of Tennessee.

COMMITS SUICIDE IN NORTH DAKOTA

Thief River Falls Man Shoots Self on Train.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin Bayfield, aged 45, committed suicide Wednesday by shooting himself with a .38-caliber revolver. He had been working out of this city with a bridge crew on the Soo line. Being out of work Bayfield left here Wednesday morning at 8:15 on the Soo line passenger train, going west. Apparently it was his intention to go to Trolley, N. D., near which town he had a homestead. As the train was leaving Eckman, N. D., Bayfield pulled out a revolver and held it to his chin, sending a bullet right through his head. He died immediately.

Rational When He Left.

Bayfield was a bachelor without relatives. He appeared to be quite rational when he got on the train and his act of self-distruction was performed without any one in the car having the slightest intimation that there was anything wrong with him. A notebook was found in his pocket and in it was a statement that he had nothing to live for and that he be buried near his claim shanty.

FEARS RAISE IN LAKE LEVEL WILL COST CITY A BIG SUM

Manager of Water Department Sees Danger to Sewers and Mains.

Representatives of Commercial Interests Not Worrying Over Decision.

The construction of compensating works in St. Mary's river by its effect on the level of Lake Superior threatens to cause heavy losses to the city of Duluth.

Manager D. A. Reed of the water and light department, in discussing the announcement that the applications of the power companies at the Soo had been granted by the International Joint commission, said this morning that it will likely cause the abandonment of sewer and water mains, or greatly increase the expense of maintaining them, and that in time of storm the electrically operated pumps at the Lakewood station might be put out of commission. The latter would seriously interfere with the furnishing of the city's water supply should the storm last several days.

Manager Reed emphasized the importance of the city taking steps at this time to preserve its legal rights in case damage claims should later arise against the Michigan Northern Power company and the Algoma Steel company, which will build the dam as part of their program for utilizing the water of the lake and river for power purposes.

The conditions under which the grant was made are not definitely known and will probably not become public until the commission formally acts at the meeting to be held in New York City May 25.

How City Is Affected.

"But," said Manager Reed, "while it is probably true that interests generally will benefit from an equalization of the lake levels and that certain interests such as the power companies at the Soo and the governments of Canada and the United States will derive decided benefits from such equalization, it is also certain that the municipalities around the lake, Duluth in particular, will suffer from any disturbance of natural conditions, not to mention any average rise in the level which may be permitted by the international joint commission.

"Duluth has so established for the last twenty-five years its sewer, water pipe and gas main grades and other underground construction that the low stage of water in the winter could be taken advantage of to lay pipe, clean sewers, and repair mains which could not be done at any other season. The maintenance of a constant level, or approximately so will remove this advantage and will result in the abandonment of water mains that become leaky or broken so that they cannot be reached for repairs.

"The large West Michigan street intercepting sewer between Eighteenth and Twenty-second avenue west with an outlet down Twenty-second avenue west is constructed partially below the level of the bay and at the low water stage each year has to be relieved of a large amount of sediment and debris that is carried down by the hill sewers. For many years it was cleaned by the men of the sewer department using hip boots, ropes and special carts, loaded and hauled to the nearest manhole with long ropes and then elevated to the surface of the street. Later years the mouth of the sewer has been plugged and the sediment removed by means of a steam pump. In any event the higher stage of water during the cleaning process will inevitably result in added expense.

"The Lake avenue sewers, both north and south of the canal, are similarly situated, and in addition, power is required to pump all sewage out of the sewer on account of its being too low to discharge by gravity into the lake. It is patent that the item of power expense in the maintenance charges will be increased.

"The floor of the main pumping station of Lakewood is just two feet in elevation above the mean low water level. If this level is raised from 1 to 1½ feet during the low stage and a storm should raise the level 2 or 3 feet more, as it sometimes does, it will certainly put the electrically operated pumps out of commission. The floor, of course, can be raised, probably at a cost of from $5,000 to $10,000.

"The engineers representing the several railroad interests at the Head of the Lakes practically agreed that the contemplated changes would not materially affect their dock properties. With the municipalities, however, especially Duluth, considerable damage will result from the raising of the low water stages, and it would seem proper at this time for the city to take such steps as might be necessary to preserve its legal rights in case claims for damages should be instituted later against the interests constructing and maintaining the compensating works at the Soo."

Mr. Comstock's View of It.

"I was in Detroit on March 9," said A. H. Comstock of the Marshall-Wells company today, "and at that time I understood that the commissioners would not recommend anything that would be in opposition to the wishes of the various business interests of Duluth.

"At that time I showed the commissioners the letter written by President McGonagle, representing the Commercial club and the Missabe railroad, and it was my understanding that the wishes of the Duluth interests, as stated in this letter, would be generally abided by.

"Shortly after the Detroit meeting I went to Bermuda and have not had the opportunity since then to keep in touch with just what has been embodied in the recommendation of the commissioners. If the requests and the recommendations of the various Duluth interests were acceded to, it is my opinion that the diversion of the flow of St. Mary's river will not seriously be felt here."

Have No Fear of Result.

F. B. Spelman, chairman of the committee on harbors and waterways of the Commercial club, and W. H. Hoyt, who represented the city at the hearing before the joint commission in Washington recently, both feel that the decision of the commission is all right and will be really a benefit. Mr. Hoyt presented the commission with a chart showing the level that Duluth would agree to and the conditions to which there would be no objection from this source. That was, that the power company should maintain the mean level of the lake for the last forty years, 602.27 feet the year round. That would do away with the low levels and would regulate the stage of water to the benefit of navigation in general on Lake Superior. What Duluth did object to was the original application asking permission to raise the level of the lake at certain times of the year to as much as 604 feet, which would damage property at all Lake Superior ports.

Both Mr. Hoyt and Mr. Spelman said this morning that they believe that the international commission members have been sufficiently impressed with conditions and necessities to make proper regulations for the government of the lessees.

The plant could lose several points in condition between now and the harvest and still leave a crop of record proportions.

Rye—The condition of rye on May 1 was 93.4 per cent of a normal, compared with 91.3 per cent on April 1, 91.0 per cent on May 1, 1913, and 89.4 per cent, the average for the last ten years on May 1.

Hay on Farms—The stocks of hay on farms on May 1 were estimated to be 7,832,000 tons, compared with 10,828,000 tons on May 1, 1913, and 4,744,000 tons on May 1, 1912.

Spring Plowing—Of spring plowing, 70.9 per cent was completed up to May 1, compared with 67.2 per cent on May 1, 1913, and a ten-year average on May 1 of 66.6 per cent.

Spring Planting—Of spring planting, 56.4 per cent was completed up to May 1, compared with 57.0 per cent on May 1, 1913, and a six-year average on May 1 of 54.6 per cent.

"DON'T WORRY, GET TO WORK"

He Points Out Wilson's Achievements and Deprecates Pessimism.

New York, May 8.—President Irving T. Bush, of the Bush Terminal company, whose connection with more than 200 big manufacturing firms in his South Brooklyn loft buildings gives him a splendid opportunity to keep in touch with the business situation throughout the country, views the commercial future optimistically. "Get to work and stop worrying," he says in an interview which caused much favorable comment in financial circles.

"It seems necessary for most people to have something to worry about," said the Terminal president, "and one of the most popular worries it about things in Washington. We hear every day some one say, 'If Washington would only leave us alone, business would be all right,' or 'Thank God, the war will at least give congress something to think about besides business investigations.' It never seems to occur to the fellow who worries that his Washington troubles may be largely a state of his own mind. We worried all last spring because tariff legislation which we wanted, voted for and got. The job was done quickly and intelligently, and I don't hear many kicks. At least, we have got what most of us thought we wanted. Then we started in to worry about currency legislation. Some of us were sure the banks would all be put out of business and industry paralyzed. That job was done—and it needed doing—and we find that instead of putting the banks out of business they have accepted the new system as a helpful piece of machinery, which will enable them to serve business. Since then we have worried about how to divide the country into banking districts, worried because the president would not go to war and then because he did.

"Worry Conventions."

"During the time of Roosevelt and Taft, we worried because the attorney general attacked thisbus inessan d that, without any definite rules, and now we are worrying because Mr. Wilson proposes that congress create a board of umpires to formulate rules by which we may play the game. A few years ago 'worry conventions' were called to protest against an increase in freight rates, and now we are all worrying for fear the rates will not be increased. If there be any disguised blessing in war, it is not that it will take the minds in Washington off business, but that it may take the minds of business off Washington.

"Let's remember we are patriotic Americans and stop worrying. The man who has reformed the tariff, reorganized our currency and banking laws, and put the Mexican situation—which he inherited—in a fair way to be solved peacefully by a congress of American nations, deserves support. We don't hear anything about the crops because there is nothing to worry about there. They are growing, and bid fair to be unusual. A rate decision is coming and money is cheap. Let's go to work."

STATE SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota supreme court today rendered the following decisions:

St. Louis County.

Daniel M. Gunn, respondent, vs. Sarah K. McAlpine, executrix, et al., appellants—

For a consideration moving from D. to M. the latter agreed to pay the claims of certain creditors of the former. In this action against M. by one of such creditors to recover on such agreement, it is held:

1. The findings of the trial court as to the extent of a partial failure of consideration for the agreement are sustained by the evidence.

2. Where there is such a partial failure of consideration, the deficiency should be borne by the creditors pro rata in the proportion that the claim of each bears to the total consideration. The pro rating of such deficiency in this case was correct.

3. There was no error in denying a motion for a new trial based on newly discovered evidence.

Order affirmed. BUNN, J.

Washington County.

Leon Nadeau, appellant, vs. Andrew W. Johnson et al., respondents—

Evidence held sufficient to sustain the findings of the trial court to the effect that there was a practical location by the mutual consent and agreement of the parties of the dividing line between their respective properties.

Judgment affirmed. BROWN, C. J.

Ramsey County.

In this action, on an executor's bond, based on the failure of the executors to pay a claim against the estate that had been allowed and ordered paid, it is held:

1. A decree of the United States circuit court allowing plaintiff's claim against the estate, and ordering it paid, was conclusive that the claim was not barred by statute, and obligated the executors to pay the claim out of the funds of the estate. No order of the probate court was necessary.

2. Findings that the estate was solvent and that the executors, at and after the time the decree was filed, had funds of the estate under their control sufficient to pay the claim, and without excuse refused to do so, are sustained by the evidence. The failure to pay the claim constituted a breach of the bond.

3. The decree was conclusive against the surety on the bond, though it was not a party to the litigation. The principal having broken the bond, the surety is liable.

4. The fact that plaintiff applied for an order of the probate court directing the executors to pay the claim does not affect the right to recover on the bond.

5. After an action on an executor's bond is commenced, an order of the probate court vacating its order granting leave to bring such action has no effect.

Order and judgment affirmed. BUNN, J.

Rice County.

Town of Wells, respondent, vs. Stephen A. Sullivan, appellant—

The evidence considered and held ample to prove a public highway established by statutory user.

When during a trial objectionable evidence is received, but before final submission the court perceives the error and instructs the jury to disregard such evidence the presumption is that no prejudice resulted from its reception, and if the instruction in that regard is lacking in clearness or definiteness counsel, by failing to call the court's attention thereto, waives the defect.

Error cannot be predicated upon the court's failure to instruct in respect to the character of the evidence required to prove an issue, unless an instruction thereon was suggested or requested.

Order affirmed. HOLT, J.

Clearwater County.

Erick Dahlin, respondent, vs. Jeno Neslund, et al, defts. Town Board of Addy, Clearwater County, Appellant—

1. A description, in proceedings for the establishment of a town road, which is impossible of location, is void, and it renders all the proceedings void. Failure of the land owner to appeal does not make valid what is on its face void.

2. In such case the receipt by the land owner of money as damages upon being informed and in the belief that a road had been legally laid out in a definite location, does not stop him from asserting that the description was impossible and void.

3. Under sections 1171-4, Revised Laws 1905, the town board might exercise reasonable discretion in varying the route proposed in the petition as public interest may require, but the road order must adhere substantially to the petition as to the point of beginning, general course, and termination. A variance of thirty rods at the point of termination is fatal.

Order affirmed. HALLAM, J.

Ramsey County.

1. Where an insurance policy contains the provision as to appraising losses thereunder required by chapter 421, Laws of 1913, and an appraisal is initiated pursuant thereto, if one party refuses to recognize the appraiser appointed by the other upon the ground that he is incompetent, the burden is upon such party to show that such appraiser is, in fact, incompetent.

2. In proceedings to appraise losses, taken under the act of 1913, the parties are entitled to be heard and to present evidence as in common law arbitrations, and the competency of the appraisers is to be determined by the rules applied in determining the competency of common law arbitrators.

3. While it is desirable that appraisers be familiar with the matter and things which they are called upon to appraise, the mere fact that they are not experts in the line of business to which such matters pertain is not, alone and in itself, sufficient to sustain a charge of incompetency.

Affirmed. TAYLOR, C.

Hennepin County.

Edward F. Comstock, appellant, vs. Mathias Baldwin, et al, respondents—

A complaint alleging that the plaintiff, an Illinois attorney, having a contact with the heirs at law of a deceased, who had come to his death in Minnesota by the negligent act of another, to bring an action therefor, and to take such steps as were proper, entered into a contract with the defendants' attorney in Minnesota, to prosecute such action with him, the fees received to be divided equally between the plaintiff and defendants, that a recovery was had and the fees paid to the defendants, and that the defendants refused to pay the plaintiff the one-half agreed, states a cause of action.

Brown County.

Ella M. Hutchins, administratrix of the estate of Charles Hutchins, deceased, respondent, vs. Sleeepy Eye Telephone company, a corporation, appellant—

In an action for death by wrongful act it is held:

1. That the evidence justified a finding that the plaintiff's intestate, while working for the defendant, came to death as a result of electrocution.

2. That the evidence justified a finding that the defendant was negligent.

3. That the evidence did not require a finding that the plaintiff's intestate was guilty of contributory negligence.

Judgment affirmed. DIBELL, C.

Ottertail County.

J. H. Wiles, as administrator of the estate of Dennis E. Wiles, deceased, appellant, vs. Great Northern Railway company, a corporation, respondent—

1. The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applies, the other conditions to its proper application obtaining, to the occurrence of an injury to an employe, when such injury is caused by the use of an appliance which it is the legal and non-delegable duty of the master to furnish and keep in a reasonably safe condition for use.

2. The pulling out of a drawbar of a freight train affords a proper basis for the application of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur.

3. Upon a consideration of the evidence it is held that it does not show, as a matter of law, that a brakeman, killed in a rear-end collision between two interstate trains, was guilty of negligence which was the sole proximate cause of his death.

Judgment reversed. DIBELL, C.

PERJURY CHARGED IN FRANK CASE.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8.—It is announced that Judge Ben Hill of the superior court, who denied a new trial to Leo M. Frank, under sentence of death for killing Mary Phagan, a factory girl, will instruct the grand jury which begins its sessions a week from Monday to investigate charges of perjury, coercion and intimidation of witnesses made against each other by both sides in the famous murder case.

Dan Lehon, a detective, has been held in $1,000 bail for appearance before the grand jury and it is believed several other detectives and agents for both state and defense will be summoned.

HEARING ON NEW RATES TO TWINS

Cashman Law Rate From Duluth to Twin Cities Tested.

The hearing before an examiner of the interstate commerce commission regarding the arbitrary advance of freight rates between here and the Twin Cities will begin on Monday and G. Roy Hall, traffic commissioner of the Commercial club, is busy these days completing the preparation of Duluth's case.

The roads running between here and the Twin Cities arbitrarily advanced their rates on the basis offered by the Cashman distance tariff law which applied to all intrastate freight business, and thus raised the rates considerably. The interstate commerce commission ordered a suspension of the proposed new rates until this hearing could be held on the ground stated in the complaint that the roads are all interstate, owing to the fact that part of their route between the points named is through Wisconsin.

HEARS CONTESTED CLAIM.

Judge Dancer in district court today is conducting a hearing on a contested claim under the workingmen's compensation act brought by Edith Nelson, widow of Edward Nelson, against the Pittsburg Coal company. Nelson was employed as a teamster for the company and was delivering coal on Feb. 7 last, when he is alleged to have sustained an injury to one of the fingers on his right hand, which developed into blood poisoning and resulted later in death.

When the widow presented her claim to the Pittsburg Coal company, the latter denied liability. Nelson was in the direct employ of Oscar Lindstrand who was acting as an agent for the company at the time of the accident. It is claimed that such employment did not relieve the company of its responsibility for the accident which befell Nelson. The company claims that Lindstrand was an independent contractor engaged by the company and that he was responsible for all accidents which befell workmen.

ANGLERS HAVE SPORT.

Upper Michigan Trout Fishing Reported Good This Year.

Laurium, Mich., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The anglers of the Copper Country are enjoying the finest trout fishing they have had this early in the season in many years. Very few of the streams are running too high for good fishing, which is due to the light snows of the past winter. There is ice in some few of the streams in Keweenaw county but it is disappearing rapidly. The sportsmen are not having the trouble getting through the woods this week that was encountered last week, for most of the snow has disappeared and the ground is drying up rapidly.

Some remarkable catches have been reported the last day or so by local fishermen, among them Joseph McNamara, who took a half dozen beautiful trout from No. 4 dam at Wolverine on Wednesday. The largest trout was sixteen and one-half inches in length and the shortest was fourteen inches.

NEW MOTOR DRIVEN APPARATUS AT FIRE DEPARTMENT GIVEN TEST

OFFICIALS WATCHING FIRE ENGINE TESTS.

The two new combination motors purchased by the fire department demonstrated their pumping capacities at a test conducted yesterday afternoon on Northern Pacific dock No. 4.

The exhibition was witnessed by city officials of Duluth and Superior and a crowd of several hundred spectators, all of whom were convinced of the efficiency of the modern machines. When J. Pluvius was not shedding rain drops from the clouds the showers of spray, blown back over the dock from the streams thrown high in the air by the engines, gave the crowd under a continual drenching.

The water, sucked from the slip, was forced through the hose in various ways. Three lines were run from each engine and concentrated so as to pass through a single nozzle and then the three streams were played separately. In the latter trial a capacity of 967 gallons a minute was developed, or 200 gallons more than guaranteed. The same engine which drives the car furnished the pumping power, the energy being directed from the wheels to the pumps by a shifting of lovers. Each machine is a combination pumper, chemical and hose.

The most exciting moment of the afternoon was when a coupling became unfastened. The engine was forcing 800 or 900 gallons of water a minute through the hose and the crowd was strung along its length. Some one cried, "look out," and there was some quick jumping. Some of the spectators were soaked, but no one was injured.

New Methods and Old.

"Fire fighting now is a lot different than it was in the old days," said Sam F. Fullerton, deputy state fire marshal, who was among those watching the engines work. "I can remember when I was a member of the volunteer department in Duluth, some thirty years ago, when we hauled our own apparatus. Instead of engines to throw water we used buckets. Since that time the development has been rapid, keeping pace with the growth of our cities and the greater need of more effective means for combating fire."

The Superior commission, consisting of Mayor Konkel and Commissioners O'Hare and Tomlinson, were as interested as the Duluth officials. Mayor Konkel said that Superior is considering the purchase of a similar machine but probably larger as their city does not have Duluth's hills to contend with. Fire Chief Olaf Johnson and other members of the Superior department were part of the Superior delegation. All the members of the Duluth city council, and Fire Chief Randall watched the demonstration.

One of them will be installed at No. 8 fire hall at West Duluth and the other at No. 4 hall, Fourteenth avenue east and First street.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—To supplement the work of the state tuberculosis sanitarium, the Associated Charities, the Grand Forks city council and the board of county commissioners of this county, may perfect a movement for the establishment of a county sanitarium for the care of hopeless cases.

The state sanitarium admits only those cases in which there is the element of hope for recovery, and it is filled to capacity.

Fargo Board Deadlocked.

Fargo, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a deadlock in the vote for the presidency of the board of education and an adjournment till next week was taken. Dr. Sorkness, a former member, and Dr. Ladd, recently elected, were put up as candidates for the head of the board. The vote stood four to four. F. D. Hall, who was out of the city, was recently elected. He is said to be a pro-Hoover man and will probably support Sorkness, the Hoover candidate for the presidency.

NEW STATE GOVERNMENT PLAN LAID

Economy and Efficiency Commission Ends First Stage of Work.

Six Departments Would Replace Seventy Now Conducted.

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state economy and efficiency commission today approved the tentative outline for reorganizing the system of state government developed by its various committees, and also the civil service bill and budget system scheme prepared by Dr. E. Dana Durand of the University of Minnesota.

Having ended the first stage of its work, the commission will spend the remainder of the time before the next legislative session, when its report will be submitted, in working out the details of the reorganization plan.

For Six Departments.

The outline provides for the creation of six major state departments to take the place of the seventy independent departments, boards and commissions now in existence. The substitute half dozen are:

Administration and finance, including constitutionally independent elective offices.

Public domain, to have supervision of lands, forests, game and fish, drainage, highways and building.

Public welfare, in charge of control.

Education.

Commerce, industry and labor.

Agriculture.

Each department is to be supervised by a director appointed by the governor, with the exception of the general administration and finance section, which is controlled by such elective offices as the auditor, secretary of state, treasurer and attorney general.

OPEN AIR CONCERTS.

City Plans Entertainments for the Coming Summer.

The park department of the city will give eight or ten open-air band concerts the coming summer, according to Mayor Prince. Several of these will be supplemented with chorus numbers by various singing societies in the city, some of which have already agreed to participate. The band will consist of twenty-five or more pieces. Concerts will be given at Lester, Chester, Lake Shore, Lincoln and Fairmont parks.

ROAD WORK IN FIFTH DISTRICT

More Than $40,000 Appropriated for Improving the Highways.

A totalof $40,600 has been appropriated for the improvement to highways in the fifth district. Most of this money will be spent on roads adjacent to West Duluth and leading into the city, according to County Commissioner Kauppi.

Of this sum $8,500 of contract work has already been let. This does not include $3,200 for building the concrete bridge over Keene's creek.

Among the larger items and the roads to be improved will be the following: State No. 2, known as the Thompson and Pine Hill roads leading into West Duluth, $2,000; Swan Lake road, $2,000; Savana road, $1,400; Prairie Lake, $1,400; Grafft road, $1,300; Meadowland, $3,000; Stevens road in Brookston, $2,000; Gowan road, contract let, $2,530; Industrial road, $1,500; Sevelle road, $1,300; Hermantown extension, $2,000; Maple Grove, near Proctor, $2,200; Getchell road, $1,800.

In addition to the above there are about twenty roads on which sums ranging from $100 upwards will be spent.

FILES FOR LEGISLATURE

Newspaper Reporter Would Represent the Fifty-Ninth District.

Thorgier F. Olsen, 512 North Fifty-ninth avenue west, West Duluth and West end reporter for Duluth daily papers for the last five years, filed late yesterday afternoon for representative in the state legislature from the Fifty-ninth district. Mr. Olsen has been a resident of the western end of the city for the greater part of twenty-four years. He is probably one of the best known young men in this end of the city.

TEMPORARY WORK ON PROCTOR ROAD

Much Needed Repairs Being Made; Better Roadway Necessary Soon.

Temporary repairs to the Proctor highway, which connects Bay View Heights with the village of Proctor were begun this morning. The road has been impassable for several days, according to men who have found it necessary to deliver groceries and other commodities from the city to the people of the village.

"While temporary repairs may be all right for the time being, we want something done to the road that will place it in shape permanently," said a resident of Proctor this morning. "We can hardly hope for a concrete roadway, but we should expect the road well dragged and given a heavy coating of gravel or crushed rock."

WILL BRIDGE KEENE'S CREEK

Connecting Link Between Duluth and Getchell and Proctor Roads.

Through efforts of County Commissioners Charles Kauppi and Walter Swanstrom, the county has just let the contract for the building of a concrete bridge over Keene's creek, which will connect West Duluth with the Getchell and Proctor roads. The bridge was one of the connecting links needed to complete the highway between the city and the country.

The contract was let to W. H. Kilton and the cost will be $3,200. Concrete was decided as being better than a steel bridge because of its lasting quality and that the general appearance of the structure would be better.

A sum of $1,800 has been appropriated for improvement to the Getchell road this summer. This money will be used in graveling the highway and making other necessary improvements to place it in good shape for traffic. When finished, Mr. Kauppi said, this road will be one of the best entering the city. The Getchell road will connect West Duluth in almost a direct line with the Morris Thomas highway.

Just Between You and Me

By BRUCE

THE scene is laid in a barber shop. There is a manicurist present, and also barbers, as they are considered necessary. There is a porter who is an excellent sleeper and can accomplish a nap in any posture. Several copies of the Police Gazette, some magazines that predict the election of Woodrow Wilson and a last year's calendar go to make up the local color effects.

Enter busy business man—some are—at shop left.

"Can I get a quick shave, just once over? I must catch the 5:45 for dear old Chi. I am going out to the ball game tomorrow."

The boss barber with that inimitable courtesy that only headwaiters and boss barbers are the possessors of, shows him to a chair with a barber behind it.

There is a lull in the conversation, which is unusual with barbers while the chair is being adjusted and the lather in the cup being nonchalantly beaten into foam. In the meantime the man in the chair gives a hurried glance at his watch.

Suddenly the barber opens the conversation.

"You say you are going out to the ball game tomorrow. Say I wish I was going with you. Cubs or Sox," slows up while he asks the question, "the Sox, eh? Well, I wish little old me was going down with you. Last time I was down to Chi was when my sister's husband died, and they held the funeral so late that I didn't have no chance to go out to the game.

"Say how is Chase going this year? He was the goods once, all right, but I see where he is kind of slipping back, I wish I was going to get on that train with you and just slip into Chi for one look at one of them big leaguers. We don't get that stuff out here."

"Please hurry, will you? I would not miss that train for the world."

"Sure, you got lots of time. Say," stopping wielding the razor, "are you in Chicago much of the time? Ever see this guy Chappelle? He played here onct. Sure enough. Played with the Eau Claire team. Say, Garry, this fellow seed Chappelle play, "walks away from the chair and goes half way over to the boss barber." He says he looks like a lemon."

"I never said that; I never said anything at all. Hurry up with this shave."

"Sure you said Chappelle wasn't going to make good this year. He used to play here. Yep, played with Eau Claire. What do you think of Weaver, "stops shaving the traveling gent and awaits an answer: "You say he is a grand player, eh?"

"Listen, get me, I never said anything; and look here, I want to get out of here. Say you don't want me to miss that baseball game."

"You was saying that Weaver didn't have experience. That's just the trouble of them young players. We had one with the White Sox last year. A fellow named Schreiber went up from here. I often seed him play. I told the president of the club, he comes down here to get shaved, I says, that boy is going to make a baseball player. 'Do you think so,' says he. 'I ain't never noticed.' I sure will keep my eye on him. 'You take a tip from one who knows,' says I, and after that the president pays particular notion to that fellow. He goes up, just as I opinioned. I gets out to the games every Sunday, and there is one thing that I do know, and that a ball player when I lays my eyes on 'em."

"What time is it, please? I don't want to miss that train."

"If you see Comiskey or Ted Sullivan, just say howdy for me. I shaved Comiskey and I guess he'll remember me, all right. I told him that they was using big Ed Walsh too much. Right after that they stopped using him and they ain't used him much since. I guess he took my tip. Just say hello to old Ted. Ted was scouting through here. I happens to be a personal friend of a pitcher on the Moose lake team, and I tells Ted. He laughs and I knows he is pleased. Guess he will remember the fellow who tips him off and also gives him a good hot toweling."

"Never mind the cold cream, just give me the witch hazel and let 'er go."

"I often wonder if Mr. Sullivan ever looked up that friend of mine on the Moose lake team. I guess I ought to have been a scout'—stops at the point of the chin, rests on the arm of the chair, and talks—'cause I know a ball player when I sees one. I never miss a Sunday game, and the only way to learn the game is to study it. Onct when Meneice is at bat, I guess you've heard of him, and there was a man on first and Sam had three balls, I yells, 'look out for a pitchout, Sam! Well, Sam strikes out, but I calls the turn. I was just——'

"Say, I've got to go. Come on, for heaven's sake man, never mind the powder! Let me get out of this chair. There goes a man running down to the depot."

"Yes, maybe you had better be going, it's 5:44 now. I do sure hate to let you go, though. I have sure enjoyed hearing you talk of them big leaguers and them White Sox. I likes to get a man like you in my chair and hear about those big league games. I am a real fan myself. I guess I have not missed a Sunday game in two years. I am sorry I made you hurry; oh, sure, if you run you can get that train. Say hello to Commy, the old Ro—.

"That's a, swell conversationalist that is; and say, he knows something of the game, Mat, believe me. He says Hal Chase won't hit .230 this year. What I've been telling you, Mat; it's getting the ideas from those big league guys that makes me wise on baseball."

"Next."

They All Make Mistakes.

ONE of the writers upon one of the large papers of the East points to the mistakes of Mack, McGraw, Jennings and Stallings. Oh, yes, they are all human, only in the matter of making baseball mistakes quite less human than the rest of the general run of managers of the world.

Jennings let Jimmy Archer get away from him, and today Archer is the greatest catcher in the world, and that generally is accepted by the adherents of Schang and Schalk.

McGraw let young Rudolph go and Connie Mack was guilty of the unpardonable blunder of letting that sweet young hitter and agile fly chaser, Joe Jackson, escape from the confines of Philadelphia.

It is probable that had one of the shrewdest judges of young ball players in the world realized the greatness that was to come to Jackson with the lapse of one season, that he would have got down on those attenuated knees and begged the Southern ball killer to remain with the Athletics, even if the sights and sounds of a large city frightened him.

Stallings let Foster get away from the New York Americans, and if you go down the line you will find where all of the managers have been guilty of making an error somewhere in their careers.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGER IS FREAK IN DESIGN

Yachting Journal Calls New Shamrock Futurist Design—All Modern Canons of Yacht Construction Violated.

London, May 8.—A "futurist design" is Yachting World's description of Shamrock IV., Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's cup. The new boat is no beauty, says the World. Her greatest beam is forward of the mast, which gives her an exaggerated "cod head" and the extreme bluffness detracts from her looks. The square box stern is another violation of the modern canons of yacht designing. The greatest overhang is forward and her amidship section shows she is very square on the bilge and flat on the floor. The lead keel is flat at the bottom.

Continuing, the Yachting World says the challenger's greatest beam is twenty-four feet and her draught, without the center board, fourteen feet and with the center board down, twenty-three feet. The mast is 110 feet high, and the "Marconi topmast" gives and additional fifty feet.

READY FOR RACE.

Columbia, Pennsy and Princeton Measure Skill on Saturday.

Princeton, N. J., May 8.—Columbia's varsity eight, which will compete with Pennsylvania and Princeton in the triangular regatta on Saturday, arrived here yesterday. The oarsmen were on Lake Carnegie twice during the day. Princeton crew also went out for an easy workout.

Herbert Shoemaker, Pennsylvania's varsity stroke, was taken suddenly ill with gastritis shortly before the crews departed and was unable to accompany them. His place probably will be taken by A. Littleton, who has been at No. 4, Madeira, who has been rowing at No. 7 in the second boat, will take Littleton's place at No. 4.

In addition to the delegates and alternates, a number of others made the trip to see the Southern city and greet old time friends among the fez wearers. MINNESOTA WILL PURSUE INQUIRY

State's Inheritance Tax in Weyerhaeuser Estate to Be Sought.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—Although the estimate of the estate of the late Frederick Weyerhaeuser, the "lumber king," accompanying the will, filed here for probate yesterday, stated that the approximate value was only $875,000, there was an intimation from the state's legal department that the extent of the Weyerhaeuser holdings will be very closely examined, with the idea that inheritance tax should be paid on a much larger sum.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser was once called "the richest man in the world" in a magazine article, and his timber holdings were at one time estimated at $500,000,000 and up to $200,000,000 in value.

Worth Infinitely More.

"We know that Mr. Weyerhaeuser at one time had a great deal more property than $875,000," said W. J. Stevenson, assistant attorney general in charge of inheritance tax matters. "What became of the property we will find out later. There will be nothing done until filing of the voluntary inventory, which may disclose a larger value than the will description."

A petition to prove the will was filed today in the probate court of Ramsey county. According to the meager description of the holdings given in the petition, the property is divided into personal property valued at $800,000 and city real estate worth $75,000.

The will, which was believed to have been lost according to early reports was signed by Mr. Weyerhaeuser Oct. 12, 1911. The will leaves all the property to the widow, should she survive him, but as a result of her prior death the entire property reverts to the seven children.

The four sons are made executors without bonds or restriction of any kind. In the event of the death of any child the share is to go to his children.

The Beneficiaries.

The children and heirs under the provisions of the short will, which covers less than a page and a half of typewritten words, are: John P. Weyerhaeuser, Spokane, Wash.; Elsie A. Hill, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Margaret Jewett, Cambridge, Mass.; Appollonia Davis, Rock Island, Ill.; Charles W. Weyerhaeuser, Little Falls, Minn.; Rudolph M. Weyerhaeuser, Cloquet, Minn., and Frederick E. Weyerhaeuser, St. Paul.

COUNTRY SCHOOL WITHOUT PUPILS

Death, Disease or Lack of Funds Not Blamed for Anomaly.

Escanaba, Mich., May 8.—Over in Bay de Noc township stands a little country school. The patter of little feet—the childish treble and the happy laughs are missing. The door is locked and no teacher draws salary for the instruction of pupils.

The residents of the township are perfectly willing to support the school and keep it in repair. The teacher is anxious to continue in the capacity of instructor and to draw her monthly stipend. The school is not closed by reason of death or disease—in fact everything is normal but one.

There are no pupils to attend the school.

Therefore the teacher's name is not on the pay roll.

The sad state of affairs happened recently when all of the children of school age in that district moved away with their parents. The families were all that contributed pupils to the school and when they left the school ceased to be.

CASE DRAGS ALONG.

Guild-More Action in Fargo Court Drawn Out Affair.

Fargo, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officials, attorneys, jurors, litigants and witnesses in the case of Guild vs. Moore over the ownership of the Courier-News, are convinced there is a jinx in connection with the trial. It started April 9. There have been four adjournments, two of them due to illness of the infant child of Jack Dalrymple, a juror. The case had reached the point where the arguments were being made by the attorneys when the present adjournment was forced. As many of the jurors are farmers, they have not been particularly elated over being caught for service just at the seeding time. Dalrymple is manager of the Dalrymple Bonanza farms and the long service has been particularly unfortunate for him.

Money has been subscribed to buy a grader, which will be loaned to the townships for road work. There will be at least eight new autos in Warroad this season and this means the need of building and improving of roads.

Andrew Lofgren has bought the Busse Bros. stock of general merchandise in the Security Bank block and will take possession as soon as the inventory is taken. Mr. Lofgren expects to run a first-class up-to-date store and will retain August Busse as clerk for some time.

The new Hotel Warroad is open for business. Mr. Slipp has had several years' experience in the hotel business, the new building has forty well furnished rooms, some with baths.

Wright will give two soprano recitals there as a result of the reputation she has won in musical circles because of the excellence of her voice.

SEEK FACTS OF MURDER

Whether our efforts at mediation fail or are successful, whether a satisfactory peaceful adjustment of our difficulties is achieved or not, it would seem to be obvious that Tampico and its surroundings will not be safe for foreigners of any kind during the coming death grapple between the Constitutionalists and the Federals.

As for Property Interests.

"As for the property interests, promises that they will be respected and protected have been made by the Constitutionalist generals, who are in practical control of the district in which the oil wells are located. The Federals have likewise promised to protect oil wells in any district they may control. It is to be hoped these promises will be kept. If property owners choose to return to Tampico, risking their own lives and the lives of their families, it does not lie in our power to stop them. To deliberately send them there would place upon us the responsibility of their safety. It is difficult to see how anyone could reasonably expect us to assume such an awful risk."

MEXICAN AFFAIRS TAKE ON MORE WARLIKE ASPECT

wells at Tampico. The protection of American lives and property, it was stated, was the prime motive behind the determination of army and navy officers that the American forces in Mexico should be reinforced.

Secretary Garrison declined to discuss the situation, nor would he comment on his conference with the staff officers last night, further than to say that he laid before them a report from Gen. Funston. In this report, it was said, Gen. Funston had embodied accounts brought to Vera Cruz by refugees arriving from Mexico City concerning the situation in the capital. Mr. Garrison would not reveal the character of these reports.

"All I can say is that no additional troop movements have been ordered," said Secretary Garrison, adding that he would make no prediction concerning possible future orders.

Complaint by Huerta.

In the midst of the military preparations came definite word that the mediating envoys had received from Gen. Huerta and submitted to the United States government a complaint that new landing of American troops and war material at Vera Cruz amounted to a breaking of the armistice which had been arranged by the South American diplomats after their good offices in the Mexican crisis had been accepted by Gen. Huerta and the United States. This also was one of the subjects before the cabinet.

Secretary Bryan stated early in the day that the mediators' note had been received by him, and that reply would be made.

It was authoritatively learned from a source close to the mediators that they are of the opinion that they will be able to persuade Gen. Huerta that the United States has not been violating, in spirit at least, the armistice which had been agreed upon. Otherwise a stumbling block would be placed in their way which might render virtually useless their further efforts at mediation.

The note from Gen. Huerta alleging violation by the United States of the armistice reached the mediators, who are working in the utmost possible secrecy, day before yesterday, and at once was presented by them to Secretary Bryan.

Declined to Comment.

The mediators themselves declined to comment on the matter, but it is known that they are proceeding with their peace plan as if nothing untoward had happened, expecting to see the armistice controversy cleared away soon.

They were in conference during the day discussing the plan, which is to include, it has been learned, the constitutional side of the Mexican problem and the pacification of all Mexico.

In connection with the military preparations for a possible forward movement, it became known that the officials of the war department have been in long distance telephone communication with the governors of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio in an effort to determine how soon the militia organization of those states could be mobilized and sent to the seaboard for shipment in transports. The department has been energetic for some time in its efforts to make all preparations for the possible mobolization of the National Guard.

Latest inquiries of the department were directed toward ascertaining how soon the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio troops could be put in motion in their present condition, without the delay that would be necessitated by recruiting them up to full war strength. In the theoretical organization of the militia, the Pennsylvania and New York state troops each make up a full tactical division. They are the only states supplying a full division quota. Ohio is combined with Michigan to fill a division, and the other divisions are made up of several states each.

Oil Men Ask Protection.

A delegation of Tampico oil men who yesterday conferred with Secretary of the Navy Daniels, today visited Secretary Bryan and urged measures for the protection of the oil properties in the disturbed section around Tampico. The conference was extended, and while it was on Charge Nelson O'Shaughnessy, who called at the state department, was unable to see the secretary. He left, saying he would return later in the day.

The British embassy here has made representations to Mexico City in behalf of the Americans and English employed in the oil districts in and about Tampico. These foreigners, when they attempted to land and resume their work, were driven off. There has been no response from the Mexican officials.

HUERTA SAYS UNITED STATES HAS BROKEN FAITH ON ARMISTICE

war department since the receipt of Gen. Funston's cipher dispatch last night signified any change of policy on the part of the United States toward Mexico, Mr. Bryan said that he could not discuss the affairs of the war department.

No Formal Armistice.

Officials pointed out that neither the United States nor Gen. Huerta had yet entered into any formal armistice. What occurred was this:

The mediators suggested that hostilities should be suspended during the period of negotiations. To this Secretary Bryan replied that it was assumed there would be a suspension of hostilities, except to repel attack. Gen. Huerta's answer was understood to be an acceptance, but the exact terms have not yet been given out.

Mr. Bryan has several times pointed out that this did not constitute a formal armistice, but only an assumption that hostilities would be suspended except to resist aggression.

Article VII of The Hague convention, of which the United States and Mexico are signatories, provides specifically on troop movements pending mediation, as follows:

"Article VII. The acceptance of mediation cannot, unless there be an agreement to the contrary, have the effect of interrupting, delaying or hindering mobilization or other preparations, or preparation for war.

"If mediation occurs after the commencement of hostilities, it causes no interruption to the military operations in progress, unless there be an agreement to the contrary."

Hangs on Interpretation.

To what extent the present suspension at Vera Cruz operates under these rules appears therefore to depend largely on the construction of the informal understanding that it was assumed hostilities would be suspended except to repel attack.

Leading authorities on international law hold that an armistice, truce or suspension of hostilities should be definite and exact, and not implied. One of the leading authorities, Halleck, says:

"Such a general suspension of hostilities only can be made by the sovereignty of the state, either directly or by authority specially delegated. Such authority is never implied, and the enemy is bound to see that the agent is specially authorized to bind his principal."

When an armistice is formally agreed to, the authorities hold that "during its pendency neither party may engage in any military work, operation or movement, at least upon the immediate theater of war."

In Case of Armistice.

This, however, is limited to the "theater of war," and it is added:

"Each party may, in its own jurisdiction, do with its armed forces whatever it could do in time of peace. Fortifications can be built or put in order, vessels fitted out, troops raised and trained, and warlike stores manufactured and collected. Troops can be moved about from one part of a country to another, with the exception of the actual area of hostilities."

This latter applies only when a formal armistice is in operation, and it is an open question as to what the condition is when there is no formal armistice, but only an assumption that hostilities will be suspended except to repel attack.

AMERICAN YACHT SEIZED BY MEXICANS

San Francisco, Cal., May 8.—The relatives and friends of Arthur Payne, a young society man and son of a wealthy Menlo Park family, have become alarmed at a report that he has been captured by Mexicans on the west coast. The following telegram was sent to Secretary of State Bryan and the American consul at Guaymas:

"Have unconfirmed reports American yacht, Iola captured and held by Mexicans off west coast of Mexico. Nothing Makes Cake So Good As Snow-Mellow

You will be only too glad to bake cake at home, once you realize how much more delicious it is than any cake you ever bought. Beat up a tablespoonful of Snow-Mellow to make a filling for a big two-layer cake, or one and one-half spoonfuls, if you want a three-layer cake, as shown above. Let the layers cool, then spread them thick with Snow-Mellow. Set aside a few moments to stiffen. Then build up the layers and spread icing around top and sides. This is one of 28 recipes, shown in booklet furnished by your grocer, with our special beater—both free—with every 25c box of Snow-Mellow. Every box makes desserts for seven meals, for four to six people. Buy Snow-Mellow and try it today. If your grocer hasn't it in stock, and you'll send us his name and 25c, we will mail Snow-Mellow with recipe book and beater, FREE. Frank & Houren, Sales Agts., 623 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

MEXICO FLOODED BY BOGUS MONEY.

San Antonio, Tex., May 8.—Millions of dollars in counterfeit Constitutionalist paper money, said to have been printed in San Antonio, are circulating throughout such portions of Mexico as are held by that faction, according to Lauro Carrillo, Constitutionalist agent here. Carrillo has been instructed to ascertain which printing establishment issued the money.

between the representatives of the coal companies and the representatives of the striking employes.

"And how shall this battle of extermination go on? It is no longer a struggle for social justice, but instead the humble miners in Colorado are fighting the battle of the common people against the powerful corporations associated with John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

"Shall these powerful interests crush and destroy the hopes, ambitions and aspirations of these striking miners and their families? The answer must be 'No!' There can be no turning back or turning aside. The sacrifices already made are too great. The slaughter of innocents demands from us our fullest measure of devotion.

Pledge Years of Support.

"With resolute power and full determination, the United Mine Workers of America hereby pledge themselves to support the mine workers in Colorado and aid them as long as this contest goes on, even though it lasts for a period of ten years, until their rights are recognized and an honorable wage settlement is brought about.

"We pledge to them the support of the international organization, and hereby solemnly declare our unyielding purpose to supply them with financial help and moral support until their rights are recognized and an honorable wage settlement is brought about.

"We deem the exercise of the right of the Colorado miners to belong to the United Mine Workers of America as inherent, and the establishment of a labor union among them as essential to the preservation of peace, the establishment of social justice and a protection against the imposition of unjust conditions in the future. Without the protection of the labor organization, what chance has an individual miner in dealing with powerful financial interests well organized and as represented by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose name is synonymous with Standard Oil?"

Women Blame Militia.

Denver, Colo., May 8.—Maj. P. J. Hamrock, Lieut. P. E. Linderfelt and the "home guard" militia detachment under them are charged with responsibility for the Ludlow battle and fire which cost twenty-one lives, in the report of the Women's Peace league committee reports, submitted to Governor Ammons.

The committee was named at a women's mass meeting held in the capital to insist that the governor appeal to President Wilson for Federal troops. Equipped with passports from the governor the members visited the Trinidad and Ludlow districts and made a personal investigation. The report is signed by Mrs. Alma Lafferty and Mrs. Evangeline Heartz. The name of Mrs. Lee Champion, the third member, is not attached.

The report concludes with recommendations for investigation of all happenings connected with the presence of the militia in the strike district and urges the governor to use his police power and take over the mines for operation by the state pending an agreement between the strikers and operators.

Ammons Criticized.

A proposal to bar from the printed record of the Colorado senate a resolution offered by John I. Tierney, in which the Ammons administration was criticized in connection with its policy in the coal strike, caused heated debate late yesterday. The resolution remained on the record. The vote, which was on a motion by Hiram E. Hilte, was a tie. Lieut. Governor Fitzgerald withheld his deciding vote and the motion was declared lost.

The house in the meantime engaged in a vigorous clash over the bill for a $1,000,000 bond issue to pay the expenses of the militia. B. A. Sweet offered an amendment providing that the money raised by the measure should not be used for paying any militiamen who ever served as mine guards or detectives or any man connected with the Ludlow battle of April 20 until he had been exonerated by a court-martial. With this resolution before it the house passed up the bill until today.

Tierney's Resolution.

Senator Tierney's resolution recites conditions existing in the coal fields, the conclusion being in substance as follows:

Support a program of law and order by officials as well as strikers; the payment of every bona fide military bill; oppose the suggestions for a state constabulary; urge the modification of coal land leases to guarantee a fair wage, proper living and working conditions, the right of collective bargaining and prices of coal; urge a constitutional amendment, "repealing the infamous Moyer decision, conceived in treason, written in corruption and carried out in incredible cruelty."

Vera Cruz, May 8.—G. H. Coxson, an Englishman, manager of the Vera Cruz Street Railway company, is a prisoner of the Mexican Federal general, Maas, at Soledad. NON-COMBATANTS AT MAZATLAN PROTECTED

Neutral Zone Is Agreed To By Rebel Commander.

Washington, May 8.—There will be no further attacks upon non-combatants by bombs from aeroplanes at Mazatlan, as Admiral Howard has cabled the navy department from that port under yesterday's date that Gen. Obregon, the Constitutionalist leader of the forces besieging the city, has agreed to the establishment of a neutral zone.

Gen. Obregon further has promised that his forces shall not injure foreigners, non-combatants nor their property.

SUFFRAGETTE DRAWS YEAR'S PRISON TERM

Leeds, Eng., May 8.—Lillian Lenton, a militant suffragette, was sentenced today at the assizes here to a year's imprisonment for setting fire to Westfield House, Doncaster, in June, last year.

Miss Lenton, while awaiting trial for the crime, which she confessed, was released after a hunger strike. She disappeared and remained in hiding for almost a year, but was rearrested a few days ago at Brighton.

Albany, N. Y., May 8.—A bill to authorize the governor to negotiate a "war loan" not exceeding $100,000 for the use of the national guard, was introduced in both houses of the state legislature today.

The bill would permit the governor to order the loan "whenever it shall appear to the satisfaction of the governor that on account of war, either in actual progress or impending, between the United States and a foreign enemy, it is necessary or advisable for the national guard to be in a state of preparedness."

SPANISH KING HAS APPROVED WEDDING.

Madrid, May 8.—King Alfonso has authorized the marriage of the Infante Ferdinand of Bavaria, husband of the king's late sister, Marie Theresa, with Luisa Silva Fernandez de Henestrosa, daughter of Count de Pie de Concha, the introducer of ambassador court.

It is understood that the bride, who is a lady in waiting to the queen mother, Maria Christina, will be given a title by King Alfonso.

FARGO BUILDING DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fargo, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bland & Bland's hardware store was damaged by a fire last night which started in the paint storeroom in the basement, evidently from crossed electric wires. The building is owned by President Emery of the city commission, and it was considerably damaged. The occupants of several offices overhead and in adjoining flats also lost considerably. The headquarters for the Equity society were on the second floor. The total loss is estimated at $17,000, practically all insured.

Valley City Library Fire.

Valley City, N. D., May 8.—Fire broke out in the public library early yesterday. The fire whistle was misleading, but the fire company was on the ground promptly. The books were not burned, but the heat ruined the upper floor. The loss is about $3,000. Officials of the fire company believe the fire was of incendiary origin.

ARGUMENT FOR FOND DU LAC BRIDGE PRESENTED

Duluthians Answer Arguments Set Forth By Superior Men.

Arguments made by the Superior delegation against the plan of St. Louis county to erect a bridge across the St. Louis river at Fond du Lac were answered today by representatives of this county at a hearing before Maj. E. D. Peek, chief of the United States engineers' office here. The Duluth Commercial club, the Duluth Automobile club, and other interests of this city as well as Carlton county were represented, and Maj. Peek gave every one present an opportunity to express his views.

The arguments were divided into two parts—refutation of the arguments presented by the Superior men and arguments showing the importance and necessity of a bridge at Fond du Lac. Points made in favor of the bridge being built at Fond du Lac were as follows: Necessity of having direct communication between Duluth and the highways of Carlton county to accommodate thousands of farmers, and many automobilists of Duluth and the Twin Cities, the Fond du Lac route being shorter by about five to seven miles than the route via the steel plant; the importance of having a passage across the river to make quick connections after the street car lines have been extended from Duluth to Fond du Lac, and the encouragement of agriculturists and dairymen of Carlton county by giving them a direct route to Duluth.

The arguments made by the Superior men were met by a mass of evidence. The petition presented by the Superiorites signed by 150 farmers, all of whom were said to oppose the St. Louis county plan, was declared to be entirely misleading and not to represent the views of the farmers of Carlton county. The petition was drawn up some time ago when the farmers did not understand that St. Louis county proposed giving them a direct route to Duluth free of charge.

J. B. McLeran, who has had large farming interests in Carlton county for fourteen years, declared that only a few names on the petition were known to him and that the petition did not in any way represent the farming interests.

Signers Misled.

"I can get a petition signed by ten times as many farmers," said Mr. McLeran, "and show definitely where each signer lives and that he is directly interested in behalf of the highest welfare of the farmers in general. Many of the signers were doubtless misled into believing that the new bridge would increase their taxes. Others may be working in the brickyards or living in remote places, knowing nothing of the purpose of the proposed improvement.

Other farmers said that it was known that at least twenty-five of the signers were now opposed to the petition presented by the Superior men.

President Goodell of the Barnum Commercial club gave an extensive argument along the same line, saying that he could secure 100 names in his community with little difficulty, as practically all of the farmers would favor St. Louis county's plan when it was put before them in its true light.

After this information had been given it was decided to name a committee of five to draw up a petition and get it signed as soon as possible. Maj. Peek will forward his report to Washington at once and the signed petition will be sent to Congressman Stevens, who will act for Congressman Miller while he is away from the capital.

A communication forwarded by Odin Halden, county auditor, was read in his absence. Mr. Halden emphasized the importance of building the bridge at Fond du Lac so that the highways would be directly connected with Duluth.

Henry Bridgeman spoke in behalf of the Duluth Commercial club and H. J. Mullin, secretary of the Duluth Automobile club, spoke for the auto interests. Mr. Mullin said the club had spent $1,000 in looking over the routes possible and had decided that Fond du Lac was best in every way.

Judge Cant said that Duluth was under no moral or legal obligation to build an approach to the bridge at the steel plant.

In addition to arguments made today Maj. Peek has received complete arguments in the matter through Charles E. Adams, special counsel for St. Louis county.

MAN SMOTHERED UNDER STOCKPILE

Hibbing, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dan Kaverdich, aged 27, single, was smothered to death today under a stockpile at the Harold mine of the Oliver Iron Mining company, located about five miles from Hibbing.

He was helping at the loading operations when a mass of the earth and ore caved upon him, about 10 a. m., fairly burying him alive. He was dug out in a few minutes, but was unconscious and all efforts to revive him failing, word was sent to the United States bureau of mines car now demonstrating here for aid. The experts in the use of the pulmotor rushed to the Harold mine with one of those machines and worked upon Kaverdich for two hours and a half, but death resulted shortly after noon. It was one of the unusual accidents of the range.

NOT LIKELY TO DISAGREE ON PHYSICAL VALUATION

"Good Will" of Edison Company Will Be Chief Subject of Debate.

That the city and the Duluth-Edison Electric company will be able to agree upon the physical valuation of the company's plant and that the principal question of debate will be the amount to be allowed for "good will" were the probabilities drawn from an informal meeting last evening of the city commission with W. J. Hagenah, valuation expert, retained by the Edison company; W. B. Rittenhouse, who is appraising the property for the city; D. H. Reed, manager of the water and light plant; Frank H. Crassweller, who will act as the city's attorney in the negotiations, and E. Vokes, a local contractor.

Those present were the guests of Commissioner Leonidas Merritt, head of the division of public utilities. He entertained them at a dinner served at 6 o'clock in a private dining room at the Spalding hotel and this was followed by a discussion of the local electric plant situation. It was for this purpose that Commissioner Merritt arranged the party while the company's representative was in the city.

Train Held Fifteen Minutes.

Mr. Hagenah was obliged to leave early in order to catch the evening train and this was held fifteen minutes for him by officials of the Northern Pacific in order to enable him to complete his statement to the commissioners and other officials. The authorities were favorably impressed by his remarks, the keynote of which was co-operation with the city to the end that the negotiations may be amicably adjusted with fairness to both the city and the company.

Mr. Rittenhouse was highly complimented upon the thoroughness of his inventory and the manner in which he had proceeded. Mr. Hagenah said that he is well satisfied that it has been complete and that he had no doubt but that it would prove satisfactory to both principals. The pricing is now being completed and he did not expect that much difficulty would be experienced in coming together upon values, judging from the tests which he had made of figures which have already been finished.

The company's representative spoke at some length on the other features which must be taken into consideration in arriving at the final price to be paid for the property. These might be covered by the general term "good will." He pointed out that if the city takes over the plant it will acquire a going business which has already been built up and that no time will be lost in the construction of a plant which would involve time and interest on the money. He said that he could not make any prediction as to what that would be in this case, but stated that in other cities the agerage range has been between 10 and 20 per cent and that he has known of exceptional instances where it has gone as high as 30 per cent.

Comparing Has Expert.

Mr. Hagenah informed the gathering that the company now has an expert engaged on its books, collecting and classifying all information which will have a bearing on the question. He said that when this had been finished the data will be turned ocver to the city as freely and in the same spirit of fair play as the city has furnished the company with the valuation statistics prepared by Mr. Rittenhouse.

He expressed confidence in the commission, asserting that the council would consider the case in a capacity similar to that of judges. He said that he is sure they will be impartial and deal justly with the company as well as look out for the interests of the city.

Attorney Crassweller, who volunteered at the time the valuation was started to handle the legal phases of the proceedings to take over the plant, said that the citizens of Duluth are determined to acquire their own electric light and power plant. He assured those present when it becomes necessary the Municipal Ownership league will continue to lend its united support to that end.

Mr. Rittenhouse explained the plan which has followed in making the appraisal and said that it will only be a short time before he will be in a position to announce the final figures. He stated that Charles L. Pillsbury, who is acting as consulting engineer, is now engaged in pricing certain pieces of property listed in the inventory. He thought that he would wind this up in a few days and that he would likely be in the city the first part of next week.

Touch Upon Rates.

The question of rates for a municipal electric plant was touched upon. The general opinion was that it would be inadvisable to anticipate the making of reductions when the plant is secured.

Several other matters were informally considered and the meeting then transformed itself from a serious business gathering into a jolly little party. Cares and worries were forgotten. Jokes and stories were exchanged and old times recalled. Altogether the session was pronounced a huge success and was characterized as one of the most profitable at which the commissioners have been present. Commissioner Merritt was acclaimed by his colleagues as being an entertainer par excellence and "a heap good fellow."

IVERSON WILL LOOK INTO NORTH FLOODS

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The flooding of thousands of acres of state lands by the dams erected at International Falls and Kettle Falls, on the Canadian boundary, by the Minnesota & Ontario Power company will be investigated personally by State Auditor Iverson.

J. H. Beagle, cruiser in the state land department, returned today from the North country and reported the situation to Mr. Iverson. No estimate of the damage was made, but it was conservatively placed at almost $500,000.

Mr. Iverson said he would go into the district as soon as the ice leaves the lakes and rivers.

FINE BALL PARK IS NOW ASSURED

Two Harbors Fans Will Have Suitable and Convenient Diamond.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Harbors is at last assured of a suitable ball ground within easy reach from all parts of the city, as permission has been received to use the intersection of Seventh avenue and Willow street for a ball park. An athletic association is being formed and if the plans now well underway materialize all matters connected with the organization and management of the team will be on a better basis than at any time heretofore.

Use Some Old Material.

An effort will be made to improve the ground so that a good diamond and outfield will be provided. It is probable that considerable new material will be needed, but all the material which is at the old park that is worth moving will be brought to the new grounds and used. The work of improving the grounds, building the grandstands and fence will commence just as soon as the weather permits.

The new park will be so located that it can be reached from most any part of the city within a five or ten-minute walk.

At the baseball meeting held last evening it was decided to organize an association.

WILL USE MACHINES.

The people brought in will be taken to whatever church they desire to attend, the aim being to give the people in the country an opportunity to attend church on that day.

SULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA AND STOPS ITCHING

This Old Time Skin Healer Is Used Just Like Any Cold Cream.

With the first application of bold-sulphur cream the angry itching attending any eczema eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated, inflamed skin, the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years this soothing, healing sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Special services and musical programs are being prepared in all the churches of the city.

The planting of 500 trees was commenced Tuesday under the supervision of an expert horticulturist representing the Jewell Nursery company of Lake City, Minn. The trees are American elm, Carolina poplar and will be planted alternately, twenty feet apart.

The Nashwauk band will play and President Raattama has promised to toss the first ball opening the season here. The two teams will meet on Central avenue and headed by the band, will parade to the ball park. As the two teams are evenly matched the game should be a good one and it is expected that a large crowd of fans will be in attendance.

TWO JURIES ARE OUT LONG TIME

Finally Report to Judge Hughes That They Cannot Agree.

Virginia, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The long-distance records for two district court juries on the range being out at the same time was reached here about 5 p. m. yesterday, when two bodies of men who had been consulting since 5 p. m. Wednesday and 9 a. m. Wednesday came into court and reported they could not agree.

The cases were those of the Colvin-Robb Lumber company vs F. J. Hughes, and of Antonia Ranzoni vs. Charles Hermonson.

The court discharged both juries and ordered a special panel called.

The court yesterday and this morning heard the case of Thomas Rasberg vs. W. P. Deitch, involving the sale of a horse. This case was followed by that of Thomas Mikkaliene vs. Adolph Keller, to recover $10,000 damages for false arrest in the alleged sale of mortgaged property.

The court attaches had some trouble quartering the two juries that were kept out over night.

The jurors had to divide up on the cots in the juryroom, and others spent the night on the floor, making impromptu pillows out of their coats. The janitor threatened to throw the entire number of men out if the room was left in such a condition another morning.

CHOIR SURPRISED.

Ely Church Officials Walk In on Singers and Make Gift.

Ely, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of the Methodist church took advantage of the choir practice last night, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Frisk, to surprise the choir. The church officials walked unannounced into the room where the choir was preparing for music for Sunday. The arrangements for the evening had been so carefully made by a committee headed and chosen by Mrs. A. J. Thomas, that none of the sixteen members of the choir knew definitely anything concerning the party, and only a few surmised that anything was about to happen.

During the evening a token of appreciation from the board was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Frisk for the work they have been doing in the choir, Mr. Frisk, having been director of the choir for many years.

Tonight the annual Senior-Junior party at the high school will be held. This being the first event connected with the commencement at the high school. A Duluth orchestra will furnish music for the evening.

DISCUSS SCHOOL PLANS.

Ely Board Getting Ready to Let New School Contract.

Ely, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board of district No. 12 is holding special meetings preparing for the letting of the contract and approving plans for the new twenty-four-room school house to be built here this summer. When completed this will be one of the best school buildings on the iron ranges. Architect Parsons of Minneapolis is here going over the plans with the members of the board.

Prof. Brand A. Leopold, who for the past year has been principal of the grades in the high school has declined re-election to accept the potition of principal at the Roosevelt school in Virginia. Mr. Leopold came here from St. Cloud last fall.

Four were instructed in the first degree in Odd Fellowship last evening. Ely lodge, I. O. O. F. is conferring degrees at every regular meeting this spring.

ARBO VOTES BONDS.

Itasca County Town to Spend $3,000 in Improvements.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The town of Arbo Wednesday voted favorably on the proposition of bonding for $3,000, $300 of which is to be expended in building a tool and machinery building, $1,700 in funding the floating indebtedness of the town, and $1,000 for road work. The town finances have been in bad shape for several years, careless and more or less questionable methods of doing business in the early days of the township placed it heavily in debt. This was gradually being wiped out, but the present directors of the town decided that a bond issue would provide money to pay off the debt and to do some very necessary road and other improvement, and hence the election. The bonds carried by a large majority.

WANT ROAD WORK AROUND VIRGINIA

Commercial Club to Ask County Board to Make Expenditure.

Virginia, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club last night named a committee to wait on the St. Louis county board and urge the county to spend $40,000 on road work in this section, which it is claimed was allotted and then spent elsewhere. Another committee will confer with the Eveleth Commercial club on improving roads between the two cities.

The club opposed the proposed county hospital at Wolf, and demanded that the institution be built here, and that the county send its cases here.

Britt Gets Trains.

The committee that conferred with Canadian Northern officials relative to having trains stop at Britt station reported success, and stated that the railroad will in future stop its morning train at its place. This will enable more than 100 farmers in the vicinity to ship cream and other produce to this city daily. The changed schedule will also permit settlers near Britt to come to Virginia early in the morning to do their shopping and return about noon the same day.

The work of erecting a depot at Britt will begin at once.

The club discussed the proposition of the land on the Iron Mountain road being sought by the local school board for agricultural purposes, and a resolution was passed asking that the state sell the land direct to the board of education. The court has appointed three appraisers to decide on the price to be paid the state for the sixty-six acres of land which the schools desire to obtain, but the Virginia board desires to go over the heads of the appraisers and deal direct with the state officials. It was rumored the state intended to plat this land and sell it in small lots for truck gardening, but it is believed the idea has now been abandoned.

The school board plans to utilize the land for establishing an agricultural class.

SHOPMEN LAID OFF.

Duluth & Northern Minnesota Lets Out Twenty-Five Employes.

Knife River, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty-five shopmen and men working about the yards of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad here were laid off this week on account of the road not doing enough business to warrant them keeping the men employed. It is said the layoff is only temporary and will possibly last not longer than a month or six weeks. Men who have worked for the company for the last ten years are out of employment. The railroad is a logging line and as nearly all the logging camps on the line are closed down business has fallen off to almost nothing.

Many of the men who have been laid off will be able to get employment loading pulpwood at Knife River for the present, at least. There is about 8,000 or 10,000 cords of pulpwood here, which will be loaded into boats this summer and shipped to various points down the lakes.

The program has been left to the committee, who as yet has not decided upon the speakers. A musical program will also be prepared, which will compare very favorably with former years.

The ladies of the G. A. R. are also making plans to work in conjunction with the committee.

PUMPS FOR KEEWATIN.

Village Council Proposes to Buy Two at Once.

Keewatin, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the village is using sinker pumps owned by the St. Paul and Brey mines to drain out the village well, and as the pumps may be called for at any time, it is the intention of the council to purchase two pumps to cost $1,000 each with a view of selling them after the well has been drained and put into condition for use. At the last meeting of the council the paving proposition was discussed at some length and it seems to be consensus of opinion that creosote blocks would make the best streets. Park Commission Clerk Shipley has advertised for bids, which will be opened in about two weeks, and the work will then be rushed to completion. The lights will add a great deal to the attractiveness of the park and also be a good thing for the city.

A great deal of use is made of the parks during the summer, and it is believed that twice the number of people will visit there during the warm evenings as did last year, when the lights were not used.

Nervous mothers, worried from morning till night by the care of children and the duties of the household; nervous children wornout by overstudy, unable to sit still or stand still or to keep their minds concentrated on anything very long, both need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood and strengthen the nerves.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Makes It Lifeless, Dull, Dry, Brittle and Thin.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

WHEAT EASY AT THE CLOSE

Market Finishes Weak After Early Strength on Export Demand.

Flaxseed Firmer With Estimated Smaller Acreage Under Crop.

Board of Trade, May 8.—The market was easier at the close. May wheat closed ¼c off; July ⅛c off and September ⅛c off at 88¼c asked. May durum closed ¼c off and July ⅛c off.

Oats closed ¼c off at 37c for on the track, and 36c for to arrive. Rye closed unchanged at 56½@58½c and barley unchanged at 54@59c for the best grade.

At Winnipeg May oats closed at 37¼c bid, and July at 37⅜c bid.

Under the impetus of continued buying for export today, cash and the near wheat options held steady during the first three hours' trading. The bearish government crop report was without influence, being regarded by traders as having been entirely discounted. The foreign situation was the dominant factor early, Liverpool and the other European markets closing with substantial advances under the influence of prospective light world's shipments this week and a marked rapid reduction in stocks. Argentine shipments for the week were small, a little more than half what they were last year.

Advices from over the winter wheat territory today were all bearish in their tenor, telling of a high condition of the plant in every quarter. Expectations now are that the harvest will be early in some of the states, advices from Tennessee for example, being to the effect that samples are being shown in which the plant is headed out and in full bloom.

Reports came to hand of better weather for seeding operations in the northwest, and good progress was reported by farmers in districts of North Dakota and Western Minnesota, where work had been retarded through overabundant moisture.

The outgo from Duluth elevators continues heavy, and stocks are being substantially reduced. Wheat stores here are now down to 8,679,000 bu., a reduction of 1,674,000 bu. in the last five days. At Minneapolis, supplies showed a reduction of 900,000 bu. in the week.

May wheat opened unchanged at 93¾ and weakened ¼c up to the first hour. July opened unchanged at 93½c and after selling up ½c, it fell off to the opening figure. The September option opened unchanged at 88⅜c and broke ¾c.

Business in durum was again in small volume. The May option opened ⅛c off at 88c, and July unchanged at 89½c. That option later gained fractionally.

Flaxseed Is Irregular.

An estimate by an expert that the seeding of flaxseed in Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana will show a reduction of 400,000 acres this spring led to a strong market in the seed early in the session. Receipts continued small at all points and offerings were light with a cessation of speculative liquidation that had been in evidence yesterday. Winnipeg was also strong, with good buying reported up there.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.56 and closed ½c off at $1.55½. July opened unchanged at $1.57 and closed unchanged at $1.57; September opened unchanged at $1.58¾ and closed ¼c up at $1.58¾ asked; and the October option unchanged at $1.56 and closed ¼c up at $1.56¼ asked. At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.35 and July at $1.37¾.

MARKET GOSSIP.

The Grand Forks Herald has the following regarding northwestern seeding conditions: Langdon, N. D., 75 per cent seeded; Park River 60 per cent; Drayton, 75 per cent; Mayville, 50 per cent; Lakota practically all seeded; Grafton between 40 and 50 seeded, and at Thompson 80 per cent. It states in addition, that the season is late, but despite this fact conditions are usually good, and that if farmers have their wheat in the ground by May 20 it will be all right.

• • •

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The bearish American crop report was fully offset here by good outside buying induced by strength in Manitobas, fair Continental demand for cargoes and firmness displayed in all export offers of good quality, which made for a firm opening, ¼d lower to ¼d higher, with May shorts covering. During the morning, there was some profit-taking, particularly in July, but at the decline, support was again in evidence, and at midday the undertone was firm. At 1:30 p. m. the undertone was steady, ¼d lower to ¼d higher.

"Corn opened ¼d higher and later advanced ¼d with the undertone firm. Firmness in spot and continued reports recorded by a private firm here of damage in Argentina and complaints regarding the lowered condition of corn, and small arrivals at Argentine ports for shipment, prompted shorts to cover. At 1:30 p. m. prices were ⅝d higher."

Argentine wheat shipments were 1,344,000 bu, against 456,000 bu last week and 2,760,000 bu last year; oats, 430,000 bu, against 622,000 bu last week and 1,860,000 bu last year; corn, 2,057,000 bu, of which 425,000 bu were for the United States, against 2,049,000 bu last week and 3,596,000 bu last week; visible wheat, 1,120,000 bu, against 1,240,000 bu last week and 2,240,000 bu last year; corn, 5,100,000 bu against 5,100,000 bu last week and 5,950,000 bu last year.

• • •

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "Wheat traders who were bearish construed the government report as more in their favor, although the condition was not as high as they expected and the cut in acreage more than most of the trade looked for. It was noticeable that commission houses which are bearish advised against short sales on breaks. Bulls took the crop report as rather less bearish than they anticipated."

• • •

The Minneapolis cash market was firmer, with very good local and outside milling demand. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at from 2½@3½c over July and velvet chaff at 1½@2c over. Some mills reported fair flour sales and others found it very dull. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from 92c to 94c and No. 2 northern at from 90c to 92c.

• • •

Broomhall estimates world's shipments, exclusive of North America, at 8,800,000 bu against 6,610,000 bu last week. Of this Europe will take 7,200,000 bu. Total shipments last week were 9,248,000 bu and last year 12,576,000 bu. Arrivals into United Kingdom were about 3,200,000 bu. He predicts a moderate increase on passage.

• • •

Australian wheat shipments, 2,112,000 bu; Indian wheat shipments, 104,000 bu; the estimate next week is for 88,000 bu.

• • •

C. S. Lewis wired Baker from Minneapolis: "As we predicted yesterday as far as being an immediate bear factor the government report was immediately lost. The trade realizes they have an enormous crop in the southwest, but they also realize it can be reduced in size and that there will be a very keen demand for the first arrivals. The old wheat is in a very firm position and it is hard to buy July wheat in Minneapolis. We would buy both wheat and corn on breaks for the time being."

• • •

Parker Paine had the following from Chicago: "The Washington crop report surprised nobody. The acreage was reduced a little more than expected and possibly the condition was raised a little less than private estimates given out recently suggested. The department raised its figure on par yield and this caused the total calculation to show larger than a month ago. The foreign trade evidently was not influenced by the report as Liverpool comes ½d higher to ¼d lower. The cold, wet weather in the Northwest is becoming a little more serious. The big winter wheat promise is the one thing in the way of full operations, based on the foreign situation and decreased stocks at Chicago, Kansas City and the Northwest. Strong interests likely to take the wheat if bears force it."

Kansas grain dealers are preparing to handle the coming great wheat crop. Elevators are being enlarged and many new ones built. The big mills are adding to their capacity, and scores that have been idle are getting ready for a prosperous season.

Governor Hodges estimates the wheat yield this year between 130,000,000 and 140,000,000 bu., if weather conditions continue favorable.

Sales by cash grain houses of half a million bushels at Chicago for export out of the winter wheat crop of 1914 for August delivery are taken to mark the beginning of what promises to be the heaviest and possibly one of the earliest wheat movements which the railroads of the west have had to handle.

The interest of the foreign market in America's new wheat at prevailing prices of about 85 cents for September is thought worthy of more than passing note. It means two things of special interest, that the European buyers are out for the earliest wheat they can get and that this country's own well advanced winter wheat is going to be harvested early and probably marketed as fast as threshed.

Last year the United States exported 28,686,000 worth of breadstuffs in August, nearly $18,000,000 worth in September, and over $13,000,000 worth in October. The effect of the early exports was to give this country a decided advantage in foreign exchange.

B. W. Snow wired from Enid, Okla.: "Central and Southern Oklahoma seeded a large acreage of wheat simply for fall and winter pasturage. Conditions are so favorable that most of it is being allowed to stand for harvest, so that the acreage in this state is larger than was really intended. In the big wheat counties up North the prospect is perfect; no trace of damage from any cause, and there is all the moisture that is needed. The crop is just coming into head. Corn stand is perfect and is being worked out."

• • •

Modern Miller says: "Wheat is heading in the southern part of the winter wheat belt, and the crop is well advanced towards normal maturity. Rains have given the Kansas crop a vigorous growth, and a report by counties shows that conditions remain high and indicate a yield equal to the highest estimate. Some counties report rank growth. The general outlook is fully up to highest expectations."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Strength at Liverpool Overcomes Bearish Effect of Crop Report.

Chicago, May 8.—Wheat developed firmness today in sympathy with the comparative strength shown at Liverpool despite the bearish crop report from Washington. The continued advance by other European markets furnished additional help to the bulls. Trade here, however, was light. The opening varied from ⅛c off to ⅛@¼c up, with prices later gradually hardening all around.

Afterward Oklahoma dispatches predicting the earliest harvest on record led to a setback. The close was steady at a shade to ⅛@⅜c net decline.

Wet weather delay to planting brought about a slight bulge in corn. The effect, though, was not of a lasting sort. Initial sales were unchanged to ⅛c higher and there was a little further gain, before the market began to react.

Increased rural offerings in the Southwest caused depression. The close was steady at a loss of ⅛c to ⅛@¼c net.

Oats were governed by corn. Commission houses generally turned sellers after the market had made a small upturn.

Slowness of trade at the yards led to a heavy feeling in regard to provisions. First transactions were 2½c to 10c decline and there was a subsequent further setback.

GREENE-CANANEA DECLINES SHARPLY

Issue Sells Off With Heavy Realizing on Mexican Situation.

Quotations in mining stocks weakened today as a result of the less favorable Mexican situation, and declines were general through the list. Greene-Cananea sold off $2.12 to a close of $30.87. Granby declined $1 at a close of $79.

In the Duluth curb list, realizing sales led to Calumet & Corbin selling off to 36@37c. Alex-Scott sold at $5 and Denn at $8.25.

The total output of the Calumet & Arizona smelter during April was 6,846,000 pounds of copper. This included the outputs of the Calumet & Arizona mines, Shattuck-Arizona and other custom ore.

The annual report of New Arcadian shows $24,558 cash on hand April 30, with $18,230 still due from assessments, total of $42,788.

Tonopah Extension reports for March show receipts of $59,513 and expenses of $41,185, leaving a balance of $18,325.

• • •

A wire received by Paine, Webber & Co. from Boston said: "Some of the large copper producers have receded from the asking prices of 14¾c for electrolytic and are now naming 14c. Some business has been done at that level."

Copper exports for the week ending May 7 were 6,430 tons, an increase of 2,803 tons. From Jan. 1 they were 158,373 tons, an increase of 27,226 tons.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Weaker Than Any Time Since Advance Was Checked.

Principal Shares Touch Lowest Figures in the Closing Hour.

New York, May 8.—A vigorous selling campaign was launched at the opening of the stock market today. Professional traders selected for their attack a number of issues which have been weak recently and succeeded in driving them down until the whole market was falling.

The bears were assisted in their move by the decline in American stocks abroad, as well as by reports of a more serious situation at Vera Cruz. Canadian Pacific led the decline with a drop of 2%. Amalgamated, Smelting, Texas company, Anaconda, Mexican Petroleum, Baltimore & Ohio, Lehigh Valley and Southern Pacific sold off 1 to 2 points.

The market grew quieter after the early selling movement had spent its force, and partial recoveries were made in some instances, but the heavy undertone persisted through the morning. Failure of the market to respond to yesterday's highly favorable crop report encouraged short selling. Chesapeake & Ohio, in particular, was poorly supported, falling 2¾ to 49, the lowest figure for six years.

Bonds were easy.

Prices improved for a time after noon, but short covering ceased before the earlier losses had been made up and the market eased off once more. The copper producers' monthly report, although showing an increase in supplies of metal of 5,727,000 pounds was less unfavorable than the more bearish forecast and after its appearance the copper shares improved. Continued ease of money was indicated by estimates on the week's currency movement, which called for a cash gain of more than $5,000,000. Demand sterling bills rose to 4.8790, and further engagements of gold for export were expected.

The market closed weak. Greater weakness was manifested in stocks today than at any other period since the upward movement was checked. The only support came from spasmodic short covering. Reactionary tendency was more pronounced in the closing hour when the principal shares touched the lowest.

AMERICA RELEASED FROM THE ROCKS---- POE NARROWLY MISSED HITTING HER

After being stranded on the rocks at Fisherman's point since Tuesday morning the steamer America, owned by the United States & Dominion Transportation company, was released yesterday afternoon and brought to Duluth at 10 o'clock last night. She was taken to the dry dock this morning, where she is undergoing repairs. The extent of the damage to the vessel is not yet fully known, but is believed not to be serious.

Fisherman's point, where the America struck, is a dangerous place for mariners and many boats have struck upon the rocks there during the last few years. The America and the General O. M. Poe were both aground at this point at the same time several years ago, but neither of them was seriously damaged. The L. C. Smith ran aground there in 1910 and sustained serious damage. The steamers Marino and Perkins, also, struck there. It is a peculiar coincidence that the America and Poe should strike there again at the same time Tuesday.

The America has been trading along the north shore between Duluth and Port Arthur for several years and usually runs fairly close to land. It is probable that her captain, Ed. Smith, was led off his course in the continuous dense fog by the magnetic attraction always felt along the north shore. The attraction is said to vary considerably at times and for that reason can never be calculated exactly.

Within about thirty minutes after the grounding of the America Capt. Smith heard the fog signals being sounded by the Poe and he immediately whistled a danger signal, which was heard by the crew of the latter vessel. It is said that Capt. Smith thought the vessel sounding the fog signal was bound down the lakes and therefore signaled the Poe to "port" their wheel, which would have thrown the Poe out into the lake if bound down. The Poe was bound up the lake and the turning of the wheel threw the Poe upon the rocks. The Poe was very close to the shore when the signal was given.

It is believed that if the Poe had not turned in that she would have struck the America, which was directly in her path and completely smashed that vessel.

Charles W. Turner, district manager of the Booth lines, came in with the America last night and reports the vessel in remarkably good condition. The damage, he says, will be very light, considering the fact that the boat ran upon the rocks. He says this condition is due to the fact that the vessel, which was constructed by the government, was extremely well built.

"The releasing of the America," said Mr. Turner, "was the most difficult job of the kind I have ever seen. She was fast on the rocks and three tugs and two scows were necessary to release her. The two scows, the Interstate and the Fuller, raised her stern and the three tugs, which are among the biggest on the lakes, worked for a long time to draw her into deep water."

LIGHTHOUSE IS NEEDED

That a lighthouse and fog signals are necessary for the safety of vessels passing Fisherman's point is the opinion of Charles W. Turner, district manager of the Booth lines, who came in with the Steamer America last night. Mr. Turner rushed to the scene of the wreck from St. Paul and was aboard the steamer practically all the time she was on the rocks after his arrival.

"This point is one of the most dangerous on the Great Lakes," said Mr. Turner today, "and a lighthouse and fog signals should be provided for as soon as possible. Numerous wrecks have occurred there and others are likely to occur if vessels are not safeguarded. The fog signals at Two Harbors, a mile and a half away, cannot be heard with an unfavorable wind blowing and the magnetic attraction along the north shore makes conditions treacherous for mariners."

MOVEMENT OF LUMBER SLOW

The lumber movement on the Great Lakes is unusually slow this spring with little prospect for improvement for some time. Orders from the East expected early in the spring have not materialized. A few cargoes, however, have been shipped East, but the volume has not been great or the orders imperative.

"One of the chief causes for the lethargy in the lumber market is due to the poor call from the railroads," said a prominent lumber shipper today. "The railroads have usually taken about 50 per cent of the yellow pine and a large part of the rough lumber, but all of the Eastern roads seem to be holding off this spring. Various building products have hardly been started yet, and so orders from that source are still in abeyance."

The lumber movement by water, however, began about ten days earlier this spring. Vessels have been carrying out lumber cargoes for more than a week whereas during other years the season did not open until the second week in May.

MANY GET NEW START FREE FROM MATRIMONY

District Court Continues to Undo Cupid's Mistakes-- Causes of All Kinds Alleged.

District judges are still busily occupied in straightening out matrimonial tangles and when the divorce mill had shut down for the noon recess today several more fresh starts in life were begun.

Alma Bessen, 33, today celebrated her eleventh wedding anniversary by getting a divorce from Henry Bessen, 34, on the grounds of cruelty and drunkenness. They were married on May 8, 1903, and have lived for a number of years at Eveleth. Mrs. Bessen was granted $30 alimony and the custody of the only child, a boy of 10.

Judge Fesler today signed an order requiring Charles H. Hillemann, 39, proprietor of a drug store at Onamia, Minn., to come into court and show cause why he should not pay his wife, Mary Hilleman, 31, who is suing him for divorce on the grounds of drunkenness and cruelty, temporary alimony. The order is returnable before the court tomorrow morning. They were married at St. Paul five years ago and are the parents of two children.

The first contested divorce case on the May term calendar is being heard today before Judge Ensign in an action in which Fred Steffen, 29, is seeking a separation from Annie E. Steffen, 32, on the grounds of cruelty. Steffen testified that his wife was of a quarrelsome disposition and made life miserable for him. Mrs. Steffen, on the other hand, claims that Steffen has failed to support her and asks that she be given a divorce on a cross bill charging cruelty. One child has been born to the Steffens since the divorce action was instituted.

Judge Martin Hughes of Hibbing yesterday signed an order requiring Emilie Thompson, defendant in a divorce action brought by Mike Thompson, who charges adultery, to turn over their two children, a girl, Aini, and boy, Aino, to their father during the pendency of the action. The case will be tried before a jury at this term of court. Thompson charges that his wife committed adultery with an unknown man on Sept. 15, 1913, and she counterclaims that on the same date he had wrongful intercourse with a woman unknown to her and asks for a divorce herself. They have been married ten years. Victor H. Gran, who recently secured a divorce from his wife on the grounds of adultery, is attorney for Mrs. Thompson in the action.

Four years ago last July, Anna Reno, 31, deserted her home and children and entered a life of shame, according to the story told Judge Ensign yesterday by Henry Reno, 38, her husband. He said that he tried to persuade her to stay at home but she would not listen to him. They were married at Superior Aug. 1, 1897, and are parents of two children, Gertrude, 13, and William, 9, who are living with their father at West Duluth. Reno stated that he believed his wife to be in Canada at the present time, although he had not heard from her directly since she left him in July, 1908.

Judge Fesler yesterday afternoon granted Beeda Wiljanen a divorce from Frank Wiljanen, to whom she was married in Finland, Dec. 11, 1898. The decree was granted on the grounds of crucity, Mrs. Wiljanen testifying that on several occasions he had beaten her and threatened to shoot her. She was given the custody of the three minor children. Wiljanen was recently indicted for wife desertion but the county attorney dismissed the action in view of the contemplated divorce case.

Peter Helland, 31, will be required to pay his wife, Carrie Helland, 35, $40 attorneys fees and $15 a month alimony for the support of herself and their four children, ranging in age from 12 to 4 years, as a result of an order made yesterday by Judge Ensign, who granted Mrs. Helland a divorce on the ground of cruelty. They were married in Norway fourteen years ago. Mrs. Helland resides at Lakeside.

After Charles George Wallace, 64, and Harriet Salina Wallace, 38, had lived together for twenty-one years and had raised a family of five children, he abandoned her, according to the story which she related to Judge Dancer yesterday. The woman was granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion and cruelty. They were married at Iron Mountain, Mich., Feb. 14, 1891.

On the grounds of desertion, Mrs. Amelia Pope, 37, was granted a divorce from Edward H. Pope, 41, by Judge Fesler yesterday. They were married Nov. 29, 1890, and he abandoned her Aug. 24, 1911, she claimed. Mrs. Pope was given the custory of the only child, Forest, a boy of 11.

EARTHQUAKE, VOLCANO AND FIRE DESTROY VILLAGES ON THE SLOPES OF MOUNT ETNA

SCORES DEAD AND PROPERTY LOSS GREAT

Refugees Compare Disaster to Messina Horror Four Years Ago.

Telegraph and Telephone Wires Prostrated and Railroads Torn Up.

Catania, Sicily, May 9.—An earthquake and volcanic eruption, followed by fire, destroyed many villages on the slopes of Mount Etna last night.

The disaster caused the death of at least 100 persons. The number of injured will reach several hundred. Refugees declare that the property loss is as great as in the Messina disaster of 1908.

Railroad tracks were torn up, churches razed, houses shaken to ruin, and telegraph poles overturned over a radius of several miles around Catania.

Ruin and Disaster.

Terror-stricken people rushed from the villages into Catania before daybreak today, bringing stories of ruin and disaster. Their reports caused the authorities to take immediate steps to start measures of relief.

The army, the navy and the civil authorities received orders from Rome to render aid in the work of rescue. The aid of the Red Cross quickly was enlisted.

Interruption of railroads and telegraphs made it impossible to obtain any accurate details as to the loss of life.

The great gravity of the disaster was not realized until this morning, when reports came in from the surrounding country.

Villages Heaps of Ruins.

The villages of Linera and Consentini were transformed into heaps of

END STRIKE OR LOSE CHARTER OF UNION

Ultimatum Is Sent to West Virginia Mine Workers.

Charleston, W. Va., May 9.—District officers of the United Mine Workers of America have notified all members of the union that they must return to work Monday, pending further wage negotiations with the operators, or their local charters will be revoked. There was no serious trouble at Boomer during the night, marching miners having returned to their homes when Sheriff Hill's deputies arrived. No trouble was expected today, as the leaders were advising moderation.

BIG SUFFRAGE PARADE HELD

Washington, May 9.—With banners flying, ten bands playing and the women singing a marching song, several thousand suffragists from various sections of the country today paraded along Pennsylvania avenue from Lafayette square to the capitol. There 531 of them, representing every state in the Union, and assigned one to each senator and representative, presented to the members of congress petitions asking the passage of the Bristow-Mondell resolution calling for a Federal Constitutional amendment enfranchising women.

Immense crowds viewed the procession along the route. When the capitol was reached the bands were massed on the plaza before the east front, where they played the "March of the Women," composed by Dr. Ethel Smyth of England, accompanying a chorus of 1,000 women, wearing robes of white, with green stoles and fillets of green on their heads.

Ask Immediate Action.

The suffrage amendment resolution recently reported to the house by the judiciary committee was the central theme of a big mass meeting at the Belasco theater. A resolution calling upon congress for the immediate passage of the amendment was proposed

THORNTON IS FOR REPEAL

Louisiana Senator Has Changed Views Since Vote in 1912.

Tells Senate Why He Will Support New Canal Bill.

Washington, May 9.—Convinced that his position, both on the legal and on the economic side of the Panama tolls question, in 1912, was wrong, Senator Thornton of Louisiana today told the senate he now would vote to repeal the law he then voted to enact.

Senator Thornton said the position taken by the president in a personal letter to him and the message to congress in which the president said the existence of the exemption law embarrassed him in the foreign relations of the United States, caused him to vote for the repeal.

Convinced as to Treaty.

The statements of former Ambassador Choate and others who participated in the negotiation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty had convinced him that the United States did not have the right to discriminate in favor of its ships, he said.

On the economic phase of the controversy, Senator Thornton said that the report of the house committee on merchant marine had convinced him that the free tolls inured to the benefit solely of the coastwise shipping monopoly that fixed rates by agreements beyond the reach of American law. He said the shipping trust was not in need of a subsidy such as the exemption.

TWO ARE EXCUSED FROM BECKER JURY

Give Personal Reasons That Are Accepted By the Court.

New York, May 9.—Though completed last night the jury selected for the second trial of Charles Becker, for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was broken up again today, necessitating further examination of talesmen and delaying the opening address of District Attorney Whitman.

When court convened, Justice Seabury announced that Jurors Edward Van Eman and Robert Baxter had made special requests to be excused. They were accordingly eliminated. The court added that their dismissal in no way reflected on their integrity. They were excused for personal reasons, as has been done in several other instances since the trial started.

Work was begun to select two talesmen to fill their places.

One man—Jesse G. Velie, a silk merchant—was chosen, but the panel was exhausted before the twelfth man could be agreed upon. A new panel will be on hand Monday morning.

Coal for the Fleet.

Norfolk, W. Va., May 9.—The collier Orion will sail Monday for Vera Cruz with coal for the fleet.

LIGHTHOUSES DARK AT ORDER OF HUERTA

American Brig, Captured By Mexicans, Is Later Released.

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan, Mex., May 8, by wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 9.—By order of Huerta, lighthouse service on the west coast of Mexico has been abandoned and the coast last night was in darkness.

The American brig Geneva was captured on the high seas April 26 by the Mexican transport Korrigan, according to information received here today. At the demand, however, of Capt. Magruder of the United States cruiser Raleigh, the brig was released.

CHARLES W. POST, MILLIONAIRE, KILLS SELF BY SHOOTING

Battle Creek Man Commits Suicide at Santa Barbara.

Had Returned From Surgical Operation, Apparently Cured.

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 9.—Charles W. Post, the millionaire manufacturer of Battle Creek, Mich., shot and killed himself this morning.

Mr. Post was stricken ill here suddenly several months ago and hurried to Rochester, Minn., aboard a special train, for an operation. He returned here only recently, apparently recovered.

Hurried Half Across Country.

Rochester, Minn., May 9. — Two months ago Mr. Post was hurried across half the continent to Rochester for treatment for an attack of appendicitis which was believed to threaten his life. The operation, which was performed March 10, was considered successful and he departed for his Western home, apparently cured.

The illness from which Mr. Post suffered was first manifest last December. At first it was considered a recurrence of a stomach trouble from which he formerly suffered.

Had Millions Invested.

Battle Creek, Mich., May 9.—Charles W. Post was one of the founders of the so-called health food industry. His business interests here for the manufacturing of breakfast foods represented millions of dollars. Although Mr. Post's office address was in this city, he had maintained a residence in Washington, D. C., for several years.

Mr. Post was born in Springfield, Ill., in 1854. He engaged in the hardware and other lines of business there until 1884, when his health broke down. He traveled extensively in search of treatment for some time, and arrived here in 1891. His search for health was responsible, it is said, for his investigation into the health food subject, and when his health had been regained he turned all his attention to that line of endeavor.

Opposed Organized Labor.

Employing thousands of workmen, Mr. Post took an active part in local civic affairs. In 1908 he was made president of the National Citizens' Industrial Asscciation of America, and for several years he attracted wide attention because of his attacks against labor unions. He was an ardent supporter of the "open shop."

Mr. Post traveled abroad a large part of the time during recent years, and his art collection in this city is regarded as one of the most valuable in the country. The news of his death was a great shock to his friends and relatives here, who thought he had practically recovered from his recent illness.

REBEL PAYMASTER IS ALLOWED TO GO.

Laredo, Tex., May 9.—The rebel paymaster, Maj. Manuel Caballero, arrested by a United States patrol on the Texas side of the Rio Grande yesterday, was released today. He was traveling on the American side, crossing into Mexico from time to time when opposite points where rebel soldiers were stationed. He still had some payments to make when arrested.

SILLIMAN REPORTED TO BE SAFE AND WELL

Mexicans Inform French, Who Report to Washington.

Washington, May 9.—American Vice Consul Silliman, reported imprisoned by Mexican Federals at Saltillo, is safe and well, according to assurances made to the French legation in Mexico City by the Mexican war minister, transmitted to the state department today.

The information was conveyed to Secretary Bryan by Ambassador Jusserand of France. M. Jusserand said Gen. Huerta's minister of war informed the French charge in Mexico City that the American consulate at Saltillo was guarded by Federal forces, and that neither Mr. Silliman, other members of the consulate, nor other Americans were under arrest.

TWO LIVES LOST IN BIRMINGHAM FIRE.

Birmingham, Ala., May 9.—Two persons lost their lives in a fire which destroyed a business house and the general offices of the Birmingham Railway, Light & Power company here last night. The property damage is estimated at $175,000. The origin of the blaze has not been determined.

MAZATLAN IS NEARLY TAKEN

U. S. S. California Reports on Three-Day Battle There.

One American and One Englishman Killed—People in Terror.

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan, Mex., May 8, by wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 9.—The fall of Mazatlan seemed today to be imminent. The city officials embarked last night on the Federal gunboat Guerrero and the steamer Limantour, both of which were ready to sail for Salina Cruz.

The Federals have abandoned the gunboat Morelos.

A wild shot from the Guerrero today passed through a street of the city, creating a panic.

As a result of a three days' battle, the townspeople are in a state of terror and hundreds are fleeing.

It is reported that C. B. Helley, an American, and G. H. Williams, an Englishman, were killed and two other Americans, Walter Neal and Patrick Baird, wounded, near El Favor mine, in the vicinity of Hostatipquillo.

U. S. Consul a Refugee.

Refugees from Manzanillo told stories of narrow escapes when they arrived here on the British steamer Cetriano, which was made into a refugee ship at the instance of the commander of the German cruiser Nuremburg. The Cetriano came up the coast from Manzanillo and sailed today for San Francisco with 100 refugees, including American Consul Edwards.

While the Cetriano was at the dock in Manzanillo harbor, according to Capt. Minister, the vessel's commander, and Consul Edwards, the Mexican Federals set fire to the pier with oil and then resorted to dynamite to make the destruction more certain. Some of the last of the refugees to reach the vessel made their way to safety only at imminent risk.

Shot Over British Steamer.

The vessel got clear of the burning pier with much difficulty and as she was swinging out into the stream a number of shots were fired across her decks from the shore. Nobody was hit. The arrival of the cruiser Raleigh put an end to the firing and to the depredations of the Mexicans along the water front.

Non-strategic points have been established on Observatory hill and Creston island in Mazatlan harbor.

Gen. Obregon, the Constitutionalist commander, has expressed to Admiral Howard his deep regret that non-combatants should have been killed by the unintentional dropping of a bomb from a military aeroplane while circling above the city.

BATTLESHIP GOES TO MEET FUNERAL SHIP

Wyoming Will Escort Montana to Brooklyn Harbor.

New York, May 9.—The battleship Wyoming today left the Brooklyn navy yard to meet the armored cruiser Montana, bearing the bodies of the United States marines and bluejackets killed at Vera Cruz. The Wyoming will remain at anchor off the Ambrose channel lightship, just outside New York harbor, until the arrival tomorrow of the Montana. With the Montana will be the presidential yacht Mayflower, carrying Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

The funeral ship is expected at the government anchorage off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, by noon Sunday. It will move up the bay late in the afternoon, when the dead will be taken off and placed on caissons at the battery. They will remain there under a military guard until transferred to the Brooklyn navy yard Monday morning.

MOTHERS' DAY, SUNDAY, MAY 10TH.

NO GERMAN ARMS ARE TO BE ALLOWED TO GO INTO MEXICO'S HANDS

THOSE SENT WILL GO BACK TO GERMANY

Problem Raised at Puerto Mexico Is Quickly Settled.

Mediators Are Notified Huerta Is Sending Envoys to Them.

Washington, May 9.—On receipt of information from American Consul Rodgers at Havana that munitions consigned to Gen. Huerta on German ships would be returned to Germany as a result of action "recommended by agents of the vessels," Secretary of State Bryan today announced that apprehension concerning shipments of arms to the Huerta government had been averted.

Officials here today appeared to view with little concern the reports that German ships, the Kronprinzessin Cecilie and Bavaria have consignments of arms for Gen. Huerta; that the former already has reached Puerto Mexico, and the latter is en route for the same port.

No Appeal to Ambassador.

The German ambassador, Mr. Von Bernstorff, said today that no representations had been made to him by state department officials, and that he had done nothing with relation to the landing of the cargoes from the German ships in the Mexican port. He admitted that he had rendered aid in an effort to have traffic resumed on

Washington, May 9.—Secretary of War Garrison, reasserted today that as yet no additional troops had been ordered to Mexico. When asked whether orders had been issued for the Fourth and Sixth brigades at Texas City to make ready to embark, he replied:

"They are supposed to be ready to embark at a moment's notice."

FUNSTON CONFIRMS CAPTURE OF PRIVATE

Reports Rumor of the Execution of American Civilian.

Washington, May 9.—Gen. Funston today, from Vera Cruz, confirmed unofficial reports that Private Parks, supposed to be insane, has been captured by Mexican Federals, into whose lines he rode with two horses belonging to Lieut.-Col. Elmore F. Taggart, whom he served as orderly. Gen. Funston did not report that Parks had been executed, but mentioned the execution of an unidentified American civilian.

The Parks incident was summarized in this statement by Secretary Garrison:

"Gen. Funston reported that on May 6 Private Samuel Parks, belonging to the regimental detachment of the Twenty-eighth infantry, apparently went insane. He took two horses, the property of Lieut.-Col. Taggart of the Twenty-eighth infantry, and rode into the Mexican lines. It has been reported to Gen. Funston that the horses were seen in the possession of Mexican troops.

"There also is a rumor that an unknown American civilian in the Mexican lines was executed two days ago. Parks' fate is not known.

"Mexican troops were last heard of in the neighborhood of Tejerin, where the tracks of the Mexican National railway have been torn up."

STUDENTS WILL AID IN WORK ON ROADS

They will be divided into squads of twenty-five, and each squad placed in charge of a student reared on a farm and with road-repairing experience.

Philadelphia, May 9.—The battleships Idaho, Illinois and Missouri left the Philadelphia navy yard early today for Annapolis, where they will take on board the upper classmen of the naval academy for the annual cruise in deep water. While there are no orders to go to Mexican waters, the battleships are prepared to respond to any emergency call.

John Tischer, County Commissioner, Dies After Fainting Spell.

Was One of Oldest Residents, Having Lived Here Fifty-Four Years.

While talking with M. W. Turner at 218 East First street, John Tischer, St. Louis county commissioner and pioneer Duluthian, was suddenly seized with a fainting spell yesterday afternoon and died shortly afterward at his home, 913 East Eighth street, where he was taken in an ambulance. Heart disease is believed to have been the cause of his death.

Mr. Tischer had called at Mr. Turner's office about 4 o'clock, and while they were in a conversation, the former fell to the floor in a faint. He showed signs of great suffering, and Mr. Turner immediately notified the police department and Dr. Peter Kraft. By the time the police ambulance arrived Mr. Tischer was unconscious, and he failed to regain consciousness. Dr. Kraft attempted to revive him but without avail, and Mr. Tischer succumbed at 6:20 o'clock.

Mr. Tischer was one of the earliest pioneers in Duluth, having been a resident here for the last fifty-four years. He was fifty-six years old and came to Duluth with his parents when but two years old. He was born at Beaver Bay, Lake county, and received his education in Duluth schools.

In 1909, Mr. Tischer succeeded his brother, George Tischer, as county commissioner, the latter having died from injuries sustained in a street car accident. He had held the office for several years and at his death, John Tischer, who was then engaged in road contracting work, was placed on the commission to fill the unexpired term of his brother. The following year he was elected to the office of commissioner and he had held the position up to his death. He attended the meetings of the commission early this week and was in apparently good health then, the other members said this morning:

Besides a widow, Mr. Tischer is survived by one son, Harlow, a brother, Fred Tischer, both of Duluth, and a sister, Mrs. G. Bowers, of Seattle, Wash. The body has been removed to the Crawford undertaking rooms, where the funeral arrangements will be made today.

End Kansas Gas Hearing.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—The hearing of the Kansas Natural Gas company controversy before the United States circuit court of appeals was concluded late yesterday by John H. A dozen Kansas attorneys who came here to attend the hearing departed for their homes last night.

UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD

Will Be Realized Through Knights of Pythias, Says Chancellor.

Duluth and Range Members Honor Chief With Dinner and Reception.

That the universal brotherhood of man will be brought about through the work of the Knights of Pythias was the prediction made last night by Thomas Carling, supreme chancellor of the order, at a reception given in his honor by Duluth and the range knights in this city. A silver loving cup was presented by Mr. Carling by James L. Cromwell, past grand chancellor, in behalf of the Duluth and range members. "Uncle Tom," as the chief of the knights is called, was given a cordial reception.

Grand Chancellor F. G. Atwood, in speaking of the good works of the order, declared that President Wilson gave the Knights of Pythias credit for being the chief factor in bringing about harmony between the North and South at the close of the Civil war. For that reason, he said, the president gave the knights two receptions at the White House during their national convention in Washington last February.

A dinner was given Mr. Carling before the meeting by twenty members of the order. The dinner was featured with a musical program including songs by Miss Larson and a male quartet and violin solos by Mrs. Valborg Gunderson Finkelson. Following the dinner an informal reception was given by the knights and Pythian Sisters at Castle hall of North Star lodge, 118 West Superior street.

Vice Chancellor B. F. Fowler of Two Harbors acted as chairman.

Mr. Carling is a native of Macon, Ga., and came to Duluth without his overcoat. He was greeted, however, with a warm, sunshiny day, one of the best of the season. He said he would go south with nothing but praise for Duluth weather.

Owing to the fact that the chancellor had to make a quick trip to Texas, the program was slightly changed. The automobile trip about the city was given under the direction of Past Chancellor J. J. Lumm yesterday instead of this afternoon as had been planned. Mr. Carling was greatly impressed during his tour of the city by the great business enterprise of the city and its picturesque scenery. He spoke in the highest terms of the future of Duluth.

He started on his southern trip at 11 o'clock last night.

TWO CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES SETTLED

Heirs of A. J. Olsen Will Get $1,000 for Wrongful Death.

George J. Olsen, administrator of the state of Alf Johan Ilsen, who was killed at Knife River, Oct. 22, 1913, while in the employ of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway company as a pile driver engineer, has accepted $1,000 from the company as settlement in full for a claim for wrongful death. Under an order of District Judge Fesler yesterday, Olsen will pay the money over to the parents, Andrew and Johanna Olsen, who reside at Stromsjoen, Norway.

John Janczic, 45, who while at work in the Chisholm mine, Feb. 20 last, fractured one of the fingers of his left hand, has accepted $176.40 is settlement of his claim. The settlement, made under the workingmen's compensation act, was approved yesterday in district court.

Isaac Larson filed a petition with the court yesterday afternoon asking the court to fix the compensation due him from B. M. Munson of Minneapolis, his employer. Larson alleges that while he was cutting brush at Taconite with an ax, the tool slipped and severely gashed his foot. Larson resides at 603 West First street.

RICH FIRED IN SELF-DEFENSE

Joseph Rich, 52 merchant, acted in self-defense when he shot and killed his brother-in-law, Frank Carlo, 43, in a pistol duel at their store, 511 West Michigan street, on the evening of April 22. This was the decision reached late yesterday afternoon by the May grand jury, which returned a no true bill, absolving Rich from any legal responsibility for the killing of Carlo.

An altercation over partnership affairs and money matters precipitated the shooting and both were armed when they met and quarreled on the night in question. Joseph D. Stringer, the only eye witness to the start of the fight, declared that Carlo started the shooting. Miles T. Frink was also in the store. A stray bullet wounded him in the leg.

The coroner's jury which investigated the matter at an inquest held April 24 decided that Rich was acting in self-defense and returned a verdict which absolved him from blame. The county attorney, however, refused to dismiss the case against the prisoner and after a hearing in police court Rich was held to the grand jury on a charge of the murder in the second degree.

The grand jury, however, took the same view of the case as did the coroner's jury. The county attorney called in all witnesses who knew anything about the case and the jury went in a body to the store where the shooting occurred in order to make an inspection of the premises. Bullet holes in the wall and other evidence of a revolver duel were shown to the jury. The final report of the grand jury was made shortly before 5 o'clock last evening.

Since his preliminary hearing in municipal court at which he was bound over to the grand jury, Rich has been allowed his liberty on $5,000 bail. Last evening his bondsmen, James B. Cade, Robert E. Patterson and William Ablan, were released.

by Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton and passed unanimously.

Senator Bristow of Kansas and Representative Mondell of Wyoming, authors of the constitutional amendment before congress, were called upon as the speakers of the day. Senator Bristow urged the women to concentrate their efforts on forcing congressional action on the suffrage amendment and Representative Mondell predicted a vote in the house on the measure at the present session. He said that if necessary a special rule would be introduced, and urged the women to bring all available pressure to bear to force a report on such a rule.

Stirring Addresses Made.

The parade followed the mass meeting in the theater, presided over by Mrs. William Kent, wife of Representative Kent of California, and at which stirring addresses were made by Miss Caroline Lexow, field secretary of the Women's Political union of New York, Mrs. Donald Hooker of Baltimore and Miss Lucy Burns of Brooklyn, vice chairman of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, under the auspices of which the demonstration was held. Among those occupying boxes at the meeting were Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of New York, Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles of Wilmington, Del., daughter of President Cleveland's secretary of state; Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the Federal children's bureau; Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch of New York, daughter of the late Elizabeth Cady Stanton, one of the pioneer leaders in the suffrage movement, the Equal Franchise society of Philadelphia; Mrs. Antoinette Funk of Chicago, and the Pennsylvania Men's League for Suffrage. A number of young women, many of them prominent in society, acted as ushers.

Marchers Are Cheered.

There were many novel features in the parade, and the marching women were cheered loudly by the throngs that lined Pennsylvania avenue all the way from Lafayette square, opposite the White House, to the capitol. First and foremost was borne aloft a banner, twenty-five feet wide, bearing the inscription: "We demand the passage of the Bristow-Mondell resolution." Then came the first section, the pageant division, typifying Spring, Youth and Hope, which had been arranged under the direction of Mrs. Elphalet Andrews, a well-known artist. Thousands of garlands of flowers were carried by the young women and children, the shades of the blossoms having been selected with an eye to harmonizing with the union's colors, purple, white and gold.

In this division also marched the chorus of 1,000, led by Mrs. Apolline M. Blair, president of the Rubinstein club of this city. Attractive as was this part of the parade, it did not evoke any more enthusiasm or interest from the onlookers than the cavalry section which came next and was commanded by Mrs. Juliet Barrett Rublee of Washington, who also was the mounted grand marshal of the procession.

The Cavalry Contingent.

In advance of the cavalry contingent were seven color bearers on horseback, each carrying a purple, white and gold flag. At their head rode Miss Elsie Hill, daughter of Former Representative Hill of Connecticut. Among the prominent cavalrywomen were Mrs. Denver S. Church, wife of Representative Church of California; Mrs. Charles Forrest Curry, wife of another California representative; Miss Mary Morgan of Washington, niece of Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester; Miss Alberta Hill, formerly of Australia, now of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Kent, daughter of Representative Kent.

Mrs. George Odell was chairman of the foot marshals of the political division, which was next in line, and which was subdivided into various sections. The sections that created the most interest were those of the women writers and the actresses. The former was organized by Mrs. Marie Manning Gasch of Washington, and among those who trudged with her were Mrs. Zona Gale of Wisconsin, Edna Kenton, Helen Reimer Snyder Martin, Mrs. Adelaide Fairbanks Timmons, daughter of Former Vice President Fairbanks, and wife of Lieut. Timmons, U. S. N.; Mrs. Rheta Childe Dorrn, Marguerite Spaulding Gerry of New York, Alice Duer Miller and Roberta Bradshaw. Among the actresses Hattie Williams, Annie Bussert and Mrs. Mary Kealty Clagett were conspicuous.

Other groups included college women, farmers, waitresses, saleswomen, laundresses, women printers, stenographers, social workers, seamstresses, artist, phyicians, dentists, nurses, lawyers, teachers, taxpayers and homeseekers, the latter section organized by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley of Washington, wife of the noted pure food expert.

An interesting feature was a large delegation of women voters from the ten states where members of the fair sex now are allowed to cast the ballot. Walking at the head of this contingent was Dr. Cora Smith King of Seattle, Wash., treasurer of the National Council of Women Voters. Bringing up the rear of the parade were hundreds of women under the manners of separate states.

"The March of the Women."

The words of the song, "The March of the Women," which was sung by the paraders and which had been heard in this country only once before, are:

"Shout, shout, up with your song!
March, march, swing you along,
Wide blows our banner, and hope is waking;
Song with its story, dreams with their glory,
Lo, they call, and glad is their word,
Louder and louder it swells,
Thunder and freedom, the voice of the Lord.

"Long, long—we in the past
Cowered in dread from the light of heaven,
Strong, strong—stand we at last,
Fearless in faith and with sight new-given.
Strength with its beauty, life with its duty,
(Hear the voice, oh hear and obey!)
These, these—beckon us on!
Open your eyes to the blaze of day.

Comrades—ye who have dared
First in the battle to strive and sorrow!
Scorned, spurned—naught have ye cared,
Raising your eyes to a wider morrow.
Ways that are weary, days that are dreary,
Toil and pain by faith ye have borne;
Hail, hail—victorious ye stand,
Wearing the wreath that the brave have worn!

"Life, strife—these two are one,
Naught can ye win but by faith and daring.
On, on—that ye have done
But for the work of today preparing;
Firm in reliance, laugh a defiance,
(Laugh in hope, for sure is the end)
March, march—many as one,
Shoulder to shoulder and friend to friend."

EARTHQUAKE, VOLCANO AND FIRE DESTROY VILLAGES IN SICILY

ruins. At Zafferana every house was destroyed. Enormous damage was caused at Santa Venerina.

Roofs fell in and walls collapsed in the hamlets of Santa Maria Ammalati, Carico, Guardia, Mangano, Santa Tecla and Bongiardo.

Fifty persons are known to have been killed in the village of Linera, which was destroyed.

Among the ruins of Passopomo, Bongiardo and Malati twenty bodies have been found this morning.

Along the principal highways in the stricken district the scene of desolation was heart-rending. Groups of refugees frequently were encountered. Many of these were burdened with improvised litters made of branches of trees and bushes, on which they were carrying injured and dying relatives to the temporary surgical stations. In the neighborhood of Santa Venerina the number of injured was very great.

The authorities have commandeered all available automobiles to assist in the work of rescue.

Busy Before Daylight.

Prefect Minervini of Catania and all the officials under his superintendence were called together before daybreak and received orders to do their utmost to aid the afflicted inhabitants.

The soldiers in the district are aiding in the endeavor to rescue those still alive beneath the ruins and to extricate the dead from the debris.

All available nurses were mobilized today and are assisting in gathering the homeless and the children who have lost their parents. Temporary shelter is being provided here for the refugees.

Many Recent Quakes.

For several days past earthquake shocks had been felt at frequent intervals, accompanied by eruptions of Mount Etna. No particular attention, however, was paid to the occurrences, as the inhabitants of the district are accustomed to these agitations, and the shocks were not exceptionally violent.

The first severe shock was felt at 7 o'clock last evening, but the fact that this had caused serious destruction was not known in Catania for some time, as railroad and telegraphic communication were interrupted.

The center of the disturbance was at the village of Linera. Here the proposition of dead and injured was very heavy. The victims mostly were women and children. The property loss at Linera also was extremely heavy. The work of rescue was rendered difficult by the great accumulation of debris.

Property Damage Very Great.

The property damage was very great in many other villages. Churches and public buildings were destroyed and hundreds of houses fell to the ground. Nevertheless it was believed by those in charge of the work of rescue that the death list would not be so heavy as at first reported.

According to refugees, fire in some places completed the work of destruction and hindered the efforts of the rescuers.

One of the evidences of the severity of the series of shocks is seen along the roadsides, where hundreds of telegraph poles were overturned. Half a mile of railroad track was turned topsy-turvy near the village of Mangano.

Has Suffered Often.

The vicinity of Catania, the scene of last night's earthquake, probably has suffered more than any other section in the world from volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. Catania itself is built on a bed of lava at the foot of the volcano of Etna, and most of its streets are paved with lava.

Catania has a population of 140,000 and is the largest city in Sicily. It lies to the south of Messina on the east coast. Ever since its foundation, in B. C. 729, it had been visited frequently by earthquakes. In 121 A. D. it was partly destroyed by an eruption of Mount Etna. In 1169 it suffered severely from an earthquake. In 1669, during an eruption of Etna, a great stream of lava flowed toward Catania, but in the nick of time its course was diverted and the town saved. In 1693, when the whole of the island of Sicily was affected by an earthquake, Catania was destroyed.

In the earthquake and tidal wave at Messina and Calabria on Dec. 28, 1908, official figures gave the number of deaths as 77,283, but it was unofficially estimated that from 150,000 to 200,000 people lost their lives. The damage to public and private property amounted to about $1,000,000,000. The United States took a prominent part in the relief work and with the funds placed at their disposal by the American public, sailors from the United States fleet erected large numbers of houses.

the Tehuantepec railroad, which has a terminus at Puerto Mexico.

Mr. Von Bernstorff said he had no knowledge of the nature of the cargoes carried by the two ships. The only way for this government to interfere with the delivery of the cargoes, he said, would be for the United States to seize the customs house at Puerto Mexico.

Secretary of War Garrison declared that the war department had no jurisdiction to deal with munitions of war that might be consigned to Gen. Huerta aboard German ships bound for any port but Vera Cruz.

Mediators in Session.

The South American mediators continued their sessions today. They were satisfied from telegrams received from Mexico City last midnight that the Huerta delegates would sail today from Vera Cruz to Galveston and proceed direct to Niagara Falls for the conference opening on May 18.

That the Huerta delegates actually would start today was taken as an indication that the point raised by Huerta as to the observance of the armistice had not led him to the point of withholding from the conference. It was expected that Huerta delegates would receive a safe conduct through Vera Cruz, but their plans for reaching their destination were not known.

Frederick H. Lehman of St. Louis, former solicitor general, whose name has been mentioned as a possible American delegate in the mediation, will arrive here late today and have a conference with the president. It is not stated at the White House that Mr. Lehman has been selected, but the impression prevails that the place has been offered to him and that he is coming here to discuss the peace negotiations with the president.

Say Huerta Would Burn City.

Vera Cruz, May 9.—Mexicans arriving here from Mexico City say that Gen. Huerta shows no intention of abandoning the presidency of Mexico. The president, they assert popularly is credited with having made the statement that he would see the capital in ashes before he left it.

The American forces at Vera Cruz are violating the armistice by landing more troops ordnance and supplies, is the charge made by Mexico City papers which are under the domination of President Huerta.

Rebels in the vicinity of the Federal capital, particularly the followers of Gen. Zapata, are continuing their campaign against the Huerta administration.

NINETEEN CONVICTS EXECUTED BY MAAS.

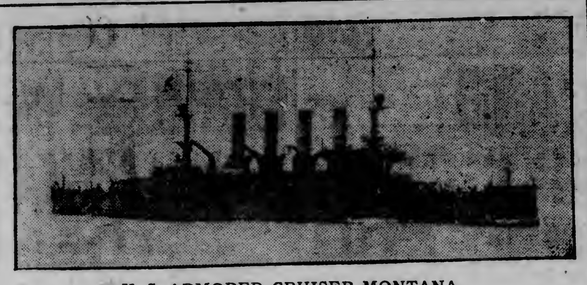
Vera Cruz, May 9.—A Mexican brought into the city reports that Gen. Gustavo Maas has put to death nineteen of the convicts he released from prison just before the Americans occupied Vera Cruz.

Among the prisoners he released and armed to assist him in the defense of Vera Cruz were many well known criminals. These men have been robbing and killing persons in the region not protected by either the Mexicans or the Americans. Gen. Maas is said to have rounded up one band and executed all of its members.

REBEL PAYMASTER AMERICAN PRISONER.

Laredo, Texas May 9.—Maj. Manuel Caballero, paymaster of the Constitutionalists army of the Rio Grande, was captured below Laredo yesterday by the United States border patrol and interned at Fort McIntosh with a large amount of American and Mexican money he was delivering to rebel soldiers. The paymaster was journeying up the American side and crossing the border at points where there were garrisons to be paid. The patrol considered this a violation of the neutrality laws.

BRINGING HOME THE DEAD FROM VERA CRUZ



U. S. ARMORED CRUISER MONTANA.

New York, May 9.—Great preparations have been made for the arrival tomorrow of the Montana with the bodies of seventeen American bluejackets and marines killed incident to the occupation of Vera Cruz by the United States forces. The Montana is an armored cruiser whose keel was laid down in 1903. She is of 14,500 tons displacement, with a five-inch armor belt, and carries nine big guns. Her horse power is 25,000 and she can do twenty-two knots an hour. She was one of the American war vessels sent to Turkey in 1912 to protect American interests there.

CANAL READY FOR TORPEDO BOATS.

Panama, May 9.—Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama canal zone, said yesterday that he would put torpedo boats through the canal at any time Secretary of the Navy Daniels desired him to do so. He said also that he would ask Secretary of War Garrison's approval to send ships through the canal on or about May 15, as he anticipated having a thirty-foot channel cut through the slide at Cucaracha by then.

The barge line which is to aid the railway transporting freight across the isthmus will be in operation next Monday.

The condition of the Cucaracha slide is much improved. The slide is now moving slower than it is being removed by the dredges.

McIntosh Beats Bagley.

McIntosh, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—McIntosh high school defeated the Bagley school on the home diamond by a score of 7 to 5. This is the first game of the season.

SICKLES IS BURIED WITH HONORS OF WAR

Body Is Laid to Rest in Arlington Cemetery.

Washington, May 9.—All the honors of war were paid to the late Maj.-Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, who was buried in Arlington National cemetery here today.

The body of the veteran corps commander was carried in solemn procession from the union station, where it lay in state through the night, to the cemetery, accompanied by an escort of cavalry and field artillery. Following the caisson which bore the body was led the general's riderless horse.

As the procession passed through the grounds of Fort Meyer, a major general's artillery salute was fired, and at the grave three salvos of rifle shots and another artillery salute marked the placing of the body in its last resting place.

In addition to the regular army escort, a large number of Civil war veterans marched in the procession.

Electric Signs Reflect Success

With what manner of sign a merchant heralds his business—so is his success reflected in the path of thousands who pass his doors at night. Far and wide the brilliantly illuminated sign flashes its message of invitation to his trade.

Its letter of fire burn steadily, piercingly through the darkness of night, so that those who see it are compelled to read.

Why Not Employ One of These Silent Salesmen?

If your place of business is on a main thoroughfare, an electric sign is certain to attract more trade to your door. If it is on a less traveled street, it is almost essential that you counteract the disadvantage by this method. You will find that a small share of the additional trade brought in by an electric sign will pay for expense of lighting it. 'Phone us and we will send a man who will tell you just how low the cost really is.

RAISE MONEY FOR DULUTH AEROYACHT; DULUTH WHOLESALER FIRST PASSENGER

F. A. Patrick Will Be First Duluthian to Have a Ride.

Duluth Boosters Say Success of Project Is Now Assured.

F. A. Patrick, president of the F. A. Patrick company, will be the first Duluthian to ride in the aero-yacht, "Duluth," which will circle the United States this coming summer, starting from Duluth and passing through the Panama canal on its way to the San Francisco exposition.

Mr. Patrick cinched that privilege yesterday afternoon. A committee of three members of the Rotary club, consisting of A. C. Kienly, C. H. Dunning and E. J. Filiatrault, accompanied by the aviator, Murrell Ellis, started out yesterday afternoon to raise the finances for the trip, and in an hour and a half they had pledges of approximately $2,000, or about two-fifth of the required sum, Mr. Patrick headed the subscription list with a substantial contribution, but he stipulated that he should be the first passenger carried in Duluth. On a recent trip to the East he met several men who are interested in aviation as an amateur sport, and he contracted the flying fever.

The project is, as yet, purely a Rotary club enterprise. The Rotary club enthusiastically indorsed the proposed trip and appointed a committee to work on it. It has also been approved by many of the members of the midsummer festival committee as a means of advertising the festival and urging residents of the East to go via Duluth to the San Francisco exposition, but the committee has not yet officially acted on the plan. It will probably be taken up again Monday night.

The aviator, Murrell Ellis, will probably leave early next week for Los Angeles to get the flying yacht. Glenn L. Martin has promised to turn over an aeroplane which he has just completed for his own use to the Duluthians.

AVIATOR MURRELL ELLIS AND THE ROTARY CLUB COMMITTEE, A. C. KIENLY, C. H. DUNNING AND E. J. FILIATRAULT.

"We didn't get a turn down from a single Duluthian approached yesterday," chorused Messrs. Kienly and Dunning yesterday after their first canvass of the city. "It's all over now, but a little more hard work and the shouting. We're going to put this project across, and we'll have the whole country talking about Duluth for from three to six months, with the probability of entering the yacht "Duluth" in the race around the world next year, which would advertise this city in every civilized country on the globe."

DULUTH HIGH SCHOOL ORATORS LOSE CONTEST BY CLOSE MARGIN

Irving Grover, orator, and Dorothy Patton, declaimer, appeared for Duluth Central and John Davis and Marian McLimans for the Irving high school. They lost by a narrow margin after one of the closest contests in the cup contest. The young speakers were heard by an audience of more than 500 people. The judges were Supt. Vaughn of Chisholm, Supt. Colgrove of Virginia and Supt. Shannon of Ashland.

Clarence Hughes, orator, and Evelyn McGrath, declaimer, of Superior Central, took first honors, and Frazier McIver and Gretchen Schnittger of the Nelson Dewey school were second.

WOULD CUT ORE RATES THIS SPRING

Poor Buying Movement Causes Reduction at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 9.—A local ore shipper who has loaded a few outside vessels, has announced that he will pay the 1912 rates, or 50 cents from ports at the head of Lake Superior and 35 cents from Escanaba. That is a cut of 5 cents a ton all around from last season, and, as the unloading charge is 10 cents a ton the net rate to the vessels will be 40 cents and 25 cents.

"We have made no contracts," the shipper said, "and unless there is a better buying movement in the ore trade we will not tie up any tonnage for the season."

A little business has been done at last season's rates and a big steamer was chartered this week at 45 cents from the head of Lake Superior. Another boat of the same fleet was placed a week ago at that rate. Ore prices were announced last week and a reduction of from 55 to 65 cents a ton was made. The shippers have figured on a reduction of 5 cents in carrying charges, and since the prices were made, the general opinion has been that chartering would be done on the 1912 basis.

Shippers, as well as vesselmen, figure that the difference between the rate from the head of Lake Superior is too great and that the spread between the Duluth and the Lake Michigan port should not be more than 10 cents a ton. That would make the rate from Escanaba 30 cents, or the same as last season, and it is claimed that ore cannot be carried at a profit at a lower figure.

BUSINESS POOR ON GREAT LAKES

Grain Rates From Duluth Down to Seven Eighths of Cent.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 9.—The lake situation for the vessel owner is getting worse as the season grows older. Grain rates have been forced down to ⅞-cent on tonnage from Duluth to Georgian bay and the same rate has been offered for Buffalo delivery. One charter was made Thursday for a boat to load at Duluth for Georgian bay or Port Colborne at 1 cent.

The ore trade is not requiring outside tonnage and no strictly outside boats have been chartered at less than 1913 rates. A shipper has settled with boats practically operated out of his own offices at 40 cents from the Head of the Lakes, but another boat, which is strictly an independent ship, has not been paid her freight, as the cargo is to take the established contract rate.

It has been estimated that less than 1,000,000 tons of ore have been actually sold this season. Shippers are quoting iron ore at the upper lake docks on the basis of a 40-cent freight rate from the Head of the Lakes. Unless something unforeseen should happen, the freight rates on the lakes will be reduced 5 cents a ton from last year. There is an effort being made to hold the Escanaba rate. On the low basis it is not considered profitable to haul ore from Lake Michigan to Lake Erie at 25 cents.

Coal shippers are having trouble getting enough tonnage to keep the docks cleared up.

SUFFRAGE PARADE IN KANSAS CITY, MO.

Kansas City, Mo., May 9.—Prevented by heavy rain last Saturday from making their long-heralded demonstration, Kansas City women suffragettes early today completed final arrangements for a big parade here this afternoon. One hundred automobiles flying the colors of the suffragists and bearing banners proclaiming "Votes for Women," constituted the pageant that wound over several miles of streets. The parade was scheduled to start at 3 o'clock.

A mass meeting originally planned to be held after the parade will not be held until a later date.

Bloom of Youth Now Easily Attained

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and near-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth! Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolized wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago.

Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered saxolite into a half pint witch hazel, bathe the face in the solution and—say!—there's nothing that will so effectually, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines. —Advertisement.

MUCH TOUTED POLO TEAM IS DEFEATED.

London, May 9.—Walter S. Buckmaster's polo team today beat Baron Wimborne's reconstructed team by 9 goals to 8 in the final test match played at Hurlingham.

The keen interest taken by the British public in the crisis that has arisen regarding the polo team to be sent to the United States to play for the international polo cup was demonstrated by the great crowd that gathered at Hurlingham to witness today's match.

At the end of the first three periods the score stood 3 to 0 in favor of Buckmaster's quartet.

Washington, May 9.—Spanish Ambassador Riano today called upon Secretary Bryan in behalf of a Mexican citizen, Leon Cardenas Martinez, under death sentence for murder at Pecos, Tex. The ambassador asked for clemency because of the extreme youth of Martinez.

The ambassador said that he no longer was a go-between for President Huerta and the mediators in the Mexican difficulties. His offices in that capacity were ended, he said, when he had brought them together originally.

PROTECTION FOR SUBURBS

New Duluth Police and Fire Stations Will Get Additions.

Two Horses, Auto and Policeman Added to Departments.

The New Duluth fire and police stations will shortly be improved by several additions.

Another policeman will be put on and an automobile will be placed at the disposal of the bluecoats. A team of horses will be sent to the suburb to haul the gasoline fire engine.

New Duluth and Gary residents have been urging these for some months past. Commissioner Hicken has recognized the justice of their position and has made arrangements for them as quickly as the conditions could be shaped to enable him to carry them out. The steel plant suburbs have been growing at a rapid rate in the last year and both the police and fire protection facilities have been inadequate.

The funds for the automobile will be realized by a sale of the Kato, the first automobile patrol wagon, a horse-drawn patrol and a police sleigh. Commissioner will sell them for the police department and buy them for the fire department. Being head of both departments, the commissioner will have no difficulty in making the sale. He figures that it will be mutually advantageous. The police department fund will be enriched some $500 or $600. The fire department will remodel the Kato into a service truck for its own use. The work will be done in its own repair shop and when completed it is asserted that the machine will be worth about $1,000. The other rigs will also be remodeled and either used by the department or sold.

The fire department will have about ten horses on its hands because of the installation of the two new motor rigs. Two of these will be transferred to New Duluth, necessitating no cash expenditure from the fire department fund. Another horse will be sold by the safety commissioner to the health department, which is also part of the division. The others will be sold, netting a neat sum for the department's fund.

The automobile and the addition of another man will greatly increase the efficiency of the police department in that end of the city. The machine will enable the men to cover the large territory under their care with more dispatch and it will no longer be necessary to walk men under arrest several miles.

Whenever a fire alarm has been received in the past a team has had to be secured from a private owner, causing the loss of much valuable time. This handicap will be eliminated after the team has been placed in the fire station, which was remodeled last fall with this in mind, provision being made for the stabling of the horses.

CHILDREN AS GARDENERS

West Duluth Club Will Give Prizes for Best Gardens.

Children of the West Duluth school and all others under 16 years of age living in the Ely, Longfellow, Irving and Fairmont school districts will have an opportunity to show what kind of farmers or gardeners they will make.

Last night the West Duluth Commercial club donated $25 for a contest and a similar amount was given by the West Duluth Land company. The contest will be held under the auspices of the club and a committee to have charge of it was appointed.

P. H. Martin, president of the club, was elected chairman of the committee. The other members chosen were: Charles G. Futter, W. A. Pond, H. C. Brown and Thomas Olafson. Mr. Futter was chosen secretary of the committee and will receive the names of children who enter the contest.

It is said that probably $50 more will be raised for prize money. Some of the industrial concerns of West Duluth have promised to donate to the contest. The following rules were adopted:

Prizes are offered as follows: For the best improvement in lawn or yard: First prize, $5; second, $3; third, $2. For the most beautifully kept flower garden: First, $5; second, $3; third, $2. For the best kept vegetable garden containing largest variety of vegetables: First prize, $15; second $10; third, $5

"Rules: Contestants must prepare and maintain all gardens and lawns which are to beinspected once a month by the contest committee. The contest will close Sept. 1.

"General exhibits of garden truck, flowers, pastries, baking, fancy work, canning, preserving and manual training products will be held in the Denfeld school after the close of the contest, the date of which is to be announced later."

The children who intend to enter the contest will have to file their names with Mr. Futter before June 15. Principals of the four schools will be notified and asked to co-operate in getting the children interested in the scheme.

Between now and the close of school in June the club proposes to secure the services of agricultural experts who will give lectures to the children on gardening.

MANY ROOTERS PRESENT.

Industrial School Orators Are Given Fourth Place.

Nearly 100 students of the Duluth Industrial high school went to Superior last night to attend the Wallace cup oratorical contest held at the Superior Central high school. Armed with a large number of megaphones and well rehearsed in yells for their school the students did not fail to let residents along the route know that they were on their way.

The Industrial school was represented in the contest by John Davis, "mayor" of the school, and Miss Marian McLimans. The school was awarded fourth place in the contest.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

Classes Prepare Program to Be Given Friday Night.

The annual junior-senior banquet of the Duluth Industrial high school will be held in the school on Friday evening, May 29. Plans are now being made by members of the junior class. On the committee in charge are James Donald, Richard Wade, Leo Lemoux, Misses May McKay, Edith Works, Grace Dunleavy and Keath Stewart.

The supper will be served by the girls of the junior class. The boys will assist in preparing for the feast. Following the banquet and a short program of addresses the members of the two classes will spend an hour dancing.

JUNIORS WILL HELP TO FINANCE ORACLE.

The junior class of the Duluth Industrial high school has planned to raise $75 toward the cost of getting out the "Oracle," the annual publication of the senior class. For the purpose of raising some of this money a concert has been planned for Tuesday evening, May 26.

The committee in charge of the plans for the concert are Leo Duetch, James Donald, Misses Marian McLimans and Bessie McKinnon. A feature will be a short playlet offered under the management of Mr. Duetch, entitled "Cool as a Cucumber." James Donald is in charge of the musical part of the program. He announced this morning that some of the best talent in the city was being secured for the evening.

The "Oracle" is about ready for the printers. All of the copy intended for the booklet is ready and most of this has already been put into the hands of the printer. The book this year will be as elaborate as last year, containing a complete history of the school and its various classes, and promises to be a very interesting publication. The cost of getting out the book will amount to about $100, most of which has already been raised by the various classes.

TEAM IS ORGANIZED.

Steel Plant Baseball Aggregation Is Now Ready for All Comers.

The Steel Plant baseball team is a new aggregation of ball players which intends becoming a factor in gathering diamond honors this summer. The team is organized exclusively among employes of the steel plant.

A new handsome gray uniform for the members of the team has just arrived, and the suits are being exhibited in some of the local stores. James O'Brien, manager of the team, says that the team will be open for battle with any aggregation, amateur or semi-professional, in or out of the city.

Mr. O'Brien claims to have been playing the game for only twenty-two years, but some of his friends are inclined to doubt his statement. His friends say he has been managing teams that long, and that he must have started in the game fully ten years earlier.

WOMEN GIVE PLAYLET.

Forbes M. E. Church Society Puts on Novel Entertainment.

"Primary Last Day of School" was the subject of a playlet presented last evening by Circle No. 4 of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Forbes M. E. church. Mrs. J. S. Jenkins took the part of the teacher, and the scholars were represented by twenty-two members of the society. A program of music, recitations and other features was given. The women wore dresses like children of the kindergarten.

The society has plans for the presentation of another play next Friday evening, "The Wedding of Tom Thumb" will be the title of the production. A feature of the play will be a chorus of eighty children, all of whom are under 10 years of age. The play will be presented in the Odd Fellows' hall.

Firemen Have Two Runs.

Fire Department No. 8 responded to two calls yesterday. The first call came in at 3 o'clock from 15 South Sixty-fourth avenue. A woodshed in the rear of the place had caught fire. It is believed that children playing with matches ignited the place. The fire apparatus became stuck in the mud within a block of the place and had considerable difficulty in getting started. The loss was about $100.

The second trip was a false alarm turned in from a box on the corner of Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street. Some boys are believed to have been playing with the box.

FITWELLS WILL MAKE THEIR BOW.

The Fitwell baseball team of West Duluth will play its initial game this season tomorrow against the Ideals of Superior. Manager Frank Sears says he is confident of victory and that he has got the best aggregation of baseball players in the city.

The game tomorrow will be pitched by either Clark or Quiding. The balance of the line-up will be as follows: Busky, catcher; Johnson, first; Joe De Moe, second; Vic Olson, third; John Young, short; Wicklund, center field; Swanstrom, left field, and Talbot, right field.

NO PLACE FOR THE BLACKSMITH SHOP

Commissioner Murchison is still seeking suitable quarters into which he can transfer the work division blacksmith shop from the Armory in order that the entire ground floor may be available for a public market.

This morning Commissioner Hicken, head of the safety division, accompanied him to the central repair shop operated by the fire department at No. 3 hall, First avenue east and Third street. Both had hopes that they had found the solution but the room available was insufficient.

As soon as proper room can be secured the works division will vacate that part of the Armory which it now occupies. Thus far it has been impossible to get a suitable location, although the commissioner states that diligent search has been made. If the move is made the public market will have the entire floor, instead of the westerly sixty feet. The works division now occupies the easterly forty feet.

WILL MOTORIZE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Hicken and Randall Will Inspect Aerial Truck at Winnipeg.

Commissioner Hicken, head of the safety division, and Fire Chief Randall propose to continue motorizing the fire department as rapidly as the funds will allow.

The motor rigs increase the department's efficiency and reduce expenses, requiring fewer mon and doing away with horses. Towards the end of the month the commissioner and the chief plan to make a trip to Winnipeg to witness a demonstration of the aerial truck recently purchased by that city. An aerial truck will likely be the next addition to the local fire-fighting apparatus. The officials are already figuring on it and it may be secured next fall or early next year.

SANITARY METHODS IN FOOD FACTORY

While there has been a great deal of agitation during the past few days over the question of pure food products yet it is safe to say that perhaps few people are aware that manufacturing establishments all over the country are endeavoring to comply with all the pure food requirements. Numbered among the companies that are striving to make their plants as sanitary as it is possible is the F. A. Martoccio Macaroni company, who has just erected a large plant in Minneapolis, the feature of this new factory being the fact that it is the only sanitary plant in the Northwest that uses spring water in the manufacture of its products. This firm style themselves the pioneer manufacturers in their line and rightfully do they possess that title as the father of the present head of the firm was the first man to engage in the manufacture of macaroni in this country. When one stops to consider that running spring water is used in all manufacturing departments it is an acknowledgment that these goods are leaders from a standpoint of health protection and also the satisfaction of knowing that spring water was used in the making of the goods which no other manufacturer uses.

STILL HAS SOME FIGHT LEFT IN HIM

Veteran Quartermaster of Old Frigate Wabash Wants to Re-Enlist.

"Say, mate, I was quartermaster on the old frigate Wabash back in 1884 and though I am 55 years old, I guess I'm able enough to go out and fight for Uncle Sam. The blood's in me and whenever Old Glory is insulted, by gosh, I want to fight and fight hard."

With these greetings James Armstrong, who served in the United States navy back in 1881, receiving an honorable discharge after three years, and who is now employed as an engineer on one of the local railroads, applied to Chief Quartermaster Erickson at the local navy recruiting station yesterday afternoon. Armstrong is above the age limit and his application was denied. Here's what he had to say to Quartermaster Erickson before leaving:

"You boys may know a lot more than we did, but I guess we were better men all around. In our day we had wooden ships and steel men; now you've got steel ships and wooden men. I'm blamed sorry I can't go in and fight for Uncle Sam, for I'm as hale and hearty as when I pranced around on the Wabash about thirty years ago. There's still some fight in me and if you need some good men let me know."

The Wabash will be remembered as being part of the fleet in charge of Admiral Farragut durng the Civil war. The frigate Hartford was the flagship at that time. Both of these ships are in use today by the government, the Wabash as a receiving station at Boston and the Hartford as a training ship at Newport.

OLD TREATY WITH HOLLAND RENEWED.

Washington, May 9.—Secretary Bryan and Chevalier W. L. F. C. van Rapard, Netherlands minister to the United States, today signed a convention renewing for another period of five years the limited arbitration treaty under which all questions arising between the two countries which may not be settled by diplomatic effort must be referred to the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, provided they do not affect the vital interests the independence or the honor of the two countries and do not concern the interests of third parties.

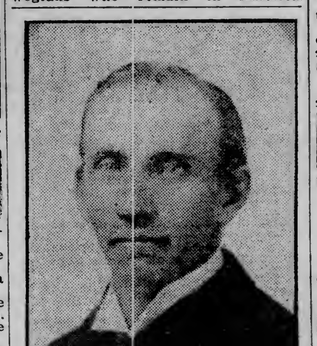
SAGENG HERE ON MAY 17

Otter Tail Statesman Chief Speaker at Norwegian Celebration.

Centennial Anniversary Occasion of Elaborate Plans of Norway's Sons.

Duluth will soon have an opportunity to hear State Senator Ole Sageng of Otter Tail county, on whom almost every paper in the state agreed a while ago as being the most available candidate for governor to beat Governor Eberhart, but who declined to run. This will be on the occasion of the celebration of the centennial anniversary of Norwegian independence.

This will be a gala date for the Norwegians who remain in America.



STATE SENATOR OLE SAGENG.

There will be several chartered shiploads of natives of that rugged land who are going "home" to properly celebrate the natal day of the nation, but it will not be forgotten here.

For that day a big celebration has been planned. Rev. H. A. Ofstie will act as chairman. The main celebration will take place in the auditorium of the Central high school, at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of May 17, the one hundredth anniversary of the gaining of independence of Norway. All Norwegian societies will unite on that day and music will be furnished by the Normanna chorus and by Flaaten's orchestra.

Besides Senator Sageng, Mayor Prince will speak.

Woodland Residents Petition Council for Early Improvements.

Residents of Woodland avenue between Fourth street and Kent road have sent a petition to the city council asking that overhead wires on that section of the avenue be placed underground and the necessary sewer, water and gas connections be made this year. They also want bids advertised and a contract let for a 30-foot roadway with combined cement curb and gutter as early in 1915 as possible.

They state that they will be willing to stand a 50 per cent advance assessment. They want bids on asphalt, bitulithic and crushed rock macadam. Woodland avenue was at the top of the list of improvements scheduled for the season, but the property owners protested against it when it was proposed to do part of the work this season.

Ohio produced more than 42 per cent of the pottery made in the United States last year.

KOREA HAD GREAT FALL

How Japan Became World Power, While Korea Was Sinking.

Washington, May 9.—George Kennan, explorer and lecturer, recently communicated to the National Geographical society the information that Korea built steel-clad battleships 250 years before the Monitor and Merrimac were created. The Hermit kingdom was using movable type and astronomical instruments from the twelfth to the fifteenth centuries, and employing explosive bombs long before they were known in Europe. He points out that the famous Japanese Satsuma pottery was made originally by Korean workmen who were imported into the mikado's kingdom.

These facts are cited by Mr. Kennan to show the terrific downfall experienced by Korea. He traces her course from her pinnacle of civilization to the depths of degeneracy, and expresses great hopes for her future, under the guidance of Japan.

Taught the Japs.

"While Korea was sinking, Japan was rising, until the island kingdom, all by her own efforts, became such a world power as to defeat a great European nation," he says. "The Koreans were a mainland people. They had taught the medieval Japs all the civilization they had. But, by reason of their geographical location, they were invaded by vastly inferior peoples, the Mongols and the Manchus. Korea was influenced to establish demonology as her religion, her blood was weakened by being crossed with that of people vastly beneath her, and her spirit was broken by the indignities heaped upon her by the more powerful invaders. She was under the influence of China, which adopted the semi-sacred books of Confucius as its national system of education 2,000 years ago. The knowledge of his works and the ability to recite long chapters of his writings were made the chief requirement of the aspirant for honors. As a result, the study of the sciences, mathematics and the phenomena of nature was dropped, the memory was over-cultivated and the reasoning powers stultified. The habits of the Koreans became uncleanly; they grew indifferent to dirt and smells.

Japan Never Invaded.

"Japan, on the other hand, was never invaded in her history; her blood was never intermingled and her stock was allowed to remain pure. Her national character was developed without outside influence. The Shinto religion of the empire has as its cardinal principles purity of body, spirit and environment. Japan was not exposed to the scourges and plagues that Korea's dirt and filth brought upon her. The feudal system sprang up in Japan, causing authority to be respected and discipline to be developed.

"In 1910, Japan annexed Korea. Prior to that time, as many deaths as 900 a day had occurred in the city of Seoul alone; shortly afterwards not as many people died from the plague in the whole kingdom in one year. Japan forcibly vaccinated 5,400,000 people in one year. One hundred and sixty-eight courts were established, giving authority to 13,000 gendarmes. Hundreds of miles of roads are being built. Afforestation on an extensive scale is being carried on. To encourage the silk worm industry 13,000,000 mulberry tree seedlings were set out in one year. State and private banks were established.

Postal Savings Banks.

"The postal savings system was installed and one in every six families has a savings account. The people, at first suspicious, have learned that they will get their money back whenever they ask for it. In the first year after the Japanese occupancy the rice crop was doubled, and the wheat and barley crops grew from 14,000,000 to 36,000,000 bushels. The Japanese have built a model village in every province and are encouraging the people to build similar villages throughout the kingdom."

Mr. Kennan points out that Korea has the same geographical advantages as a great portion of the eastern half of the United States. "She is just as well fitted to be the home of healthy, prosperous and happy people," he says. "She is located similarly to the territory bordering on the Atlantic coast from Portland, Me., to Charleston, S. C., and extending inward to Albany, N. Y., Harrisburg, Pa., Lynchburg, Va., and Columbia, S. C."

"The styles are far more becoming to all figures than for many seasons," says the report.

SEWALL TRUAX MAY DIE OF PISTOL SHOT

Mining Engineer Seriously Wounded While Alone.

Chicago, May 9.—Sewall Truax, mining engineer and son of Col. Sewall Truax of Tacoma, Wash., lies at the point of death at his home in Highland Park, a northern suburb, suffering from a bullet wound in his head.

Mr. Truax was nearly two years a sufferer from a severe attack of rheumatism, from which physicians gave him little hope of relief. Recently Mr. Truax sold one of his revolvers, and Thursday called for another revolver, which he said he intended to clean before disposing of it.

No one was in the room with him when the injury was inflicted. There were no powder marks visible, and members of the family insist the weapon was accidentally discharged.

Physicians said that because of Mr. Truax's ill health the wound might prove fatal.

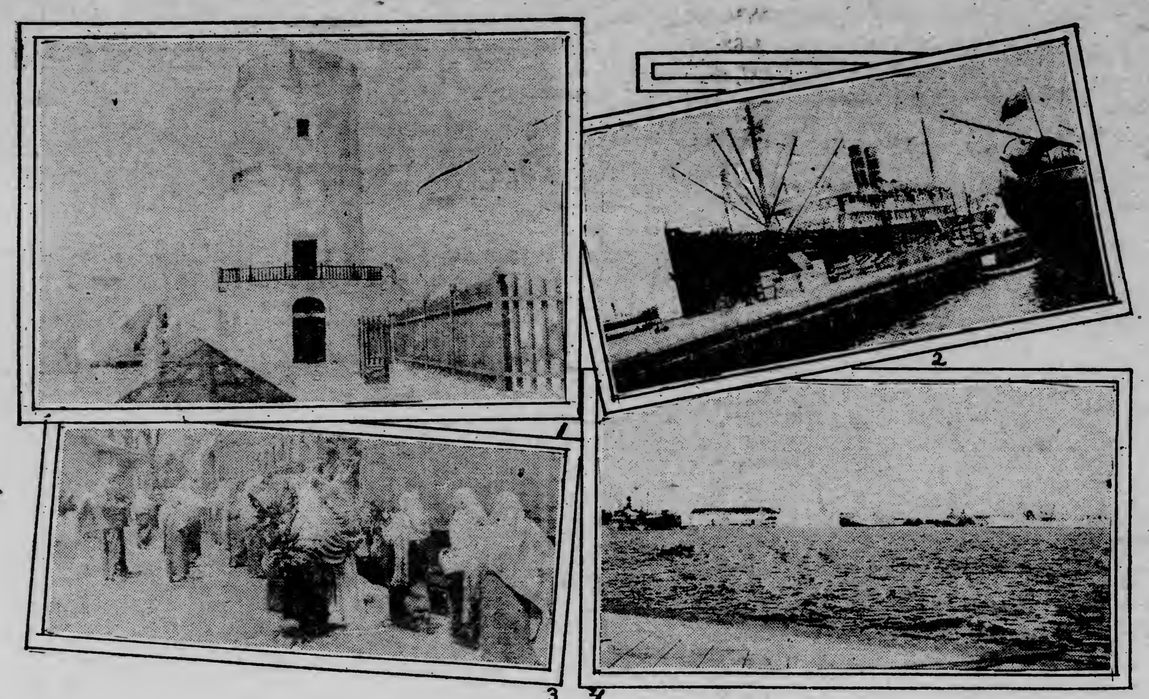
DULUTHIAN WHO SPENT SEVERAL MONTHS IN MEXICO WARMLY APPROVES OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S COURSE



VIEWS IN AND ABOUT VERA CRUZ.
No. I.—The Tower That Was Demolished by American Guns.
No. II.—Ocean Steamers Docked at Vera Cruz.
No. III.—Boarding Railroad Train for Mexico City.
No. IV.—The Vera Cruz Harbor.

G. S. Richards of this city, who has traveled widely in Mexico and made a close study of the southern republic, her people, customs, topography and resources, says that the "watchful waiting" policy of President Wilson is to be commended in every way.

So broken and mountainous is the country and so scattered and divided are her people that only years of warfare would subdue the guerilla bands. After this was accomplished the United States would have no better relations with the Mexicans than at the beginning of hostilities.

Mr. Richards made an extended tour of Mexico six years ago when that country was under the control of President Diaz. He says the Diaz government was the best Mexico has ever had and that if this rule had continued Mexico's resources might have been greatly developed.

Mexico Only Scratched.

"Mexico today has only been scratched," said Mr. Richards, "and her vast resources of minerals, rubber, coffee and hundreds of other products are lying ready for development as soon as a stable and safe government is established so that men of skill and energy can go to work. I believe Mexico is ready for unprecedented development as soon as this condition has been brought about."

When in Mexico, Mr. Richards traveled both by rail and on foot, taking more than 200 views best illustrating the scenery, buildings, ports and amusements of the people. The most interesting trip taken was from Vera Cruz to Mexico City.

In speaking of military operations between Mexico and the United States, he said:

Entrance From North.

"It is much easier to get into Mexico than to get out, and I believe it would be easier for the United States to enter Mexico City from the north than by way of Vera Cruz. The railroad from Vera Cruz to Mexico City is over a mountainous country and many of the railway trestles are more than 100 feet high. The Mexicans could very easily blow these up, making a march by foot necessary. No doubt the Mexicans have already planted explosives under the trestles, ready to obliterate the trackage should war be declared. A march by foot would be extremely perilous. The Mexican bands could shelter themselves in the hills and behind the precipices and withstand almost any number of troops—with little danger to themselves. President Wilson is pursuing the best policy by waiting to let the rebels conquer Huerta, as they are making rapid headway from the north, while the United States battleships have the harbor of Vera Cruz bottled up."

Mr. Richards says the Mexican people are ignorant and only half civilized in many parts of the country, and the mountains are filled with bandits. News reports are censored so that the majority of the people are totally ignorant of what the true condition of affairs is.

Bull fighting is still one of the chief amusements, and $1,000,000 was spent in Mexico City to erect a coliseum in which to stage the national pastime. In Mexico City is a church, also, in which a "negro" Christ is worshiped. Many of the buildings are remarkably beautiful, but little money is spent for schools or colleges.

Ignorance and lack of enterprise, he says, have let the country's resources remain undeveloped except for the progress made by Americans and other foreigners.

ARRIVED AT HEAD OF LAKES FIFTY-EIGHT YEARS AGO

George M. Smith Now Claims to Rank as Oldest of the Surviving Pioneers.

George M. Smith, agent of the Omaha road, will celebrate tomorrow the fifty-eighth anniversary of his arrival at the Head of the Lakes. He came to Superior, or was brought here by his parents, on May 10, 1856 from Jefferson, Wis., his birthplace.

Another notable feature of the arrival of the family was that they came up on the steamer City of Superior on her first trip. She started only one other. On her second trip the boat struck a rock somewhere in Lake Superior and foundered with all hands on board. Only wreckage was ever found of her. Mr. Smith and his family had expected to take the second trip of the steamer, but conditions permitted them to take the first.

Mr. Smith claims to be the oldest living pioneer at the Head of the Lakes. J. R. Rakowsky, who died a few days ago, came one year ahead of Mr. Smith and one or two others, who died recently came in 1855; thus leaving Mr. Smith the oldest. He was asked today about the family of W. C. Sargeant.

"I rowed Mr. Sargent's father across the bay when he arrived," said Mr. Smith, so I was here before them."

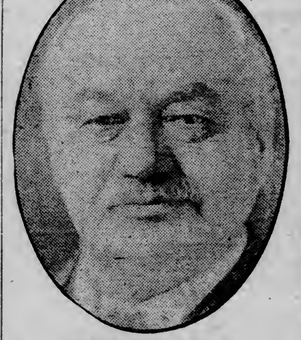
"I used to fish in a number of streams hereabouts, streams that have since been blocked up. For instance, right where the Gray department store stands now there was the daisiest stream for trout that you ever saw. Brewery creek was another of the finest fishing streams that you would care to cast bait in. I came over to Duluth in 1869 and have lived here ever since. In 1867 I rowed Jay Cooke of Philadelphia over to this side in a small boat and as a result of his visit he got about half the present site of Duluth and the riparian rights that have since developed into the wonderful water power of St. Louis river. He brought the Lake Superior & Mississippi River road, now the Northern Pacific to the Head of the Lakes.

"Speaking about seeing Duluth grow—I have seen it all. There was no Duluth when I came here. It seems like the city of my dreams—and there are greater things to come."



GEORGE M. SMITH.

WOMAN'S ILLNESS DELAYS TRIAL

Olga Gran Must Again Recite Story of Life in Alienation Suit.

Not until Mrs. Olga Gran, divorced wife of Victor H. Gran, has sufficiently recovered from nervous breakdown from which she has been suffering, to be able to again take the witness stand, will the $15,000 suit for alienation of affection brought by Gran against John R. Heino, who figured in the divorce case as a co-respondent, be tried.

Judge Bert Fesler today denied a motion of Heino's attorneys, Theodore Hollister and Walter F. Dacey, for a continuance to the September term of court on the grounds of Mrs. Gran's illness. The court struck the case from the present sitting, but denied the motion to continue it over the present term. Owing to the fact that the woman will be an important witness in the case, it is probable that the action will not proceed unless she is present in court.

A. E. McManus appeared in court to oppose the motion for continuance.

USE AND ABUSE OF COFFEE.

Medical Times: In the light of the data that have been accumulated in respect to the physiological action of coffee it may safely be affirmed that it is not injurious when used moderately by reasonably healthy people. With the neurasthenic and the dyspeptic it is a somewhat different matter. While alarming symptoms have followed the ingestion of enormous quantities, there is no evidence that fatally toxic effects have ever ensued. Coffee is a mild stumulant and the effects are rather transient. The moderate use of coffee will not make a well man sick. Such moderate use will not occasion disagreeable symptoms in the healthy, such as insomnia, headache, "nervousness," drowsiness, palpitation, dyspepsia, vertigo, etc. On the other hand it will obviate or relieve fatigue.

We do not consider coffee a necessary concomitant of civilized life, which some extremists claim it to be. To our minds it is rather a luxury which it is not necessary to dispense with unless one is compelled to do so as a part of the attempt to combat the increasing cost of living. As to the moderate use of any of the things which we ingest the same principles apply. Even such a valuable substance as milk has to be imbibed within reason as to quantity, lest autointoxication ensue.

Wales has adopted the American plan of sending agricultural missionary trains throughout the principality, teaching the farmers the best methods of raising poultry. Great gain has resulted.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

MOST cities dispose of their bond issues to financial institutions. There have been several cities which have succeeded in disposing of their bonds locally. In St. Paul, Minn., a department store purchased $100,000 of the city improvement bonds and offered them for sale just as it does dry goods and other merchandise. They are advertised like any other merchandise and the sale proved to be a great success. Two other cities have followed the same example, and a number of others are discussing a similar plan.

Duluth followed this plan last year in selling $100,000 of securities for the water and light department. Certificates of indebtedness bearing interest at 6 per cent were offered over the counter by Finance Commissioner Fred J. Voss and the issue was oversubscribed in a short time. The market for securities at that time was unfavorable and should similar conditions arise, the city would follow the same plan. Since that time $400,000 of refunding bonds have been sold in regular channels and a favorable price was secured.

REJUVENATING A COUNTRY TOWN

How Leadership and a Social Center Succeeded

By ARTHUR P. KELLOGG.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

Because of the lack of resident initiative and leadership, the village of X—— for many years had failed to make any real progress. Similar conditions prevail in hundreds of other communities in our country. They call for leadership and many of our young men who have the vision and the personality and who are looking about for the best way to invest their lives might well consider the small town as a field of service. On account of the intimate relationship a man has with the people of a small community it is possible for him, through leadership in a few years to transform an entire village.

That this can be done is shown by the Memorial library in the village of X——. The library was the gift of a prominent man and his wife who saw the need and gave the building to be used as a social center for the community. The work was started a little over five years ago.

The Social Center.

The Memorial library includes a well-lighted and ventilated auditorium accommodating about 200 people. Here entertainments, fairs and socials are held. Classes in physical culture for both boys and girls are conducted during the winter months. On two evenings a week the people are entertained with the best motion pictures. This serves to keep in their home community the young people who had been in the habit of migrating to neighboring towns for these pleasures. A room containing a billiard table and other games attracts the young men and keeps them from places that are of morally destructive character. Practically every boy and girl in the village is found at the library during the time it is open for their use.

A room with showers and a bathtub was added to the equipment about two years ago and is used by the women and girls on specified days as well as by the men and boys. A manual training shop forms a part of the equipment of the Memorial library. Boys from 12 to 16 years of age have been instructed in making useful articles of furniture.

Cooking School Serves Community Banquet.

A domestic science room with every facility for efficient and systematic work in sewing and cooking is included. The girls thoroughly enjoy the work and carry the training into their homes. One year the girls conducted a fair, and from the sale of articles realized a considerable sum which they used to pay their instructor in physical work. At a community banquet, the first of its kind ever held in the village, the catering was done by the girls in the domestic science class. For several years the domestic science and the manual training work has been part of the school curriculum.

The children are being educated to thrift and economy by a savings system which has been introduced. For several years a number of the village boys have been attending a county camp and have been influenced for good through the comradeship and the influence of the other boys. One summer a camp for girls was conducted.

During the past summer a 10-acre lot within a quarter of a mile of the village was rented and used for a playground. The playground contained a baseball diamond and a basket ball and tennis court. A cottage was built on the grounds and a secretary and his family lived here all summer, giving supervision to the work at all times. On the Fourth of July a big home day was held on the grounds, with band music, baseball between two rival teams and other attractions.

Before the new agency came into the life of the village of X—— a spirit of depression seemed to permeate the entire community. The inhabitants were discouraged. It was under such conditions that the Memorial Library was opened.

Start of Civic Improvement.

In the first year of the work a village improvement committee was organized. This was appointed from the representative men of the village and residents of the surrounding estates, who gladly responded when approached for financial assistance. The first thing the committee decided upon was to light the streets with electricity. It was thought that the taxpayers would not assume this expense until they had seen the great improvement the lights would make in the streets. The committee had the lights installed and for two years met the expense through public subscription. The amount they were obliged to raise was $1,500. The third year a lighting district was established and practically every taxpayer signed the petition to have the lights paid for through taxation.

One of the greatest needs of the village was a water supply. For five years the committee tried to solve this problem, and recently its labors have been rewarded. A company supplying water to a village three miles distant has been induced to extend its mains to the village of X——. A fire company is to be organized, with its home in the Memorial Library.

One of the churches had been struggling for years with a debt. The secretary of the Memorial Library offered to co-operate in a canvass to pay off the entire indebtedness. A large paper elephant blocked off to represent various amounts, the aggregate representing the church debt, was placed in one of the stores. Everybody was enlisted to help, and two days before the time appointed for the canvass to close, the entire sum had been raised. Everybody gave to "kill the elephant."

These are the more spectacular achievements due to the influences emanating from the Memorial Library; but in point of fact, the whole community has caught the spirit of progress. Instead of indifference and neglect, homes are being improved, houses painted, lawns well kept and otherwise much is being done to make the village attractive.

The new community spirit which has changed the life and built a new town on the old site was brought about through the resident leadership. Do such results merit the investment of a life in a small town?

BOOZE AND BASEBALL DON'T MIX

No minister could give a more forceful argument for temperance than Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, given in an interview to Harry Beach Needham, a staff writer for McClure's Magazine. The story appears in the May number and is, in part, as follows:

"I have come to the conclusion that the continued 'class' shown by the Athletics can be put down—if you want it in a sentence, right over the plate—to clean living and quick thinking," he said. "And without the one you can't have the other—the quick thinking.

"Temperance is a fine thing—and don't get the wrong angle on that temperance," he cautioned. "For one thing, it applies just as much to eating. One of the most brilliant players of the last ten years ate his way out of the American league! If you think that's farfetched, remember that a former citizen of my home town, Ben Franklin, spoke of men who 'dug their graves with their teeth.' I would make the guess that more folks die from overeating than from starvation—that is, in America.

"Who puts the ball player out of the game? You would naturally say 'the umpire,' wouldn't you? Well, all the umpires together haven't put as many ball players out of the game as has Old Man Booze!"

Booze Puts Players Out.

"Now, don't get off on the wrong foot. Boozing is not common among the high grade ball players. It was common twenty years ago, but today it is rare in the majors—boozing. Keep in mined, though, that steady—'moderate'—drinking gets a ball player in the end just as sure as boozing. Alcohol slows a man down inevitably, and slowing down is the reason for the shelving of by far the majority of players. If you estimate a player's years in baseball at fifteen, why, 'moderate' drinking will cut off from three to five years—a third of his life on the diamond.

"I don't want to put this question of clean living on the basis of morals for one minute," explained Mack. "I'll leave preaching to the clergy—I do in dealing with my own players. But you ask me why the world's champions have done so well. I have to answer because of the kind of lives they lead, and their consequent ability to think and act quickly in an emergency.

"It isn't a matter of morals to our club, but of human efficiency. And say—I wonder if we might not better the long in dealing with this drink question if we had paid more attention to the net loss in human efficiency?"

No Rules Against Drinking.

"Have you any rules on the subject?" I asked.

"In our club we have no rules about the players' personal habits," answered Mack. "It is recognzied that a major leaguer, with a career in front of him and really big money in his pockets, must cut out all bad habits. For if he doesn't the pace becomes too hot for him—the competition for a regular position too fierce."

This reminded Connie Mack of an experience, and he told this story:

"Going South one spring I took quite a fancy to a youngster who was to be tried out. I liked his looks and I liked his line of talk—above all, I liked his high spirits. Seemed to me that he would be there fighting all the time—never down in the mouth and ready to quit. So, having taken such a fancy to him, I began to pry into his private life a little, but in such a way as to make him see that I was—you know—really interested in him, not merely curious about his own affairs. Quite casually, as I might have asked him if he liked to go to the theater, I inquired if he drank.

Connie Mack's Method.

"Well, that young fellow was frank and above board about it. Said he took a drink once in a while—a glass of beer occasionally, sometimes a whisky, but almost always he drank to be sociable—to be a 'good fellow.'

"'Do you ever go awhile without drinking?' I asked him.

"'Sure,' he exclaimed. 'Sometimes I go two weeks or a month without drinking.'

"'Don't you miss it?' I asked him.

"'Not a bit! Never miss it at all.'

"I kept quiet for a few minutes. Then I came at the youngster this way: 'Of course, I understand—your drinking doesn't amount to anything. But if anyone was to ask me about you, of course, I couldn't ring in exceptions—I'd have to say you drink.' Here I stopped to let it sink in. Then I went on:

"'Now, so long as you don't miss it when you're not taking it, if I were you I'd think it over and decide whether the drinking is worth classing yourself with those who do drink—with those who can't get along without the stuff.'

Say—in two days that youngster came to me and said:

"'Mr. Mack, if anybody asks you whether I drink, you tell 'em I don't—for I do not drink.'.

"Perhaps there's something like a tip in that," commented Mack. "Any business man who has to handle men can take it for what it's worth. I haven't any patent on it, although it's my method."

Talks With the Teams.

"You say you have no rules about the players' personal habits?"

"Not a rule," said Mack positively.

"Don't you ever discuss the subject?"

"Sure, I do—in our morning talks. You know, we have baseball talks every morning. Of course, the general idea is to go over carefully points in the game of the day before, and also to plan for the day's battle. Well, I take every opportunity to discuss drinking. There will be days, you can see, when the last game requires no discussion, and when the coming game is with a team we know very well—in other words, we've got our plan of attack thoroughly worked out. So I switch from baseball to highballs."

"What do you hang it on—what's your angle of approach?"

"Maybe one thing, maybe another," said Mack. "Perhaps we've heard about certain members of the opposing team—perhaps we know some of the players have been making a night of it. Then I tell our boys it may not show today; it may possibly not show in their playing tomorrow; but it's sure to show the day after."

Getting Hold of a "Wild" Player.

"How do you get hold of a player who is inclined to be wild? How do you appeal to him?"

"I make my appeal from four different sides," said Mack. "First, from the standpoint of the public—the people who pay their 25, 50 and 75 cents, or $1 to see good baseball. They are entitled to see the player at his best—not slowed up by drink. Second, from the standpoint of the club—the player gets a good salary for which he owes his best services. I say that the man who doesn't do his best is dishonest with the club. The third appeal is from the standpoint of a man's fellow players—it isn't fair to the other members of the team to have one important part of the baseball machine going bad, as we say. Fourth, I put it straight to the man himself; tell him that he isn't honest with himself—that he isn't giving himself a fair chance. I find that in one of these four ways I can get to a man.

"Of course," explained Mack, "I don't single a man out and aim my remarks at him personally in the morning talk. I talk generally—vaguely, as far as the object of my remarks is concerned—but straight to the point. I shoot an arrow into the air—you know the rest. It generally strikes home."

No Drinkers Need Apply.

"How does it happen," I asked, "that you have so many men who, as Thomas said, have 'never known the taste of liquor?' Does it mean the survival of the fittest, or does it mean that you prefer the abstemious player?"

"Both," replied Mack. "Five years ago I would take a man who drank, provided I thought I could handle him—and gradually break him of the habit. Now I wouldn't bother with a youngster who drinks. That's my fixed policy—I have changed."

"On account of age?"

"No—wisdom; I've proved up, to my own satisfaction, this business of clean living and quick thinking. It's the stuff champions are made of. There's nothing to that."

GROW DARING IN THE ALPS.

Boston Transcript: The general subject of climbing without a guide is one that is now attracting a great deal of attention in Europe. An English sporting magazine says: "We may date the development of modern mountaineering from the birth of guideless climbing. The pioneers were responsible for a more radical revolution than they perhaps anticipated, the result of their movement being to raise the general standard of British mountaineering." The assertion is made that one need be nothing more than a good walker to be able to climb with guides to the top of any peak in the Alps, and it is added that he who has to depend on his own skill, strength and nerve must have the craft at his fingers' ends. The guided mountaineer merely needs to follow his guides and he may do this for years and not be able to lead in a simple climb for mind his way to the top of an easy snow peak.

There are arguments on both sides. Certain Alpine clubs are such in truth, and the criterion for the admission of a member is whether one is willing to trust himself on the rope with a candidate. But at the same time the letting down of the bars of Alpinism by the preaching of guideless climbing can only do harm. Man is prone to do what he sees someone else do. With confidence in his own ability he tramps boldly where the angels of the profession tread with greatest caution, and tramps likely through to his own destruction. A man's life may be at stake at any moment, if daring work is to be undertaken. The guide is a native of the country. He has passed his life in some profession like that of farming or herding that takes him out of doors. He learns the meteorological moods of the country as he does its geography.

The native learns, through constant experience, the habits of his cliffs and glaciers, the meaning of the crevasse and the delicacy of method required for determining its location; he realizes the irresponsibility of snow bridges. He knows of avalanches, and the accidents and incidents that move them. He always has in his mind the language of the mountains and their surroundings.

The amateur may be able to surpass the guide in safe daring by the quality of mind that he can bring to bear. Nevertheless the sacrifice of life through incompetent mountaineering is large. There is in this country a safe and sane Fourth of July movement. But the lives saved hardly exceed the mortality of the careless Alpinist. A movement for safe and sane Alpinism would effect nearly equal results so far as mere mortality is concerned. Yet the pendulum is swinging away from safety in Alpinism: it is rather in the direction of greater daring in proportion to intelligence and experience, and inevitably there will be greater losses. Self confidence effects most startling results. At above 12,000 feet the mountaineer has met men sauntering along in a threatening position without utilizing the rope. It was not because they did not know. Guideless Alpine climbing may be approved when it is undertaken by the few whose experience fits them to understand the dangers of walking over crevassed glaciers and treacherous ice slopes, but the achievements of these men must not be too highly accented by the general tramping public, for in such practices there may be to them too great a measure of risk.

SCOTS WILL DANCE.

Clan Stewart Decides to Continue Its Monthly Parties.

At the last meeting of Clan Stewart, it was decided to continue the monthly dancing parties through May. The clan has given a popular monthly dance on the second Wednesday of each month during the winter. Whether a dance should be given in May was left open, but the demand from the patrons of the monthly party was so strong that the clan decided to continue the practice during this month. The next party will be given at the U. O. F. hall, 112 Fourth avenue west, on next Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock. Di Marco's orchestra will furnish the music as usual, and one tango will be permitted, according to the decision of the clan some time ago.

On May 27, the clan will have another "guid Scots nicht" with a complete change of program. The latter half of the program will be given over to a minstrel show under the direction of Richard Jones.

SHRINERS OFF FOR ATLANTA; "LULU" NEARLY KIDNAPED

THE IRREPRESSIBLE DRUM CORPS.

Wearing "It's Cool in Duluth" buttons the Shriners left last night for Atlanta, Ga., to take part in the annual meeting of the imperial council. The official representatives of Aad temple are Potentate H. W. Richardson and Past Potentates T. P. Bradley, Jesse Norton and Henry Nesbitt. The representatives and some of the others who took the special Soo train to Atlanta, went from the Masonic temple to the depot in carriages, accompanied by the Arab patrol, headed by the drum corps, and followed by Musical Director A. F. M. Custance leading a column of the Shrine girls, wearing their white fezzes.

Many Shriners who were unable to accompany the delegation, went to the station to see the more fortunate off, and in the depot the Shrine girls gave several selections at which they excel, and the special pulled out amid rousing cheers.

"Tilt" Lewis, manager of the St. Louis hotel, appeared at the station in his famous "Lulu" make-up and flirted outrageously with the men about the station until they got wise to who he was. He was nearly kidnaped by the out-going Shriners and had to fight to get away.

Signature.....

Address.....

Fill out this blank and mail to the Festival Editor of The Herald before May 10. The American Exchange National bank will give a $10 price for the best name suggested.

This is a new contest and distinct from the former one which closed May 1.

Names must be in the hands of the festival editor of The Herald not later than 9 o'clock Monday morning to be considered.

These names will be passed upon by the committee appointed by the general midsummer festival committee, and later submitted to the general committee, and the prize winner will be awarded the $10 donated by the American Exchange National bank. The prize winning name will not necessarily be chosen for the festival.

A second meeting of the general committee will be held Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Commercial club. At that time three sub-committees will report. One will submit the list of names for the festival. Another will submit a constitution and set of by-laws, and the third will submit a tentative slate of officers for the permanent committee.

MOTHERS ARE REMEMBERED

Special Exercises in Schools ---Lefkovits Speaks on "The Loving Mother."

Duluth Pastors Will Deliver Appropriate Sermons on Sunday.

With fitting exercises Mother's day was observed in the public schools yesterday, and nearly every church in the city will hold appropriate services tomorrow.

There will be special songs and services in commemoration of the day, which has been set aside for the reverence of "the best mother that ever lived."

It is also interesting to note at this time that the United States senate yesterday afternoon passed a resolution setting aside the second Sunday in May as Mother's day and instructing the president to issue a proclamation each year announcing this day. Mother's day was originated by Ann Jarvis of Philadelphia, several years ago and is now observed in every state in the Union.

The day is outwardly observed by the wearing of a white carnation for the mother who is dead or a red one for the living.

Last evening Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits of Temple Emanuel, preached a special Mother's day sermon on "The Loving Mother." He said in part:

"Every Madonna that has been transmitted to us from an inspired branch of those who dedicated their art to the service of religion at the suggestion of the church, every mother and child that the church has consecrated for its various altars, signifies to me no miraculous birth, no supernatural story in magical relations, but a tribute to living motherhood.

"Of all God's creatures, of all those to whom he has in his mercy and wisdom given life, none is to be compared to the woman who, from the time of the child's birth, when she offered her own life to bring it into existence, until her eyes, alas, are closed in death, finds her soul bound up in that of her child and continues to live for it, to watch over it, to rejoice in it, to share its sorrows and delight in its joys as none other can or will.

"Mother is the sweetest name that human lips can utter. Mother is the sainliest relationship of which human lips can speak. Mother is the most hallowed personage in all the earth—the holiest being alive. Mother! Oh, what worlds of sacrifice this name tokens! Mother! What worlds of strength this name means! Mother! How graceful, how sweet, how inspiriting, how uplifting, how spiritualizing is thy influence!

"Teach your daughter that there is no disgrace in her understanding something about the home and how to conduct it. Understand, loving mother, that it is the great duty of womanhood to provide a proper nest for the little ones, and that the mothers' place cannot be safely taken by any other person.

"Let the spirit of this Sabbath called Mothers' day, arouse within you the sense of duty. Let it arouse within you the desire to be called loving mothers, mothers who can teach the child to worship the truth, to consecrate itself to the service of the higher things in life, to walk in the path of uprightness and purity. Ah, if that were but your desire, O mothers, children would rise and say, 'Thrice blessed be ye, mothers of the race. What we are, ye made us! What we love, ye planted within us. What we hope for, ye gave us eyes to see. What we worship next to God is your honored selves, O loving mothers.'"

Plans for spring athletics were talked over in a meeting called on Monday afternoon, and at this time Athletic Director W. H. Schilling spoke on the various phases of the subject. If suitable grounds can be secured an interclass championship series in baseball will be arranged for at once, and as all classes were well represented it seems probable that the tournament will be arranged. President Roderick Dunn of the athletic association named Percy Stevens, Anton Foryjack and Edgar Smith as a special committee on grounds. Considerable interest was manifested in regard to track work and the prospects for holding a class championship meet are very bright. President Dunn appointed Harold Smithies, Robert Kerr and William Culkin as a special committee on looking up track facilities. This committee has set May 22 as the date for holding the interclass meet.

* * *

The A and B lists were read before the assembly on Monday morning and showed a noticeable gain by the sophomores of honors in scholarship. The report cards were given out Monday and returned on the dues day.

Sherman O'Brien has been elected captain of the freshman baseball team and has called the first practice for today at Thirty-second avenue west and Superior street.

Dr. John W. Hoffman of the First M. E. church gave the Wednesday morning chapel talk on "Why Am I in School?" Dr. Hoffman outlined the three great purposes of education as being technical, cultural and social and placed the emphasis of his remarks on the social conception of education. The speaker pointed out the tendency to narrowness among business and professional men and urged the students to keep the mental interests alive and to get a broad vision of life. Dr. Hoffman pointed out such men as Ruskin and the earl of Shaftesbury as real benefactors of mankind.

* * *

The commercial classes have organized a baseball team and elected Joe Bendastar, catcher, as captain. It is the purpose of the commercial students to issue a challenge to the Agricultural club, as that organization has some of the prominent athletes of the school within its membership.

* * *

Spring track work was given its initial tryout on Wednesday when a number of boys showed up for the first practice. The annual interclass meet will be held on Friday, May 22.

The Athenaeum Literary society held its regular weekly meeting and the club listened to a debate on the following question: "Resolved, That the Panama Canal Tolls Act Should Be Repealed." A schedule of senior makeups in spellings has been posted in the senior session rooms and all students who know themselves to be delinquent will make arrangements to pass off these examinations on May 19, 22 and 27.

* * *

The final open dance of the year will be held this evening at the Central high school. The dancing parties have been a great success this year and the students seem delighted with the prospect of being allowed to place some of the new dances on their programs for this occasion. A number of the new dances were given a try-out at the recent sophomore party and those in charge were persuaded that it would be all right to allow certain of the new dances. However, some of the new ones will not be allowed.

* * *

Mr. Bates appeared before the students on Friday morning and spoke briefly in behalf of the Memorial day exercises and invited the student body to co-operate again in the exercises of Decoration day. He thanked the students heartily for their splendid cooperation of last year and stated that it would very likely be possible for the citizens' staff to again provide transportation for the girls. Because of the conditions existing in the nation at present, Mr. Bates urged an especially strong showing by the boys of the high school and closed his remarks by the theme, "My country, may she ever be right, but right or wrong, my country." Principal Leonard Young indorsed the appeal of Mr. Bates and stated that plans would be made in due time for a loyal co-operation.

STOCK WAS NOT DELIVERED

F. E. House Sues Firm of Bankrupt Brokers for $11,775.

Gay & Sturgis, stock and bond brokers, who recently failed, were yesterday made defendants in a suit to recover $11,775 brought by Francis E. House, who alleges that he engaged the Duluth branch to negotiate the purchase of a block of 100 shares of Northern Pacific Railway company stock and that after he had paid them the money he neither received the stock nor his money back.

The deal with the brokers, Mr. House alleges, was made on Feb. 5, last, while he was temporarily sojourning in California. He states that he directed his agents to buy the stock at the prevailing market price. He was notified that the deal had been closed and paid the brokers $11,775 and their commission. A receipt was mailed him but when he returned to Duluth and called for the stock he was told that it had not yet arrived. Judgment is demanded for the amount paid to the brokers plus 6 per cent interest.

The action is instituted against Harry H. Gay, Irvine J. Sturgis and R. Linzee Hall, as co-partners in Gay & Sturgis and as individuals. The brokerage offices of the company located in New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota and elsewhere failed about three weeks ago. Branch houses closed simultaneously.

BEST PRODUCTS OF STATE IN EXHIBITS

Will Be Shown at State Fair Grounds Beginning May 15.

When the gates of the Minnesota state fair grounds are thrown open to the public on the morning of May 15, which marks the beginning of a three days' centennial celebration of Norway's independence, Minnesota will be represented with a complete agricultural exhibit placed there by the Minnesota state board of immigration. Many thousands of visitors from other states will be present to take part in this celebration, and it is the opinion of Commissioner Fred D. Sherman that this will be a good opportunity to exploit Minnesota.

The exhibit consists of all kinds of farm products, grains, grasses, preserved fruits, vegetables, etc.; mineral from Minnesota's iron mines, stone from her stone quarries, and manufactured goods from her clay beds. In fact, the exhibit will be made as near complete as possible, and the attendants in charge of the exhibit will distribute thousands of pieces of literature to visitors at the booth.

Mr. Sherman has invited one delegate from each congressional district to represent his respective territory and assist at the booth. Those appointed are as follows: First district, John Deets, Mankato; Second district, A. T. Skinner, Albert Lea; Third district, Dr. R. H. Benham, Dakota county; Fourth district, A. R. Burr, St. Paul; Fifth district, E. A. Farmer, Minneapolis; Sixth district, W. R. Mackenzie, Minneapolis; Seventh district, Mert Harrison, Morris; Eighth district, C. F. Mahnke, Moose Lake; Ninth, P. B. Gaass, Red Lake Falls; Tenth district, J. A. Stoneberg, Cambridge.

Work of installing the exhibit will begin Tuesday morning, and will be in readiness to receive the visitors when the celebration begins.

BULL MOOSERS FOR ROOSEVELT IN 1916

Kansas City, Mo., May 9.—The state committee of the Progressive party decided here against fusion with the Republican party in state or nation, and ended its meeting with the adoption of a resolution favoring the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt for president in 1916.

The committee also went on record for the county unit bill and pledged itself to begin a campaign at once to aid the women of Missouri in their efforts to secure the ballot.

BODIES WASHED TO SHORE IDENTIFIED.

Chicago, May 9.—The bodies of two men taken from the lake at the foot of East Oak street yesterday were identified as those of two keepers of the Lawrence avenue crib, who were drowned in Lake Michigan, one last November and the other in February.

The body of William Radigan, who lost his life last fall when a rowboat overturned in a storm, was identified by his widow. Mrs. Sarah Ackerman identified the other body as that of her brother, William Cannell, cribkeeper, who succeeded Radigan, and who was drowned with two companions when their boat was overturned by ice floes last February.

FOREST LAND TO BE RESTORED TO DOMAIN.

Washington, May 9.—The senate territories committee ordered a favorable report on a bill restoring to the public domain the Chugach national forest in Alaska. There are 18,000,000 acres in the forest, created several years ago by presidential order.

Hearings on the Alaska railroad bill, members of the committee say, developed that the timber in the Chugach forest is not merchantable and that there is enough rainfall in the territory to take care of agricultural lands without conserving the forest as a rain shed that as a reserve it costs the government about $16,000 annually. There was no opposition to the bill in the committee, but it may be opposed on the floor of the senate.

NEGRO BURNED OUT AND SHOT BY POSSE.

St. James, La., May 9.—Driven from his place of refuge when a posse set fire to a barn in which he was hiding, Sylvester Washington, a negro desperado, was killed near here late yesterday. Before he was driven from cover the negro shot two of the posse, fatally wounding one.

Washington was wanted for killing one white man and wounding another.

NEW BIPLANE KILLS PERCIVAL VAN NESS.

Utica, N. Y., May 9.—Percival Van Ness of this city, a licensed aviator, was killed here last evening when his new biplane turned turtle. Van Ness had just completed the machine. He took it to the race track at Deerfield and ascended. He made a short test flight and then endeavored to make the higher. He had risen about fifty feet when the biplane turned over and fell to the ground, with the young man beneath.

CALIFORNIA BUNGALOW.

We present to our readers this week the last of The Herald series, a California bungalow. The exterior construction of the porch is cobble stones and the posts are those characteristic of this type. The interior arrangement of the building provides for what is known as the five-room bungalow. The interior finish of the first floor is birch with maple floors. On the second floor provision is made for one bedroom and sleeping porch if so desired. The house would cost to build in Duluth or vicinity about $4,200. Next week will begin the Newlywed series. The first presentation will be that of the American type to cost, complete, about $2,500. The designs are rendered with a view to interestnig those who desire a modern home with a commensurate outlay.

ORDERED TO PAY ALIMONY

Court Gives Robert Blackwood Forty-Eight Hours to Make Good.

Robert D. Blackwood, proprietor of a down town cigar store, was given forty-eight hours by Judge Fesler in district court this morning in which to catch up on delinquent alimony payments to his wife, Ethel Barry Blackwood.

Blackwood came into court on an order to show cause why he should not be punished for failing a former order of the court requiring him to make certain payments.

It was alleged by G. W. C. Ross, attorney for Mrs. Blackwood, that he had refused and failed to pay the May house rent as had been ordered by the court. The court ordered him to make the payments at once or suffer the consequences.

* * *

Judge Ensign late yesterday afternoon granted Fred Steffen, 31, a divorce from Anna Steffen, 30, on the grounds of cruel treatment. The court made an order, however, requiring Steffen to pay his wife $20 a month alimony. The case was contested.

* * *

Judge Fesler granted three decrees on the grounds of desertion. They went to Cora Sy, 31, who alleges that Amos Sy, 32, whom she married at Superior May 23, 1906, had abandoned her May 26, 1912; Mary Iagela, 24 who declared that exactly three months after she had married Ignac Iagela, 23, at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., she was a deserted bride, and Mary Link who claimed that she had been abandoned by her husband, Carl Link.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY ADJOURNS.

Washington, May 9.—With the election of officers, the annual meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis adjourned. Dr. George M. Kober of Washington, D. C., was elected president, and Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the public health service, was made a member of the board of directors.

Other officers elected are: Dr. Lee K. Frankel of New York and Dr. W. Jarvis Barlow of Los Angeles, vice presidents; Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs of Baltimore, secretary, and William H. Baldwin of Washington, D. C., treasurer. Seattle, Wash., and Chicago were urged for the meeting place next year, but no decision was reached.

GETS $20,000 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

California Woman Wins Case Against Railroad Company.

Ullah, Cal., May 9.—A judgment of $20,000 damages against the Western Pacific Railroad company for the death of her husband was granted by the superior court to Mrs. George C. Meyser of El Paso, Tex.

Meyser, a contractor, was riding on a construction train when three rocks weighing about ten tons each rolled down a 135-foot slide and crashed through the train. One rock killed Meyser.

Meyser was a son of George H. Meyser of Ogden, Utah. The widow, father and mother were plaintiffs. They sued for $60,000.

SHRINERS IMITATE ORIENTAL SPLENDOR.

New York, May 9.—Downtown New York was offered a spectacle of Oriental pomp and color when four temples of Shriners from California, with potentates at their head, all in Arabic dress and preceded by a band of 120 pieces, marched from a Hudson river ferry to the city hall plaza yesterday to be received by Mayor Mitchel. A stand had been erected on the plaza, from which the band played during and after the reception. The Shriners are on their way to a convention to Atlanta, Ga.

Mayor Mitchel complimented the visitors on their progressive state, and Col. George Filmer, potentate of Islam temple of San Francisco, returned the compliment in kind.

Large crowds massed on the plaza waited through the concert of what the mayor had described as "an exceptional band."

MISSOURI PACIFIC PLAN IS REJECTED.

New York, May 9.—The latest attempt to readjust the finances of the Gould railroad system came to naught when Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, announced yesterday their refusal to extend the $25,000,000 of Missouri Pacific railway three-year notes which mature on June 1. The bankers declined to state the reasons for their conclusion, except to say that "conditions governing the affairs of the property do not warrant such an undertaking at this time."

It is expected that a detailed statement dealing with Kuhn, Loeb & Co.'s examination of Missouri Pacific by their experts, and probably incorporating the substance of their offer or communication to the Gould interests, will be issued early next week.

Seek Some Other Plan.

Directors of the Missouri Pacific were holding a special session at the time the bankers issued their statement, but soon adjourned to meet again today, when it was expected some arrangement would be made to meet the Missouri Pacific notes. This may be done by an issue of new notes, bearing a higher rate of interest, or may be effected by an extension of a year of more, together with a cash bonus.

Speyer & Co., who floated the notes now falling due, and who are represented in the Missouri Pacific directorate, would not discuss the latest turn of events, except to express the belief that the demands of the note holders would be met.

Imports in New South Wales in 1913 from countries outside Australia showed a net increase of about 18 per cent.

MOTHER'S DAY.

Tomorrow, by a pretty custom adopted a few years ago and recognized more every year, is Mother's Day.

Surely everybody can find the time and opportunity to observe this day, if by no more than the wearing of a flower in memory of the mother who is gone, or the sending of flowers or other gifts—better still, a letter—to the mother who is living.

And nobody will fail in this who stops to think of the many years of their youth when every day was their day in mother's heart, as every day is still if she still lives.

The other day, in less than three hours, the inmates of the Minnesota state prison subscribed more than two hundred and fifty dollars to a fund to be spent in carnations, to be worn by them tomorrow in honor of their mothers—the mothers whose aching hearts have been torn by the tragedy of boys gone wrong, the mothers whose love has never waned no matter how bad these boys have been.

Surely those of us who are outside the barred windows that are within the grim stone walls can do as well.

Remember mother tomorrow, be she living or be she dead. Give back to her, if on this day only, some slight evidence of your return for the love she gave you all her life long in unstinted measure—a love that, like no other love on earth, grew greater for your misfortunes and your failures.

* * *

In the Prison Mirror, published in the Stillwater penitentiary, appears this poem, written by an inmate:

MOTHER LOVE.

Written for the Mirror by Beau Fepsita.

If all things they say of me
Be true as true,
And Mother knows that they are so
She'll not reprove;
"Dear boy of mine, I'll always be
The same to you:
Where e'er you are, or near or far,
You have my love."

If I am sunk in blackest mire
Of deadly sin,
It matters not a single jot
To Mother-heart:
"Dear boy of mine, you cannot tire
The love within
My heart, I weep but bonds which keep Us two apart."

If I am lost to man's estate
It gives her pain—
Yet she forgives while yet she lives,
All save neglect!
"Dear boy of mine, 'tis not too late
To turn again;
The day is long to right the wrong,
The fault correct."

Then how should I increase the cross
She has to bear?
I turn today the other way,
To seek the good.
"Dear boy of mine, the only loss
Beyond repair,
Of Motherhood."

This is the time of year when the inexperienced gardener may be heard to call a spade almost anything unprintable.

THE REFORM OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

With recent advances in municipal government, county government is about the poorest as a rule that remains; and it is at the same time the least frequently considered in discussions of governmental reform.

The New York Short Ballot organization is attempting to interest the public of that state in applying the city manager plan to counties.

Besides doing away with nearly all elective county officers except the members of the county board, the plan is to provide a well paid chief executive or county manager to be hired by the county board from anywhere, to hold office at their pleasure, and to give all his time to their service.

Many are coming to believe that the city manager plan is a step beyond the commission plan, though it cannot be said that this is well enough demonstrated as yet to be widely accepted.

The idea of applying this plan to county government is interesting and attractive; and certainly county government is as greatly in need of reform as any branch of government in this country.

In point of fact, it will be found that where county business is well managed, in a great many cases something very like the county manager plan has grown up informally, with the county auditor acting as county manager. Occasionally good results are due to an exceptionally strong county board; but more often they are due to the fact that the county is fortunate enough to have a broad-guaged man as county auditor.

Few people realize, probably, the importance of the county auditorship. In many cases it is not important because the county auditor contents himself with performing his duties in a perfunctory manner. But where a county auditor does his full duty, and not only mechanically audits the county's expenditures but actually passes upon them and upon the wisdom or lack of it that created them, the public gains a great deal more than it realizes. It is but a short step from that, too, to advising with the county board before expenditures are ordered, so that the county auditor not only audits expenditures, but participates in the levying of taxes and gives the county board the benefit of his business judgment and his peculiarly valuable viewpoint of the county business as a whole.

In nine cases out of ten, then, where county business is efficiently conducted, it will be found that the county auditor is practically acting as county manager. Nobody need go farther than St. Louis county for such an instance, for County Auditor Halden is not only county auditor, but such is the confidence placed in him by the county board that by working with the board in an advisory capacity he is practically the county's business manager.

And there cannot be success in county government under the present plan unless that condition exists, because while the county commissioners meet once a month or so the county auditor is on the job all the time, and through his books has a complete bird's-eye view of the county business.

All that the adoption of the county manager plan would be, then, would be to make legal and official what has already come about informally in this and many other counties.

By the digging of a canal, Cape Cod has been made an island. Yet it is likely interested parties would object to its being dubbed "Cod Isle." (To paragrapher: Don't you mean Cod Liver Isle?—The Editor.)

"HAVE COURAGE, MY BOY, TO SAY 'NO.'"

Chauncey M. Depew lately addressed an organization assembled to do honor to him on his eightieth birthday; and his talk made it plain that that rarely reached milestone found him cheerful if not gay, in splendid spirits and sound health, and with much of the buoyant spirit of youth still lighting his steps down into the Valley of the Shadow.

How did he manage it?

There's no secret about it. He told his audience all about it, and there is scarcely a man or woman living who cannot—bar accident—parallel his experience if he will.

"I have found the best insurance policy," he said, "is THE ABILITY TO SAY NO. Many of my friends have died before their time, because they could not resist the appetites which destroyed them. Abstinence is hard at first, requires will power and self-denial, but abstinence soon conquers desire.

"Ever after is the joy of victory and confidence in that mainspring of life—the will.

"I have tried, or known others who have tried, allopathy, homeopathy, osteopathy, Christian Science, faith cures, Swedish exercise, massage, famous healing springs, Turkish baths, chasing climates or other famed preventives and cures for relief from ills, or to prevent their recurrence or preserve long and healthy life. All have merits. But mind governs matter, and to laugh with our friends, to contribute to their cheerfulness, to find out and enjoy the inexhaustible good fellowship which can be found in everybody, have done more than all else to keep me healthy and happy."

That's all; just learn to say no, and keep yourself cheerful. Keep on top of your "symptons"—never let your symptoms get the upper hand of you.

With most, health is like wealth—they seek it by some royal road. They stuff themselves, gorge their veins with drink and rich food, and when they get sick hope that a pill, a potion, a hocus-pocus or a medicated bath will make them well again so they can resume stuffing.

Just so with wealth—refusing to seek it by the only road of self-deprivation and saving, by spending less than we get, we spend all we get and more, and hope vaguely that we shall inherit riches or win them by some sudden stroke of fortune.

We hope to reap health and wealth where we have not sown. And so we are disappointed in both.

Ambassador Page was one of the speakers at a London dinner of literary men. It would seem that might be a reasonably safe place to indulge in humorous remarks.

THE LAW AND LABOR IN COLORADO

Some very curious things are coming to light in Colorado since the Mexican situation eased up so the country could give its attention to the condition of civil war that has prevailed there.

For instance, why is it that statistics show more deaths by accident in the coal mines of Colorado than in all the rest of the country put together?

A study of the demands of the United Mine Workers, which led to all this trouble, and of certain state laws in Colorado, may help to throw light on that question—also on the question why the state government has been unable to maintain peace and order.

If this study shows that there are too many fatal accidents in Colorado coal mines because the mining companies have been permitted to violate state laws, and that the state's attempt to force peace failed because it was recognized as a move in behalf of the mine-owners, Colorado will still have an opportunity to explain away this appearance.

1. That the miners might choose their own check weighmen, who measure the coal as it is mined.
2. That the miners be allowed to trade at any store, and that they be not compelled to buy at company stores.
3. That the men be paid twice a month in cash.
4. That working conditions be bettered.
5. That the union be recognized.
6. That there be a ten per cent advance in pay.
7. That there be an eight-hour working day.

Now here is where the outsider becomes puzzled: The demands numbered 1, 2, 3, 5 and 7 are already provided for by STATE LAW!

The law now requires the companies to let the men choose their own weighmen; yet the miners had to ask the companies for this right.

The law now prohibits payment of any part of an employe's wages in goods from a company store; yet the miners had to ask the companies to leave them free to trade where they pleased.

The law now requires all corporations except railroads to pay semi-monthly in cash; yet the miners had to ask the companies for this right.

The law now prohibits an employer from interfering with the employe's right to belong to a labor union; yet the miners had to ask the companies to recognize their union and to let them belong to it.

The law now limits the working day in Colorado to eight hours; yet the miners had to ask the companies to grant them an eight-hour working day.

Last November the governor of Colorado proposed mediation, and among the matters he asked the companies to treat upon was whether or not they would obey these state laws!

It is no great wonder, in view of these disclosures, that Colorado coal mines kill more men by accidents than the mines of other states, that Colorado was unable to bring the strikers to terms when it had long been winking at violation of state law by the companies, or that the government of the United States had to send troops into Colorado to restore peace and stop bloodshed.

One answer is plain, at least, to the question who owns the government of Colorado: the coal miners don't.

Will Sarah Bernhardt's press agent have the nerve to announce that the divine one will do any tango stunts during her new farewell tour?

THE FARM SPECIAL.

Monday, May 18, the fourth farm special train run by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range will start on a trip lasting two weeks.

Its load of specialists in varied lines of farm activity will carry their several messages of better methods and greater profits to a dozen communities, all but one in St. Louis county; and these messages will be heard eagerly by more farmers than there are in any one of more than half the counties in Minnesota.

The astounding thing about this is that it is but a few years since the time when, if you spoke of farming in connection with St. Louis county, your hearers laughed politely, knowing that you intended to be humorous.

A great change has come since then, and the change is growing more pronounced every day. Now, St. Louis county is accepted as an agricultural county, and it is realized that in its soil is a source of wealth more lasting, if not greater, than that of its mines and its forests.

And a good deal of the credit for the change that has come to pass is due to the two railroads under whose auspices this farm special tour is to be made.

Anthony Fiala says Col. Roosevelt saw a seventy-five-foot snake in South America. Anthony should remember that six-cent verdict.

MEDIATION AND A CRITIC.

Recently the Chicago Evening Post, a Bull Moose advocate, said that "our acceptance or inspiration of the A-B-C intervention has in it the elements of an epochal blunder in statesmanship."

More recently still it produced the judgment of Maximilian Harden, published in his Berlin newspaper, to back up its own. Said Harden:

Woodrow Wilson's acceptance of South American mediation was a triumph for Latin-America, such a triumph as the Greeks and Montenegrins would have had if Austria had intrusted the settlement of its differences with Servia to their wishes. It is no happy augury for the success of the Panama festival, which was to have shown Americans in the glorious roles of sovereigns of their continent.

"This," proudly declares the Post, "is what we foresaw when we said last week that our acceptance or inspiration of the A-B-C intervention has in it the elements of an epochal blunder in statesmanship."

My! My! Aren't we smart! Because a German editor with a sour stomach, trying to survey a western hemisphere landscape with a European microscope, happens to see the A-B-C mediation as it does, the Post plumes itself on its vision, hurls bouquets at itself, pins roses on its breast and croaks loud self-praise!

Of course, if the United States aims to be the bully of the western hemisphere, to play snap-the-whip with its small-boy Latin-American neighbors, and to keep them in a state of subjection and fear—and hate—of it, then it was very foolish to let Argentina, Brazil and Chile endeavor to arrange a life-saving peace for us.

But if we do not covet the role of bully, if we are content to be superior only as we deserve to be and win recognition of superiority by deserts, and if we wish the friendship and confidence of our neighbors, the A-B-C mediation was the finest thing that has happened, and its acceptance the greatest stroke of statesmanship that has been made, in fifty years of neighborly relations with Latin-America.

But maybe you have to have Bull Moose specs to see it the way the Post does.

How long before the slangsters will modify "I should worry" into "I should work?"

SALARY AND WAGES.

"The Boston Globe asks for the origin of the word salary," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "But everybody knows that salary is merely wages veneered and gilded."

Not gilded very much, as a rule, brother.

Many prefer the salary, even when it is smaller—as it is on the average—on that account.

Spain exported four million pounds of cigarette papers last year. Here's a chance for Hobson to evolve a theory that Spain is trying to undermine the constitutions of the youth of other nations so she can defeat them at war.

THOSE WHO QUIT.

There was a very pleasant story not long ago about a young woman from the West, a daughter of millions, who went to Boston to begin a hospital course to fit herself for the profession of trained nursing.

She told her friends, very wisely, that not even inordinate wealth relieved anybody from the common obligation of work, that true happiness was to be found only in service to others, and that while she might idle luxuriously if she pleased, for her part she proposed to be of some use in the world.

All very pretty, very fine, very true.

But she quit!

The latest story about her is that after an experience of three months in the Boston hospital she went back home. The report was, she reports, that "three-fourths of my time was taken up in dusting, sweeping, making beds and household drudgery."

Of course. These things must be done in an afflicted household or in the house of pain, as well as taking temperatures, wiping fevered brows and other more picturesque duties.

And the nurse, in learning her business, must expect to learn how to do these things, too. She will not be supposed to do them, perhaps, but she must be able to do them if they fall to her.

Three months of real work took all the romance out of nursing, so she quit. Maybe she'll try something else. Maybe her fine ambition to be helpful to humanity will work itself out in some other way that will be less disappointing to her. We hope so. The ambition does her credit, and the failure of her first experiment is not particularly surprising nor discreditable.

But it is well for her, and for everyone, to know that the romantic side of heroism is only one side. The nurse, as a preliminary at least, must dust and sweep and make beds—must do household drudgery. The soldier must do much dreary and uninteresting labor.

And those who quit because of their discovery that it is not all romance but that much even of heroic tasks is unheroic and prosaic drudgery—they hardly ever figure in the annals of heroism.

In these days of skepticism about the only thing that is taken at its face value is a clock.

THE GARDEN FOR HEALTH.

The Herald has often prescribed the back yard garden as a substitute for potions and pills.

It is encouraged to continue offering the prescription by the fact that it knows that many have tried it and proved it good.

To plan a garden, to plant it, to hoe it, to weed it, to reap its fruits, to eat them; to labor with hoe and rake and weeder, with trowel and dibber and hose; to come in with a comfortable backache and a farm hand's appetite for food and sleep: to do these things is to be healthy and happy and efficient.

This has been our garden creed for years, and we are glad to pass on this excellent supporting advice from Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, who is health commissioner of Pennsylvania:

Plant a garden.

Some of the world's greatest thinkers have found diversion and inspiration in their gardens. If your control of agricultural space is limited to a twenty-foot back yard do not be discouraged. It is even possible to transform an unattractive flat roof into a garden.

The possibilities of exercise and profit to be derived from the cultivation of even a small plot are greater than one might think.

The use of the spade, the hoe and the rake prove the equivalent of many of the gymnastic exercises which everybody concedes to be beneficial and few persons take. In addition to the advantages of exercise in the open air, it is a keen satisfaction to the vast majority of men and women to see things that they have cultivated grow and mature.

The practical benefits derived from the tillage of a little garden are usually exceeded by the esthetic, but in the hurly-burly of everyday life perhaps we weigh as of too little importance our opportunities for the cultivation and appreciation of the beautiful. It is difficult to tell how far-reaching may be the effect of some slight effort at beautification.

The cultivation of twenty feet or more of back yard should prove a healthful, restful and profitable diversion after the labors of the day for the busy man or woman.

The American flag is sadly lacking on the seas, but any Vera Cruzan will testify it is all right on the seize.

DEMOCRATIZING THE CORPORATIONS.

About as humble and futile and helpless an individual as you can find anywhere is the small-fry stockholder in a railroad—or, for the matter of that, in any other large corporation.

Theoretically, a corporation is a democracy. The stockholders meet and elect directors, the directors elect officers, and officers and directors run the business for the benefit of the stockholders.

That's the way it is theoretically. Practically, it is vastly otherwise. The stockholders are scattered and unorganized, and the best most of them can do is to sign proxies dictated by those in control, and then take what comes to them with what grace they may.

W. W. Cook, who is described as a conservative corporation lawyer of New York, proposes a plan which he thinks would cure many of the abuses of the present system of management, and yet avoid government ownership.

He proposes that minor stockholders, instead of wasting their proxies and often using them to their own hurt, turn them over to an officer of the government. He would authorize members of the interstate trade commission to act in this capacity. Then he would authorize the commissioners to qualify and serve as members of railroad boards of directors if they are elected as such. And they might be, if they got proxies enough.

Mr. Cook believes that the presence of a government official on the board of directors of a railroad would quicken the moral preceptions of those in control and bring about the operation of the railroads in the interests of stockholders and public.

It seems not an unattractive notion.

It is hardly probable, for instance, that if this plan had been adopted on the New Haven railroad ten years ago, that splendid system would have been looted and the rights of stockholders sacrificed as they have been.

And the New Haven is not the only railroad that has been operated for the benefit of the clique in control of it rather than in the interests of stockholders and public.

Mr. Cook's idea seems at least worth thinking about.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Shortly after his defeat for congress last fall, Former Representative James Carson Needham of California bumped into William Kettner, who had been elected from the San Diego district of that state. Needham spoke of moving from his town of Modesto to Los Angeles or some large city to have a bigger field in which to practice law.

"Come to San Diego," suggested Kettner, hospitably.

"I guess it is a good town," admitted Needham.

"Good town! I should say it was," went on Kettner. "Do not think of going anywhere except San Diego. We need lawyers there. Oh, come and be one of us. We have room enough for all. San Diego's the place for you."

Kettner used to be an insurance agent and when he talks can make anything seem plausible and logical. At the end of an hour he had Needham talked into moving to San Diego. He is now a resident of that town. And what do you suppose he's fixing to do? Why, he's going to run for congress against Kettner. Inasmuch as Kettner would not otherwise have had any opposition for re-election, he is half inclined to think that hospitality can be overdone. He will have a care after this who he invites into his district.

Although he does a good deal of traveling over the country, Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota rarely travels at night. This is not due to any prejudice against sleeping in one of the Pullman company's berths, either. He journeys by daylight simply because he likes to do so. Not long ago he and a younger man had to go on a trip of fourteen hours or more and the other man naturally proposed that they go on a night train.

"Why do you want to go at night?" asked Clapp, as if the idea of night travel was a brand new wrinkle.

"To save time, of course," replied the man. "One has to sleep, anyhow. Otherwise one wastes an entire day."

"Waste a day!" exclaimed Clapp. "On a train! What're you talking about? Why, a train's the very place of all places where you don't need to waste your time. You sit in your office and people come in to interrupt you and you can fritter away an hour or two without accomplishing a thing. But on a train—there's the place to devote yourself to quiet reflection and think out things. Nearly every good thing I ever did I carefully thought out first while looking out the window of a train. No, indeed, you don't get me to go at night unless I have to. The chance to have a nice long day on the train is too precious to let go by."

So they journeyed by daylight.

When Andrew Carnegie was visiting Washington a while ago he fell into conversation with Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, and gave Daniels a long dissertation about his "morning flashes." For years he has been having "morning flashes," said Andy, and they have had much to do with his success in life. He gets out of bed with his mind refreshed and clear and something flashes into his head that he never thought of before—some brand new idea, or a sudden inspiration for a new line of procedure. Invariably he has acted on these notions that pop into his head early in the morning and they have worked out for the best.

Daniels was greatly impressed with Carnegie's talk about the morning flashes. As soon as Andy brought the thing to Daniels' attention, he recalled that he, too, had often had just such flashes, but had foolishly neglected, in many instances, to act on them. From that time on whenever Daniels has had a morning flash he has tacked it right down and used it.

A man who looked as if he might want something came along and sought an appointment with Uncle Jeremiah Donovan, member of congress from Connecticut.

"I'll see you at my office at 1 o'clock," promised Donovan. But he forgot about the appointment and was not in his office at 1 o'clock.

The man caught him finally and upbraided him for not keeping the tryst.

"What time were you there?" asked Donovan.

"This afternoon at 1."

"Oh, I guess I must have meant 1 a. m.," said Donovan, as he started to walk away.

"What hours can you be reached at home?" pursued the man.

"Hum. Somebody asked my wife that once," replied Donovan, and she said: 'Well, he's almost invariably at home between 2 and 4 in the morning.'"

* * *

Donovan has a habit of saying the more or less unexpected. When he first came to congress he fell into conversation with an old member and mentioned one or two important committees he wished to be on.

"You couldn't any more get on those committees," declared the old member, "than you could jump over the dome of the capitol over yonder."

Donovan looked over at the dome, studied it intently for a few moments and then remarked in a tone of conviction:

"I believe I could jump the blamed thing."

To Martha.

The spring brings the sunshine and showers;
The spring brings the robin red breast.
The spring brings the fragrance of flowers
And bids us to hope for the best.
The earth is gowned gorgeous with green, dear,
The skies are most wonderfully blue;
My thoughts I would willingly wean, dear,
From following, following you.

The snows of the winter are gone, dear,
The bitter wild winds are no more.
The song birds awake me at dawn, dear,
And bid me have hope as before;
But fast am I fettered to sorrow;
I yearn for the sound of your voice.
Again I must sigh on the morrow
Nor ever find heart to rejoice.

The past had its blossoms of pleasure,
The past had its promise, full true;
The past had great joys to treasure
And greatest of all it had you.
My step is made slower by years, dear;
My heart beats aweary with pain,
For my soul will be washed with my tears, dear,
Ere spring gives me gladness again.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Muldoon Treatment.

Almost everybody knows about Muldoon, famous repairer of broken-down business men. To this health specialist, with his inflexible regimen, captains of finance, legal lights, social leaders, submit themselves as to a medical Napoleon. Coming to his institution broken in body and bruised in spirit, it is said to be true that, within twelve hours, most of them wish themselves safely out of it. For a prime element in the Muldoon treatment is that the patient is given no sympathy whatever. He is not encouraged to talk or even to speak of his troubles. Instead of being stroked on the forehead and called "poor fellow" the exhausted millionaire is ordered about like a stable boy, allowed to shirk no unpleasant duty, and kept at each task assigned, even when he threatens to drop from fatigue.

Whatever one's theories as to the value of such a course, its actual results are beyond dispute. Hundreds of men suffering from exhaustion, excessive irritability, neurasthenia, with vital energies burned quite down to the socket, are turned away after their sojourn with Muldoon, cured. Depressed and humiliated at first by the lack of sympathy they soon cease to talk of their troubles to an audience so steadfastly unappreciative, and the first step is taken toward recovery.

It is true that the giving or receiving of sympathy, like much else that is good in this world, may be overworked. In its abuse no other useful gift may be more debilitating. Self-pity is a subtle and enervating vice that may fasten upon one before he is aware of it. A man may come to feel that his lot in life is one of peculiar difficulty. No other, the self-pitying one thinks, ever had such a burden to carry, or fought against such odds. Friendship is frequently abused at just this point. We say "a friend is not worth having unless one can go to him with his troubles." Acting on this theory we often pour into a loyal, if often wearied ear, long stories of distress that might better have been kept to ourselves.

It is not certain that every man who wears his heart upon his sleeve deserves the sympathy for which he whimpers. What he most needs may be candid advice to "brace up." The rude vigor of a motto displayed in a store window made an impression on the mind of at least one observer: "What many a man yearning for sympathy really needs is two swift kicks, properly placed."

All of which must be taken with a discriminating sense of the fitness of things. That were indeed wretched counsel which would discourage the giving of the priceless gift of sympathy when sympathy is needed. And how often that is in this rough-an-tumble world! But we may well beware lest a beautiful service be made to cater merely to selfishness of spirit. Life is a constant challenge to our heroic impulses. Scripture sounds the note unhesitatingly. "Quit you like men, be strong," is the ringing challenge of the Old Testament. "Endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ," is a noble call of the New. No premium is to be placed on weaknesses. Be strong.

We are not here to play—to dream,
to drift,
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle—face it; 'tis
God's gift.

Did They Call Him "Bill?"

Chicago Evening Post: Henry Clews offered these conjectures at the Shakespeare birthday dinner in New York: "I wonder if they really called him William in his own day. I doubt if they did. I believe that they called him just plain 'Bill.'"

It may be so, because Shakespeare seems to us a simple, human approachable person.

But it is not always so with the big figures of history. Does Mr. Clews remember the story of young Alexander Hamilton's trying to pat George Washington on the back "on a bet" and finding his arm palsied by its nearness to majestic greatness?

SOME OLD WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS OF NOTE

By SAVOYARD

Washington, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The death of George Alfred Townsend recalls the giants of that elder day who shed such luster on American journalism. Just as there are scores of greatest American lawyers, so there are numerous greatest American journalists. Some would give first place to Greeley, others prefer Dana. Raymond and the elder Bennett each had his partisans, but to my way of thinking Joseph B. McCullagh was the greatest American journalist.

He was an all around man, captain of every crowd he got into—reporter, editorial correspondent, writer of leading editorials, paragraphist, managing editor—and he was without a superior in any one of those departments. Nor is that all—he was a "downstairs" man as well as an "upstairs" man, and could manage the money end of his paper as well as the brains end of it. And so it is not strange that he made the Globe-Democrat the greatest newspaper America ever saw. One of his epigrams, rather profane, was that the secret of success in the newspaper profession was an intuition that would tell the editor "where hell would break loose next." His letters from this capital to the Cincinnati Commercial when Murat Halstead was editor of that paper have never been equaled and will never be rivaled.

When "Mack" left the Commercial it carried dismay into the ranks of the readers of that paper, but he was succeeded by Donn Piatt, whose letters were simply admirable. After two or three years he retired from the Commercial and was succeeded by H. V. Redfield. He, too, was a brilliant writer, and came here a very young man from Tennessee, though it is possible he was Northern born. A reportorial feat of his was the antecedent of the most momentous consequences journalist was ever responsible for.

The government had lavishly subsidized the Northern Pacific railroad, granting it vast sums out of the treasury and untold millions of acres of the public domain. The Commercial sent Redfield into Minnesota and Dakota to look at the road and tell the truth about it. He was gone several months and wrote a score of letters to his paper that were eagerly read by business men and politicians everywhere. In all there were sixty-four columns of as readable matter as newspaper ever printed. Before the last one appeared, Jay Cooke's bank, the fiscal agent of the road, failed, and thus was precipitated the panic of '73, the most disastrous in our history, population and wealth considered, and the longest continued—six years—of all the panics we have ever had.

I believe Redfield was about to enter the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church when he died, ere he had reached the age of 30 years. Had he lived and stuck to journalism his would have been one of the first names in the profession, and it ought to be one of them, anyway, but Fame's trumpet sometimes neglects the most worthy.

* * *

After Donn Piatt and "Gath" clashed, the former associated A. C. Buel with himself in the editorship of the Washington Capital, that Ben Butterworth said was as Democratic in its politics "as a Sunday paper could get to be." It was the sauciest paper and the brightest that ever fell from American press. At that time the average man looked upon a senator or representative in congress as a superior being. It was the mission of the Capital to disclose that they were made of ordinary clay and some of them dirt. It was a holy terror—the Capital—in its merciless warfare upon shams and many were the solons who dreaded the Sunday morning:

"Hear, Land o' Cakes, and brither Scots,
Frae Maidenkirk to John o' Groat's,
If there's a hole in a' your coats,
I rede you tent it:
A chield's amang you taking notes,
And, faith, he'll print it."

It was nothing in the nature of blackmail, no invasion of a man's private conduct. But the beam of publicity was let upon his public career, and if he was a dunce, or knave, he became the victim of savage invective or merciless ridicule.

* * *

The first page, every line of it, was written by Buel under the caption, "Review of the Week." Piatt had the editorial page, which he edited from his farm near Cincinnati. Piatt was a free trader and on his farm were large forests of hickory trees. At that time Cincinnati was to the manufacture of carriages and buggies what Detroit now is to automobiles, and Piatt had some dealings with the carriage makers in the timber line. He got stung and took his revenge in a chapter on the tariff duty on foreign buggies that was a scorcher. The closing paragraph is rather unprintable in this, perhaps, politer epoch, but the article if read in the church would make a Quaker congregation as hilarious with laughter as comedian ever made audience in the theater.

Buel got a job with a company building ships for our coastwise trade and moved to Wilmington, Del. He wrote the best life of Paul Jones and died a year or two ago. Piatt refused to return to Washington and the Capital was discontinued, to the great satisfaction of a great many great men.

A clean and able newspaper is the sheet anchor of the ship of state. A dirty, corrupt, lying newspaper is the most formidable weapon with which the devil can be equipped in his warfare on mankind.

This country has many of both sorts. But it is an intelligent public and the scoundrelly newspaper is sure to sink, while the honest newspaper is just as sure to rise.

The New Banking Law Explained.

OPERATION OF THE BANK ACT. By Thomas Conway, Jr., Ph. D., and Ernest Minor Patterson, Ph. D. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott company. $2 net.

The over-extension of credit in prosperous seasons with insufficient reserves owing to a lack of control and the inability of banks to render assistance to business enterprises in times of panic owing to the necessity of having to protect their own reserves are forcibly shown.

The attempts to amend the currency and banking laws are given, and steps leading to the enactment of the Federal reserve act are well stated.

The work of districting the United States, the commercial requirements of the various sections and suggestive locations of Federal reserve banks are logically given.

The provisions relating to the Federal board, the qualifications of its members and its powers are exhaustively discussed and analyzed.

The failure to develop and rediscount in American banking is pointed out, and the rediscount provision in the Federal reserve act is well treated.

The advantages which accrue to commerce, agriculture and every department of industry, under the provisions of the new law, as well as the pitfalls which may be encountered through unwise administration of its provisions, are recited.

The book is a valuable aid to students of finance, and furnishes much valuable information to those actively engaged in working out the organization of the Federal reserve banks, and will materially assist those who are seeking to gain practical knowledge of the application of the provisions of the Federal reserve bank act to the business needs of the nation.

Socialism, Pro and Con.

SOCIALISM: PROMISE OR MENACE? By Morris Hillquit and John A. Ryan, D. D. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.25 net.

Here, in book form, is the joint debate that lately progressed through seven issues of Everybody's Magazine. It was one of the most interesting discussions held in recent years, and it was particularly notable for the fact that with rare poise and restraint both the parties to it refrained from getting angry and calling names. They merely argued, and so there is light without heat.

Both are able advocates. They could hardly have been better chosen. American Socialism has no abler spokesman than Morris Hillquit—a Jew. Socialism has no abler opponent than Dr. Ryan—a Catholic priest. Dr. Ryan is admirably fitted to support the negative, not only by culture and study, but above all by the fact that he does not make the mistake of denying the evils against which Socialism hurls its remedy, but admits them and offers remedies of his own—and radical ones, too. Indeed, those who usually preface their attacks on Socialism by declaring that everything that is is beautiful and fair, and that improvement is impossible, will very likely be convinced that Dr. Ryan is himself a raving Socialist.

There is no better way to understand Socialism and the creed of the non-Socialist reformers than through a reading of this very readable book.

Which won? We shall not decide. The reader is the jury, even if, as we suspect, most readers will determine it largely according to their previous convictions. Both have acquitted themselves well, and the book is an important contribution to economic discussion and study.

Modern Society Facing Jesus.

"Jesus Is Here!" is a continuation of the narrative of "In His Steps," possessing the good qualities of that earlier work and open to the same class of objections.

The story is well told and threaded through with genuine human interest. Some of the paragraphs are exceptional in a literary way. Some scenes are most dramatic.

We get a picture in the opening chapter of Raymond after fifteen years. "What would Jesus do?" has wrought many wonderful changes, but there is a great circle as yet untouched. On the anniversary of the day on which the First church had taken the pledge to try to do as Jesus would, a little company of close Christian friends meets at the parsonage for a social hour and the discussion of discipleship. With each one there is a strange expectation of something unusual about to happen. A strange light has been seen in the sky for some evenings, and is rarely beautiful this evening. While the company is debating the possibility of Jesus' presence, Martha, the maid of the Maxwell home, startles them with the message, "Jesus is here, and has taken part in a prayer service at the mission." After telephoning — and every modern invention is brought into view in the story—they gain the information that He is a guest of the leader of the rescue work in the city.

Then Jesus appears in the home of His friends as a man, "only different;" at the university banquet, where He speaks solemnly upon the vices of student and professional life; at the editorial rooms of the leading machine paper, with an article for publication. In the homes of the poor He brings a blessing, in another He refuses to exert power to save from death, and follows with the mourners to the cemetery. After some days of public service in and Raymond, He suddenly disappears to take up a more radical work in New York, and mightily confounds the money-mad and pleasure-mad crowds. One most dramatic chapter is a picture of the Christ on the steps of the subtreasury building with a little child from the sweat-shops in His arms. From New York He goes unannounced to Washington to be present in congress when the vote is taken on the interstate commerce bill regulating the shipments of liquor in "dry" states. This visitation of Jesus closes with a wonderful demonstration at the world congress of religions in New York.

The exacting theologian will carp about a second incarnation, but the author has taken the point out of that objection by the fact that no camera is able to secure a picture of the Christ. He is a man, but "different."

The second coming is not the point of the story, and therefore the author is not called upon to present the Man of Nazareth as a king. He is simply visualizing the great gospel promise that Christ is with His church.

The book must be weighed in the light of the author's motive, which is a presentation of Jesus in the modern world. Today is far different from the world in which the historical Jesus was born. After a lapse of many centuries, the question is before the mind, how would Jesus act in this work-a-day age? This book brings the modern world face to face with Jesus as a real person. Christian life is vital relation to a risen Lord, but it helps greatly in realizing the fruitage of that relation to think of Jesus as abiding with men as a man, "only different." This the author accomplishes, and it it scarcely in place to criticize him for the ideas he might have presented. The work is well done, and well that it is done.

The Ignorance of Innocence.

THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE. By Cosmo Hamilton, author of "The Door That Has No Key," etc. New York: George H. Doran company. $1.25 net.

Probably there are few girls of 19 so completely ignorant of the facts of life that they would go to a young man's bed room at dead of night and see no wrong in it, and never even dream that anybody else would. Yet such a girl is the heroine in this tale—in fact, she makes the story.

The moral of it is, of course, that parents ought to tell their children the facts of life, and especially that mothers should tell their daughters—which is unquestionably true and vitally important, and well worth writing a play and a book about.

And a ripping play and a ripping book have come from this theme under the above title. Whether the play was written from the book or vice versa simultaneously we do not know, nor is it important. Play and book, each stands for itself. The book is not a novelized play, but a novel—well told, vigorous and enthralling.

The picture of the Rev. Harry Pemberton, optimist, "good scout" and splendid man, is alone worth the price of the book. His wholesomeness and common sense are fine to read about. He had married an angel, and they lived in a village paradise and were a pair of delicious innocents. They had a beautiful daughter whom they had brought up in ignorance—miscalled innocence—as the custom is, and Pemberton had taken in a young man for tutoring—a young man who was so wild that he had been given up by his father, but only because he had not been trusted and understood. Under Pemberton he expanded like a rose in warm sunshine, and proved to be true blue.

Of course he and Effie fell in love with each other, though she didn't know it at first. When he went to town for a trip and was away awhile she found it out, and when he came back she almost pestered him with her attentions. Finally, when she saw that he held back from her—which was because he saw she did not know what passions were driving her on, and wished to protect her—she went in her night attire to his room and fell to sleep in his bed, where he found her at a late hour. He took her to her own room, went in for a moment because she besought him—and was caught leaving there by her father!

As Pemberton, awakened by the fate of a poor little girl, lost and betrayed through her own ignorance, had told his wife to instruct their daughter, and as she had promised, of course, he presumed the worst. But his wife hadn't found the courage, and Effie was still ignorant—but safe, thanks to Archie Graham's manliness.

Thus is reached the big scene of the play, and the climax of the book. It's a rarely interesting sermon and a good story.

A Book of Joy.

THE MILKY WAY. By F. Tennyson Jesse. New York: George H. Doran company. $1.25 net.

"He who is light of heart and heel
Can wander in the Milky Way."
—Provencal Proverb.

This first book is buoyant, whimsical—a riot of youth and carefree vagabondage.

Vivien Lovel, alone in the world and stony broke, having rejected a well-to-do suitor, joins Peter Whymperis, strolling piper and budding author and as poor as she—and as lighthearted. The two, financed by pawning Vivien's watch, fare forth with "Little John," a baby that fell miraculously into her hands. They join a caravan of strolling players, try Fleet street as journalists, pick up pennies by sidewalk chalk art and flower-selling, "do" Provence for a book, and have all sorts of fantastic adventures with many merry companions.

We suppose that as a good Puritan we should have closed the book and averted a shameful face when Vivien and Peter went bathing together in a pool, in birthday suits, in the dusk of a morning in Provence. But we didn't—they were as innocent about it as two babes.

It's a light, delicate, entrancing tale full of the joy of youth and innocence and free hearts untrammeled by wealth and unterrified by poverty.

An Absorbing Tale.

"UNTO CAESAR." By Baroness Orczy. New York: George H. Doran company. $1.25 net.

The baroness has made a thrilling tale here, out of the abundantly rich materials of Rome in the time of Caligula the Monster, when the spirit of Christianity was just beginning to pentrate its darkness.

The hero is Taurus Antinor, the praefect of Rome, a stalwart and striking figure. He had to balk the idle plans of Dea Flavia, the imperial beauty, and so gained her hatred—hatred so intense that presently she loved him, against her will. He also had to balk the plans of the members of the praetorian guard who planned to kill the emperor and to supplant him with one of their own member, who was to be selected by Flavia and become her husband—though Flavia was not in the plot.

The plot to kill him reached the ears of Caligula, and he set a counterplot to detect the man whose hand was to strike the dagger home by a test in the arena, where the games were just beginning. It was a tremendous scene when a young praetorian guard who had indeed hoped for empire and the hand of Flavia was trapped to face unarmed a black panther, and when Taurus Antinor saved him.

The emperor's cruelty set ringing through the streets of Rome the terrible cry "Death to the Caesar!" and the tremendous romance of Flavia and Taurus sweeps to a mighty climax with the streets swarming with the risen mob, and the mighty Caesar cowering in his terror.

More "White Slave" Nonsense.

No valid excuse for the existence of such plays as these and such books as these ever has come to our notice. As plays, they belong to a class which lately inundated the country except where here and there the police stopped them, but the taste that patronized them was soon satiated and the craze has died out. Now they are out as novels.

They professed — hypocritically — to teach moral lessons. These moral lessons are as valuable as that bad is bad, sin is sin, black is black. As pictures of life they are absurd. They perhaps did comparatively little harm. Certainly they did no good.

And yet they have value, too. For in these plays and those like them appear the only authenticated cases of "white slavery" on record. White slavery is done almost exclusively on the stage and between the covers of sensational novels. For instance, the poison needle is in both these books—no qualified cadet ever goes without his poison needle. You jab a perfect lady in the arm, she staggers, faints and is about to fall when you grasp her in your arms, hustle her into a waiting cab, and land her in a house of prostitution to be a white slave.

Except that the operation is scientifically impossible, there is nothing wrong with this story at all.

The rubbish heap is the place for such plays and such books, and that's where they are going very rapidly.

A Mountain Tale.

In this age of the problem novel and the morality play the books are so few that fail to raise a question of some kind in the reader's mind, that it is with relief one reads a book, whose author was not ambitious to dip his thumb into the present-day Horner pie of fiction and bring forth the plum of cold bare facts. And in "Brilla" the reader finds a romance of a lie, built upon the simplicity and conditions of the southern mountain-folk. It is also interesting to note that the author has successfully made a lie romantic.

The incidents, although commonplace, are well developed and a unique plot has been concocted. The story of "Brilla," which recently appeared in serial form in Neale's monthly magazine, is briefly this:

Brilla Barker, a country school teacher, is in love with her childhood playmate, Jules Marzelle. The latter is anxious to enter politics, but is discouraged by his many friends, who are eager to keep him ignorant of the dishonor of which his mother has been wrongfully accused. It is feared that knowledge of this would ruin his career, but he finally disregards the entreaties of his friends, and enters the race for congress. As is expected, he learns very soon of the charges made against his mother and coupled with the thought that Brilla is about to marry the New Yorker visiting in the mountains, ambition in the young mountaineer is soon crushed.

Jules rallies, however, when a deathbed confession by "Hun" Giltson exonerates his mother and a little later when he discovers that Brilla is in love with himself.

DIRECTORS OF NEW HAVEN SUBPOENAED

Washington, May 8.—William Rockefeller, George Baker and George McCullough Miller of New York and Lewis Cass Ledyard, all directors of the New Haven railroad, have been called to testify next Wednesday before the interstate commerce commission in its investigation of the New Haven road. Former President Mellen of the road will be called later to tell of transactions between the railroad and the Billard company.

At today's session Charles F. Linsley, a manufacturer of Meriden, Conn., and a lifelong friend of John L. Billard, testified that at the suggestion of Billard, he had become one of the incorporators and a director of the Billard company.

"Five shares of stock in the company were put in my name by Mr. Billard," said the witness, "but I never had any knowledge of its business. I acted in the matter merely as a friend and neighbor of Mr. Billard who really was the whole company."

About noon the inquiry was adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

THE LOCAL SPORT COLONY IS WATCHFULLY WAITING FOR BASEBALL

Duluth Looks Good So Far Upon the Sport Path of Progress; Fargo, Grand Forks and Winnipeg Will Be Played on Present Trip--- General Sport Gossip.

BY BRUCE.

IT IS naturally quite too early to prophesy of the teams of the Northern league. Only one alibi has been sprung as yet—that of the measly knothole in the fence at Winona—and until a number have been sprung in regard to the winnings and the losing of the various teams of the Burmeister circuit, make up your mind that the gallop for the gilded gonfalon is not well under way.

Judging from the games that have been played by the Dooks up until the time this stuff was penned, there is reason to believe that the White Sox have a real ball team. But again coming back to the statement that the season is yet too infantile in its progress to furnish any real line on the teams or the new players, it might as well be admitted that time alone will furnish some real dope on the contenders.

It is a shame that a player of the promise of Receiver Bachant of the Winnipeg team should be put out of the game in the initial contest. This catcher was one of the best of the league and his uselessness for the remainder of the season is bound to prove a grave handicap for the Peggers.

From the demoniac hitting done in the Winona-Duluth series by this man Osgood, it would appear so far as early appearances warrant any fragile belief, that Old Man Davis has picked up a stout oak swinger to round out and generally abet his merry band of pill pounders.

Looking over the names of the players in Pa Conrad's Fort William team gives one no adequate idea of the future ability of the new comer to our midst. Let us all join entwined hands and hope that the aggregation that is to represent Fort William is not of the despicable baseball caliber of the team that Billiard Room Owner Conrad placed in the field a year ago.

Duluth goes from the precincts of the city beautiful Winona to the barren prairie wastes of the Fargo-Moorhead combination, from thence to Grand Forks, then to the Peg, and then 'ome James for the opening of the season on the fragrant domestic lot.

Elmer Is Hitting Some.

AGAIN permit us to call attention to the fact that Elmer Miller is hitting the pill for old Mobile in the Southern league. Recently the Mobile outfit garnered seven hits, and of these stingy fragments the Miller boy was the author of three. In one of the other games of the past week he gathered two bingles while the rest of the Mobile side was combined in the making of five hits. If the doctor of emaciated nags and pained bow wows can continue this gait he is liable to advance from the Southern confines.

The Southern is a nice place to live in. See new fiction in our public library for confirmation.

The Lord Is Wobbling a Bit.

FROM London, cultured, refined, cold in a British prejudiced sense, foggy and addicted to cricket and tea and extreme pity for the colossal ignorance of some of the countries of the universe, comes rumors that the trip of the challenging English polo team may be given up.

You see Lord Wimborne, the backer of the team, is discouraged over the prospects of his outfit; and when an Englishman is discouraged over the prospects of a team that is going to oppose the bloomin' Yankees, indeed, Archibald, the said prospects must be of the indigo nature.

Buck up, old chaps, all is not lost. England is supreme at cricket, as the rest of us don't care to play it—and one of these days the successive successes of defending the cup may pall upon us, and then the old country, the mother country, so to speak, may win the trophy by default.

We Hate to Make It Right.

AN angry delegation from the University of Indiana waited upon us yesterday afternoon and stated in no uncertain terms that Judge Fesler was a graduate of the University of Indiana. It is stated that the judge did not appear upon the streets at all after learning that he had been named as a graduate of Northwestern. We hasten to do our small part in setting the matter right. It seems that Indiana has won three more victories than Northwestern in Western athletics in the last ten years, making the score between the rival schools, 4 to 1 in favor of Indiana.

The Rains That Please Not.

THINKING of money causeth a man to be narrow—spiritually—and leads him not unto ways of much thinking. For instance, the baseball magnates stop not and bless the rains of the spring, thinking not of the dollar they are losing but of the glad farmer and the golden wheat; rather do they curse and retire to long rooms that are divided by long and narrow counters.

Speaking of the rains that come in the springs, recalls to mind the rumor that the 1915 season will be marked by later openings. The magnates have lost coin this vernal period, and if there is one thing the magnates would rather do less than lose coin, said thing has not been discovered as yet, Dante's Inferno notwithstanding, and this Dante possessed a lot of lugubrious stuff.

John Ran True to Form.

OUR old and especially beloved friend, Jawn Ritchie, pipes up in shrill voice that Mike Gibbons ran unexpectedly into a tartar in the rough and uncouth person of Johnny Howard. If there is one thing in this sad and weary world that is extremely distasteful to us, it is disputing Mr. Ritchie, whose graying locks have long ago compelled our respect. And yet in the present incident we are compelled to state that Eddie Reddy was duly warned of the tough and fibrous person called Howard from disinterested persons, and while at the Head of the Lakes freely communicated these warnings to various persons. It is a shame, but once in a while Mike has to meet some tough one.

The Time for Action Ripe.

THE evening before last at Racine one John Wager refused to come through with the guarantee that he had agreed to give Joe Mandot and Johnny Griffith, and as the result of the action of the promoter the main bout of the card was not held. The preliminaries and semi-windup was pulled—but the stars—they wanted to see the sugar.

This is not the first time the promoters of Wisconsin and the boxers have been in trouble. Some of the promoters of the smaller towns make the mistake of guaranteeing large stakes and then welch on the proposition when the house does not make up the required amount.

Little fiascos and freckled trouble makers such as the one pulled at Racine will put the boxing game in Dutch. Since its appointment the Wisconsin boxing commission has failed to win plaudits from the assembled multitude, and one wonders if it is not time that its members showed some human intelligence.

RANGE TEAM VERY STRONG

Hibbing Comes Sunday for Game With the Woodlands.

Since the announcement that the strong Hibbing team is to open up the local baseball season with the Duluth Woodlands tomorrow at Athletic park, a vast amount of interest and enthusiasm has been stirred up among the Duluth fans, who have not been given the opportunity of seeing the great range team in action on the local grounds for several years.

It is likely a good sized crowd will be on hand to help usher in the return of the great summer sport, and the fact that the reputation of the two teams are of the best and that many familiar faces in the lineup of both teams will be seen, should serve to make the attendance even greater.

Few cities of its size can boast of the high class players the Hibbing has had on their team during the last eight years. The prominence that the team has attained among the independent teams of the Northwest is due mainly to the bunch of former league players who have been gathered together by Judge Brady, the popular and well known manager of the Hibbing team. Though now engaged in business, the Hibbing players still find time to play once or twice a week. Men like Brookins, Dave Williams, Carroll, Booth, Kleffman, who have reputations in league circles to be proud of, with the love and excitement of the game still running in their veins, are just as anxious to play as ever. That they will show their former ability this season is the prediction of the Hibbingites.

Despite the formidable array of talent that is to oppose them, the Woodlands have what is generally considered the strongest team in the Zenith City. It is claimed that several members of the Woodland team will bear watching by the scouts. If the past performances of young Muggsy McGraw, Arnie Olson, Hank Summers and Bill Case are any criterion to go by, and if they continue to show the improvement that is expected of them, a chance in faster company will undoubtedly be given them before another season.

The following is the way that the two teams will line up for tomorrow's game:

Woodlands—		—Hibbing.
Schaeffer	c	Carroll
Hughes and Hon	p	Booth and Williams
Menlece	1b	Burroughs
H. Summers	2b	Brookins
F. Summers	3b	C. Booth

IOWA EASY FOR GOPHERS

Varsity Makes Good Showing in Track Meet With Hawkeyes.

High and "Prep" Schools Will Be Represented in Field Meet.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hawkeyes were easy victims for the Minnesota track team in the annual dual meet in Iowa City. The Gophers got the big end of the 69 to 57 score.

Minnesota's strength in the weights and sprints gave her an easy lead, which was retained throughout the meet. At no time were the Hawkeyes ahead or even dangerously near. Because of the loose, slow track and a steady wind blowing on the home stretch, no records were broken, and light men were at a disadvantage over heavier sprinters.

Hamline university put another feather in its hat Wednesday by defeating Minnesota at Northrop field, 72 to 54, in the first track meet of the season. The day was wet and the grounds muddy, and no records were broken. Manning, a Hamline freshman, proved the individual star of the meet, winning first in two events, one second and one third. He was one of the most consistent point getters of the Midway team. For Minnesota Robertson starred.

Interscholastic Field Meet.

Every high school and prep school in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and North and South Dakota received this week an invitation from the University of Minnesota to send entries to the interscholastic field meet, which will be held May 29 at Northrop field The university invitation meet has been an annual affair for some time, but it was not held last year, because of the inability of the board of control to supply the necessary funds. It is expected that fifty schools will enter teams by May 25, the date by which entries must be in. It is not too much to expect that 500 men will take part in the program of thirteen events. Accommodations for this large number of prospective university guests are being solicited from the fraternities. Through the interfraternity council the manager of athletics made this request for help in caring for the men and from latest reports, most of the fraternities are responding willingly to the request.

In pursuance to its policy of encouraging student interest in competitive athletics, the board of athletic control announced a plan which will arouse the interest of a large number of men. A new style of gold medal, which the board has had prepared, is to be presented to every student who wins an event in competition with another school and at the same time, breaks the Minnesota records for that event. These conditions, while being far from impossible to fill, are sufficiently exacting to make the possession of the medal something to be desired. Howard Lambret broke the broad jump record with 22 feet, 11¾ inches, and will receive one of the first three medals. Sydney Stadsvold, who ran the two miles in 9:53 2-5, will get one; Henry Murdinck will be the third, because of making the mile in 4:33 2-5.

Engineer Swimmers Win.

The intercollegiate swimming meet held in the armory was won by the engineers, who scored 38 points to the academic's 27 and the laws' 7. The aggies and dents failed to score. By winning the meet, the engineers secured the silver loving cup offered by the deans of the various colleges. Every event was sharply contested and fast time was made by all the winners. A Minnesota record was smashed by Harbo of the academic team, when he made 48 feet 11 inches in the plunge for distance. The best point getters of the meet were Ellerby and Johnson, both of the engineering team.

Chicago succeeded in taking the second game from Minnesota by a score of 6 to 2 on Northrop field. Shull allowed the Gophers but four hits and fanned seven men. Although Roen gave eight hits, he fanned thirteen Maroons.

Tuesday at 6 o'clock at the armory in the final game of the interfraternity basket ball series, Phi Kappa Psi won over Alpha Delta Phi, thereby establishing themselves as undisputed champions. It was the closest contest seen in the league this year. Although far outweighed by the defeated team, the winners of the trophy put up a game scrap. The score stood 1 to 1 until the last three minutes of play and then Charles Gillen shot a basket from the field, thereby winning the game.

In the Sigma Delta Psi trials held last Saturday afternoon in the 100 and 120 high hurdles and high jump, there were ten men entered. Seven men qualified in the senior 100-yard dash, five in the junior high jump, and three in the hurdles. Hereafter, on account of the many postponements this year, the trials will be held weekly in the various events instead of holding them once every two weeks. By instituting this plan a trial will be made in at least one of the events before school closes, so that it will be possible for a man to make all qualifications in that time. There are at present a great number of men who have qualified in half or more of the events, and before many weeks it is hoped that there will be half a dozen or more eligible men.

WHITE SOX LOSE FINAL

Winona, Minn., May 9.—Winona won the third straight game of the series from Duluth yesterday by the score of 3 to 2, making the third straight game of the series that was won by the margin of one run.

The veteran, Blancke, was on the hill for the visitors and pitched an excellent game. Opposed to the spitball artist was a recruit named Keller, who held the visitors to four scattered hits, Phillips getting three of these. Keller had everything and held the Dooks safe most of the way.

As was the case in the two preceding contests the game was one of the best that has ever been played here. But one error marked the game and both of the teams played as if the season was at the very height. For the opening games of the season the series that ended with the game of yesterday has brought out some remarkable baseball.

In the first of the ninth Jerry Phillips, the dashing left fielder of the visitors singled, went to second on a passed ball, romped to third when a runner was being retired and crossed the plate when Freer sacrificed to center.

Deilke hit to short right in the last of the ninth. Commander O'Brien got his hands on the ball, but failed to knock it down. Wiegant, hitting for Keller, whiffed. Connell doubled and the tying run was in. Collins walked and Manager Davis doubled and the winning run was over.

PEGGERS AND TWINS TIE

Winnipeg, Man., May 9.—Winnipeg and Fort William played a draw battle here yesterday afternoon, the contest being called at the end of the eighth with the score at two all in order to permit the members of the visiting team to catch a train.

Boly for the locals and Furchner for the Twins pitched steady ball and had the batters hooked up. The visiting stick wielders secured but three hits off the classy twirling of Shorty Boly, and the foreign slab artist held the Peggers to three scattered hits. In addition to pitching a great game Boly secured three of the locals' six hits.

Boston Shuts Out Yankees.

Boston, Mass., May 9.—Boston shut out New York again yesterday, 3 to 0. Leonard allowed the Highlanders only three hits and struck out at least one New York batsman in each inning. Keating also twirled well, but his support weakened at critical times.
The Red Sox obtained their runs in the eighth inning. Carrigan singled, moved to second on Leonard's sacrifice and scored when Maisel threw wild, after failing in his attempt to field a slow roller by Engle. The latter went to second and scored on Hooper's infield hit. Hooper tallied on Speaker's single and Hartzell's wild throw. Score: R. H. E.

The game was called on account of darkness. The Athletics used three pitchers and the locals four in an attempt to stop the scoring. Plank started for the visitors, but retired at the end of the fifth, after the home team had scored four runs on a triple, two singles and a wild pitch. Score: R. H. E.

AL M'COY GETS KNOCKOUT HABIT

South Norfolk, Conn., May 9.—Al McCoy of Brooklyn, the middleweight who recently knocked out George Chip, last night knocked out George Pearsall of Chicago in the first round of a ten-round bout.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—Police stopped a fight here last night between Tommy McMahon, Pittsburg heavyweight, and "Kid" Kenneth of Taft, Cal., after it had run thirteen of its scheduled twenty rounds. Kenneth was too severely beaten, the authorities held, to be allowed to fight further. The decision was given to McMahon.

San Francisco, Cal., May 9.—"Red" Watson of Los Angeles was awarded a decision over Gilbert Gallant of Boston on a foul in the seventh round of a scheduled twenty-round bout here last night. A previous twenty-round match was a draw.

CHARLES CUTLER.

Westergaard		Cutler
29	age	29
229	weight	228
6 ft. 3	height	5 ft. 11
52	chest	47
38	waist	40
19½	neck	18¾
24	thigh	26½

Looking over the measurements of the two giants who will face each other at the big Auditorium arena next Tuesday evening, one is struck by the remarkable chest development of Westergaard and also the remarkable girth of neck of the powerful Des Moines Swede.

Cutler, shorter and more compact in structure, while lacking the girth of chest of Westergaard, possesses the sturdier limbs of the two athletes and is also thicker through the waist.

In the matter of chest measurement Westergaard stretches the tape some five inches more than Frank Gotch and in this respect compares with some of the giants from the other side of the deep blue. Cutler is shorter and built more on the order of the bear. It will be the huge panther against an athlete built more on the order of the cave man, for Cutler is thick all the way down and does not taper from the shoulders in the manner of big Jess.

These two men represent the class of the American mat, and if the Americans are going to continue to rule supreme in this branch of athletics, as they do in nearly every other branch, it will be one of the two men who will compete for the American title on Tuesday evening that must defend the mat honors of the United States.

Wstergaard is the only American outside of Frank Gotch who has ever won a decision over George Hackenschmidt, which he did in a two-hour contest. In addition to this the huge Swede has defeated Dr. Roller, Yankee Rogers, Joe Rogers (the American Apollo Raoul de Rouen, the huge French champion; Lundin, Jess Pedersen, Cazeaux, Hokuf, the big Bohemian; Samson, John Lemm, the great Swiss wrestler, who lost only to Jess while in the United States; Pardello, Ordeman, Fritz Mohl, Martinson, Plestina, Karla, the East Indian who was brought to this country to wrestle Gotch; George Turner, as well as a handicap match against Yussiff Mahmout and victories over scores of less well known wrestlers.

Cutler Has a Great Record.

Against the long and imposing list of victories of the big Swede is the remarkable record of Cutler, called by his mat friends the Chicago Nonpareil.

Born in Bemidji, Minn., and raised in the open and toughening his muscles in the timber work, while a big kid of 15 years, the young Cutler became known as a kid who could handle himself in all kinds of going.

At that time Bemidji was one of the real tough spots on the mat, and it was in the midst of this environment that Cutler developed as an amateur wrestler and boxer. Later he entered the ring and fought on the ranges, in Duluth and across the bay in Superior. Later still he became the sparring partner of Jack Johnson and also traveled with the road show of John L. Sullivan.

When he is right there are hosts of wrestling fans who swear that Cutler is the greatest of all the Americans; that he combines in more ways more of the wonderful qualities of Gotch than any of the others. Like Gotch, when Cutler is not right, he is very poor.

This winter Cutler's bad knee was operated upon. It is said that the result of the operation has made the Nonpareil faster than ever and has given him the use of leverage that the lame knee robbed him of in the past. It is also said that Cutler, an easy going big chap, boy-like and free from worry, has prepared for the coming contest as he has worked for few matches. Charley really believes that the time has arrived when he is due to make a great bid for the world's championship—and to be left in the running it is necessary that he beat Westergaard.

Among the list of men defeated by Cutler are Beell, Hokuf, the gigantic Bohemian who was beaten this winter; Gustav Fristensky, whom Charley defeated in jig time; Strangler Lewis; Pilakoff, the wonderfully strong Finn; Turner, Martinson, Ordeman, Roller, and numerous other of less known grapplers.

It Will Be Some Battle.

From the Twin Cities come rumors of the seriousness of the impending struggle. Ed L. Shave, sporting editor of the St. Paul Daily News, wired here that he is in receipt of information that Cutler is right this time and is more confident that he will take the measure of the Des Moines man.

Fans of Duluth should see a match that will be spoken of as one of the real contests of the last few years—at least all of the auguries of the dope point to that kind of a struggle. These men stand at the head of the list and the result of the battle means not only the chance at the title, but also innumerable dollars.

Karl Lehto will be opposed by Marty Cutler, and the Finn is right for the struggle. Lehto has been training hard for the meeting. For some time the short and wonderfully strong Finn has hankered for the opportunity of trying conclusions with Fred Beell, and to this end he is once more rounding into first-class shape.

Marty Cutler is one of the toughest of the light heavyweights and will try the mettle of Lehto from the start to the finish of the contest. Loren Curtis, the freak wrestler from Halsted, was in the city last evening and may be put on for one of the preliminaries of the big mat show.

JOHNSON TO TRAIN TWO MONTHS FOR FIGHT WITH FRANK MORAN

Heavy Titular Bout to Be Fought in Paris May 27—Requests for Seats Numerous and Big Crowd Assured.

New York, May 9.—The sailing of Frank Moran for France marks the passing of the preliminary stage in the arrangements for the heavyweight titular bout to be fought in Paris on June 27. Jack Johnson, as defender of the championship, has already begun a regular routine of training and Moran will follow suit as soon as he arrives upon the scene of the coming contest. While his plans are but tentatively outlined at present and subject to conditions that Moran will have to consider upon his arrival in Paris, Johnson has settled upon a two months' schedule of conditioning which he declares will fit him for a successful defense of the title won at Reno on July 4, 1910.

Started Conditioning.

Johnson has selected Asnieres, a suburb of Paris, as the site of his training camp and began his conditioning there early this week. Judging from the reports from Paris the titleholder has entered upon a round of preparation which indicates his belief that the coming contest with Moran is not to be considered lightly. Despite the fact that he is within twenty pounds of the weight at which he entered the ring against Jeffries he has elected to train fully two months for the meeting with Moran. Apparently Johnson expects a lengthy bout in which there will be recourse to much footwork, for he gives as one of the principal reasons for his selection of Asnieres as a training camp the fact that the surrounding roads are ideal for training and long walks. He has intimated that this department of his training will be one to which he will devote much attention.

Large Staff of Trainers.

The other details are not to be overlooked, however, for Johnson has arranged to surround himself with a competent staff of trainers, boxers and wrestlers which will include several of those who have aided him in preparing for past campaigns. Calvin Respress has been named as one trainer and it is understood that overtures have been made to a well-known American trainer to journey to France to assist in the work. Respress, who has trained Johnson for several of his bouts in France and other parts of continental Europe, will select those French pugilists and wrestlers who will be members of the training corps. Johnson will choose such American trainers and boxers as he may decide will be of help to him during the training period.

Says Arm Is Strong.

According to Johnson, who has just closed a series of boxing exhibitions at Brussels, his arm, which was fractured during a bout with Jim Johnson, is as strong as before the accident. He states that there is no pain when he blocks an opponent's blow and that he believes the recovery so complete that there is no danger of a handicap in this direction. In other respects Johnson contends that he will be as physically fit for Moran as he was for Jeffries, making allowance for the four years which have elapsed since the contest on the sage plans of Nevada.

Whatever the outcome of the bout it is evident this early that the French are preparing to greet the principals with the usual French enthusiasm. Those in charge of the arrangements are in receipt of daily requests for seat reservations, and several of the more desirable sections of the Velodrome d'Hiver are already sold, although the coupons have not been received from the printers.

KENTUCKY DERBY IS BEING RUN

Louisville, May 9.—Many notables in turf circles of the United States are gathered in Louisville to witness the fortieth annual Kentucky derby at one mile and a quarter, which is being run this afternoon at Churchill Downs track. Interest in this event this year appears greater than ever before, owing to the fact that the purse is the largest in the history of the derby. Horsemen declare the entries comprise one of the most remarkable bands of 3-year-olds ever brought together in a race in this country.

With $10,000 added, the purse this year will reach approximately $13,500 or about $10,000 to the winner. Out of forty-seven eligibles there are ten horses which their owners have declared are certain to start and two or three others which may go to the post. The favorite appears to be Old Rosebud, owned by H. C. Applegate of Louisville, which will carry 114 pounds and is quoted at about 7 to 5. Ivan Gardner, owned by C. S. Wilson, Chicago, is assigned top weight, 122 pounds, due to winning this season's Palmetto derby. Among other entries favored in the betting are Hodge, owned by Kay Spence, Missouri; Surprising, owned by R. F. Carman, New York; and Belloc, owned by James McManus, the California turfman.

Eagles to Start.

Manager Frank Schaeffer of the Eagles team has requested that all of the candidates of the team report for practice at the old courthouse grounds, Sixth avenue east and Third street, at 6:30 on Monday evening. Frank will give some of the boys the "O-O" at this time and will start building his team.

ADAMS WIN PIN HONORS

The Adams bowling team of this city last evening won the championship of the Duluth and Superior Bowling league by the defeat of the Decker-Victors in two of the three games played last evening on the Grand alleys.

Whitney was the star individual roller of the contests, securing a total number of 639 pins for the three games.

These games brought to a close one of the most successful seasons in the history of the pin sport. The race in the intercity league was a hummer from the very start. Several teams alternated in the lead. So close was the fight that the pennant was not decided until nearly the last week of the season, the play-off of last evening finally deciding the winner.

CLAIMS THE RECORD IS NOT VALID ONE.

San Francisco, Cal., May 9.—A technical written protest against allowing Edward Beeson a new world's record in the high jump, was filed with President John Elliott of the Pacific Athletic association yesterday by C. S. Morris of the Olympic club, a teammate of Beeson. He said:

"I am protesting his record in the interests of good and truthful records and justice to present and future contestants and aspirants for world's records."

Morris takes the stand that when Beeson cleared the bar at the Pacific athletic conference meet at Berkeley last Saturday at six feet seven 5-16 inches, his body touched the crossbar, which should disqualify the record. He argues further that "in strict interpretation the event was a closed one, since two men from the same club (Beeson and George Horine, the former record holder) were the only ones to compete, the event itself being special."

Kelleys and Fitwells.

The Kelley Hardware team will open the season tomorrow by playing the Fitwell Intermediates tomorrow at the Fifty-second avenue west grounds. Both of the teams will have strong lineups in the field and the contest is expected to be close and interesting, as both of the teams are believed to be evenly matched.

ENGLISH GOLFERS WATCHING PLAY OF AMERICAN ENTRANTS

New York, May 9.—English golfing authorities, fully aroused to the possibility of an American entrant winning the English amateur championship tournament, which will be played May 18 and 19, are watching with close attention the final practice rounds of the more dangerous competitors. Travers, Herreshoff and Ouimet are objects of careful technical scrutiny upon every course where they have played during the past month, and the same applies to "Chick" Evans, who arrived much later than his fellow entrants. The consensus of expert opinion appears to be that while all four Americans violate one or more of England's sacred golfing traditions, they are players of great ability and to be feared in the approaching tournament at Sandwich. They have been the subjects of scores of interviews and descriptive articles in which the writer described their strong and weak points as he saw them. The following on Ouimet's play is typical:

"Mr. Ouimet's appearance is vastly different from that with which American photographs have made us familiar, and, so far from being the long, lank youth most of us have pictured him, he is a powerfully built player with an immense reach, which becomes very noticeable when he stretches his arms out in the follow through of his drive.

"His style is too good to possess much that is remarkable, and the noticeable exception is his grip, which is quite peculiar to himself. At least I have seen no player who holds his clubs in this way, and Mr. Ouimet knows of none in the States. The club is really held by the first three fingers of the right hand, and the last three fingers of the left. Instead of the little finger of the right hand overlapping the first finger of the left, as in the so-called Vardon grip, it actually interlocks with it, so that neither of these fingers is in complete contact with the shaft. It is not a style of grip which would suit everybody, but Mr. Ouimet's muscular and rather large hands seem to make it wonderfully effective in his case.

"His stance is rather a square one, but neither in that nor in his swing is there anything unorthodox. On the putting green he usually favors the 'heels together' stance, which most of our American visitors have adopted, but his style is very easy and unconstrained. In short, he appeared to possess that most valuable asset for a holes tournament—a style which gives a minimum of opportunity for going 'off.'

"After all, however, it seemed to me that the greatest strength of Mr. Ouimet's game lies in an infinite capacity for playing his own game. Here is an instance of what I mean: As was natural in a four-ball match, it frequently happened that the destination of the hole was decided before all the players had putted out, but if Mr. Ouimet were one of those who had not putted he always tried the putt, even though it were only a yard or so, for practice. The effect of this was, however, that he was playing these putts as the other three players, their caddies and the handful of spectators, were moving off the green. The temptation to play hurriedly or carelessly would to most men have proved irresistible, and even the movement of the little crowd would have distracted many a first-class player. But not so with Mr. Ouimet. He holed out these putts with great steadiness and care, and with a concentration of purpose which rose superior to all outside considerations. The same sort of thing was observable once or twice when he got into difficulties. He struck one as a player who would never play wildly—when things were going wrong nor carelessly when things were going well—a very difficult man to beat even if he were not so fine a player as he is."

CASTERS TO HAVE MATCH

W. C. Vogt, world's champion caster, and Arthur L. Ryberg of the Lake Hardware company, are getting up a casting tournament that will be held at the Spirit Lake branch of the boat club sometime during the next two weeks.

The distance will be at 50, 70 and 100 feet, with five casts at each distance at the target, and there will be also obstacle casting, casting for distance and casting for accuracy and long distance.

Practically all of the enthusiastic fishermen of the city have expressed their intention of entering the tournament. As there are some very fair casters among the amateurs of the city, the competition promises to be very spirited.

W. C. VOGT.

Appropriate prizes will be hung up by the various stores of the city.

In the East, casting tournaments attract thousands of people. At some of the big tournaments that Mr. Vogt has taken part in, there have been something like 10,000 onlookers.

At the Spirit Lake tournament the champion of the world will give an exhibition of his wonderful prowess. As he is the holder of the world's record at the distance of 243 feet, his remarkable mastery of the rod and reel can be imagined.

Since he has been in Duluth Mr. Vogt has given a number of exhibitions. The tournament is being arranged with the primary idea of increasing the interest in the good old angling pastime.

COLLEGE ATHLETES IN COMPETITION

Madison, Wis., May 9.—University of Illinois athletes today invaded Madison, when the track and baseball teams came to meet the University of Wisconsin teams this afternoon.

Although the Illinois teams are strong in both branches of sport, Wisconsin is confident of making a favorable showing. Illinois is conceded to have one of the strongest track and field teams in the West this year, but it is expected that the result of today's meet will be close, with either team having a chance to win.

In baseball, Illinois has not lost a game this season, and Wisconsin has lost but one. The track meet starts at 1:30 and the ball game at 3 p. m.

New Haven, Conn., May 9.—Yale and Princeton are holding their annual track meet on Yale field this afternoon, with all the indications pointing to a closely contested match. The track is heavy owing to the downpour of rain. A comparison of the recent interclass meets of the two teams would indicate that the Blue has a slight margin in its favor. Yale won last year by four points.

Yale uncovered a star in Poucher in last Saturday's meet, when he broke the university record in the mile run, and much is expected of him today.

New Haven, Conn., May 9.—The Yale varsity eight won the principal race of the annual university regatta on the harbor late yesterday, but was hard pushed by the first freshman eight. The second varsity shell came in third.

Beloit, Wis., May 9.—Beloit college won the second annual freshman triangular debate over Ripon here last night, defending the affirmative on the question of granting Philippine independence.

Manhattan, Kan., May 9.—The University of Kansas track team ran away from the Kansas State Agricultural college men yesterday, winning 75 to 34. Teeters of the "Aggies" broke the local record in the two-mile run when he defeated Malcome of Kansas in 9 min. 57 sec.

NORTHERNS WORK HARD FOR PROCTOR GAME.

The Northerns are working hard in preparation for their game with Proctor on May 17. The members of the team will workout tomorrow morning at 9:30. Du Moe and McLaughlin have showed excellent form so far. The Northerns will meet the Towers of Superior formerly the Golden Rules, here on May 24. The game is expected to be a hummer, as the Towers are reputed to be one of the strongest teams on the other side of the bay.

May 17, Northerns vs. Proctor, at Proctor.

May 30, 31, open dates.

July 12, Northerns vs. Crosby, at Crosby.

Clothiers to Cloquet.

The Big Duluth baseball team will play the Cloquet team at Cloquet tomorrow. The Big Duluths are one of the crack teams of Duluth and are expected to dispute with the Woodlands for the championship of the city. Cloquet is reported to have a very strong aggregation of ball players this season and the game is expected to prove very close.

The Motor World

A. A. A. AUTO TOUR WILL START JUNE 29

Contestants Will Be Divided in Three Classes in Trophy Race.

June 29 is the day selected for the start of the National reliability tour of the American Automobile association, which this time will be in the form of a day and night non-motor stop run from Chicago to Boston. Managed by the Chicago Automobile club, the run will be under the direct supervision of the A. A. A. Touring and contest boards; Chairman Frank X. Mudd and Richard Kennerdell have jointly agreed upon the conditions governing this quite unique contest.

The contest board has provided a stock car definition which will call for registration of the different models by the manufacturers, and this will require number of cylinders, bore, stroke; make and model of magneto; make model and size of carbureter; tire sizes, wheelbase, and such equipment as starters, lighting, shock absorbers, horns, etc. The stock car definition is a simple registration not requiring the technical committee to visit factories.

The contestants will be divided into three classes. One will be for stock cars listing over $1,200, for which the prize will be the Glidden trophy; another for stock cars listing under $1,200, with the Anderson trophy going to the winner; and a third-class of non-stock cars entered by private owners with the possession of the A. A. A. artistic touring trophy as the incentive. Certificates of merit will be awarded to every competing car finishing the run without stoppage of the motor.

The run will require approximately sixty-five hours, starting from Chicago at 2 o'clock, Monday, June 29, and reaching Boston at 12 o'clock on July 2. The schedule calls for twenty miles per hour between sunrise and sunset, fifteen miles per hour between sunset and sunrise the first night, and eighteen miles per hour between sunrise and sunset the other nights. Controls will be established at Bryan, Ohio, Cleveland, Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany, New York city, Springfield and Boston.

With Boston as the conclusion of the run, that city will be a popular rendezvous for many motorists who will participate in the A. A. A. mid-summer gathering which will take place in the White mountains. This latter event calls for assembly at Bretton Woods on the morning of July 4, and from the great amount of interest already taken in both events, it is a certainty that they will prove quite notable in the season's motor calendar.

Any inquiries in reference to either event can be directed to Frank X. Mudd, Chairman A. A. A. Touring Board, Fisher Building, Chicago, Ill., or Richard Kennerdell, Chairman A. A. A. Contest Board, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

NEW AUTO ERA DUE.

Franklin "One Gallon Tests" Put Cars on Merit.

A new era is at hand in the automobile world—an era of real facts of what a car can do based on actual performances of stock cars—an era that will set a new commercial standard for automobilists in efficiency.

The first great step in the movement is shown by the national trials held by Franklin dealers Friday morning, May 1. On that morning, regardless of weather conditions, Franklin dealers throughout the United States and Canada drove as far as they could on a measured gallon of gasoline. Each test was supervised by two prominent officials and the results sworn to before a notary public.

The average record of the ninety-four dealers was 32.8 miles on one gallon of gasoline. The individual records ranged all the way from 17.2 to 51.2 miles. Each test was made with a stock car in perfectly normal condition. The routes covered led over paved streets, country roads and up and down hill, and in each case was a round trip, the finish being as close to the starting point as possible.

The record made by J. T. Peacha, Jr., local agent for the car, was 32.7 miles.

These records show what the cars are actually doing in their daily work. The test was thoroughly practical in every way. This is shown by the rules, which were that the test must be held Friday, May 1, no matter what conditions of road and weather; that only one gallon of gasoline was to be used, (the gallon measure used to be certified by the local sealer of weights and measures); that absolute accuracy must be followed out in every detail; and that the mileage be certified by both driver and observers before a notary public.

The success of the test did not depend on any one man but on the Franklin dealers as a body. Different drivers, roads, cars, qualities of gasoline, conditions of weather and degrees of skill in operating a car, all tend to produce a general average that is a real indication of practical worth. It shows how efficient the whole car is, of course it takes into account the friction in all parts as well as the ordinary friction in the engine.

The test was handled most efficiently by the Franklin men. Their accuracy was well guarded and the courses picked out to make each test perfectly fair and normal in every detail. The drivers were in each case the dealers and not professional drivers who have spent much of their time in contests, reliability trials, etc. In fact, quite a large number of the Franklin dealers driving cars in the test are new Franklin men, having handled the car but the past few weeks.

ALUMINUM BEST MIXED WITH COPPER

M. W. Turner Praises Haynes for Its Early Use in Construction.

M. W. Turner, local agent for the Haynes' company, says he takes pride in representing the man that discovered the importance of aluminum as a construction material in the automobile.

"Pure aluminum is too soft and lacking in tensile strength to be used in the motor car," said Mr. Turner, "but when copper is added it has the double virtue of combining great strength with very light weight.

"As early as 1896 Elwood Haynes, pioneer auto builder, found it necessary to eliminate gray or cast-iron in making crankcases owing to its extreme weight and the none too durable nature of its construction. Steel was even heavier and brass out of the question. After considerable waste of time and expensive experiment he found an aluminum alloy which contains ninety-three per cent aluminum and seven per cent copper. It was made by melting the aluminum and afterward adding, while still in the molten state, the proper amount of copper. The alloy furnished to the trade today is of practically the same composition, and so successful has it been that it is now in universal use among builders of better motor cars.

"It is estimated that during the year 1914 the American automobile manufacturers will use over 60,000 tons of aluminum. On every car there are about 75 parts made of alloys of this metal. Among the most important of these are the crankcase, oil pan, steering wheel spider, vent tubes and transmission case.

"The tensile strength of the aluminum used in the Haynes car is about 20,000 pounds, while the tensile strength of cast iron, although three times as heavy, seldom goes above 18,000 pounds."

FORM 50,000-MILE CLUB.

Cadillac Owners Start Popular Organization in California.

California has develped a new idea in organizations of motor car owners. In most instances automobile clubs are non-exclusive in membership so far as the achievement of car and owner is concerned, qualifications being based on entirely different matters. The new Californ idea, however, is based entirely on driving records who have a mileage of 50,000 or more.

The idea started in the garage of Don Lee, California distributer for the Cadillac, when several owners recently were swapping experiences in reeling off the miles. Nearly all had driven at least 50,000 miles and there were some who had touched the 75,000 and 100,000 marks. Someone suggested that a long distance touring club be formed and the idea met with such favor that the "Cadillac 50,000-Mile club" was organized immediately.

There are a large number of Cadillacs in California known to have passed the 100,000-mile mark, but 50,000 miles was selected as the minimum for membership qualification in order to admit those who have been driving only two or three years. Perhaps a dozen men qualified as charter members, but the club proved to be such a popular idea that the membership grew with great rapidity and Don Lee will have an enrollment of 1,000 before the season is well advanced.

It is probable that the club will have several classes so that the owners who bonst of 100,000 miles can profit by a little special distinction. Each member of the club will carry a small plate on the radiator of his car which will be the badge of distinction.

CAR TRAVELS 32.7 MILES ON ONE GALLON OF GASOLINE

AT THE FINISH OF THE FRANKLIN TEST.

On May 1, Joseph T. Peacha, Jr., local agent for the Franklin, in conforming with the order from the officials of the Franklin Automobile company that a test be made to see how far a Franklin car could go in Duluth on one gallon of gasoline, obtained the record of 32.7 miles. This is one mile below the average for all the scores made throughout the country. The best score was 51 miles.

Theodore Furland drove the car, while the test was observed by H. J. Mullin, secretary of the Duluth Auto club, and A. B. Kapplin of the automobile department of The Herald.

FORD SHATTERS RECORDS.

One Factory Produces More Than 1,100 Cars Daily.

Production figures at the Ford factory at Highland Park, Mich., are shattering all records. Eleven hundred and more cars a day for twenty-six consecutive working days was the record in March. When the last car had passed out the factory's doors on March 31, there had been 28,712 Fords built and shipped during the month.

Those who have been following motor car production have become accustomed to think of the Highland park factory as the place where more than 1,000 complete automobiles are turned out every day.

These will now have to accustom themselves to the new slogan of "More than 1,100 Fords a day."

When these figures are being digested, it should be kept in mind that every car, as soon as built, is shipped to a waiting Ford agent. There is no storage room at the factory, for there isn't any needed. The Ford factory, as big as it is, has its hands more than full to build enough cars to supply the demand.

The fact is, that despite the unprecedented production during March, the close of the month saw the factory still many thousands of cars behind the sales department. An idea of the demand for Fords may be obtained when it is stated that on a single day early in April, the factory received orders for more than 12,000 cars.

Those familiar with the Ford business are predicting that the demand for Fords this year, as in years past, will greatly exceed the supply. They are urging those who contemplate purchasing to do so early and thus insure themselves of having a car during the summer months when the demand is heaviest.

Reports from the Ford factories at Ford, Ont., and Manchester, Eng., show that the business of these two companies is proportionately as brisk as that of the American company.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES

The Mexican crisis furnished immediate proof that there are no more loyal citizens in the country than motorcyclists.

Among the first to offer their services to Uncle Sam to aid in defending the honor of their country were members of the Federation of American Motorcyclists. "I can furnish 1,000 motorcyclists, all mounted on the latest models of motorcycles, within thirty days, for service in case of war with Mexico," wired President Patterson of the F. A. M., to Washington. The plan of President Patterson in organizing this motorcycle-mounted regiment contemplates that the riders should either be formed into a single regiment or divided into small companies to be used as dispatch bearers, scouts and patrols. Members of the Short Grass Touring club would form the nucleus of this organization, supplemented by other F. A. M. riders from all over the country. Should this regiment be called into service, it is the plan of Mr. Patterson that the cyclists should travel in pairs, each couple carrying tentage and complete camping outfit.

"Nothing would please me more in case of war," says President Patterson, "than to have command of a regiment of men mounted on motorcycles, either for actual fighting or for dispatch and aid work. And there are many seasoned captains in the F. A. M. who are capable of officering a company of riders."

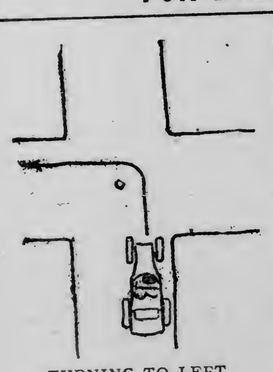
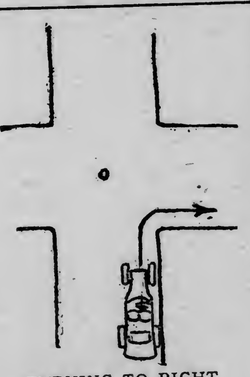
Paul J. C. Derkum of Los Angeles will shortly sail for England to take part on the 'Tourists' Trophy motorcycle road race, on the Isle of Man, the latter part of May. Derkum is one of America's most skillful motorcyclists, and it is believed he stands a good chance of winning against the English riders. He was winner of the San Diego-Phoenix road race last fall, admittedly one of the hardest tests of machine and rider ever made in this country. This run covered 300 miles,

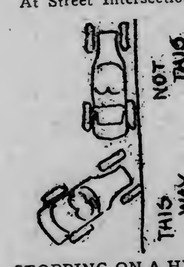
HERALD'S "SAFETY FIRST" HINTS FOR DULUTH AUTO OWNERS



TURNING TO LEFT
At Street Intersection.



TURNING TO RIGHT
At Street Intersection.



STOPPING ON A HILL.

An active campaign in behalf of Safety First has recently been inaugurated by the automibile asscessory manufacturers and dealers in all parts of the country to safeguard the public and the automobile owner.

From time to time the automobile department of The Herald will publish timely suggestions for the benefit of the pedestrian and the automobile owner, to add to the safety of each on the public highway. Every automobile manufacturer has enlisted in this campaign and it is believed that with the proper educational methods, the number of accidents each year will be greatly reduced. The Herald will be the medium of the "Safety First" education in Duluth.

No one cares to be frightened or feel that he is in a dangerous position. Motorists then should avoid approaching or trying to pass a street car, which is unloading passengers. There are more streets without cars on them than those with cars.

It is also safer to circle the block than to back and turn in the middle of the block, especially in congested districts. Neither is it safe to run across the street to the left side, thus facing oncoming traffic, even in outlying districts. This is bad in the daytime and a hundred times worse at night.

Even though your lights are lit, never take a chance. Lights stand for safety, but the other fellow has his life and limb at stake.

Three drawings are shown on this page, to illustrate the best methods for turning a corner and curbing an automobile. All vehicles turning to the right into another road should turn the corner as near the curb as possible. All vehicles turning to the left into another road should pass to the right of and beyond the center of the intersecting road before turning.

In regard to curbing automobiles, motorists should remember that theatres, hotels and public places of all kinds need space for freedom of movement at their main entrances. For this reason automobiles should be curbed at an angle, instead of alongside the curbing, wherever there is a congestion and little room for turning. This also applies to hills, and cars left standing on a grade should always be headed into the curb.

POINTS TO EMPHASIZE.

Technicalities Unimportant to Average Buyer, Says Peacha.

"Every season adds very noticeably to the number of laymen who thoroughly understand automobiles," says J. T. Peacha, Jr., local agent for the Kissel Kar, "but the sort of buyer who cares to discuss technical details is still greatly in the minority, and the salesman should always wait for an invitation before plunging into the intricacies of mechanical construction.

"There are certain points that every prospective purchaser, novice to expert, are more concerned about and regarding which they must be satisfied before a sale is possible. These include the appearance of the car, its attributes of comfort and convenience, its facility of operation and the accessibility of its working parts.

"Inspecting and demonstrating the car having cleared up these questions, the wise purchaser will ask about the experiences of present owners. If the car looks well, rides well, drives well and, in addition, has a record and reputation for satisfactory service, Mr. Prospect is generally convinced, and it is useless to burden his mind with technique over which, at best, there is always a possible argument.

"I try to convince the customer that the Kissel Kar is a fine appearing car; that it is roadworthy, simple and easily operated, of superior riding quality, and last, but by no means least, of high standing among owners for efficient and economic service. If I fail on any one of these counts, I expect to lose the sale."

TANGO FROM TOLEDO TO TEXAS

Special Observation Auto Is Provided for 150 Advocates of Modern Dance—Trip Will Start June 18.

The latest development in the popular craze for modern day dancing has found an unique expression in the plans of 150 Toledo, Ohio, people, who have formally announced their intention of "tangoing from Toledo to Texas." The long-distance terpsichorean advocates, who propose to indulge in this greatest of all dance marathons in the new tango car provided especially for the occasion, are members of the Toledo Rotary club and their wives. Their goal is Houston, Texas, where the annual convention of the International Association of Rotary clubs is to be held during the week of June 22.

The "tango car" is one of the biggest and finest observation coaches the Rock Island railroad possesses, and will be placed at the disposal of the rotarians for the entire trip, being sent from Chicago to Toledo so that the travelers may enjoy their dancing from the start. The observation room, twenty-five feet long and the full width of the car, will be available for dancing, for the seats will be removed and a special dancing floor laid. Tea and light refreshments will be served in the lounge adjoining the dancing compartment and the tourists will find it as convenient and easy to indulge in "tango teas" while flying across the country at 60 miles per hour on a special train as though they were at home.

Music for the dancing will be furnished by a special orchestra picked from the 50 members of the Overland concert band, which will accompany the Rotarians as honorary musical escort. The bandmen, who are all workers from the plant of the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, are making the trip to Texas as part of their second transcontinental vacation tour as members of their employer, President John N. Willys. En route to and from Houston the band will give free concerts in downtown parks of the various cities at which the special Rotary train will stop. Five days will be spent at the convention, after which the 2,000 delegates and the band will make a circle tour of the leading Texas cities, including San Antonio, Austin, Waco, Ft. Worth, Dallas and Beaumont, with a park concert at each stop.

The trip starts from Toledo on June 18 and visits will be made and concerts given in Chicago, Kansas City, Wichita and Oklahoma City. On the return trip the band will visit New Orleans, Birmingham, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Lexington and Cincinnati and many of the Rotarians have announced their intention of making the trip home with the musicians, to avail themselves of the opportunity of enjoying the tango car on the whole journey. Incidentally, the dance car is proving itself so popular that it is not at all unlikely that future railroad advertisements for roads running from Chicago to the Pacific coast will include this luxury in their list of train equipment.

FORTY ENTER FOR 500-MILE RACE

Elimination Contests Will Be Held May 27; Goux Boillot and Oldfield Will Be On Ground Early.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 9.—Entries for the Indianapolis 500-mile race, May 30, closed at midnight, Friday, with forty contestants in the field. The last to be registered were two Duesenbergs, by Fred Duesenberg of Des Moines, Iowa; a Mason, by the Mason Motor company of Waterloo, Iowa; and a Tatter special, by Louis G. and John Tatter of Chicago. E. V. Rickenbacher, a driver of known repute, with several speedway records to his credit, will handle one of the Duesenbergs; George Mason, a member of the Mason firm, will pilot the Waterloo car, while Joseph Louis Mazzucco, an Italian of unknown merit, though of a fire-eating name, will take care of the Tatter. No one has been selected as yet for the second Duesenberg.

Entry of the latter cars, incidentally, would have been made a long time ago but for the fact that Fred Duesenberg, their backer, who is one of the world's best known automobile consulting engineers, has been on the sick list for some months, though he is now recovering. In former years his machines ran as Masons, winning several meets, notably last year's dirt track sweepstakes at Columbus, with ease.

But Thirty Will Start.

Forty entrants for a contest in which only thirty will be allowed to start naturally makes the elimination trials to determine the final field of the utmost importance. Heretofore, competitors were required to show only a minimum speed of seventy-five miles an hour for a lap to qualify, more than thirty starters never having presented themselves on the last day, except in 1911, when forty-two faced the barrier. This, however, was before the present elimination clause was in force.

The method pursued in cutting down entries, it has been officially announced, after a conference with American Automobile association officials in charge of the work, will be to send each car against a lap in the inverse order of entry, the first, as has been stated in the Gospel, being last, and the last being first. This is to enable the early entrants to shade their time just enough to stay in the running, without showing their full hand. Inasmuch as this procedure will be repeated three times, every man will have the utmost chance to make good.

Wednesday, May 27, has been selected for the final tests, starting at 10 a. m. and continuing until sundown. Should it prove impossible to complete the work by that time, it is quite likely that a slop-over will be held the following day. The intervening period until the race will be spent in putting the track in shape by removing the oil with alkali solutions and scrubbing everything in sight. No precaution will be overlooked that might further the safety of drivers and contestants. The total field, up to closing time, is as follows:

Goux and Boillot Arrive.

New York City, May 9.—Jules Goux and Georges Boillot, star members of the Peugeot racing team, arrived here Wednesday on the Olympic, en route to Indianapolis for the next five-hundred-mile sweepstakes. With them are Madame Boillot, wife of the famous driver, Andre, his brother, and two mechanicians, six in all.

After a brief stay in the metropolis, the party expects to continue on to the Hoosier capital, arriving the latter part of this week. The cars of the outfit were unloaded Thursday, and are now being reshipped, still in bond. They are said to be mong the fastest ever turned out in a belle France, being capable of 110 miles an hour.

To date the plans of Goux and Boillot have been shrouded in deepest mystery, the time of their departure being kept especially secret, thus enabling them to get a flying start on the rest of the Europeans, with about ten extra days of practice as reward. In view of the fact that Boillot has never driven over the Indianapolis oval before, the shrewdness of this move will be appreciated.

The remainder of the foreign crew expects to sail from Havre today, though several of the crowd have attempted to get earlier passage since learning of Goux's and Boillot's trick. They will all be on the job at least by the end of the second week in May, when the bulk of the preliminary work at the speedway will be going on.

The cars are already here, arriving along with the Peugeot fliers.

Oldfield at Speedway.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 9.—Barney Oldfield, dean of American racing stars, who blew in at the speedway as advance guard of the drivers for the Indianapolis five-hundred-mile race, makes the prediction that the present record for the event of 78.7 miles an hour will be knocked higher than a kite. "The class of the field," says Barney, "precludes anybody's winning unless he beats it from the start. With cars able to make 120 miles an hour, a drop of the present figures seems certain." After trying out his new car, Barney plans to do a little dirt track work in the East, racing at Brighton Beach, N. Y., May 22, 23 and 24.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

"The important practical function of an automobile body is to carry passengers comfortably," says W. H. Emond, Franklin body designer. "To obtain passenger comfort dimensions must be right for normal human beings, cushion springs should be so constructed as to carry their load without bottoming on rough roads, and back upholstery must be so shaped as to conform to the human figure, relieve it from severe shock and make it unnecessary for the passenger to repeatedly shift about on a long ride in an effort to obtain an easy position. This last is the real test of upholstery design.

"There is, however, beside the mere body dimensions, and beside the relative merits of different spring suspensions, a still more important element for consideration in designing a car for riding comfort, and that is the general assembly, taking into account the springs and axles—to make it plain, the position of the wheels with reference to the load both of passengers and machinery."

The Haynes Automobile company has just made an announcement of interest to motorists, to the effect that a page in their house organ, The Haynes Pioneer, will be devoted each month to a discussion of vital parts of the automobile. Things that have puzzled automobile owners will be explained in plain, simple, every day language, by H. G. Weaver, manager of their technical bureau, who will edit this page.

These articles will not be confined to Haynes cars alone but will relate to automobiles in general. The subject discussed will be governed by the nature of the inquiries received from car owners, dealers, or others interested in the automobile in any way whatsoever.

The city of Toledo, Ohio, has begun the reorganization of its fire department, the ultimate object being to eliminate the horse in this class of municipal work. The first step was taken recently when the city gave the Willys-Overland company an order for a special Willys utility chassis, to which the body equipment of a horse-drawn fire wagon was transferred. The new fire-fighting vehicle is now a motor-driven combination chemical and hose wagon, equipped with electric lights all around, special pneumatic tires, siren horn, push pedal gong and other standard equipment.

The reconstruction of the apparatus was accomplished at a comparatively small cost, the sale of the horses and equipment formerly necessary almost equaling the price of the work. The new vehicle has already made several runs and city officials who have watched its performance closely are delighted with its speed and efficiency.

With a complete camping outfit, including beds, tents, and cooking utensils, four people are making their way leisurely across the continent in an automobile from San Diego to Detroit via the Santa Fe trail. The feature of this trip that is exceptional is the fact that the car, a Cadillac, is a 1909 model and has already achieevd 75,000 miles of good service in Southern California, a record stiff enough to be called a life work with the average car.

Nevertheless George Duesler, owner of the car, is making the cross-continent trip with all the confidence in the world. He is accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dusett. Together with the passengers, camp equipment and baggage, the car carries a load of 1,500 pounds.

From San Diego the tourists followed the course of the desert road race as far as Phoenix. They will remain in Phoenix several weeks waiting for the snow to melt in the mountain passes in Eastern Arizona.

It is a favorite afternoon pastime with enthusiastic car owners to attempt ascension of the hill on second speed. The hill is a mile long and has a sharp curve which is a matter of annoyance to car pilots.

There is an unconfirmed rumor among motorists that a Stearns-Knight car recently made the hill on "high." So the story goes the "mystery" car shot silently by two motorists who were stalled on the hill.

Several enthusiasts have written to the Stearns-Knight factory expressing their doubt and soliciting assistance in getting manufacturers to put on a hill-climbing contest to see if a car can go up the hill on "high."

"I do not know anything about one of our cars making that hill on high," said Henry H. Hower, manager of the service department at the F. B. Stearns company factory. "We never officially take part in contests, but if Mount Vernon motorists are doubtful of the Stearns-Knight possibilities on that hill, some day I will go down there and shoot up the hill on high just for the fun of it."

The city of Windsor, Ontario, has recently joined the ranks of those progressive North American municipalities where the horse is being eliminated from police departments. The city recently purchased a special Willys-Utility patrol wagon, built on the same specifications as the twenty-five of these vehicles which were recently purchased by New York City. The new police car differs from the standard Willys-Utility only in size, body, and a few minor specifications. The wheelbase is 141 inches, and double pneumatic tires are used on the rear wheels. The regular screened side patrol body has a seating capacity for twelve men, including the driver, and the car is equipped with electric starter and generator, electric side, tail and dome lamps and a special six-inch searchlight. Additional special equipment includes a stretcher for first aid work in street accidents, and the long side seats are so constructed that they can fold down out of the way when an injured person is to be carried.

Incorporation of the Euclid Motor Car Company, Inc., has been announced. The capital stock of the company is $250,000 and incorporation has been taken out under the laws of New York state. The headquarters of the Euclid cycle-light car in New York will be at 246 West Fifty-ninth street, corner Broadway. E. A. Schu is president of the company and also general manager. Frank S. Codlew is vice-president and sales manager, J. J. Dowling, treasurer, and Charles E. Grignard, secretary. Arrangements to manufacture the Euclid cycle-light car are now being completed. This car first made its appearance at the Boston automobile show where it proved a sensation and since that show the company has received agency requests from every part of the world and booked orders for several thousand cars. Completion and tests of the models have been carried on since the Boston show and two cars are now on the road, one in and around New York and one at Boston. These cars will be driven thousands of miles in tests.

Vincent Astor, who until his marriage to Helen Dinsmore Huntington, was the world's richest bachelor, has just placed an order for a $395 Saxon automobile, thereby joining the ranks of New York's multimillionaires who have purchased these cars. Mr. Astor will have the Saxon car on his yacht with him on his honeymoon trip. He and his wife plan to take a cruise while Mr. Astor is convalescing from his recent illness and then to go on a long motoring tour.

The purchase by Mr. Astor is an echo of a visit he made to the automobile show in the Grand Palace. At that time he looked over all the latest styles and sizes in cars. He told L. A. Van Patten, the New York distributer for the Saxon, that this Detroit built car impressed him. Among others of New York's millionaire colony who have bought Saxon cars are Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., G. Trowbridge Hollister, Dr. J. B. Black and F. L. Richards of J. S. Bache & Co., bankers.

"It is now certain," says J. T. Peacha, Jr., local agent for the Kissel Kar, "that there will be a stortagge of Kissel Kars this summer despite the best efforts of the factory to keep up with the demand. This applies to the 40-'Four' as well as the 48-'Six' and 60-'Six,' orders for all three models far exceeding the present production schedule. The truck trade is also in a most healthy state, and altogether, the first six months of 1914 will hold its own with last year as far as the Kissel Kar is concerned."

TWO AMERICANS KILLED AT MINES

Fight in Mexico Is Reported By Telegram to San Diego.

San Diego, Cal., May 9.—Two Americans were killed and two seriously wounded while defending the Cinco mines stamp mill, near Guadalajara, from an attacking force of Federals, according to a telegram received by H. E. Crawford from British Consul Perry Holmes.

Crawford was driven from the home of a friend in Guadalajara during the recent anti-American demonstrations, and arrived here a few days ago on the German steamer Marie, in company with hundreds of other refugees.

No names were mentioned in the dispatch, which stated that fifteen other Americans engaged in mining pursuits near Guadalajara have embarked for San Diego on the steamer Cetriana at Manzanillo.

MAY TAKE WEEKS TO GET AMERICANS OUT.

Washington, May 9.—Rear Admiral Badger estimates, in a dispatch to the navy department, that it probably will be several weeks before all American refugees are out of Mexico. He reported that the steamer Esperanza left Puerto, Mexico, early yesterday with 634 refugees aboard for Vera Cruz. The Mexico, already at Vera Cruz, will take 170 of the refugees on the Esperanza to New Orleans.

The City of Tampico sailed for Progreso yesterday to collect refugees from the Yucatan district. When the Morro Castle returns from Tampico, Admiral Badger said, all refugees then at Vera Cruz will be transferred to her and she will be sent to New Orleans at once.

CARRANZA AND VILLA AT TORREON.

Torreon, Mexico, May 9.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, first chief of the Constitutionalists, arrived here yesterday with his staff and members of his official family and established his temporary capital here. Among those in the party were Gen. Maclovio Herrera, Gen. Tomas Urbina and Gen. Manuel Chao, who had been governor of the state of Chihuahua.

Gen. Villa met Carranza at the station and escorted the party to his residence here. Government officials took occasion to deny reports that Gen. Chao had been threatened with death by Gen. Villa. Generals Villa and Chao spent a part of the day together. There was nothing to indicate friction between them.

Gen. Carranza and the officials of the Constitutionalist government will remain here for a time. Their future movements will depend on the success attending the Constitutionalist army.

"TOO MANY COURTS," SAYS BULL MOOSER.

Washington, May 9.—"The truth is, we have too many courts and too much judge-made law," declared Representative Hinebaugh, Progressive, of Illinois, in a speech in the house advocating the recall of judges and their decisions when in conflict with public needs and demands.

He contended that nowhere in the Federal Constitution is the supreme court authorized to decide an act of congress unconstitutional, and that for years the supreme court claimed no such power and made no attempt to exercise it.

BOYS HAVE GOOD SHOW

Annual Exposition Opens Auspiciously at Central Y. M. C. A.

Roomers Are Awakened By Crowing of Roosters and Grunting of Pigs.

When roomers at the Y. M. C. A. awoke this morning they thought they were back on the farm, with chickens crowing and pigs grunting.

The largest and best boys' exposition ever held in Duluth is now on at the central Y. M. C. A. and the live-stock exhibit is one of the features.

The exposition opened at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon for inspection, but was not officially opened until 8 o'clock last evening, when an address was delivered by Mayor Prince. Short talks were also made by Miss Katherine King and Dr. R. W. Bowden, members of the committee in charge, after which the large audience adjourned to the gymnasium floor, where a contest in "gym" work was staged between the various schools of the city.

The contestants were judged on the appearance of the team, their costumes, the exercises and smoothness with which they performed. The Jefferson school team won the first prize with a club-swinging exercise, while second honors went to the Jackson school, which introduced a wand drill.

The Adams school won first honors for having the best appearing basket ball team and the best costumes. Second honors went to the Bryant school.

Following the program of athletics in the gymnasium the audience returned to the exposition on the second floor. Whatever Duluth boys have made or collected is being shown. The plan is to show in what subjects the boys are interested and what hobbies many of them are following. It is also the aim of those in charge to encourage other boys in similar lines of endeavor and amusement.

Norman McLeod, secretary of the boys' department, is in direct charge of the exposition, while he is being assisted by a large committee composed of representatives from all the schools in the city. The exhibits include articles made in the manual training departments and those made with a pocket knife. There are also rabbits, cats, pigeons, pigs, chickens and dogs on display, while many of the boys are exhibiting sample bread, cakes and pies.

This evening the judges will award ribbons for the best exhibits and the school receiving the most ribbons will then be awarded the banner, for which every school in the city is striving. The rivalry is very keen among the boys and has created quite an interest throughout the city. There will also be a contest in music and oratory this evening, there being several contestants entered for honors in speaking and in piano, violin and cornet playing.

The exposition will come to a close with the entertainment this evening.

SHOT FOR TELLING MEN NOT TO SPIT

Chicago Street Car Conductor Killed—Alleged Slayer Arrested.

Chicago, May 9.—William Lard, a street car conductor, was shot and killed and H. A. Kelly was seriously wounded last night when Laird remonstrated with three passengers for spitting on the floor of the car. Joseph Esposito, one of the three, from whom a revolver was taken, is held by the police as the slayer.

Passengers in the car were panic-stricken when the revolver was discharged in the car. Several women fainted and others were bruised in trying to escape through the narrow doors.

TERRE HAUTE FRAUD CASES DISMISSED.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 9.—As a sequel to the acquittal of Mayor Donn M. Roberts on the charge of conspiracy in primary and elections frauds, Special Prosecutor Roach, before Judge Fortune in chambers, has dismissed all the cases in which the mayor has been indicted for alleged election frauds and in which the indictments had been procured by Roach.

He also included the indictments returned against Marx Myers, Gerhardt A. Monninger and John M. Roper, who had been indicted jointly with the mayor, as well as all indictments returned by the grand jury during his service as special prosecutor.

SOCIALISTS AFTER TEN CONGRESSMEN.

Chicago, May 9.—Vigorous campaigns are to be made in ten congressional districts in the country by the Socialist party, according to plans outlined by the executive committee of the party. The tentative plans are to be submitted later to the national committee which meets here next week. A renewal of the protest against a war with Mexico is expected and the national committee also is expected to pass resolutions relative to the Colorado coal miners' strike.

The congressional districts in which plans are being made to win for the Socialist candidates were said to be: The Fourth and Fifth Wisconsin (Milwaukee); the Twelfth in New York City; Fourth in Oklahoma; Sixth California; Ninth, Minnesota; Thirtieth and Thirty-first, Pennsylvania; Third, Kansas, and Seventh, Illinois.

POLICE CONFISCATE STUDENT TROPHIES.

Berkeley, Cal., May 9.—Three patrol wagons were needed to carry off a miscellaneous collection taken in a police raid in University of California fraternity houses yesterday. Barber poles, street car signs, church signs and bicycle stands were among the property seized, all of them, according to the police, being part of a collection made by students in midnight sorties during the last three years.

Only one house club offered resistance "on advice of counsel," the remainder of the students aiding the officers and bringing up the rear of the patrol procession as it wended its way through the city.

STAGELAND

EVELYN NESBIT THAW
At the Lyceum Next Saturday, Matinee and Night.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, one of the most talked of women in the world, will be seen at the Lyceum Saturday, matinee and night, May 16, in a French musical divertissement, "Mariette," by Maurice Voiny, after a successful engagement at the Alhambra theater, London. Mrs. Thaw is supported by a large company.

Mrs. Thaw has but recently returned to the stage. For six years after the unfortunate affair with which her name was connected she remained in seclusion, perfecting herself in her chosen profession, the stage. It was not until this spring, when she thought that all notoriety connected with her name had died down, that she decided to appear. She selected the London Hippodrome as the theater for her first appearance, for fear, that if she returned to the stage in New York she would be accused of making capital out of the publicity given the actions of her husband.

It was not until Mrs. Thaw's artistic success in London was assured that she accepted an engagement to appear in America. On her appearance in New York she was judged entirely on her artistic merits and was enthusiastically praised. In appearing outside of New York, Mrs. Thaw has carefully avoided any publicity which bordered upon the sensational.

Mrs. Thaw's dancing partner, Jack Clifford, will be seen in this production under the direction of Emil Agoust of the Alhambra theater, London.

In addition to "Mariette" a number of American and European novelties are introduced, including Bernard and Weston, the Courtney Sisters, Arnaud Brothers, Peppino and others.

There will be a popular priced matinee during Mrs. Thaw's appearance here.

REPRODUCTION OF INDIAN WARS WILL BE SHOWN IN MOTION PICTURES

Forty miles from a railroad in South Dakota there gathered a few months ago some of the most famous scouts and generals known to Western history. A little border hotel formed their domicile. There were inconveniences. Hour after hour during the daylight hours they were in the saddle, while following their commands there came the sound of cavalry, there showed the waving forms of hundreds of Indians. For those men of fame were there for a purpose—that of reproducing history.

And history was reproduced, reproduced upon the actual spots where it happened, with many of the persons present who were the original makers of it, reproduced to the clicking of motion picture cameras, that it might be preserved forever. It was reproduced, then taken before the representatives of the United States government. Then came the verdict: "Historically correct!"

And that is why, bearing with it the stamp of approval of the United States, Buffalo Bill's Historic Film company will produce history re-enacted by the makers, the Indians Wars of the West Visualized at the Orpheum theater, beginning tomorrow matinee.

Three epochs of Indian warfare are shown, the battles of the 60s, the battles of the 70s and then the ending of the 300 years of warfare between the Indian and the white man in the War of the Messiah, which was turned from bloodshed into eternal peace by Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles at the peace congress in Pine Ride in 1891.

Six miles of films are necessary to show the various activities of the Indians and the white man in the different bits of warfare. There is displayed the victory of Gen. E. A. Carr at Summit Springs, in 1869, when Buffalo Bill killed Chief Tall Bull and the soldiers under Carr's command fought the renegades of Tall Bull's command off the war trail and back to peace. There is shown also the bloody fight at War Bonnet creek, in 1876, when Gens. Wesley Merritt and E. A. Carr intercepted the Ogallalla and Brule Sioux, who were seeking to join Sitting Bull. It was in this battle that Buffalo Bill fought his famous duel with Yellow-hand and scalped him, while hostile Indians and soldiers, eager for fighting, stood at rest, awaiting the outcome.

The Ghost Dance War, or War of the Messiah, is shown, too, in all its phases; the call of the Messiah, the death of Sitting Bull, the rush of the Indians for the Bad Lands, the stopping of Big Foot and the Battle of Wounded Knee, the Battle of the Mission, the offer of peace and the final council of friendship at which Gen. Miles (Bear Cat) took his hostages and swore the Indians to eternal peace.

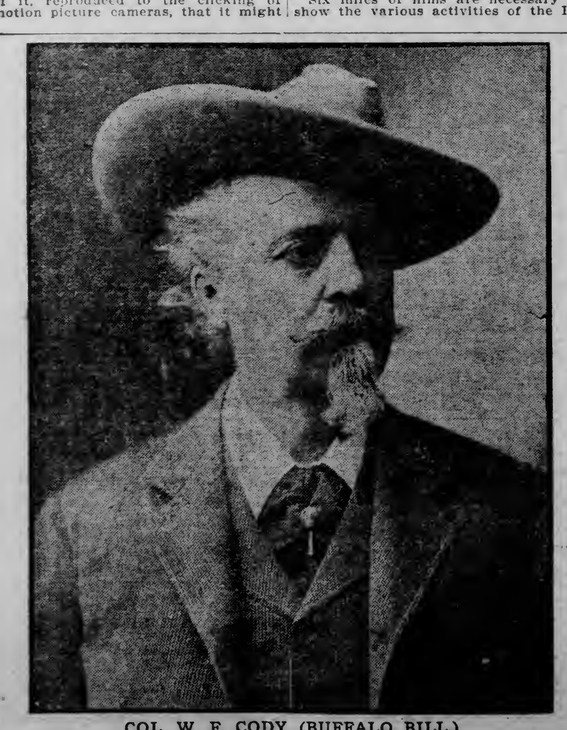
And every detail of these pictures was taken upon the actual battlefield. Where the peace council of 1891 was held in the agency yard at Pine Ridge it was again held by Gen. Miles before the motion picture camera. His staff was present when he swore the Indians to friendship, and again, when the camera clicked, there stood besides Gen. Miles, Maj.-Gen. Jesse M. Lee, Maj.-Gen. Charles King, Brig.-Gen. Frank Baldwin, Brig.-Gen. Marion P. Maus, Col. H. G. Sickel and Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill).

And to these men must be added the list of Indians, soldiers and scouts who were present in the earlier days and who returned that they might aid in the making of the pictures. While the cameras clicked in South Dakota there were present Jack Red Cloud, son of the famous chief; Short Bull, emissary to the Messiah, who is blamed for causing the Ghost Dance War; Dewey Beard, who saw his eight brothers fall one by one beside him in the battle of Wounded Knee; Big Bat, the Scout; Phillip Wells, whose nose was cut off, then sewn on again while the battle raged; Col. H. C. Sickel, who again led his cavalry in the various charges, and many another Indian and soldier and scout who took part in the actual battles.

And that is why, when the pictures were finished and shown to the representatives of the government, they watched the miles of film travel past on the screen, then gave their verdict: "Historically correct!"

A lecturer accompanies the pictures and two performances will be given daily, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. The entertainment lasts two and a half hours.

The final performance of the regular vaudeville season will be given tonight.



COL. W. F. CODY (BUFFALO BILL.)

LIEUT. GEN. NELSON A. MILES,
Who Helped Restage the Indian Wars for the Motion Picture Camera.

DON CLARK WILL BE AT EMPRESS

Former Herald Newsboy Now Heads His Own Theatrical Company.

Commencing with the matinee Sunday the Empress theater will present Pete Curley, Don Clark and company in a brand new musical comedy tabloid entitled "At Saratoga Springs." "At Saratoga Springs" is billed as a musical absurdity for laughing purposes only and from the notice the company has been attracting through this territory the show gives promise of being one of the best musical tabloids that has played the local theater this season.

Pete Curley is an Irish comedian of the old school and the last two seasons was company star with Blanche Ring in "The Yankee Girl." He is surrounded by a capable and clever cast of fun-makers and a beauty singing and dancing chorus that is said to be far above the average. Don Clark is a light comedian of the eccentric type. "At Saratoga Springs" was written, staged and produced by Mr. Clark, who will be remembered by Duluth audiences through his connections with the Elk shows that used to be yearly features in local theatricals. Miss Margaret McBride, prima donna, is from the Singer's La Salle theater productions in Chicago and last season was with George Damerel in "The Heart Breakers." The numbers are new and up-to-date and special scenic and electrical effects are introduced throughout.

For the three days of next week, beginning with the matinee performance Thursday, May 14, the Empress will offer its patrons a vaudeville bill of four acts and three reels of pictures.

Featuring this bill is Francis Girard and company in feats of strength. These performers offer a clever line of tricks and comedy cannon ball juggling. Mr. Girard is a well built and strong man who handles cannon balls as if they were baseballs. Although juggling these is extremely hazardous, Mr. Girard has yet to meet with his first accident. The Great Girard and company have played vaudeville houses of Europe and are now being seen in America for the first time. The comedy is in the hands of an assistant, who keeps the audience in good humor.

Billy Davis, an ex-minstrel man, will give a few minutes of funny talk and clever singing. Mr. Davis is considered one of the best blackface comedians of the vaudeville stage, it is said.

The Greys—Dave and Marion—are billed as "phenomenal vocalists." They sing any kind of song selection, rag or operatic. The pair harmonize perfectly.

Swain's Rats and Cats present a novel act. One can hardly imagine two such hereditary enemies as rats and cats would ever be trained to act in unison, but such is the case.

The two-reel feature film, "Her Fighting Chance," a story of a fight of a woman against herself, with Edward Coxen and Winifred Greenwood in the leading roles, and a single comedy reel will fill out the program.

MARGARET McBRIDE,
Prima Donna With Don Clark in "At Saratoga Springs" at the Empress.

STOCK COMPANY WILL OPEN SUMMER SEASON MAY 17

LOLA MAY,
Leading Woman With the Baldwin Players.

There will be a house warming at the Lyceum theater Sunday afternoon, May 17, when the Baldwin players take up their abode there for the summer.

The opening of this stock company engagement means a development in the theatrical life of this city, which is significant of its growth. The indications are that a new order of things has arrived. The Baldwin players will be under the personal direction of Walter S. Baldwin, who is known in all the large cities of America as a purveyor of amusements and who has had a long and varied experience from coast to coast in the way of stock productions. Duluth theater-goers are promised a series of presentations which will prove the revelation of the possibilities of popular-price entertainment when undertaken by past masters in the work.

The plays selected for here are among the most notable successes that the stage has ever known. Some of the plays chosen for this summer's engagement are "The Spendthrift," "Alias Jimmy Valentine," "Madame X," "The Fortune Hunter," "The Man From Home," "The Easiest Way," "The Gamblers," "What Happened to Mary," "The Rainbow," "Our Wives," and others of equal note.

The company engaged to enact these plays is said to be the strongest and best balanced stock organization in the country, and Manager Baldwin promises the scenic environment and completeness of the productions to equal the originals.

JOHN BUNNY WILL BE SEEN AT SUNBEAM

While the impression seems to prevail among a number of motion picture enthusiasts that John Bunny, the well known comedian, is dead the opinion is a very erroneous one as Bunny will appear at the Sunbeam theater tomorrow in a tango dancing number with Flora Finch.

Bunny, who is probably the most famous of the motion picture stars now appearing before the public, is a native of New York, having been born there Sept. 21, 1863. He has been on the stage nearly thirty years, having supported such stars as Maude Adams, Annie Russell, Sol Smith Russell and appearing under the management of William A. Brady, Charles Frohman and H. W. Savage. His last professional engagement was with Weber and Fields. He entered motion pictures around Christmas in 1910 at $40 per week and in three years he has worked to a salary of $1,000 per week.

OUR MUTUAL GIRL IN HEROINE'S ROLE

Star Players Will Greet Rex Patrons During the Week.

"Our Mutual Girl" goes into a new line in Chapter Sixteen. She foils a burglar and saves his little sister. This chapter is full of thrills, pathos and heart interest and plenty of comedy. Briggs of The Chicago Tribune, one of America's greatest cartoonists, meets the Saucy one and draws her picture. You may see him actually at work Monday and Tuesday.

Wednesday the Rex belongs to St. James' Orphanage. The management invites Duluthians to take advantage of the chance to see the famous English actor, Charles Hawtrey, in the fantastical story, "A Message From Mars,' and also see how Duluth women serve as theater managers, ushers, ticket sellers and doorwomen.

"The Girl of Mystery" is certainly the right name for Lucille Love. The second installment, it was thought, could not be improved upon for excitement and dash, but installment No. 3 is said to be even more wonderful. It will appear Monday and Tuesday.

Arnold Daly, another of the Frohman stars, will be at the Rex Monday and Tuesday in the "Port of Missing Men." Daly takes the part of John Armitage, the clever and daring subject of a mythical kingdom, who comes to the United States and becomes imbued with the spirit of American democracy, and who later outwits the spies of his country's enemies, does great service for his country, also showing himself an adept in the art of love-making.

"Paid in Full," which will be shown at the Rex Thursday, Friday and Saturday, depicts the efforts of a woman to keep up the pace set by "swell" New York.

"Paid in Full" is unquestionably Eugene Walters' greatest writing. It stands for him as a monument in the annals of play production and writing. Great is its plot and wonderful its stirring situations—the strife of those of ordinary means to keep up with the pace New York prescribes—the love of a pure good woman for a worthless husband—her tribulations, ordeals and trials—the weakness of her husband in the face of temptation and his desire to gain for her happiness with the ultimate decision to place her amid such surroundings as her friends enjoy whether it be done fair or foul—the fiendish yet interesting character of the old sea captain, William, who lays his dastardly plot to win the wife of his clerk as he has won other women, by the persistent grind and grind until pride and circumstance will force her to acquiesce to his base desires. All these tense and stirring situations pictured in the way which won for the theatrical production of "Paid in Full" such an envious record of unprecedented success in whatever city or town the play has been shown during its five seasons of tremendous success, again are brought out with a renewed emphasis in the picture version, and assure for it a success.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

There is a movement on foot to give professional vaudeville entertainments on some of the trans-Atlantic liners. The artists are to be paid by having especially low rates of passage made for them in return for their services. The plan will be tried out on the maiden trip of the Aquitana at the end of this month.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" will be produced in London next October under the personal direction of George M. Cohan.

* * *

The Primrose & Dockstader Minstrel show has closed its season as the result of a strike on the part of the members of the organization against a half-salary stipulation in the contract. The two stars will be together again next season.

* * *

* * *

The Toronto censor has been at it again. He recently put the ban on Bernard Shaw's "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet," which the Irish players were intending to present. The reason given was that the play is indecent and blasphemous.

The Chicago Grand Opera company's trip to the Pacific coast has resulted in a loss of $180,000, according to authentic reports. It is stated that Dalmores, Glorgtim, Julia Claussen and Mary Garden will not be with the company next season. Zappili, Raisa and Dufranne are re-engaged, and Elinor De Cisneros, Sammarco and Bonci will be new members. Marie Barrientas will make ten appearances and Titu Ruffo fifteen.

Novikoff, who has been the main support of Pavlova, it is stated, will not dance with the famous Russian ballerina again. There have been constant rumors of disagreement between the two stars throughout the present American tour, and the present decision of Novikoff is said to be the outcome.

Up to the present time the following have been engaged for the new "Follies:" Leon Errol, who will stage the production; Ed Wynn, Vera Michelena, Gertrude Vanderbilt, Stella Chatelaine, Morton Horne, Ann Pennington and Frank Darling, who will again be the musical director.

Robert Edeson has been served with an order to show cause in the New York supreme court why he should not be restrained from continuing his present engagement in "Strongheart" under the management of William Fox. The suit was brought by H. H. Frazee, and is the result of the recently reported leaving of the "Fine Feathers" production on the part of Edeson.

May Buckley will head one of the summer stock companies at the Forest City. Arnold Daly is also engaged in a similar company in the same city. Mary Servoss will also delight the citizens of the city on the lake at the head of still another stock company.

He has in preparation, according to the same authority, a musical production which will be called "From Soup to Nuts." Otto Hauerbach and Irving Berlin are now at work upon the lines and music. The show is to be full of girls, music and comedy, and is to be the first of a series, one of which will be produced each successive year. Its debut will be made at the New York theater, which was built by the producer's father. Among those who are mentioned in connection with the cast are: Hazel Dawn, Wilkie Bard, Alice and Marie Lloyd, T. Roy Barnes, Harry Fox, Yansci Dolly and Lillian Lorraine.

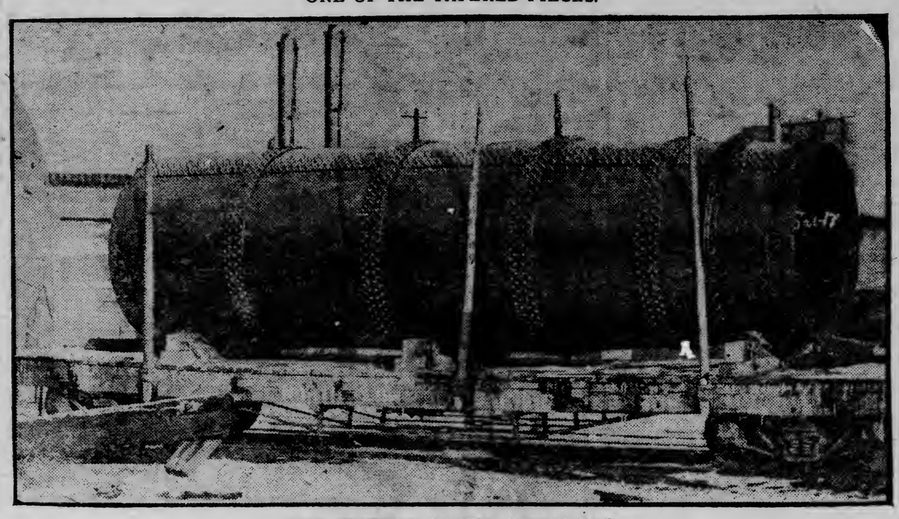
MAKING STEEL PIPE FOR POWER COMPANY'S NEW LINE KEEPS SEVENTY-FIVE MEN BUSY FOR SIX MONTHS

ONE OF THE TAPERED PIECES.



ONE SECTION MAKES A CARLOAD.

The Duluth Boiler Works is busily engaged upon a contract awarded it by the Great Northern Power company for the building of the steel pipe line to be used in connection with the additional 13,500-horsepower motor generator set now being installed at Fond du Lac, Minn.

The importance of the contract is to be judged from the statement that the pipe line is eight feet in diameter and 1,800 feet long, involving a weight of material aggregating 1,400,000 pounds, or 700 tons.

The plates range in thickness from three-eighth inch to one inch and part of the rivets in the pipe line are one and one-fourth inches in diameter by six inches long, weighing nearly three pounds each.

Transportation of the material for this work required thirty cars to bring it from the mills to Duluth and after fabrication in the local shop seventy-six cars will be required to deliver it to Fond du Lac.

At the present half of the tonnage has been shipped from the shop, and the pipe is being riveted together in the trench prepared for it at the power house.

In placing this order with a local concern the Great Northern Power company has made possible the employment of sixty to seventy-five additional men during a period of six months.

Some idea of the size and weight of pipe can be gained by reference to the tapered section, shown in the appended sketch, which weighed over 28 tons.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Party From Mining College Doing Mine Surveying at Virginia.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Students at four colleges at the university voted Wednesday to take the question of cribbing into their own hands. At the same time those in five colleges cast their ballots against the honor system. The heaviest voting in the history of the institution marked the contest. Each college decided for its own student body whether to come under the student government plan. Out of 1,745 votes, 1,008 students favored the new idea. The plan provides that all students in the conduct of examinations and class work shall be put on their honor not to cheat. Every student is under the moral obligation to do all in his power to enforce this system, but the matter of telling when a student sees another cheat is made optional. This was done to escape certain defeat of the measure, had the telling feature been retained. Each college will have a council to try cases, the appellate jurisdiction resting in the All-University council with the ultimate power of veto vested in President Vincent. The academic college adopted the system by a vote of 491 to 278. Other colleges which accepted the reform are the law, chemistry and the department of home economics. It was defeated in the engineering college by one vote, and also rejected by the medical, dentistry, pharmacy and agricultural colleges.

The long delayed freshman-sophomore oratorical contest took place in chapel Wednesday night. First place was won by Miss Louise Bailey, who spoke on the "Nation's Danger," while second place was won by Wendell T. Burns, his subject being "Industrial War and Peace." J. Oliver Buswell won third place with his oration, "Christian Missions." The winners will receive cash prizes of $50, $30 and $20, respectively, which is annually donated by the Morris L. Rothchild company of Minneapolis.

The annual distribution of the Gopher on Friday morning was the signal for unusual demonstrations on the campus. At 7:30 in the morning members of the Gopher board began distributing the 1,700 copies of the 1915 edition. Students "cut" classes without any compunction whatever and gathered on the campus knoll to discuss the book. The 1915 Gopher is denoted by the publishers as the "Gopher Beautiful," emphasis having been placed on the artistic features of the annual. The book is dedicated to the state of Minnesota to keep pace with President Vincent's idea of the state-wide campus. The introductory section shows views of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, with a drawing of the state capitol as a frontispiece. The book features the All-University circus held last spring. John S. Shadbolt is the managing editor, Albert Robertson is editor-in-chief and Charles M. Dale is business manager. The appearance of the Gopher was followed in the evening by a dance in the Armory, the proceeds of which will go to the Men's Union building.

By the heaviest vote in years, the All-University council was chosen Wednesday, the balloting resulting in the election of the following representatives: Academic, Cyrus Kaufman, Charles Dale, Helen Dunn and Florence Bernhart; law, Arthur Erdall; chemistry, Elmer Fegan; engineering, Phil Johnson; medical, O. L. Winter; dentistry, Carl Rice; pharmacy, George Opseth; home economics, Doris Babcock. Owing to the fact that a number of foresters, who are to elect next fall, balloted with the Aggies, through some mistake, the agricultural election is void and will be held May 20 with the Men's union election.

"The Professor's Love Story" was given at the Princess theater before a large and enthusiastic audience Thursday night. The members of the cast had been consistently absenting themselves from afternoon classes this week in order to insure the success of the play. Since the play is to be put in the university weeks, it was of a lighter nature than the "Pigeon," which the club put on earlier in the year. Albert Shiely was the leading man, while Ora Hyde had the leading feminine role. The proceeds of the play will be used to increase the fund for the men's union building.

John Dietrich was made secretary of the staff. Work on the 1916 Gopher has begun.

BIG TRAFFIC IS EXPECTED

Large Tonnage Through Panama Canal Is Now Indicated.

Steamship Companies of All Nations Preparing to Use It.

Panama, May 9.—Since announcement that the Panama canal probably will be ready for through navigation by July this year many letters of inquiry regarding the conditions to be imposed have been coming to the canal authorities from all parts of the world. It is apparent that steamship companies of all the great maritime nations expect to make an almost immediate use of the canal.

The communications also indicate that in virtually all cases the companies contemplate a through service from European ports to those on the west coast of North, Central and South American countries. Among the inquiries are those regarding tolls, conditions of navigation, pilotage in entering the terminal ports and through the canal and the charges for this service, wharfage facilities at Balboa and Christobal, location and equipment of repair shops, coaling and provisioning facilities and a host of other items relating directly to the usage of the canal.

Most of these questions are addressed to the governor of the Panama canal direct while others are sent to Washington and are forwarded to the isthmus. It is planned to turn them over to the newly appointed superintendent of transportation, who will be instructed by the governor to supply the desired information. Steamship companies which already are represented on the isthmus have sent their local representatives to the canal officials seeking similar information.

Large Tonnage Foreseen.

It is apparent to the canal authorities that as soon as the waterway shall have been thrown open, much greater use of it will be made than has been anticipated. It has been stated that not more than a 10,000,000 tons traffic could be expected for the first year the canal is in operation. The letters of inquiry seem to make it plain to the authorities here that already a greater tonnage for the first year is indicated.

Passenger-carrying lines are evincing considerable interest in the question of passenger tolls through the canal. This subject seems not to have been settled to the satisfaction of the companies, who desire to be informed whether tolls will be charged at all, and, if so, at what rate. The letters indicate that most of the companies are preparing for a heavy passenger traffic through the canal next year at or about the time of the formal opening and thence to the exposition at San Francisco.

Schedules of charges, aside from tolls for various services to be performed by the Panama canal, are in the course of preparation and probably will be promulgated in an official circular from the governor's office in the near future.

ALLEGED PRINCE CHEATED AT CARDS.

Genoa, May 9.—A young man of distinguished appearance, who calls himself Prince Karageorgevitch, and who has been supposed to be a son of the king of Servia, was arrested at Lugano recently, accused of cheating at cards. He appears to have had many victims among rich American and English tourists at bridge and baccara. The "prince" occupied magnificent apartments and entertained generously. He usually lost when the stakes were small, but when they were high he won. Finally two women suspected him of cheating and informed the police. A detective, who posed as a rich American from the circles of the "prince." The usual thing happened. The stakes were high and the "prince" was winning. After making sure that marked cards were being used the detective called in several agents of police, and took the "prince" and all his baggage to the police station.

WORK STARTED ON CHIRIQUI RAILWAY.

Panama, May 9.—Work on the Chiriqui railway, in the western part of the republic, has been started. Within a week after the ceremonies incident to the beginning of work at David and which were attended by President Porras, supplies were being shipped by sea to Pedragal, the port from which the railway extends into the interior. The line will penetrate the most important agricultural country of the republic and is expected to prove a great trade stimulant with the coffee country in the mountains north of David.

BE A RIGHT GOOD FELLOW

There are different ways of being a "good fellow." The easiest—for a while—is to be a good fellow to everybody but yourself and your family. It's pleasant while it lasts, but the day of reckoning (and remorse) is a sad and dreary one.

The real "good fellow" is good to his family first, himself next and other "good fellows" last. He works for his family by instinct. It is second nature with him to protect those dependent on him, and he is fast learning that there is no protection so sure and so easily built up as a savings account in this bank.

Buhl, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Range Municipal association to create a friendly feeling between the heads of the various municipalities on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges and to aid in solving the problems that arise in village administrations was formally organized here last evening at an enthusiastic meeting in the village hall.

The delegates began to assemble shortly after 6 o'clock. They were shown through the village hall, the new high school and the other points of interest in the village, officials of Buhl acting as guides.

At 9 o'clock a delicious banquet was served in the basement of the village hall by the ladies of the village.

The organization meeting was held in the council chamber, Mayor Doyle calling the delegates to order and briefly stating the object. Michael Boylan, mayor of Virginia, was elected temporary chairman and A. P. Romer, city clerk of Eveleth, temporary chairman.

A committee on organization consisting of S. C. Scott, Hibbing; Mayor Gleason, Eveleth; J. H. McNiven, Chisholm; Mayor Doyle, Buhl, and Dr. Barrett, Gilbert, was immediately appointed and instructed to prepare an outline of organization.

During the time the committee was working interesting talks were made by Thad Bean of Buhl, A. R. Folsom, Postmaster Johnson of Nashwauk, Mr. Owens, Eveleth, Dr. Darrow of Aurora and other representatives.

"Those opposed to progressive principles in civic improvement have organized," stated Mayor Boylan of Virginia, "and it is high time that we should band ourselves together."

The legislative feature of the organization is not to be overlooked according to the sentiment expressed and committees will be appointed to keep in touch with measures introduced.

Great Northern Roasted.

The Great Northern railroad came in for ascoring at the handsom several of the delegations, notably those from Buhl, Nashwauk, Keewatin and Virginia because of recent train service that has been annulled and an apparent impossibility to get satisfactory adjustments in matters under dispute.

The organization committee recommended:

That the organization be made permanent; that officers be elected for a term of one year; that the name of the organization of The Range Municipal association; that the officers consist of a president, first vice president, second vice president, secretary and treasurer; that the board of directors consist of the elected officers and the mayors or presidents of the villages and cities in the association; that the regular meetings be held on the first Thursdays in May, July, September and November; that the membership fee be placed at $10.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, W. J. Doyle, Buhl; first vice president, E. J. Burrows, Hibbing; second vice president P. A. McEachin, Keewatin; secretary and treasurer, A. P. Romer, Eveleth.

The membership will include all of the villages in the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges. The next meeting will be held in July.

The Buhl officials, the ladies and the citizens generally were extended a vote of thanks.

Virginia will give the association a royal entertainment in July according to Mayor Boylan, who stated that he would take personal charge of the program.

BOYLE AT EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator James P. Doyle addressed a large gathering of his fellow townsmen last night at the Eveleth auditorium. A concert by the Fayal band preceded his address, which was on "Why I Want to Go to Congress."

Mr. Boyle reviewed his work in the state senate in behalf of the workmen's compensation and the mothers' pension and urged more legislation which will benefit the workingmen.

His only criticism of his opponent was that he thought Mr. Miller should have been at Washington during the discussion of the tariff bill and not spending four months in the Philippines. The tariff bill as passed, he declared to be unsound and characterized it as a "political football."

Senator Boyle spoke very strongly in favor of a minimum wage act and hoped for the passage of a law which would prevent the employment of women and children and give the men work and a sufficient income to provide adequately for their families.

While making no reference to the Mexican situation Mr. Boyle characterized the expenditure of billions of dollars annually for military purposes as the "greatest crime of modern times." He promised his support to any movement which will keep the army and navy appropriations down while the country still maintains its relative strength with the other countries.

Mr. Boyle pledged himself to work unceasingly for a breakwater for the Duluth harbor if elected to congress.

April and June are considered ideal bridal months, but May seems to be passed over with silent contempt. The girls who set the day for May are striking exceptions to the almost rigid rule. Not even Mrs. William McAdoo made the month fashionable. If May is not the month for weddings, it seems to be the month for announcements. Most of the announcements say the weddings will take place next month.

Events of Interest

Miss Esther Anderson of Lakeside entertained at a bundle shower Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Nan Holmes, a bride of next month.

Games and music furnished the amusement for the evening. Favors were won by Mrs. Walter Hilber and Miss Abbie Fox. A luncheon was served to the following guests:

Mesdames—
H. Clark, A. Jenson, R. D. Thayer, W. Hilber.

Misses—
Anna Sheehan, Elsie Oesterich, Mae Holmes, Agnes Ebby, Mildred Olson, Cora Hill, Flora McDonald, Tessibel Swenkofski, Ida Nelson, Ella Hill, Minnie Oesterich, Abbie Fox, Ethel Stevens, Blanche Anderson, Helen Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Fisher of 109 East Third street celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at a dinner yesterday. All the relatives were present and covers were laid for twelve. The dining room was decorated in white and silver. A silver set was given by Mrs. George Dale, Neal Campbell and Dan Campbell, sister and brothers of Mrs. Fisher.

The three young people in the Gardiner trio, playing at a local vaudeville theater, this week are being very liberally entertained by Duluthians during their stay in the city for they are looked upon as sort of ex-officio Duluthians themselves. This is their fifth appearance in Duluth. Some years ago, while the Metropolitan theater was still running and "summer stock" was holding the boards the Gardiners, then known as the "Gardiner Children," did between-the-acts vaudeville and became perhaps the most popular entertainers that Duluth has ever patronized. The children were a great drawing card at the old "Met" and became socially popular. Their friends of that period are doing the honors now and the children, now well grown up, have good memories and remember all of their former intimates. Helen and Allene have developed into graceful young women and Edgar is a good-looking and graceful young dancer.

Miss Anna Johnson, 124 East Fifth street, entertained the Allin club Thursday evening. Those present were:

Sadie Mondeau, Lillian Grunan, May Holmes, May Zaiser, Grace Smith, Anna Johnson, Mrs. Grunan, Erik Johnson, Carl Johnson, Kurt Florman, P. Berry, Bob Zaiser, Carl Oestreich, Fred Johnson.

The old-fashioned dance given at Lakeside social center Wednesday evening was a decided success. W. B. Henderson called off for the Virginia reel, lancers and circle two-step. The dancers entered into the spirit of the affair and had a time that could not be rivaled by an evening of the latest ballroom steps.

A May pole dance was given Thursday evening by sixteen girls of the Irving social center who had been trained by Miss Genevieve Taylor. The dancers wore pink and green costumes trimmed with blossoms and the apple blossom decorations of the hall made an attractive background. Those who took part were Misses Victoria Perrin, Alice Krangel, Jeanette Willian, Pearl McKaig, May Pierson, Florence Pierson, Bessie Moore, Phoebe Moore, Blanche Ryan, Elna Wicklund, Lillian Flaherty, Leona Cashin, Geraldine Hagerty, Hazel Myers and Sarah Armstrong.

OBSERVATIONS

—By PEGGY PEABODY—

Husband Should Help Wife to Live Within Means.

A young wife, almost distracted, engaged my attention recently, while she described in detail how the contents of her pocketbook could never be made to cover the amount of her weekly expenditures. She was certain that she had set every single item of expense down, but for all that she was always behind hand financially.

I admitted to her that I could not unravel the tangle, for I had never thought to keep an account of all money spent, and had no head for figures. But I volunteered the information that it seemed to me that anyone keeping accounts and hoping to arrive at a balance at the end of the week, must at the outset place a limit on her expenditures and strive to live within the limit. It appeared to me that this young woman had bought whatever she wanted, regardless of cost.

I presume she bought and bought and asked her husband for various sums of money throughout the week. As long as they were forthcoming all went merry as a marriage bell. When he commenced to demur and make inquiries about the household expenses, she commenced to have doubts of her bookkeeping abilities. But she was accurate and honest in setting things down and correct at adding their total.

Her husband is as much, if not more, to blame. If he demanded that an account be kept, then it is his duty as provider of the funds to decide jointly with his wife just what sum they can afford to spend on the table, what on rent, on clothing, on pleasures, on furnishings and whatever emergency may arise to take money from time to time. These sums decided on, the husband should make a regular allowance limit.

Some men seem to think that a wife can provide all the delicacies and dainties and pay for them at the rate exacted for codfish and potatoes, and other homely, but inexpensive fare. That is one of the things that the young husband who complains that household accounts will not balance must learn.

No young housekeeper by making entry of her purchases is going to live within her means unless she sets the high water mark of her expenses at the top of each page and closely follows it. Let them decide between them what it must be. Then let the wife remember that this amount must suffice and let the husband never forget that there is a limit to what this sum will buy of comfort.

Y. W. C. A. GIRLS PRESENT TWO CLEVER COMEDIES

SIGNE NELSON
As Gwendolyn.

LINNETTE HAUBNER
As Kathleen.

"The Fallen Idol" and "The Trouble at Satterlee's," two boarding school farces, were given at the Y. W. C. A. last evening by the extension department of the association. The proceeds of the evening will be used to send two delegates to the conference at Lake Geneva in August.

In "The Fallen Idol," Dora, a pupil in Miss Spriggin's seminary, plans a secret meeting with one whose letters bear the romantic subscription, "Romeo." The place of the meeting is the parlor of a French cleaning establishment. Miss Spriggins arrives at a decidedly inconvenient time, and Dora, the character portrayed by Miss Olga Hendricks, and "Romeo," portrayed by Miss Signe Nelson, discover each other's identity and romance is destroyed by the realization that the writer of the notes is Gwendolyn, a pupil of the seminary.

In "The Trouble at Satterlee's," Kathleen, the maid, overhears the discussion of a plot of a play several girls in the seminary are planning to write Frightened at the details, she tells Miss Satterlee, the principal, who attends the rehearsal disguised as a spirit. When the time to unmask comes there is naturally a great surprise for the young actresses. There is a happy ending and Kathleen's wedding is the climax. The part of Kathleen was taken by Miss Linnette Haubner.

BUSY WEEK FOR MEMBERS OF DULUTH WOMEN'S CLUBS

Zenith City Well Represented on Program for Convention at Cloquet—Drama League, Collegiate Alumnae and Cecilian Society Hold Annual Meetings.

THIS has been a full week for club women, with the district meeting at Cloquet in addition to the meetings of local interest.

Duluth was well represented on the program at Cloquet. Miss Katherine King read a paper on "Child Conservation" and Mrs. F. L. Barrows led the discussion that followed; Mrs. P. L. De Voist read a paper on "State Work" and Mrs. F. J. O'Donnell one on "Vocational Training for Girls." Mrs. S. R. Holden spoke of the proposed Duluth pageant for 1915 and Miss Margaret Culkin told of "Social Center Work in the Small City."

Several Duluth clubs held their annual meetings during the week and decided upon their schemes of work for next year. The new Duluth Drama Study club adopted a constitution and by-laws and approved the program prepared by the committee. The program calls for the study of modern American, English, French, German, Russian and Scandinavian plays.

At the meeting of the Drama league, Mrs. S. R. Holden was re-elected president and it was decided to put "Rackety Packety House" on some time in July. It was through the efforts of this club that George Arliss in "Disraeli" was brought to Duluth, and that the play-going average of the city has increased. The "Maeterlinck" and the "Damaged Goods" dramatic conferences are not to be overlooked in reviewing the year's work done by this organization.

The Association of Collegiate Alumnae has planned a series of interesting subjects and several social affairs in the ways of luncheons and receptions. Mrs. L. W. Kline is the new president.

Mrs. Archibald L. McDonald was re-elected president of the Cecilian society at the annual meeting Thursday when a request program was given as a conclusion of the year's work.

With few exceptions all clubs have suspended meetings for the summer, but not before most of them have made plans for their next season's programs.

Y. W. C. A. Vespers.

At the Y. W. C. A. vespers tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock the Light Bearers of the First Presbyterian church will repeat their performance, "Children of Many Lands," that was given at the church last evening. Miss Margaret Johnson will give a Chinese recitation in costume.

The last vesper service of the year will be given next Sunday. It will be in the nature of a request program.

Pupil's Recital.

A GROUP of Mrs. D. H. Day's piano pupils will give a recital Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. instead of at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Homer Collins, as had been planned. Methodist Union Banquet.

UNDER the auspices of the Methodist union of this city a banquet will be given at the First church Tuesday evening, May 19. This is the first time that Methodists of the city have tried to get together in any such social function. The union, under whose auspices the banquet is being given, is made up of representatives of all the Methodist churches of the city, and as the seating capacity of the banquet hall of the church is only 250, reservations for seats are being disposed of rapidly. Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, D. D., pastor of the St. James Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago, has been secured as the principal speaker of the evening. Dr. Mitchell has been heard in Duluth before, but many will welcome a further opportunity to hear him.

W. L. Smithies, the president of the union, will preside at the banquet, and Rev. Milton P. Burns, D. D., district superintendent, will act as toastmaster. One or two toasts will be assigned later to local talent, and the affair promises to be a most enjoyable one.

The following committees are at work: Banquet hall, Bert N. Wheeler, chairman; tickets, Rev. M. P. Burns, chairman; program, Rev. J. W. Hoffman, chairman; publicity, Rev. C. R. Oaten.

DULUTH WOMEN WILL OPERATE THEATER ONE DAY FOR CHARITY

MISS LORETTA O'GORMAN.

MISS THERESA LYNN.

DULUTH women will take possession of the Rex theater, acting as ushers and ticket sellers on Wednesday when the film, "A Message From Mars," featuring Charles Hawtry, will be shown at a continuous performance afternoon and evening for the benefit of St. James' orphanage. The affair will be under the auspices of the St. James' guild. Many persons have engaged boxes for both the afternoon and evening. In addition to the list printed several days ago, the following have taken boxes:

Mrs. John Helmer, Mrs. Whitney Wall, Mrs. John McCarthy, Miss Theresa Marotta, Mayor Prince, Archie Kenney, Dr. J. D. Park, Ray T. Higgins, St. James' Junior guild, Mrs. T. F. Cole, Mrs. F. A. Patrick, Miss Anna B. Fitzpatrick, Frederick Wolvin.

The story shows how Ramiel, an inhabitant of Mars, having committed some misdemeanor, is commanded by the god of Mars to go to earth and reclaim some selfish mortal.

The synopsis of the play reads:

"By means of a crystal globe, which reveals the actions of the happenings on earth, the god of Mars has noticed one Horace Parker—a selfish person. He sees him pushing his way through a crowd watching a Punch and Judy show. Horace, when solicited to contribute a few pennies by the showman, refuses, shoving his way surlily onward. The god of Mars decrees that Ramiel must cure Horace of his selfishness before regaining favor in Mars.

"Horace, at home, settles down for a comfortable evening by the fire. He had promised to take his fiancee Minnie to a dance, but when she calls for him en route, she finds him in dry clothes. She reproaches him for his thoughtless selfishness, and finally returns him the engagement ring. She goes to the dance with an escort who has called, Horace having failed her. Horace is now left at home, to read and ruminate. A tramp who is looking for work comes to him with a letter of recommendation; he receives no help or sympathy from Horace, who turns him out of doors.

"Here the messenger from Mars appears. He tells Horace that he is going to change his character and make him a better man. Horace demurs, but by a series of arguments and electric shocks, he convinces him that he is in earnest. The messenger orders him out into the night and bids him perform some unselfish act. The Martian messenger, becoming exasperated and furious, strips him of his good clothes and leaves him shivering before the house where Minnie has become the belle of the party. Again the tramp appears upon the scene. This time he offers to help Horace, who stands in rags, starving, and gladly shares the crust that is offered him.

"Horace, overcome with emotion, suggests a partnership, and they try and make money opening the doors of the automobiles of the departing guests.

"Soon the real tramp becomes exhausted. Horace, at last alive to others' wants, picks him up and takes him to his own home. The Messenger, by this time satisfied that that good work has been accomplished, changes him back into his ordinary apparel. Horace settles him in his own armchair, providing him with food and drink. The Messenger returns to Mars, telling his Martian brothers of the good work done.

"While Horace is attending to the needs of his new found friend, the maidservant tells him a fire has broken out. Horace at once dashes to the scene—the new Horace, not the old selfish one—saves the lives of three youngsters, and insists upon taking the entire homeless family back to his own establishment, treating them with sympathy and kindness.

"This generous action is witnessed by Ramiel and his brother, Martians, who see the mission accomplished, Minnie and Horace once more brought together, and Horace replaces the discarded engagement ring."

In the afternoon Miss Loretta O'Gorman will sing, "To Be Near You," by F. A. Coote, and "Rose in the Bud," by Dorothy Foster. In the evening Miss Theresa Lynn's organ selection will be "Fantaisie de Concert" (opus 29), by Frederich Lux. Mrs. Leo A. Ball will sing "Kerry Dance."

The ushers for the afternoon will be Misses Irene Bratto, Agnes Crookshank, Margaret Rogers, Catherine Lydon, Ruth Lucore and Mary Marrotta. The ushers for the evening will be Messrs. Arthur Kelly, Howard Conlon, Teddy Meagher, James Dormedy, Frederick Olson, Howard Kiley, Clarence Hegland and Alfred Nunan.

There are about 1,000 members of the St. James' guild that is now on its third year of work. Mrs. Edward Dormedy is the president.

"LADA" THE NEW DANCE SENSATION

New York Sun Interviews Miss Emily Schupp on the Art of Interpretative Dancing.

Miss Emily Schupp, a Duluth girl (even though her press agent has made her a Russian) has evidently created something of a furore in New York, where she recently made her debut as a dancer under the stage name of "Lada" at the Princess theater.

The New York Sun of last Sunday had almost a full page devoted to pictures of Miss Schupp in various poses, and an interesting interview with her. The interview, which is partly facetious, but on the whole most complimentary, follows:

"In Lada, who danced the other afternoon at the Princess theater, the public of New York which is interested in 'interpretative' dancing made the acquaintance of its most eccentric visitor. Anna Pavlowa sailed away to Europe the day before Lada came before the public; but there never could have been the least rivalry between them. Mme. Pavlowa loves the music of an orchestra, the rays of the footlights and the exquisite costumes which Bakst and others design for her. Lada, although she is a Russian, is altogether a different person.

"For of all the interpretative dancers that have come here since Isadore Duncan used to dance Beethoven symphonies and Schumann etudes none has been more original than Lada. And there have been some curious figures in the small army of girls that took off their shoes and ran in pursuit of Isadore of the tribe of Duncan and her laurels.

Some Other Dancers.

"Baroness de Swirsky was not in the least as her name sounded, for she was barefooted, and in the mazes of the Rubinstein and Chopin dances which she attempted she had only her single garment to swirl through the air. She will be remembered as the dancer who used to begin her performance by playing a sonata on the piano in order to get herself into the mood.

"Then there was Greta Wiesenthal, beloved in Vienna and now engaged to dance in all the first productions of Richard Strauss, who came to the Winter Garden and did absolutely nothing to prove her right to be there or to explain her fame on the banks of the Danube. Maud Allen, teetering with bare knees about the papier mache poll of John the Baptist; Ruth St. Denis, dressed a la Japanaise and calling herself a Japanese poetess of the thirteenth century; Gertrude Hoffmann temporarily eluding the two-a-day, which got her back after a while, and Lady Constance Stewart Richardson, with her long white legs and her perfectly frank willingness to let their fullest beauty be enjoyed by all New York that could afford the price of a ticket to the Victoria theater—these are some of the picturesque predecessors of Lada.

Lada Is Different.

"But she is much more different than any of them. One need but hear her account of the wonderful phases of the art of the dance which she exhibits.

"'I seek to represent,' observes this ambitious dancer, 'the poetry of the terpsichorean art, rhythmic plasticity; I do not only represent the art of the dance, but life symbolically. My idea of the dance is that melodies and harmonies of the music melt into thousands of living lines, all of which I visualize.'

"How Lada manages to melt into thousands of living lines she did not explain to the Sun reporter. Lada is moreover strong for expressiveness in every movement of the dance.

"'My compatriots in the ballet,' she said, 'say that their art may be made expressive of every emotion of the human soul. et us grant, then, for the sake of argument that the spectacle of a ballet dancer rising to her toes, gradually lifting her arms and, so far as possible, extending her body does mean, as they maintain, that she has freed herself from the material into the sphere of the soul.

Meaningless Spinning.

"But what in the world is meant by the countless spinnings of the body as if she were a top? There are in the classic ballet, in the conventional old steps and gestures, in the time honored evolutions, some thrill and some grace. I find it, however, altogether lacking in the expression of the real emotions of the soul. The old ballet dancing may show graceful and stimulating movement. But can it reveal the eloquence of movement?

"The opinion might be expressed that it can and that the old art of the ballet as expressed by such past mistresses as Genee or Pavlowa is something vastly superior to the freer efforts of the so-called interpretative dancers.

"'My ideal of the dance,' Lada told the reporter, 'is to show existence in grace, to show that life is after all capable of representation in the form of movement guided by poetry and

TRAINING WAYWARD GIRLS TO BE USEFUL CITIZENS

Mrs. Fannie Morse Will Tell National Conference of Charities and Correction of Her Work at Sauk Center.

MRS. FANNIE MORSE, who is in charge of the Girls' Industrial school at Sauk Center, Minn., will be on the program of the National Conference of Charities and Correction which is meeting at Memphis, the dates being May 8 to 15. Mrs. Morse is well known in sociological circles, and nine states and one South American country are urging her to help them perfect institutions like the one at Sauk Center.

The Akeley Herald-Tribune has quoted some interesting comments made by federated club women who visited the institution that is moulding 175 young women to be useful citizens of the state.

The school has a good location on an elevation one mile from Sauk Center. It consists of an administration building, hospital, chapel and several modern cottages, each accommodating twenty-five girls, who are under the supervision of the "mother" of the cottage and a teacher.

Many girls are defiant when they enter the school, and some keep the defiant attitude as long as six months, but by the end of that time most of them have been brought into line. There is no set discipline. The only punishment are fines, and continued fines reduce a girl to pauperism and leave her to be supported by the other girls in her cottage, a condition looked upon as a disgrace.

Each Girl a Producer.

Every girl in the school must be a producer. Increased proficiency means greater earning ability, with the opportunities to dress better and save money. A girl who will not sew must pay some other girl to make her clothes, and it does not take long for this lesson to take effect and incite her to do her own sewing.

There is a store in connection with the school, where the girls make their purchases, including all wearing apparel. A girl is taught the actual value of money and how to make beautiful and useful household articles out of the cheapest materials.

She is taught to cook, scrub, sew, paint, cultivate a garden, handle a hammer and play the piano. She learns to design wall paper, curtains, sofa covers, bedspreads and sofa pillows. She draws house plans, both exterior and interior, specifies each article of furnishing for a home and gives the price of it.

Just as there is no set discipline, so there is no rigid school system. If there is a restless atmosphere at the beginning of a class and the teachor thinks the scheduled lesson will not remedy the condition of restlessness, she changes to another subject. If she thinks a fancy trip to Mexico would give more satisfactory results than a lesson in arithmetic would, the class takes the trip.

When a girl is committed to the Sauk Center school she is under the care of the state until she reaches the age of 21. The years spent at this institution, with their training in books, the science and crafts of the home, and in courtesy and etiquette, have the desired effects. As proof of this, it need only be said that of the girls who have left the institution, only 1 per cent have failed to "make good."

beauty and inspired by the genius of music.

"'Thus my dances are intended to have their special expressiveness. To the exquisite music 'Lada,' composed by Gliere, I seek to represent the birth of a maiden from a beautiful flower which is gradually transformed into life from the bud. The death dance which I do to the Trepak of Moussorgsky is as much a search for an answer to the eternal riddle of life as any that Shakespeare ever indicated in Hamlet. Think of the eloquence of the symbols I must employ in this dance to reveal to the sensitive watcher all that the music suggests to me!

"'There are wide snow fields in the deep Russian winter. The icy north wind sobs to the cold night. Sweeping over the graves white as marble in the cold snow the wind sings like the funeral dirge the priests sang before the dead or the grave or the snow was there. Over the snow there suddenly come two figures. One is Death. The other is the old peasant. Death clutches the old man in his grasp and leads him over the white snow to the frozen grave.'

Some Dancing.

"Even the most disinterested spectator would have to admit that it would take some dancing to express all this to the audience. Interpretative dancing is, however, a matter of speculation. What may be profoundly impressive to one person may leave another altogether cold. When Isadora Duncan used to turn her back to the audience and scratch the curtains designed by Gordon Craig that used to mean to her the spirit of Beethoven's seventh symphony.

"The new dancer recognizes how different tweedledum may me from tweedledee and says:

"'My dancing is subjective.' Then she adds 'But it is the mute, vibrating symbol of my innermost soul.'

"Lada loves to dance to chimes as she hears them echo through the cloisters of the convents in Russia. Here she finds opportunity to express the religious side of her art, which she is distressed to find of less and less importance every day. Much of her dancing is architectural in that it follows the styles of its period. She may be Byzantine or Gothic, Moorish or Egyptian, as the particular revelation of beauty through her dancing demands.

"She is a serious dancer, as anybody will believe who has talked with her or read what she has said. If any more evidence of her complete seriousness is needed can it not be found in the fact that she dances to the music of Sibelius, MacDowell, Gliere, Moussorgsky, Schubert, Brahms and Rachmanioff?"

NEW METHODS OF TEACHING USED BY FRENCH MUSICIAN

MRS. STELLA P. STOCKER of 1014 East Second street, who returned last Saturday from eight months' study in Europe, talks interestingly of modern French methods of teaching.

MRS. STELLA P. STOCKER.

Her teacher of singing in Paris was Giovanni Sbriglia, the master with whom she studied five years ago and whose method of breathing has made him famous through his renowned pupils, Jean de Reske, Edward de Reske, Pol Plancon and a host of other artists.

As collateral work, Mrs. Stocker took courses at the Sorbonne and is enthusiastic over the work done there by Dr. Marage. His course of lectures on the voice is attended very largely by the professional singers and lecturers of Paris.

Dr. Marage discovered the possibility of using the cinematograph in studying the mechanism of the voice.

The weekly lecture of explanation is followed the next day by a two-hour lesson in the laboratory where the pupils have an opportunity to examine each others' throats by the aid of the larynxgoscope. Then certain pupils sing into a machine for photographing the voice. Others sing or speak into the phonograph. The record is finished immediately, by a new process for temporary work, and the song is reproduced for the benefit of the pupils. Dr. Marage then points out the defects and asks for explanations. Enlightening discussions follow.

It is easy to see the teacher gains a great deal from these lectures and lessons, although he has not the facilities for carrying on such experiments in his own studio.

In Paris there is great demand for clear and systematic teaching in language as well as in singing. It is a recognized fact that adults cannot gain a good French accent by simple imitation. "Phonetique, phonetique" is the watchword and the several schools that train by this method turn out pupils with an accent that is pleasing to the ears of the French people. What is more important, these pupils speak in a way that is comprehensible to Parisians.

Miss Clara Stocker, who was in Paris with her mother, took a general course of lectures at the Sorbonne. She also studied French at the Institute Phonetique of Rene Delbost, and diction with Mlle. Jeanne Even. Miss Stocker returned to Duluth this morning, having stopped off at Brooklyn, N. Y., for a visit.

AMERICA FOR AMERICAN MUSICIANS

THE propaganda of American trained musicians for America has been growing in strength for about five years, but recently it was brought to the attention of the people at large by newspapers, musical journals and the opinions voiced by trustworthy musicians. In the front rank of this movement is John C. Freund, crtic, playwright and editor of Musical America. He is able to cope with the subject as he has been engaged actively in musical affairs for forty years and has had international experience.

His statement that the social conditions of foreign cities are not understood by American girls who go there, and his spoken regret that so many go without sufficient understanding, protection, money and preparation for the work were taken up by a few foreign teachers and boarding house keepers, who feared a falling off of the harvest reaped from American students.

Local Talent Ignored.

A handicap to the progress of music in America is the lack of recognition of local talent. A St. Louis reporter gives as one of the causes of Boston's wonderful musical progress, the fact that the persons who founded the Boston Symphony orchestra, worked on the principal of "Boston for Boston." During its second season in 1881 out of the twenty-nine soloists engaged twenty-four were residents of Boston. One of them became famous as Nordica. The position is sometimes taken that the engagement of local musicians causes jealousy.

Another obstacle in the way of American musical progress is said to be the ignorance of persons in regard to the musical resources in their particular localities. They send their sons and daughters to remote cities instead of keeping them in their own congenial home surroundings.

In many cases musicians work against each other instead of working together for mutual good.

The propaganda of Americans studying at home instead of abroad will have a broadening influence, it will be for the good of the music of the world, according to Freund, who says:

"It is precisely because our American students have gained so much from Europe, it is precisely because the great teachers and artists that have come here have accomplished much, that we are today in a position of independence. Think a minute. When the United States established her political independence of England, our relations with England became more cordial. The two countries gradually began to respect each other; they began to work harmoniously together for the world's peace, for the promotion of agriculture, of industry and commerce, and for the encouragement of music, literature, drama and the arts. When we established our commercial independence of England we did not cease business relations with her. They were expanded. And so now, when we declare our independence in music, while we shall henceforth encourage our own composers, singers, players and all those who work in the musical field, we shall by the increased interest in music which will result, lift the cause of music the world over and thus increase its power for good, its humanizing force and influence."

The speaker has traveled extensively throughout the country and has frequently lectured to large audiences in our leading cities. Press reports show that he has been well received wherever he goes, and that his free lectures have aroused much interest in Bible study. "The people," he says, "have often asked me why God is permitting His children to suffer such unspeakable misery, not only in disasters, but also in sickness, pain, heart-rending experiences of all kinds, and even death. Will it always be thus? Why didn't God make earth like heaven? Could not God's plans have been improved upon? These and many similar questions which so burden our hearts, I propose, by God's grace, to answer definitely from His word, in my address on Sunday."

HOW TO AVOID UNPLEASANT DREAMS

A young man has asked me if it were possible for him to stop dreaming. "As soon as I go to sleep," his letter states, "I start to dream. It makes no difference on which side I sleep, whether my right or my left side, neither does it matter if I sleep on my back. I always dream throughout the night, and I do not feel as though I am sufficiently rested, although I sleep eight or nine hours out of every twenty-four, my work is light, inside work in a shop."

There are a number of reasons which underlie dreaming, and I wondered as I read your letter whether your nose was at all stopped up so that the air could not flow freely through the nasal passages when you breathe in your sleep. Any obstruction or interference with the breathing acts as a nervous disturbing element and will readily cause dreams. Another very common cause for unpleasant dreaming is the fact that a lot of food or liquid has been lying heavily and undigested in the stomach. See to it, therefore, that what you eat is readily handled by your digestive powers.

Every night, just before retiring, do this: Go to the bathroom and give your feet a soak in a bucket of water as hot as you can endure it, half way up to the knees. Keep on adding small quantities of exceedingly hot water so as to gradually increase the temperature.

If you will give your feet a fifteen to twenty minute hot bath every evening, it will draw the blood away from your brain, and likewise have a quieting effect upon your entire nervous system. If you will attend carefully to these three items of treatment, you will obtain prompt relief, provided you are a perfectly healthy man in every other particular. Don't get nervous and think because you have been dreaming during the night that your nerves are entirely exhausted. They are not, for while certain parts of the brain are at work, other parts are at rest. Gradually, as you get your nervous system into a quieter condition, you will enjoy reading a good short story for ten or fifteen minutes before going to sleep. Often this will bring about a most delightful and restful kind of dream that will do you good. Don't be alarmed, therefore, about yourself at all. There is nothing serious to your trouble.

YOUR NOSE BLEEDING IS GOOD FOR YOU.

"What do you suggest? For the past two weeks I have been feeling very drowsy and sleepy while at work. If I go to bed at 9 o'clock in the evening, which I usually do, and get up at half past six the next morning, during the whole day I invariably feel very sleepy. If, on the other hand, I go to bed late, the next morning I still feel sleepy. I have no bad habits, such as smoking, chewing or drinking. I have a pain back of my eyeballs. My appetite is good and I sleep very soundly. My nose bleeds quite often. During the day it seems as though I have about fifty pounds of weight on top of my heart, and I cannot remember a thing which is told me more than for about a period of a half an hour. I am a young man of 20 years of age, and am a stenographer."

Your nose bleeding is good for you. You are probably all choked up with poison matters. Until these are unloaded from your blood, your symptoms will continue. The very best thing you can do would be to live upon nothing but a fruit and vegetable diet for the next eight or ten weeks. Furthermore, in order to more rapidly aid your system in purifying itself, go to your druggist once a week and have him fix up in syrup of sarsaparilla a half tumblerful of castor oil. Have the druggist fill this dose with soda water.

Then, get away with it.

Do this regularly each week, and if you adopt the diet mentioned your symptoms will rapidly disappear, provided there is nothing of an organic nature wrong with you. If in the course of two months your symptoms have not all cleared up, as well as the cessation of all nose bleeding, by all means go to your family physician and have him thoroughly study out your case.

$3,000 A YEAR FOR LIFE FOR FIANCEE

English Court Upholds Breach of Promise Agreement.

London, May 9.—As a sequel to a breach of promise of marriage, judgment was given yesterday to Miss Derryle Elizabeth Law of Atlanta, Ga., in a suit brought to enforce payment of a settlement of $3,000 a year made in her favor by the late Capt. Patrick Hamilton. Capt. Hamilton, a British army aviator, was killed in a flying accident at Stevenage, Eng., on Nov. 8, 1912.

Miss Law is the only daughter of Mrs. N. Latham Law of Atlanta. She became acquainted with Capt. Hamilton on Long Island and shortly afterward accepted his proposal of marriage. Counsel for Miss Law, in his opening speech, declared that the family of Capt. Hamilton, when it discovered that Miss Law was not an heiress, persuaded the captain to break the engagement. Miss Law thereupon brought suit for breach of promise and the captain, on her agreeing to postpone the wedding until the following October, settled $3,000 a year on her for life.

SAYS ROCK ISLAND NEEDS $65,000,000

Expert Makes Report on Reorganization of Properties.

New York, May 9.—Approximately $65,000,000 will be required to effect such economies and general improvements as are necessary to place the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific system on a proper physical and financial basis, according to F. W. McKenna, an expert engaged by the bondholders' protective committee.

Mr. McKenna's report, which has been awaited with much interest by holders of Rock Island securities, is rather more exhaustive than that made some weeks ago by T. M. Schumacher, the chairman of the Rock Island company, who estimated the system's needs at $40,000,000.

New Cars Needed.

Regarding the road's physical condition, the McKenna report says that about 20,000 cars ought to be retired. He recommended an investment of about $15,000,000 in new cars, which would increase efficiency by at least 50 per cent, he estimates.

Capital requirements, as contemplated by Mr. McKenna, call for about $41,000,000, the expenditure of which, he says, would result in increased revenues over existing conditions of at least $5,000,000.

Construction of a short line from Chicago to Kansas City by way of Peoria, Ill., and Keokuk, Iowa, would also have a potent effect, Mr. McKenna says, in reducing transportation expenses. These and other improvements, he believes, would go far toward restoring the stock of the railway company to at least its par value.

About 200 Claims of 160 Acres Each Are Expected to Go for Song.

Bemidji, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attracted by an opportunity to get tillable Minnesota land at $1.25 an acre, many persons from all parts of the central and central west will be here on Monday, for a sale of government land for delinquent interest on ditch liens. Many of the number are already here and more will arrive on all trains tomorrow.

Under the state laws, ditches are built through lands for their drainage and reclamation. After the ditch is established, the contract for construction is let and a lien is filed against all lands benefited by the ditch, whether owned privately or by the government. The lien extends for twenty years, the principal payable in fifteen annual installments after the first five years. However, the interest on all unpaid liens balance every year.

Unpaid interest becomes delinquent and the lands affected are subject to sale. Under the Volstead act of May 20, 1903, purchaseds of land at the tax sale may bid on government lands. They are entitled to file on unentered lands for homesteads, provided they are citizens of the United States or have announced their intention of becoming citizens, are 21 years of age, or minors with families, and do not own more than 160 acres of land. They will also pay the government the $1.25 an acre required in all homestead cases.

For an example, forty acres of land on which the delinquent tax is $4.68, representing the delinquent interest for 1912, is assessed $116.80, for benefits derived from the ditch. This, with the interest for 1913, would make the total $123.81. If there should be several persons interested in the land, and it should be bid at, for instance, $4 an acre, the lien would be entirely satisfied, and the balance of $36.19 would be made a government bonus. Should the amount received from the bidding be insufficient to meet the lien, the lien will be satisfied to the amount paid for the certificate, leaving a balance to be paid during the last years of the lien and on which interest would have to be paid each year.

Sale of the tax certificates will be made at the courthouse, it being urged by County Auditor J. L. George that persons planning on bidding acquaint themselves with descriptions of the land. He will not have the location of the land, but will merely read its legal description.

About 200 Claims.

There are about 200 claims of 160 acres each on which the delinquent tax claims may be satisfied Monday. In case there are no bidders on some of these claims, the county will continue to balance the delinquent interest until paid. Most of the claims lie north of Red Lake, the actual cost of the land ranging from 60 cents to $6 an acre, plus the $1.25 per acre required by the government. The average was $1.98 an acre, but that amount has been lowered by recent work.

Last year there were 125,000 acres northwest of Red Lake sold in this manner. The city was tented by persons who came to get the land and could not be accommodated in the hotels. It is anticipated that there will be even more to come to this sale.

Under recently enacted laws, it is not possible to legally transfer titles of certificates of taxes paid. Hence the entire amount of land which one man might buy with profit is 160 acres.

Both strong boxes had been cleverly blown, there being no report of either explosion.

Boy or Girl? Great Question!

This brings to many minds an old and tried family remedy—an external application known as "Mother's Friend." During the period of expectancy it is applied to the abdominal muscles and is designed to soothe the intricate network of nerves involved. In this manner it has such a splendid influence as to justify its use in all cases of coming mother-hood. It has been generally recommended for years and years and those who have used it speak in highest praise of the immense relief it affords. Particularly do these knowing mothers speak of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and freedom from those many other distresses usually looked forward to with such concern.

There is no question but what "Mother's Friend" has a marked tendency to relieve the mind and this of itself in addition to the physical relief has given it a very wide popularity among women.

You can obtain "Mother's Friend" at almost any drug store. It has helped a host of mothers to a complete recovery.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 9.—The wheat market was strong again today as a result of continued good spot demand and higher Liverpool cables. Trading was in comparatively light volume and was confined to the July option.

May wheat closed ¼c up at 93¼c; July ⅝c up at 93¾c, and September ¼c up at 88¾ nominally. There was practically nothing at all doing in durum. The May option closed unchanged at 88c and July unchanged at 83⅜c asked.

Oats closed unchanged at 37c for on the track, and at 36c to arrive. Rye closed ½c up at 57@59c for the best grades, and barely unchanged at 54@59c for choice stuff.

Puts on Minneapolis July wheat closed at 90⅜c asked and calls at 91@91⅛c.

The feature in the market was the maintenance of good bidding by exporters and the firmness with which remaining supplies were held. Primary receipts in the day on the American markets showed a falling off of 271,000 bu from last year. Stocks of wheat in Duluth elevators decreased 1,652,000 bu in the last six days, bringing them down to 8,701,000 bu. In addition there is to be deducted over 1,000,000 bu loaded into steamers during the last couple of days, but not yet reported out of store. Inspections today came to 60 cars against 153 last year, and there were 75 cars of all grains on the tracks for the day.

Reports from over the winter wheat territory continued good, telling of rapid growth in all the states.

Good cash demand was reported at Winnipeg for both wheat and oats, with direct Liverpool cables up 1c on wheat. Liverpool was strong with the trade bullish, regarding the old light supplies of old wheat remaining. The opinion is entertained over there that should anything happen to the European crops, the foreign markets would all have sharp advances.

Flaxseed Turns Strong.

Flaxseed turned strong in sympathy with higher cables. Buenos Aires closed 2½c up; London ⅞c up and Antwerp 1½c up. Under these conditions, there was good buying by crushers throughout the session, and with light offerings, closing prices were at the top. Advances ranged from ⅝@¾c in the distant futures to -@1¼c in the May and July Options.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.55½ and closed 1¼c up at $1.56¾ asked. July opened unchanged at $1.57 and closed 1c up at $1.58 asked. September opened unchanged at $1.58¾ and closed ¾c up at $1.59½ bid, and the October option opened unchanged at $1.56¼ and closed ⅝c up at $1.56⅞ bid.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.36 asked, and July at $1.39@1.39⅛.

George H. Spencer of the Consolidated Elevator company, returned today from a trip to Winnipeg. He avers that traders are feeling optimistic up there over the present market situation in grain. Reports show that seeding is backward in some sections of Manitoba, but that the seed is nearly all in the ground in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Easier American cables prompted some profit-taking at the opening helped by the Modern Miller's report and larger American shipments as indicated by Bradstreet's, and values were ½d higher to ¼d lower, with pressure in October. Following this opening, shorts covered influenced by strength in corn, good Continental demand for cargoes, firmness of Manitoba, and a good inquiry for both Manitoba and American winters, with millers buying. The speculative market was very firm, ½d higher. The demonstrated firmness of holders of good wheat is affecting sentiment and leading to speculative support. At the close the market was firm, unchanged to ¼d higher. "Corn opened with shorts excited, and their covering caused an advance of ¼@½d and following the opening there was a further advance of ⅜@½d with offers light. Argentina advices reported unsettled weather with rain in parts, and this was emphasized by very few Plate offers. During the morning there was some speculative profit-taking, but immediately support again developed and at the close prices were ⅝@1c higher than yesterday, with the undertone strong."

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Stronger Owing to Bullish European Reports.

Chicago, May 9.—Bullish European advices today put renewed strength into wheat. In particular, an advance at Paris due to the unfavorable outlook for crops in France was influential on the buying side. A consequent rise in prices here, however, was partly checked by field reports from Oklahoma and Kansas indicating a yield equal to all that the soil can produce. The market opened ⅛ to ½c higher, and no further important gains seemed likely.

Some pressure from sales of new wheat to arrive led to a little reaction. Exporters, however, were buying for deferred shipment. The close was steady at a shade to ⅛@¼c net advance.

Country dealers seemed more disposed to sell corn to arrive. The close was steady at ⅛@¼c off to ⅛c up compared with last night.

Oats developed firmness with other grains. Trade was only moderate

In provisions the tendency was downward. Hog prices were weak, and stocks in store here liberal.

Bear Traders Renew Attack on the Stock Market.

New York, May 9.—Bear traders renewed their attack on the market at the opening today, expecting little difficulty in extending yesterday's decline. Disquieting news from Mexico overnight supplied an ostensible motive for selling. The popular shares were sold freely. Reading in particular being unloaded in large lots. After a few minutes of trading the list hardened, initial declines in many cases being recovered.

Missouri Pacific securities were weak on the decision of the Kuhn-Loeb interests not to undertake the road's financing. The stock broke nearly 2 points to 15¾. The convertible bonds lost 2 points and the 4s fell 3½.

The market closed strong. Support extended to Missouri Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and other issues which have been weak of late, and steadied the whole list. Bonds were irregular. Rock Island bonds were active, and gained ½@1½ points.

COPPERS TURN STRONG AT CLOSE

Market Advances on Good Buying—Greene-Cananea Day's Feature.

After being quiet and listless during the greater part of the session, the market in mining stocks turned strong and active at the close today. Good buying developed in some of the specialties and in a few issues substantial advances were scored.

Greene-Cananea was a feature. After opening 75 cents off at $30.50, it closed $1 up at $31.50. Butte & Superior closed 38 cents up at $37.25; North Butte 50 cents up at $25.50; Shattuck unchanged at $24; Calumet & Arizona 25 cents up at $64; Alaska Gold a fraction up at $26.87; and Amalgamated Copper 63 cents up at $71.63.

Paine, Webber & Co. had the following closing letter from Boston: "The professionals tried to use the unfavorable news on Missouri Pacific financing to force a further decline in efforts to cover, but were not successful in forcing any liquidation. There was some selling for foreign account, but the buying was better than selling, and the closing was firm. We are not far away from the rate decision now, and if it is at all favorable, the market would be in good position for a sharp advance. The Boston and New York markets will not open until 11 a. m. Monday."

No. 4 vein on the 2,000-foot level at the Alex Scott mine is reported to have widened from 10 feet to 20 feet on the east. On the west it has narrowed from 10 feet to 4 feet. From the crosscut from breast to breast, a distance of 350 feet, the average of the ore is 4¾ per cent copper for the whole length. It is also said that the silver values are very good, which was not the fact on some of the intermediate levels. The Scott mine is considered to be looking better with depth.

—ON THE—

Cuyuna Iron Range

The iron property of Ver-Mes-Cuyuna Mining & Development company is situated in the very heart of the Cuyuna iron range. A year's drilling has proved up a large body of ore. The over-burden is the lightest yet encountered on the range. Mining will be cheap. The location is ideal and there are no transportation problems.

Results already secured at this mine fully warrant and demand further development work. To strengthen the company's treasury for that purpose, 25,000 shares of stock are offered for subscription at par, $1.00 a share.

This is the first stock offered the public since the company's organization was completed. It is a rare chance. Investigation is invited. Get some of this offering before it is all taken. Prospectus and any information desired on request.

DULUTH ON HONOR ROLL OF CITIES

Duluth's extensive building operations during April placed her on the honor list of the American cities, according to the monthly report just compiled by The American Contractor. Duluth issued building permits totaling $440,491 during April, while in the same time last year the permits totaled $280,345, making a gain of fifty-seven per cent.

The honor roll for April is not so long as usual, more cities showing losses the last month. Of the seventy-one cities included in the compilation, thirty-one showed gains, while the remainder showed losses for the month. Dayton, Ohio, showed the largest gain of 2,214 per cent, which is accounted for by the fact that the city is rebuilding from the heavy losses that occurred during the flood last year. The other cities on the honor roll are East Orange, Albany, Patterson and Seattle.

For the four months ending April 30, Duluth issued permits totaling $1,016,432, which is a loss of 54 per cent in comparison with the same four months last year, when the permits issued totaled $2,229,725. This is due to the big ore dock permit last year.

BLIND MAN MAY BE CATHOLIC PRIEST

Baltimore, Md., May 9.—For the first time in the history of the Catholic church, a blind man will be raised to the priesthood next month at Woodstock college, near here, if the plea of Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Cardinal O'Connell of Boston is granted by Pope Pius. The cardinals will appear before the pope and ask that a special dispensation be granted for the ordination of Henry Wessling of Boston, a Jesuit student at Woodstock college.

Mr. Wessling became blind when chemicals over which he was working in the laboratory of Canisius college, Buffalo, N. Y., exploded several years ago. He then was professor of chemistry in that institution. Since then he has gone on studying, while prayers have been offered for him by people of every section of the globe.

He stands among the leaders of his class at Woodstock. His fellow-scholastics read to him and he easily remembers what he hears. He has mastered the ceremonies in the various services of the church.

Mr. Wessling has been a member of the Jesuit order fourteen years.

ARE EAGER TO TRY PLAN

More Than 100 Farmers Ask Credit to Purchase Cattle.

"Ashland Plan" Working Out Better Than Hoped for.

The recently adopted "Ashland plan" of dairy development in St. Louis county is "panning out" far better than was hoped for. The plan is simple. It is simply a case of establishing credits for those engaged in agricultural pursuits in this part of the country to build up what is believed to be the natural predominating feature of the country—dairying. More than 100 applications have been received by the bankers' committee, which is acting as trustees and investigators on the matter of credits.

Farmers hereabouts are meeting the suggestion to make this a dairy country with enthusiasm and a much quicker response than was expected is coming. The committee consists of W. G. Hegardt, George C. Stone and E. G. Church and they have been kept busy of late.

It is believed that the initial rush will be the greatest, because of the fact that after they get started, the farmers are likely to take care of themselves, and only newcomers will need assistance. The agricultural committee of the Commercial club, adapters of the "Ashland plan," believe that this will prove a most effective way of developing the resources of Northeastern Minnesota in a dairying way. Speaking for the committee this morning, Mr. Church said, concerning the plan in general:

"In working out details of the plan to purchase cows for the farmers in the territory surrounding Duluth, the committee appointed by the Commercial club finds that in many instances the farmers themselves know of good cows that are for sale at a reasonable price, which they would like to purchase, and have the trustees appointed pay for these cows. Other farmers decidedly preferring to use their own judgment in the purchase of such cows as they may want, rather than to have them purchased in the way originally contemplated, it has therefore been decided to allow such farmers as are worthy of credit, and who are in a position to, and will take care of cows to be paid for by this organization, to purchase cows from any source they may choose. Any such purchases are to be subject to such investigation as committee desires to make, and also to their full approval.

"Where such purchases are made, the farmers must agree to comply with all of the other requirements in regard to raising all heifer calves, breeding the cows to registered sires and to make payment of not less than $2 per month per cow. This decision will undoubtedly result in many farmers availing themselves of this opportunity who far various reasons would not do so under the original plan.

"The committee, however, wishes to impress upon all of the farmers of this territory the fact that they are ready to furnish the best expert assistance to be had to purchase cows for such farmers as desire this assistance, and believe that as a reule the farmers will get better results out of cows purchased through the committee.

"Money is now available for the purchase of cows in either of these ways and applications are coming in rapidly, and the committee would urge all farmers who are in a position to take care of some cows to either see the committee as soon as possible or write them, so that they may have advantage of the full pasturage season."

PARISH DINNER AT KITCHI GAMMI CLUB

Members of St. Paul's Congregation Hear Address By Minneapolis Man.

More than 100 people attended the parish dinner given last evening at the Kitchi Gammi club for the congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Dr. A. W. Ryan, pastor, introduced Dr. James E. Freeman of St. Mark's cathedral, Minneapolis, who delivered the principal address of the evening. Dr. Freeman spoke on "The Modern Layman."

"There is a growing intimacy," said Dr. Freeman, "between laymen and clergymen. Where once clerical life was smarked by insularity, today through the influence of laymen, it is coming to be humanized and enriched by a larger fellowship, and hence by larger sphere of service.

"I believe that we are to enter presently the greatest period of religious awakening the world has ever known. It will not be a period of religious awakening within the church, for the church is lengthening her cords and strengthening her stakes, and in a larger comprehensiveness of her scheme she is endeavoring to touch every phase of twentieth century life. It is the modern layman as well as the modern clergyman who is effecting this tremendous change.

"Religion, especially what might be called church religion, is interpreting itself through new media and more intelligible forms. Shibboleths and party passwords no longer command the respect they once did. Believing something has ceased to be accepted as the standard of fitness. Believing something must be supplemented by being something, and that being something is translating itself in terms of modern needs.

"To put it another way, the world is very properly demanding the evidences of our faith in a service coterminous with human needs. David Harum illustrates a type of religion happily past. The modern layman has come into his own, for this is the age of the modern layman.

"No more striking evidence might be adduced than the selection of a Philadelphia lawyer, George Wharton Pepper, to fill the Layman Beecher lectureship in preaching at Yale. Indeed, some of the greatest preachers of our generations are laymen, and there are men in public life today—and some of them have been presidents of this republic—who are most conspicuous as preachers of righteousness."

W. L. Smithies also spoke during the evening.

JUMPS INTO RIVER.

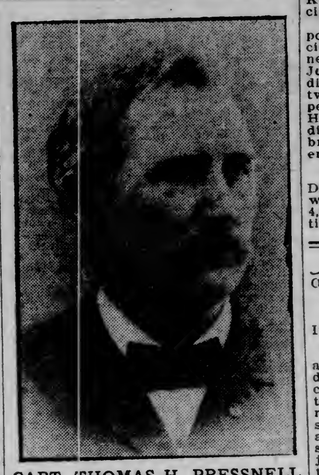
International Falls, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Friends of Thomas Reynolds, aged 26, who committed suicide Thursday evening near here by fastening a boom chain around his neck and jumping into the Rainy river, have not been able to explain his action. A young woman living in Fort Frances who knew him, said he had been moody of late. The body was recovered from the river bottom by dragging. When brought to the surface an 80-pound boom chain was found about the neck.

Reynolds was employed on the same boat of the International Lumber company called the Alligator as the young man named Shy, who recently killed himself. Reynolds belonged down the river on the Canadian side.

CAPT. T. H. PRESSNELL IS CRITICALLY ILL



CAPT. THOMAS H. PRESSNELL.

Capt. Thomas H. Pressnell, deputy clerk of the United States court, who has been ill at his home, 6 Munger terrace, for the last month, had a severe setback late last evening and was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where he is this afternoon reported slightly improved.

Capt. Pressnell was first taken ill with a slight cold about a month ago, but developed a severe cough and he was compelled to take to his bed, where he has been confined ever since. Several days ago he began to improve and he was already making arrangements to return to his office in the Federal building. He had yesterday afternoon planned to assume his duties Monday morning.

Late last evening the Civil war veteran and pioneer resident of Duluth had a setback and his attending physician decided to take him to the hospital. An attendant there said this afternoon that he is very much better than he was last evening and that hopes are being held out for his recovery.

Capt. Pressnell was a captain in the Third Minnesota in the Civil war and is one of the few survivors of that regiment now living. Last year he went to the reunion at Gettysburg and commanded the Third Minnesota during the maneuvers on the old battlefield. He was one of the earliest settlers in Duluth and was editor of the first newspaper ever published at the Head of the Lakes.

Besides his duties as deputy clerk, Capt. Presnell is the United States commissioner for the Eighth district. He lives with his wife and daughter in Munger terrace.

WISCONSIN AFTER WEYERHAEUSER TAX

Investigator From Madison Asks for Data on Estate.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—John Harrington, inheritance tax investigator for the state tax commission, today started an investigation of the inventory of the estate of Federick C. Weyerhaeuser which was filed at St. Paul Thursday. A letter from W. J. Stephenson, assistant attorney general of Minnesota in charge of inheritance tax matters, states that all the information regarding the estate will be turned over to the Wisconsin department as soon as possible.

BOAT CLUB PRESIDENCY

Several Possible Successors to Julius H. Barnes Are Suggested.

B. Murray Peyton is one of the men most prominently mentioned to succeed to the presidency of the Duluth Boat club. The annual election of the club will be held at the main house on Tuesday evening, when a successor will be chosen to Julius H. Barnes, new directors elected and the office of secretary filled. Several other names have been suggested for the presidency, but Mr. Peyton's is the one most widely discussed by the members.

James E. Ten Eyck, the coach of the rowing crews of the club, will, it is generally believed, succeed John E. MacGregor as secretary, Mr. MacGregor making it known some time ago that he would refuse to serve another term.

In the event of Mr. Peyton's acceptance of the nomination of the presidency, it is believed among a large number of members of the club that he will be elected. There is some doubt as to whether he will allow his name to be used. Many influential members of the club have been urgent in their requests that Mr. Peyton, who, through the years he has been associated with Mr. Barnes and others in the upbuilding of the club, allow his name to be used as a candidate.

For the past few weeks James E. Ten Eyck has been filling the office of secretary and the consensus of opinion seems to be that he will continue to fill two offices of the club after the election of Tuesday evening.

The question of the financial policy of the club is due for deep consideration at the meeting. The club, it is stated, has reached the stage where some radical steps are necessary, and ways and means will be considered to meet some of the obligations.

Life memberships, it is understood, will be the medium of raising funds, but with notes to meet, interest to pay upon outstanding loans and the current expenses of the club to be met, the situation is one, according to those who have been discussing it during the last week, that must meet with the consideration of the directors and members.

TO DETERMINE HEIRS.

H. C. Hitchcock Files Petition in Probate Court.

Harry C. Hitchcock, Plattsburgh, N. Y., today petitioned the probate court for an order determining the heirs and the descent of land in the estate of his mother, Ruth J. Hitchcock, whose death occurred ten years ago at Buffalo, N. Y. At the time of her death, she was the owner of an undivided one-third interest in several lots in Kimberly & Stryker's addition in this city.

The petitioner asks for the appointment of John D. Stryker of this city as administrator with the will annexed of the estate of his brother, John E. Hitchcock of Plattsburgh, who died Feb. 17, 1913, and who owned a two-ninths interest in the same property. Under the will of John E. Hitchcock all of his property is to be divided equally between his two brothers, Harry C. and Arthur K., after certain bequests are taken care of.

The total Indian population of the Dominion of Canada on March 31, last, was 104,956. In addition there were 4,600 Eskimo, making a native population of 109,556.

ORE FOUND BY LONGYEARS ON CROW WING POOR FARM

Samples From 245-Foot Depth Assay 52 Per Cent Iron.

Barrows Mine Will Be First Shipper on South Range.

Brainerd, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore has been found on the poor farm owned by Crow Wing county and situated in the south half of the northwest quarter of section 33, township 45, range 30. The second hole penetrated 240 feet of surface, five feet of intrusives and twenty-seven feet of ferruginous slates and hard ore seams. Samples were assayed between 245 and 250 feet depth and they revealed 52 per cent ore. In the first hole no ore was found. The Longyear Exploration company has an option on the county land, and if a satisfactory ore body is found has the right to call for a mining lease.

New plats recorded in Crow Wing county are the plat of Woodland Park addition to Barrows and Raymonds addition to Crosby. The Woodland Park addition is located in the north half of the southeast quarter of section 9, township 44, range 31. Raymond's addition is located in the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 12, township 46, range 29, lying north of Raymond's addition to Crosby. William E. Milberry of Deerwood has platted North Shore Acres in the northwest quarter of section 7, township 46, range 28.

A mining lease from William C. Robinson and the Clinton company, a Minnesota corporation to the Cuyuna Iron & Manganese Ore company, has been recorded covering the northwest of the northeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 10, township 46, range 29, the option for a lease having been previously transferred to the same company, there being a minimum tonnage of 25,000 tons the first year, 35,000 tons the second year, 50,000 tons the third year and 75,000 tons each and every year thereafter of the thirty year period commencing May 1, 1914, the royalty being 40c a ton. The Cuyuna Iron & Manganese Ore company has shown up one of the largest high grade ore bodies on the north range, forty-four holes being put down. Negotiations are pending with eastern people to open up this immense body, 1,500 feet in length, about 500 feet wide. Several holes went down over 500 feet and were still bottomed in good merchantable ore. The property adjoins the Pennington mine and as the land has a shallow surface it will make another good pit mine for the Cuyuna range.

New Company Formed.

The Barrows-Mississippi Iron company has been incorporated with a capital of $3,000 by M. H. Griffin, Neals Olson, Verne Frisk and E. B. Giffin of Superior and T. E. Dahljem, Nicholas McPhee and John Wahl of Duluth. Drilling is in progress on the south range near Lenox and Barrows and much development work is contemplated there. Lenox is to be platted by the Lenox Development company which has its principal place of business in Little Falls, and which will, however, operate largely out of Brainerd. Beyond the line of Crow Wing county in northern Morrison county, in the townships of Hilman, Mt. Morris and Leigh, the German Land company and John Erickson have conveyed to Kay Todd of St. Paul 10,000 acres at $12.50 an acre, the total consideration being $125,000. Mr. Todd has bought extensively in Crow Wing county, having in the last few months acquired many interests and holdings.

The pit mines are preparing for shipments. The Rowe mine is operated by the Pittsburg Steel Ore company, whose shipments go to the Pittsburg Steel company's furnaces. This week the new electric pumps were given a tryout. The hydraulic equipment will again be operated this year. The water in the pit will soon be pumped out and then a steam shovel placed in position to load ore cars in the pit. A fine clubhouse for its employes has been built by the mining company and in addition a number of dwellings in Riverton.

The Thompson mine of the Inland Steel company and the Pennington mine are preparing for shipments. The Kennedy mine of the Rogers, Brown Ore company and the Armour No. 2 mine of the same company are hoisting from shaft to cars.

Brainerd-Cuyuna.

The Brainerd-Cuyuna mine in the city limits is penetrating the quicksand area and 40-foot steel piling was driven by Capt. John O. Martin to facilitate sinking. The Wilcox mine shaft of the Canadian-Cuyuna Ore company in section 13, township 45, range 30, is now down forty feet. Three shifts of men are worked. The Adams mine of Cuyler Adams and associates has 2,500 tons in stockpile and is pumping 650 gallons, the water being easily handled. The Duluth-Brainerd mine has its shaft down 144 feet and at the 150-foot level will commence drifting. E. J. W. Donahue and L. E. Culbertson of Duluth, the latter being the president of the Cuyuna-Sultana company, were on the range this week with E. A. Lamb of Deerwood, and it is reported that Winston & Dear of Hibbing are figuring on possible stripping operations at the Cuyuna-Sultana property.

The Barrows mine of the Virginia Ore Mining company, will be the first south range mine to ship, 100 cars having been switched in Thursday. The Northern Pacific railway steam shovel is operating on the 40,000-ton stockpile which was accumulated in the winter months. J. H. Cooke, in charge of the ore shipping on the Cuyuna iron range for the Northern Pacific railway, is assured that this season will soon be in full swing and then the present light shipping will gradually pick up. Shortly after the Barrows mine shipping commences, the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs and the Cuyuna-Duluth as well as the Adams mine, all in Northern Pacific territory, will commence shipping. The 60 per cent cut in ore prices has taken some of the enthusiasm out of the range, but the Cuyuna will overcome it as it has other obstacles in the past.

A. H. Proctor of Ironton has sold to Albert O. Wall an undivided one-quarter interest in the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 20, township 136, range 26. Frank G. Schrader has sold to William Ritchel the east half of the southeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 2, township 138, range 26, for $800. J. H. Stewart has conveyed to Wm. M. Stone an undivided one-fourth interest in lots 1 and 2 in section 3, township 46, range 29. Peter J. Keely has conveyed to Iver Lund an undivided one-tenth interest in the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 4, township 138, range 25. J. B. Fulton has conveyed to F. E. Whitney part of the west half of the southwest quarter of section 11, township 136, range 29, for $500. A. H. Krull has sold to Peter W. Niebergall the east half of the southeast quarter of section 7, township 136, range 28, for $2,080.

George W. Stirewalt has conveyed to William A. Anderson, as trustee of the Cuyuna Iron Ore association of Minneapolis, the northwest quarter of section 2, township 137, range 26, for $2,844.72. Julia Crosby, widow, has conveyed to Martin Swanson the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 1, township 44, range 30, the fractional north half of the north half of the northeast quarter of section 2, township 44, range 30, for $2,437.25. W. H. Jenlins has sold to John J. Allen an undivided one-sixteenth interest in the minerals in the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and lots 1 and 2 of section 13, township 138, range 27, the south half of the southwest quarter and lots 5 and 8 of section 7, township 138, range 26, the east half of the northwest quarter, the fractional north half of the northeast quarter of section 18, township 138, range 26, an undivided three-sixteenths interest in minerals in the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter, the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 13, township 137, range 27.

H. H. Zaiser has conveyed Charles D. Austin an undivided half interest in and to the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter and lot 3 of section 33, township 138, range 26.

Sold to Pennington Company.

Robert J. Whiteside has sold to the Pennington Iron Land company lots 1, 4, 5, the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter, the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter, the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter, the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 9, township 46, range 29; the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter, the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter, the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter, the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 10, township 46, range 29; the northwest quarter of section 14, township 46, range 29; the east half of the northeast quarter, the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter, the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter, the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter, the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 15, township 46, range 29.

Alexander Samuel has conveyed to Mary L. Barnes an undivided one-eighth of each of lot 5 of section 13, township 138, range 27 and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter and lot 2 or part of the northeast quarter of section 8, township 138, range 27. William A. Chandler has conveyed to Mary L. Barnes an undivided one-eighth of each of the north half of the northeast quarter, the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter, the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 22, township 137, range 27. Mary Amelia Jackson has conveyed to Mary L. Barnes an undivided one-eighth of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 8, township 136, range 27. The Meadow Land company has sold to Peter M. Scholl the south half of the southwest quarter of section 14, township 138, range 28.

FINE SHOWING AT MOHAWK

All Shafts, With Exception of One, Running Night Shift.

Keweenaw Has Again Passed Through the Ashbed Lode.

Houghton, Mich., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hohawk's No. 5 shaft, the latest for nearly a year before the strike, is making the best showing of any of the shafts, much better even then No. 5, which has disclosed an excellent grade from the surface to the last openings. This shaft is 2,600 feet south of No. 5 and the same distance north of Ahmeek boundary and commands nearly three-quarters of a mile of the strike on the Kearsarge lode, under an area of about 160 acres or about as much ground as the entire Wolverine mine. As the ground of the Ahmeek adjoining both to the south, where several levels have been extended to the boundary, and that to the west which underlies the Mohawk, particularly that of the former portion, have been very good, there is every reason to believe that No. 6 will maintain and perhaps increase its present average. The bottom and new openings of the mine are making a very favorable showing. The rich streak along the northern boundary next to the Gratiot and Seneca is still continuing with depth. With the exception of No. 1, all the shafts are running night shift, No. 6 having resumed last week. The daily shipment is 2,300 tons as against a normal with a full force of 2,600. The four stamps are being operated both shifts.

Keweenaw.

Keweenaw copper has just passed with hole No. 13 again through the Ashbed lode on the Phoenix property, 1,000 feet east of No. 12 hole. The lode was found to be the equal to the two last, Nos. 11 and 12, having a width of about 27 feet and a mineralization of good grades. The drill has been moved about 1,000 feet further east for No. 14. At the bottom of the Garden City shaft, 465 feet down, a plat is being cut and the rock opened is of the same high quality. Sinking will be resumed in a very short time. In the call for an assessment of $1, payable June 1, issued on May 5, it is stated that on the properties owned and controlled, besides the Phoenix, there are yet twelve more holes to be drilled to carry out the plans of exploration. The other reasons given for the call are the necessity of providing money for the mine developments and diamond drilling, which so far have given such good results on the Phoenix, whose stock to the extent of about 97 per cent, is owned by the Keweenaw Copper, and also for sinking one or more shafts on the other properties where copper is found.

Tamarack.

Tamarack resumed work at shafts Nos. 3, North Tamarack, and 5 last Tuesday. A small force was taken on at first and this will be gradually increased until about the same number is employed as before the strike. Both shafts are in excellent condition, No. 3 having been straightened and strengthened and put in first-class order during the strike. Between 250 and 300 men were taken on during the week, which will make an increase in the payrolls of about $20,000 to $25,000 per month. Other men will be called for as soon as places can be found for them, preference being given, as during this week, to former employes of the Tamarack.

Winona.

Winona reached the tonnage for one day last week of 1,000 tons, but it will be some little time before this rate can be maintained. Men are very plentiful, as throughout the entire Copper country, owing to the calling off of the strike and an influx from the iron districts both of Michigan and Minnesota, because of the lack of demand of ore.

White Pine.

White Pine began on the foundation last Monday for its new mill of 1,000 tons capacity. This will be of wood and there is about 450 tons of material on the ground at the present time. The frame work is being made at the Calumet & Hecla shops at Calumet. The actual stumpling will be begun by October. While it has been known for years that this sandstone conglomerate is really wonderfully rich, none, but the company's officials who have watched its development, can make any accurate estimate of its values. It is undoubtedly going to be an important dividend factor for the Calumet & Hecla. The company is capitalized at $5,000,000 shares, $25 par, 150,000 common and 50,000 preferred of which there has been issued 85,320 common and 5,476 preferred. It is controlled by the Calumet & Hecla through the ownership of all the preferred and 43,202 common. The remainder is held by the landholders, especially the John M. Longyear interests. None of the stock has been permitted to escape into the market.

Indiana.

Indiana has been sufficiently pumped out to allow work to be begun in a few days at the 600-foot level, where the southeastern drift had been in good copper for fifty feet when work was stopped. The copper at this point is apparently of the same character as that taken from the No. 2 drill hole, viz.: heavy slabs of mass in shattered felsite. This work is being done to aid in the search for the famous felsite bed, which only about eighty-five feet away from the shaft as it was supposed, was entered by the drill 1,400 feet down at the No. 2 hole, which remained in it for a long distance. The fact that the shaft encountered only trap at that depth proves the drill to have been deflected. Six radiating holes have been drilled horizontally and one vertically from that level with unfavorable results. It is altogether likely that the felsite in the shaft at the 600 and 1,100-foot levels is connected with the sought—for deposit, and it is the intention of the management to follow the copper showing at these points by drift raising, and sinking, believing that this will lead to that body.

North Lake.

North Lake is completely unwatered, and as soon as some repairs are made probably in a very few days, the cross-cut which had been driven 111 feet northwest will be rapidly extended. This cross-cut should cut the three so-called Evergreen lodes at a distance of about 600 feet from the shaft. These holes have never been tested here, as the out-crops are covered with a heavy over-burden and none of the diamond drills chanced to penetrate them. The sinking of the shaft, now bottomed at 345, will be resumed and another cross-cut driven to cut the lodes that diamond drilling has proved to be in the southwest.

South Lake.

South Lake is now engaged in cutting out a plat, or loading station and dump at the final and 600-foot level. These operations will take about a month's time, then the 1,000-foot cross-cut to the South Lake lodes, revealed by the seven diamond drill holes will be begun.

New Arcadian.

New Arcadian has met with on the new lode at the 600-foot level, fifteen feet of the same high values as encountered on the 750-foot level. The crosscut has reached the footwall, finding the width to be thirty feet. Of this width the first twelve feet disclosed some copper all the way, then there was three feet of trap, and finally this fifteen feet of very rich ground. The annual meeting was held Tuesday and the same officers were re-elected. Later President B. H. Shields announce that the directors had voted to continue the sinking of the shaft to the 900-foot level and that the work would be started very soon.

Franklin.

Franklin's drifts have a length of 324 feet. About a week back the openings did not look so good, but quite an improvement is being noticed. The management has decided to open up some levels above and a raise eight feet high by sixteen wide has been started, and it will be equipped with a gravity plane double track road, the loaded cars hauling up the empty ones. A compressed air engine of small size will also be installed for control in case of accidents. Moreover, for the sake of procuring an unobstructed ventilation and to get some inexpensive rock, or "cheap dirt," in miners' parlance, these portions of the drifts that are only seven feet high will be cut up to the height of sixteen feet, that of the drift stopes, which succeed the drifts as the new work is being driven.

Houghton.

Houghton Copper is still finding the copper to persist in both drifts, each having been driven about thirty-five feet with commercial values the whole length. In a few days the lode will be crossed on this level to ascertain its width and mineral contents.

Isle Royale.

Isle Royale, it is almost certain, will very soon reopen No. 2 shaft, which was completely gutted by fire in December, 1903. It had been sunk to the depth of 1,335 feet. Crosscuts from the Isle Royale lode had been driven on the eleventh to the fifteenth levels, inclusive, to the Portage lode lying 150 to 200 feet westward and about two miles of drifts opened thereon, stoping having been almost equally divided between the two beds.

WARREN DISTRICT IS IN FINE SHAPE

Mines Continue High Output and Smelters Handling It Well.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 9.—In the Warren district things are going along with fine smoothness. The mines continue high output of ore, and the smelters are taking excellent care of it. Calumet & Arizona smelter production of 6,800,000 pounds for the thirty days of April tells its own story in that respect. Of this total, Shattuck will have about 1,300,000 pounds. Shattuck has not increased output, but its ore varies a little each month in richness. High grade is in all the Shattuck mining area, in streaks and pockets, and it does not take much of it to make change of a few hundred thousand pounds in copper output over a month. Copper Queen monthly returns from smelter show the same manner of variation, attributable in part to the same reason.

With the taking on of custom ore, which was commenced last month by Calumet & Arizona, it is likely, too, to have showing of some variations in each month. Since deciding to do custom work, by reason of the fact that its smelter had demonstrated itself equal to whatever might be sent its way, and also because it had the capacity to look after the work, Calumet & Arizona has put on considerable of this business and will steadily take care of more. There are advantages in it through the acquirement of some ores that help with the mixture, and of course there is profit in the treatment charges.

In connection with Calumet & Arizona mining division operations, the big thing at the present time is contained in the work that has begun on the 1,800-foot level of Junction, where they have started cutting a great station. The pumps are to go on this station when it is made ready and from it will be delivered the water of the Bisbee basin; for the Junction shaft will take care of the water of the mines of the district. It is going to be a year, and possibly a little longer, before the pumps on the 1,800-foot level are lifting the water, but when they do commence they will conquer and put in production harness a vast amount of new and rich territory.

SHIPMENTS DISCONTINUED

Gogebic Operations Curtailed and 750 Men Are Laid Off.

Ore dock agents at Marquette have been advised from Cleveland that shipments from that Lake Superior port by the United States Steel corporation have been discontinued indefinitely. The reason is not given. The steel corporation's shipments from the Marquette range have, however, been very light to date this spring. Only one steamship of the company has loaded at Marquette. It is explained on the Gogebic range that the recent curtailment of the Steel corporation operations in that region was made necessary because practically all the available stockpile room had been filled and ore was being hoisted at a rate greater than shipments could be made direct from the shafts. The Gogebic mines are operated more briskly than are others on the older ranges for the reason that they are wrought on a royalty basis, whereas various properties elsewhere are owned in fee by the corporation and are held in reserve, either being closed entirely or producing much below capacity. Of the 750 men laid off in the Gogebic country, 300 were employed at the Pabst, 250 at the Norries, 150 at the Aurora and 50 at the Puritan. The aggregate force had for months been the largest in the history of the mines, and there are still at work nearly 2,000 men. No retrenchment was made at the Tilden, Geneva and Davis properties, at all of which the operations are largely of an exploratory nature. Night-shift work has been discontinued at the East Norrie, Pabst, Aurora and Puritan and also at one shaft of the Norrie. It is expected that all the ore in stock will be sent out this season.

Menominee Shipments Slow.

Shipments from the Menominee range are slow. Operations have been suspended at the Rogers-Brown Ore company's Chicogan mine, midway between Iron River and Crystal Falls, and there is apprehension the curtailment will extend to other properties. In the Crystal Falls district, it is reported, work is more scarce than at any time in a decade or more. Whereas a year ago common labor was difficult to procure at $2.25 to $2.50 a day, plenty is available now at $1.75. Several of the mines have particularly large stockpiles, notably the big Brisol of Oglebay, Norton & Co. Most of the Corrigan-McKinney company's group are idle. The Dunn and the Armenia are in commission, but are operating on a small scale. Conditions in the Crystal Falls field are not altogether depressed, however. The Cuyahoga Iron company is giving work to seventy-five men at the Hilltop mine, which it has leased and is restoring activity. M. A. Hanna & Co. are developing the Carpenter and Ravenna properties, both of which are expected to be continued in operation throughout the year. The Ravenna will ship this season for the first time. Incidental to its mining operations there has recently been a subsidence of part of the ground overlying the ore body. Some trouble has been occasioned, as well as apprehension on the part of the railroad people lest their expensive sidings be made valueless.

While not in the Crystal Falls field proper, the Hudson and Balkan properties at Alpha are tributary to it and are contributing much to its welfare. The Judson, an underground mine and a possession of the Longyear interests, has its shaft down to the second level and is commencing the work of drifting to the main ore body. An offshoot of the deposit is being mined from the first level. From this source a stockpile is being accumulated. A gratifying circumstance is the unexpectedly small flow of water.

With preparations to strip the overburden in progress, there is much activity at the Judson's companion property, Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Balkan. Winston Bros., contractors, are constructing a score of buildings for use as shops and to lodge their men. There is being erected also the drag-line equipment with which much of the overburden will be removed. Several hundred men will be employed for the next year or more in preparing the mine for open-pit production. In the neighborhood of 1,300,000 cubic yards of material is to be removed. A model little city is springing up at Alpha.

Old Indiana to Resume.

After an idleness of twenty-eight years, the old Indiana mine is to be restored to activity. The property will be developed and operated by the John M. Thomas Furnace company of Milwaukee. It is in section 27, 40-30, in the Iron Mountain zone of the Menominee range and adjacent to Lake Fumee. The Indiana was opened in 1880 and closed in 1886, producing during that period 18,000 tons of ore. Capt. John T. Spencer of Iron Mountain has been exploring in the vicinity for the last several years under a lease from the Keweenaw association of Boston, the owner of the fee, the tract concerned comprising eighty acres and including the Indiana. Capt Spencer has been successful in finding ore not before encountered, and he has now sub-leased the property to the Thomas company. Railroad facilities will be provided by the spur line to be built by the Chicago & Northwestern company. The old shaft is 250 feet in depth.

Twelve miles west of Iron Mountain, at Florence, in the Wisconsin division of the Menominee range, the Florence Iron company has suspended operations at the Florence mine and has transferred the crew to the Ernst property, a mile distant, and which had been idle for several months. The Florence had latterly been operated on a small scale. The pumps continue in commission. No sales of ore have been made as yet, and the duration of the suspension is indefinite.

Andre E. Formis, formerly superintendent of the Ojibway copper mine in Keweenaw county, now out of commission, has been appointed superintendent of the Bates mine, in the Iron River district of the Menominee range. The Bates is under the supervision of the Florence Iron company.

May Purchase the Republic.

It is understood on the Marquette range that the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company is negotiating for the purchase of the Republic mine of the Cambria Steel company. The property was recently inspected by a party of Cleveland-Cliffs officials in company with William Kelly of Vulcan, general manager of the Cambria company's Lake Superior ore interests. The Republic is the only property of the Cambria company on the Marquette range, in which region the Cleveland-Cliffs company is the largest operator. The mine is approximately 2,000 feet deep, and has to date produced and shipped in excess of 4,500,000 tons. It has not been wrought to capacity for several years, and at present it is operated only four days each week.

The Newport mine at Ironwood, the biggest individual producer on the Gogebic range, and of which Ferdinand Schlesinger of Milwaukee is the operator, recently sent to the surface in one shift of eight hours 4,100 tons of ore taken from a depth in excess of 2,000 feet. This is considered a notable record, in view of the fact that the property is not being operated to capacity. The monthly production approximates 80,000 tons. A newly appointed official of the Newport is Hilmer Carlson of Marquette, until recently engineer for the Lake Shore Engine works of that city. Mr. Carlson will fill the post of master mechanic. The Steel corporation has awarded to an Ironwood concern a contract for the erection of an engine and boiler house at the Tilden mine, at Bessemer, Gogebic range. The structure will be of reinforced concrete.

BUTTTE-DULUTH LETS MINING BUSINESS TO CONTRACTORS

Will Mine and Deliver the Ore for 18 Cents a Ton.

Butte & London Property Is Transferred to New Corporation.

Butte, Mont., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Butte-Duluth Mining company has let its mining business to a large contracting company which has had extensive experience in railroad building, tunneling and the removal of mountains. The Butte-Duluth mining is all open work from the surface and the contractors have undertaken to mine and deliver the ore in the bins at the mill for eighteen cents per ton. It has cost the company fifty cents a ton for the same work. The plant of the company is being enlarged to 1,000 tons capacity and it is anticipated that the company will then earn large profits. Important capital has become interested in Butte-Duluth and its bonds have been taken from the market.

Boston & Montana.

A right-of-way for the Southern Montana railway, which is to be built from Butte to Jackson, through the famous Big Hole basin and to the mining districts of Elkhorn and French and Grasshopper gulch and Governor Allen anticipates that work of construction will begin not later than July 1.

The MacArthur & Perks company of London will build the railroad, a contract having been made with that firm by the Boston & Montana Development company, of which the Southern Montana is a subsidiary. The MacArthur & Parks company is among the greatest contractors in the world. They have just completed a $42,000,000 contract at Buenos Aires, building docks and warehouses, and are engaged in driving a railroad tunnel through the Rocky mountains for the Canadian Pacific railway. The firm is also doing a lot of railroad building in Oregon and is boring a railroad tunnel through the Cascade mountains, and is a bidder for the $150,000,000 Canadian contract to build the Georgian canal. The Boston & Montana Development company and Southern Montana railroad project are among the most important enterprises undertaken in Montana in years. Several mines of the company in the French gulch district have been developed to a producing stage and are awaiting railroad transportation facilities. In the Elkhorn district a large double track tunnel is being driven from the Wise river bed, where a branch of the railroad will be built, and all the veins in the group of mines owned by the company will be cut at a depth of about 1,500 feet. Governor Allen expects to have the Elkhorn mines in condition for heavy production by the time the railroad is built into the district.

Butte & London.

The Butte & London Development company's property has been transferred to a new corporation known as the Greendale Exploration company, in order to facilitate the carrying out of the contract the company has with the Rainbow Development company. Thomas F. Cole and his associates in the Rainbow have contracted to do an extensive lot of development and exploratory work in the Butte & London in consideration of 51 per cent of Butte & London stock, but as that amount of stock could not be secured for transfer to Cole and associates without a great deal of trouble, after all, it was decided at the stockholders' meeting to transfer the property to a new corporation and issue 51 per cent of that stock to the Rainbow company and retain 49 per cent for the Butte & London, thus converting the latter into a holding company. The Butte & London has possession of all the Greendale stock at present, and will retain it until the Rainbow company has fulfilled the terms of its contract. The Rainbow company has been slow in getting to work on the Butte & London property, but has finally started to unwater the mine, which has been opened to a depth of 1,100 feet. It is to be sunk to a depth of 1,600 feet and the entire ground crosscut north and south. The Rainbow company is developing a property north of and adjoining the Butte & London, and has made a fine discovery of ore, a fact which has given a lot of confidence to Butte & London stockholders.

East Butte.

The Dutton mine, the original property of the East Butte Mining company, is turning out to be an important mine. Ore running 6 to 10 per cent copper is being mined and shipped from the 600-foot level. The ore comes from a vein that was missed during the former operations of the Dutton property. The Dutton is equipped with an electric hoist and compressor, and it is the intention of the company to sink the shaft deeper eventually. It is at present 900 feet deep. The main shaft of the company on the Pittsmont property is also to be sunk 300 feet deeper. It is now down to the 1,500-foot point, and sinking will be started by June 1. About 1,500 feet of drifting has been done on the 1,500 level, and an ore body 150 feet long and 5 feet wide, yielding an average of 3½ per cent copper, has been opened. The ore reserves of the East Butte are larger than they were a year ago, and it is the aim of the company to increase them constantly. It is expected that the developments on the 1,600 will put at least a two years' supply of ore ahead.

International Merger.

The proposed purchase of the International Smelting & Refining company by the Anaconda company is said to be but an item in the campaign of the Anaconda to enlarge its field of operations, and that several large mining properties in other sections of the country are under consideration for purchase.

Northwestern Metals.

It is claimed that the electric smelter of the Northwestern Metals company at Kenwood is working satisfactorily, "beautifully," as Supt. C. C. Titus expresses it. The plant has been treating ten tons of ore per day and the values recovered are said to be fully as large as had been expected, and after a few weeks the company expects to run the plant at full capacity.

Barnes-King.

While the Barnes-King Mining company is paying all its mining and development expenses out of the property at Kendall and is laying aside each month about $30,000 in net profits, it is building its greatest hopes and expectations on the Piegan-Gloster mines in the Marysville district. An enormous tonnage of good milling ore is being opened and it is the intention of the company to build a large mill at the property. It is the ambition of the present management of the Barnes-King to make a big producing and paying company of it, and permanent in its dividend distributions when they are once started. To that end the company is constantly on the lookout for additional properties, and it is understood that its operations are not to be confined to gold mining. However, it is the intention of the management to pay for all new properties, development and improvements out of the earnings of the company.

Bullwhacker.

The Bullwhacker property has been closed down for several weeks for the purpose of installing some new machinery in the leaching plant and making changes in the operations which experience has shown to be necessary. The new Kelly filter press is in place and a trial run, according to Manager Webster, shows that it is going to do all the work expected of it. The plant is about ready to start work again and in another week the work of treating 100 tons of ore a day will be commenced.

Clark Concentrator.

The new zinc concentrator of W. A. Clark, which he has had erected on the outskirts of the city, will not be put into commission before June 1, according to those in charge of the Clark interests. The buildings are all complete and all the machinery is said to be on the ground, but the work of installing it is requiring more time than at first supposed.

To Open Abandoned Mines.

The movement of Helena people to raise money to open up old abandoned mines is making rapid progress. Already some $54,000 has been subscribed and engineers have been employed to examine properties with a view of recommending the ones deemed most advisable to operate. On the dumps of some ore has been found which twenty years ago was considered valueless, owing to the crude method of treatment in the early days, but which can today be treated at a good profit. Every subscriber to the fund will be a member of a company to be formed and of course any profits which may be derived from the investments will be divided equally among all the persons according to the money subscribed.

Iron Mountain.

The Iron Mountain mine, which was formerly managed by W. Q. Ranft and which is owned principally by New York capitalists, is to be operated by the Montana courts for a time at least. The court has authorized an issue of $10,000 of the receiver's certificates bearing interest at 8 per cent which are a first lien on all of the Iron Mountain property and plant, having priority over everything, including the bonds. The proceeds from the certificates are to cover necessary repairs and maintenance and continue operations pending receipts from shipments of ore now blocked out. Lawrence A. Ramage of New York is receiver and has been directed by the court to make any necessary repairs for the benefit of all creditors, bondholders and stockholders.

GREAT ADVANCE OF BUTTE & SUPERIOR

Annual Report Shows Profit in 1913 Near to Million.

The annual report of the Butte & Superior Copper company, limited, for the year 1913, shows probably the most wonderful progress made during the year by any company in the Butte mining district and probably in the world.

In the reports of President Mackelvie and of Mr. Jacklin, manager-director, a good idea of this progress is given in the story of increased production and increased efficiency in recoveries.

During the year the income from the sale of concentrates amounted to $3,013,736.74, or an average of $10.149 per ton treated. The sales of residues and lead concentrates amounted to $512,924.15, or an average of $1,727 per ton treated. The total income was $3,526,660.80. From this was deducted the freight and ore penalties to the amount of $860,007.99, leaving the gross income with these deducted, of $2,676,652.90. The costs of operating were as follows: Mining 293,706 tons at $2.094 per ton, $918,868.15; milling 296,640 tons at $2.693 per ton, $799,878.87; other charges, $20,111.41, or a total of $1,738,858.43. This left a net profit of $937,794.47 to which other income items of $5,193.81 are added, bringing the total up to $942,988.28.

Mining claims, $1,935,567.86; plant and equipment, $1,352,434.02; development, $152,221.19; property in process of acquirement, $539,387.23, or a total of property account of $3,979,610.30.

Investments, $940,090.52.

This makes a total of $5,304,888.46, or an increase in the assets of the company in one year of $811,681.35.

The undivided profits amount to $1,230,294.17, as against $288,077.17 a year ago.

The capital stock listed as liability is $2,712,067.

SAVES MILLIONS TO BUTTE & SUPERIOR

Reversal of Decision in the Minerals Separation Suit.

As a result of the decision handed down this week by the circuit court of appeals in San Francisco, holding, in effect, that James M. Hyde's process in use at the Butte & Superior company's plant is not an infringement of the patent of the Minerals Separation company, Ltd., and reversing the decision of the Federal district court, there was great interest manifested in mining circles, not only within the Butte & Superior circle, but among the hundreds of shareholders as well as independent mining companies.

The decision is far-reaching in its effect. In fact, it is one of the most important, if not one of the most far-reaching, mining decisions ever rendered by a court in this country. It means a saving, in round numbers, of $200,000 a year to the Butte & Superior company, for the company would have been forced to pay about that amount annually in royalties had the lower court been sustained. These royalties would have run into millions of dollars in a few years.

But the decision reached over and beyond the Butte & Superior company. It means that mining companies everywhere are open to use the process known as the froth agitation process. It means in the grand sum total, of all time and many companies, hundreds of millions of dollars saved in royalties.

The oil flotation process might briefly be described as follows:

"A mixture of ore, oil and water is agitated by a rotary stir, or otherwise. The valuable metalliferous part of the ore, through an affinity of the oil for the sulphides, will float, when assisted by the air included by agitation, while the worthless gangue will sink."

The application of this process proved to operate most successfully upon the ores of the Butte & Superior Copper company, and Mr. Hyde undertook to install a small experimental plant while the Butte & Superior was operating the Basin mill. The process has been perfected by metallurgists having the matter in charge, and it is doubtful if anyone has ever attained the high recovery and high concentrates that the Butte & Superior operators have obtained.

BIG INCREASE IN THE DRINK BILL

Larger Consumption in United Kingdom Due to Prosperity.

London, May 9.—The drink bill of the United Kingdom for the past year shows an increase of $25,000,000. The United Kingdom alliance, whose mission is to decrease the consumption of alcoholic liquors, makes this report, and suggests that the increase is probably due to unprecedented prosperity, for the kingdom had never experienced a greater wage bill. The encouraging feature, according to the alliance, is a decrease shown in the per capita consumption, which attained its maximum during similar trade revivals in 1874 and 1899.

A discouraging feature is the increase in the consumption of spirits, which leads with an increase of 1,267,000 gallons. The share of each individual in the United Kingdom in the drink bill for 1913 was $18, while the average for a family of five persons was $90. Since these figures do not allow for the boys and girls under 15 years of age and the total abstainers, it may be assumed that among the drinkers the average per capita expense for drinks is much higher than stated.

During 1911, 2802 men and 2074 women were certified to have died in England and Wales alone as the result of alcoholism. This number does not include those whose deaths have been accelerated by the use of alcohol. Dr. W. C. Sullivan is quoted in the report as making the estimate that 20 per cent of the suicides in the United Kingdom are due to the use of alcoholic stimulants.

A startling feature of the infant mortality figures furnished by the alliance is the fact that in 1912, 1,176 babies under 1 year of age were suffocated while sleeping with their parents or other elders, and the organization claims that most of these cases can be laid at the door of alcoholic indulgence. The organization also points out the effect of alcohol on the physique of the race, on crime and on divorce.

BEDOUIN SURGERY IS VERY SKILLFUL

Delicate Operations Performed Without the Aid of Anesthesia.

London, May 9.—Without anesthetics or modern instruments native surgeons among the Bedouins of the Algerian hinterland have become so skillful that they do not hesitate to undertake operations as delicate as trepanning. This report is brought by H. Hylton-Simpson, who, accompanied by his wife, has just returned from a scientific expedition among these almost unknown nomadic tribes of the desert. The explorer and his wife lived among the natives and established the closest relations with the ruling sheiks of remote villages.

They found that surgery had grown to be a really skilled profession. Hylton-Simpson was lucky enough to come into contact with a friendly Arabian physician, who arranged a meeting for him with eight of the tribal surgeons. From them he collected a mass of interesting information and a valuable collection of native surgical instruments. Their saws, lancets and probes are of the crudest design, but prove highly effective in the hands of their native operators. The only training these native surgeons have is instruction from their fathers. Very few of them are able to read or write.

Trepanning operations are probably more common in this country than anywhere else in the world because of the frequency with which the natives resort to stone throwing in a fight. The use of an anesthetic is unknown and pain is regarded with such contempt that the people seem impervious to it. Hylton-Simpson saw one case in which a boy was operated on for fifteen days for the removal of a small piece of skull. The operation was successful and the patient recovered. Besides surgery the natives claim to have discovered 200 cures for various diseases.

MANY AMERICANS ARE EXPECTED

Paris, May 9.—Nearly a hundred American delegates are expected to attend the international congress of Chambers of Commerce, which meets in Paris June 5, and continues five days. Daniel P. Kingsley, George T. Wilson, Samuel W. Fairchild, James Brown and MacDougall Hawkes will come from New York, while delegations from equally large will probably come from twenty-five other American cities, among them Boston, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Omaha, Denver, Seattle, Portland, Or. and San Francisco.

Edward A. Filene of Boston and the other American members of the permanent committee which has offices in Brussels are endeavoring to reorganize the International Association of Chambers of Commerce so that it shall become a more vital body. The permanent committee now has only the function of carrying out the resolutions passed by the biennial congresses. The American representation desires to have a committee which will take up and carry through new business as it arises during the intervals between the biennial sessions of the congress. The committee would be authorized to take a referendum of the membership in the manner now done by the chamber of commerce of the United States of America, organized in Washington in 1912.

STOTESBURY IS BAER'S SUCCESSOR.

Philadelphia, May 8.—Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia was today elected president of the Reading company, succeeding the late George F. Baer. Theodore E. Voorhees was made president of the Reading Railway company and W. J. Richards was elected president of the Reading Coal & Iron company.

LITTLE SPRING PIGS.

Profitable and Easy to Grow.

A sow with several little pigs can be conveniently and profitably maintained by the average suburban householder. The sow and her brood cannot only be kept by the surplus waste from the kitchen, but the pigs in November or December will prove a good source of supply for fresh meat; then, too, some of the pigs may be sold at a profit.

The feeding and care of the pigs is as important as the breeding in producing a good hog. Plenty of feed and good care may make a good hog out of a runt, but the lack of it will always make a runt out of a good pig. Young pigs must have a dry bed and plenty of sunshine. Begin feeding them as soon as they will eat and keep them well fed until they are mature. Always keep plenty of clean, fresh water where the pigs may drink at any time. The more milk a sow will give the faster her pigs will grow.

Hog lots should be built where the sun will shine in some portion of them at all hours of the day. Sunshine is one of the greatest factors for destroying germs and keeping down diseases. A supply of clean, fresh water at all times is essential. The trough should always be kept clean and not so much feed given at one time that it would be left in the trough to become sour and filthy. The troughs should be frequently washed and placed where the sun will shine in them. This is especially true of those used for feeding small pigs. Clean, dry straw should be placed in every house for bedding, as it is essential that the sow have a warm, dry bed when she farrows. Many young pigs are lost each year from cold and exposure at farrowing time. The young pigs must be kept warm, dry and should have plenty of sunshine until they are several weeks old.

The Proper Shelter.

A good shelter for little pigs during the summer months may be made by setting four poles into the ground and securely nailing 2 by 6 inch material around these about three feet from the ground, and upon these a few light poles may be put crosswise and straw or coarse hay piled on top.

If the pigs show indications of scouring keep a mixture of charcoal (one bushel), hardwood ashes (one bushel), salt (eight pounds), air slacked lime (eight pounds), sulphur (four pounds) and pulvertised copperas (two pounds) where the hogs can eat it at will. This is not only a good remedy for scours, but is one of the best preventives for worms.

It is also well to remember that pork is more in demand than either beef or mutton, and the danger of overstocking the market is remote.

LABOR SAVING DEVICES.

Making the Farm Work Interesting.

By GEORGE H. DACY.

I knew a progressive orchardist who developed a very good direct fruit trade in a region where formerly all the fruit that was purchased came from California, and he did this entirely by the use of his automobile. He removed the tonneau and used a body fitted with racks for the baskets. His local roads were very good, and he was able to pick the fruit when the dew of early morning was on it and to deliver it to his consumers in three neighboring towns in a radius of fifteen miles by mid-morning.

Leading dairy farms that formerly wasted horse and man labor in conveying their dairy products to the railroad are today profitably operating motor trucks. The motor has vitally increased the efficiency of man, and with the machine maintained under good conditions its operator can perform as much work as three ordinary teams and drivers formerly did. The automobile's "colt," the motorcycle, should particularly recommend itself to the agricultural public, for on every farm the most modern machinery always finds flattering appreciation and ready application.

Power Machinery Interests the Boy.

I have frequently talked with many farmers' sons who ascribe their keen interest in the old homestead to the fact that power machinery, including the automobile, motor truck, motorcycle, gasoline engine and farm lighting or watering system, has been placed in their charge. Farmers the country over who utilize the automobile for both pleasure and business purposes are of the staple, conservative type.

A Wisconsin farm boy uses a rack attached to the rear frame of his motorcycle, in which he is able to carry two milk cans and several bags of feed or seed. The motorcycle is of inestimable value in running errands, in getting repairs quickly done when a machine of any sort breaks down or as a means of calling the doctor in case of sickness where telephonic facilities are unavailable.

As the motor truck and its smaller brethren deserve much commendable consideration out of doors, so the electric washing machine, the electric flatiron and toaster merit as much attention within the country home. A Minnesota suburbanite is sponsor for a home-made refrigerator that fittingly could be duplicated in every country home. By the use of a series of coiled pipes that permeate his ice chest he is able to maintain a constant flow of water through the refrigerator from his artesian well.

FEEDING GROWING STOCK

The Mash Plays a Leading Role in Feeding.

By J. W. KELLER.

It's a puzzling question to many what to feed and how to feed after the critical period—the first month of a chick's life—is safely passed. The foundation is laid. What will we build on it? Parent stock, housing, range, sanitary arrangements—these and a host of other conditions each play their own important part in the answer, but the keystone of all is proper feeding.

The mash plays the leading role in most present day feeding, and rightly so, for we can secure in this form feed that is most accurately balanced and easily digested, offering a greater variety, greater economy, quicker results and the highest percentage of digestibility. For the growing chick, having been gradually weaned from its baby chick food, the following will make an excellent mash.

	Pounds
Bran	20
Middlings	20
Cornmeal	10
Ground oats	10
Beef scrap	10
Bone meal	1
Shell meal	1
Charcoal	¼

To this mash one can also add with value a pinch of salt and a proper amount of a reliable regulator or tonic. The above will be found a valuable mash for use during the second, third and fourth months of a chick's life, representing as it does the feeding system of one of America's most successful plants, and should be fed at least twice a day.

When to Feed the Grain.

For a scratch grain we must resort first to the three great staple grains of the poultryman—corn, wheat and oats—and these should be mixed in equal quantities (by weight for chicks having free range. For those which are confined, however, a small amount of a variety of other grains, such as millet, canary seed, barley, etc., may be added, and this should be fed about the middle of the morning, scattered on the ground or among the litter, and again in the later afternoon. These fine grains are chiefly valuable as inducing exercise and affording slow nourishment.

It is almost unnecessary to state that a plentiful supply of good, fresh, cool water must be before the chicks at all times, and in addition if they are not on free range greens and grit must be provided.

The above system of feeding, provided other conditions are fairly normal, will grow chicks which will have the health, vitality and capacity that will mean much future profit.

THE VELVET LAWN.

How to Make and Keep It.

BY JOHN ASHLEY.

The lawn is nature's summer carpet and, like other carpets, may add greatly or detract from the harmony of any surroundings. Four things, however, are essential in the making of a perfect lawn—good soil, the best of seed, continual rolling and an abundance of water. The first, of course, is not always obtainable, but we may improve a poor soil by plowing in a liberal supply of well rotted barnyard manure, with emphasis on "well rotted," and harrowing repeatedly until the whole is fine and mellow.

In sowing the seed use a lawn seeder and sow about three to three and one-half bushels to the acre (208.71 square feet), raking it in with a sharp iron rake, water, then roll, using the heaviest weight roller that can be conveniently handled. The modern water weighted rollers enable one to use any weight up to 600 pounds, and, being ball bearing, they are very easy to pull.

The Value of Rolling.

Just here the urgent need of the roller should be fully explained. During the spring and winter the alternate freezing and thawing of the ground produces a loosening and heaving effect on the soil, as seen in the perennial garden, where the plants are sometimes forced up and the roots destroyed by this action of the frost. A lawn, which is only a collection of thousands of tiny plants, suffers in the same way as the larger plants, and it is only by heavy rolling that proper conditions can be restored to the soil. But rolling, while very necessary in early spring, is equally necessary throughout the entire growing season. Its use during this time insures an even surface, discourages the action of worms, ants, grubs and moles, and by packing down the earth makes it possible for the grass roots to utilize every drop of water.

The lawn once made fertility may be supplied in the form of specially prepared commercial fertilizers or sheep manure applied in the early spring. To water the lawn thoroughly, and that's the only way to water it, lay the hose on the ground and let the water run slowly from it for hours at a time that it may sink down into the ground and revive the thirsty roots. Finally a word as to weeds: Do not tolerate them, but wage a continuous warfare on these destructive little pests. Pull them out by the roots, fill the holes with loam, sprinkle grass seed over the bare spots, cover them lightly and roll persistently. Continuous efforts along these lines will result in a lawn that will give pleasure not only to the maker, but to all the surrounding neighborhood.

ARE GETTING ON SOLVENT BASIS

Fraternal Insurance Societies Reported on By Commissioner Preus.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Insurance Commissioner Preus has made a report showing that since the organization of the insurance department there have been 142 fraternal societies authorized to transact business in the state of Minnesota. Of this number eighty-two societies in the same period have ceased to do business in this state for various reasons. At the present time there are sixty fraternal societies authorized to transact business in the state. Of this number sixteen are home companies and organized under the laws of Minnesota. The insurance societies transacting business upon the fraternal plan did not write as large a volume of new business in Minnesota during the year 1913, as compared with the previous year, by over $2,000,000, the actual new business written being $19,929,050.00 as against $22,021,775.00 in 1912. The past experience of fraternal societies shows that the amount of business written has fallen off considerably each year.

The total volume of insurance in force is shown to have decreased by $2,302,549, as compared to the amount in force at the close of 1912, the actual volume being $317,190,674, as against $319,493,223, the previous year. The total membership or number of policies in force is 251,652 as against 252,081 at the close of 1912. The total number of new membership certificates issued in 1913 was 18,054 as against 19,717 during the preceding year, a decrease of 1,663.

Mr. Preus says that although less business is being written by the fraternal beneficiary associations there is one thing gratifying—they are constantly placing themselves upon an actuarially solvent basis where rerating and the proverbial freezing out of old members will not take place.

AMERICAN OFFICERS GETTING MILITARY TRAINING IN FRANCE

Paris, May 9.—The movement of American troops to Mexico brings to notice the fact that ten United States army officers, representing all branches of the service; are on duty in France for instruction in French military training. They are here by permission of the French government, given upon request of the United States, and are welcomed in the friendliest spirit. It appears to be the intention of the war department at Washington to have six officers continuously on service in France, so that French experience and French military science may from year to year be available for the United States army. Occasionally an English officer or officers from the Balkan and other smaller states have had permission to serve with one or another of the French regiments but it would seem that no foreign army, not even the Russian, has during this generation had such opportunities to know the French military system as the Americans now have.

Capt. W. A. Castle is in an infantry regiment at Orleans, Capt. N. Margettes and Lieut. A. T. Bishop with other regiments at Chalons sur Marne, Lieut. E. T. Boyd with the dragoons at Fontainbleau, Lieut. W. T. Martin at the cavalry school at Saumur, Capt. F. H. Pope in the French quartermaster's school and Capt. Frank Parker at the war college. Capt. Morton Henry of the American quartermaster's division and Lieut. E. S. Greble and Honeycutt of the artillery have just arrived to replace three other American officers and three others are expected. The three latter do not get into the French service until October. In the meantime they are required to live in French families and perfect their knowledge of French.

Capt. Parker in the war college, the exclusive school of higher strategy, has probably the rarest opportunity and one not shared by any other foreign officer. Eighty French officers are admitted annually out of from 400 to 500 applicants who take the severe competitive examination. Years of study are devoted by the French officer in preparation for this examination, because all selections for the general staff are made from graduates of the war college and no French officer need expect a high command unless he has gone successfully through this training in the deeper problems of strategy.

An arm-chair has been placed for Capt. Parker apart from the other officers and nearest the lecturer's platform so that the American guest may have a better chance than anyone else to follow the exposition of a subject and see the diagrams. The work in the war college is severe and is from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Part of it consists in hard riding over battlefields of France, the lecturer of the day explaining the operations of the troops that took part.

IMMODEST DRESS OF WOMEN CONDEMNED.

Genoa, May 9.—The Catholic church, having condemned immodest attire of women, has carried the war a step farther. The archbishop of Besancon has issued a warning to parents, through all the abbes and cures in his diocese which touches the western Swiss frontier, that in the future neither confirmation nor communion will be given to young girls who are dressed in the present extreme fashions, which in his opinion are indecent. Following is the order issued to the congregations:

"Young girls must not have their arms naked, and above all they must not come to church decollete. If the present ridiculous fashion continues we shall be obliged to make examples by refusing to admit to confirmation and the communion young girls dressed up in the images of the modes."

Maurice Fitzgerald, duke of Leinster, the youngest man of that title in the nobility of Great Britain, is coming to this country. He was born in Kildea castle, county Killare, in 1887.

SERVICES FOR DEAD MARINES ARRANGED

Washington, May 8.—The armored cruiser Montana, bearing the bodies of the seventeen sailors and marines killed during the occupation of Vera Cruz, is due to arrive in New York harbor about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Memorial services, at which President Wilson will voice the tribute of the nation, will begin at the New York navy yard at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Arrangements for the services had not finally been completed early today, but it was announced that they would be brief and simple. Chaplain William G. Cassard of Annapolis will deliver the invocation. The president then will deliver his address

Father Chidwick Will Pray.

Prayer by Rabbi Wise of New York will follow, and the benediction will be pronounced by Rev. Father John P. Chidwick, who was chaplain of the battleship Maine when she was blown up in Havana harbor. The program also calls for music by the marine band, and either a rifle or artillery salute.

The bodies will be landed at the Battery Sunday afternoon, where they will be placed on caissons and lie in state until Monday morning. At 9 o'clock Monday a procession under military escort and other escort to be provided by the city of New York, will march to the city hall and thence across Brooklyn bridge to the navy yard.

VALDEZ CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

Panama, May 9.—With the arrival of Dr. Ramon Valdez, Panamanian minister to London, politics became active and there are indications that he will wage a heated campaign for the presidency of the republic to succeed President Porras, whose term expires in 1916. Dr. Valdez is known to be the candidate President Porras favors to succeed him and through whom he hopes to continue the policies of his administration. It is understood that Dr. Valdez, who now is councellor for the department of foreign affairs, was brought back to Panama to begin an early and aggressive campaign.

Dr. Valdez probably will be opposed in his own party for the presidential honor by Rodolfo Chiara, secretary of government and justice in the Porras cabinet, who is said to have the support of Dr. Carlos A. Wendoza, former president.

NEW UNIFORMS FOR SWISS ARMY TRIED.

Geneva, May 9.—The emperor of Germany, who, since his visit to the Swiss maneuvers two years ago, has shown great interest in the Swiss army, believes that the present somewhat dark uniform worn by the Swiss Alpine troops makes them too conspicuous against a background of snow. He has therefore just forwarded through his minister at Berns 100 square yards of a specially made gray blue cloth to the federal government. The gift has been accepted with thanks and the cloth now is being converted into uniforms for the Alpine company as an experiment. It is not said, however, that if the experiment proves a success that the emperor will provide a larger stock to clothe all the Swiss Alpine battalions.

The Kansas City Star may be pardoned for expressing the fear that the editor of the Tescott Press is a nature faker.

CANADA FIELD PEAS.

By A. C. ARNY,
Assistant Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

The Canada field pea is a crop that deserves more attention on many farms in Minnesota. A ten-year average yield of twenty-one bushels of seed per acre has been secured on university farm. The weight per bushel is sixty pounds. Mixed in the proper proportions with other feeds, ground peas make a good feed for live stock. They are higher in protein content than the grains commonly grown on the farm and can be used in some mixed feeds to take the place of bran. For the production of an annual hay crop, peas and oats mixed at the rate of two bushels of peas and one bushel of oats and drilled early in spring give good results. From one and a half to three and a half tons of hay can be secured. Oats and pea hay can be fed to advantage to all classes of farm animals. Oats and pease drilled early in spring at the same rate as recommended for hay, make an excellent hog pasture crop, ready for use about July 1. Twenty bushels white Canada field peas produced in 1913 are on hand at university farm. They can be procured for use as seed at $1.50 per bushel.

CARE OF THE HOGS AT VACCINATION.

By H. PRESTON HOSKINS,
Assistant Veterinarian, University Farm, St. Paul.

Bad results sometimes follow improper or careless methods of handling and feeding, both prior to and immediately after vaccination, in spite of the fact that clean, potent serum and fresh, uncontaminated virus were used. Among the things that can be done to contribute to good results are the following:

Feed the hogs moderately for twenty-four hours before vaccinating. Do not fast them, as this will cause them to be wild and hard to handle.

During hot weather, vaccinate early in the morning or towards the evening, rather than in the middle of the day, when it is hot.

The hogs should be kept in a clean, dry place before vaccination. This is better both for the hogs and for the persons who are to handle them.

If possible, group the hogs according to size. This will lessen the chances for error in estimating the doses of serum to be injected.

Provide a box or table on which to place the bottles of serum and virus, disinfectants, syringes, etc., where they will be convenient but not likely to be upset.

It is even more important that the hogs be kept clean and dry after vaccination, to reduce to a minimum the chances for infecting the needle wounds.

Get the hogs into an enclosure where they can be caught without chasing them. This should be done before the arrival of the veterinarian.

Special attention should be paid to the feeding of the hogs after vaccination. Corn should be excluded from the diet entirely for at least a week. Give reduced rations of slightly laxative feeds.

Watch the hogs carefully for at least three weeks after vaccination, especially if the double treatment has been used. If all goes well for three weeks, there is little to be feared later on.

If any hogs show signs of sickness following the double treatment, they should be isolated from the rest of the herd. Sometimes another dose of serum will save them.

If an abscess forms at the point of injection, it should be opened promptly and given a chance to drain. Very few abscesses should occur, however, if the foregoing rules are followed.

PROPER FEEDING OF YOUNG CHICKS.

By C. E. BROWN,
Poultryman, Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston, Minn.

We do not feed little chicks before they are two days old, but from the beginning give them water. During this period the hen is given her food out of reach of the little ones. The first feeds are given sparingly every two hours, and are usually wet mashes.

After the third day, we feed some of the cracked grains, a little at a time, till, at the end of the fifth or sixth day, we are giving only two feeds a day of the mash, and three feeds of the cracked grain. Occasionally we give a little whole wheat, and by the end of eight weeks we are feeding most of the grains whole. If the chicks are unable to get worms or insects in sufficient quantities, they must be supplied with a substitute, such as milk or beef scraps. Green feed is given in the form of finely-chopped lettuce, a piece of potato or turnip or mangel when they are not able to run outside on the grass.

FARMERS' CLUBS ARE PLANNING PICNICS.

BY H. M. BUSH,
Farmer's Club Specialist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Twenty-one farmers' clubs and the Northfield Commercial club are planning to have a picnic in a grove on Mr. Schilling's farm May 23. This picnic will be the means of bringing the farmers and business men of Northfield closer together, get them better acquainted with each other, and will promise them at least one good day's sport for the summer. Similar picnics will be held in quite a number of other towns in Minnesota this summer. We would like to learn of such picnics held in every town of Minnesota where there is a commercial club and a farmers' club in the same neighborhood.

KILLING DANDELIONS.

By W. L. OSWALD,
Assistant Agricultural Botanist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Cut the dandelion roots off below the surface of the ground.

Gasoline or kerosene, applied at the crown of the dandelion, will kill individual plants.

When only a few stray plants appear, persistently use the spud or knife.

On badly infested lawns, good results may be obtained by spraying with sulphate of iron.

Use 1½ pounds of iron sulphate, which can be purchased at any drug store, to 1 gallon of water, remembering that it will discolor clothing and cement walks.

Apply the spray three days after lawn is cut, on a bright day when the possibilities of rain are slight.

The solution should be applied with a sprayer which gives a fine, mistlike spray—a sprinkler is not satisfactory.

The lawn should be sprayed about once a month during the summer, and not cut or watered for three days after the solution is applied.

Whatever method of eradication is used, it is always well to reseed the lawn in April, June and September.

For reseeding, eight or ten pounds of seed should be used on a lawn 100 by 150 feet. The seed should be sown broadcast, raked in, then watered.

A good lawn grass mixture is 14 pounds of Kentucky blue grass, 2 of white clover and 2 of redtop seed—buy good clean seed and mix it yourself.

With the thickening of the grass and the use of fertilizer, many of the dandelion plants will be crowded out.

Besides this reseeding, it is well to scatter nitrate of soda over the lawn before a rain or just before the lawn is sprinkled. Fifty pounds will fertilize a lawn 100 by 150 feet.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

BY LE ROY CADY,
Associate Horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

It is easier to put up the pea trellis before the peas come up.

Cabbage, cauliflower, and kohl rabi may be set out early in May.

Set strawberries, raspberries, and other hardy plants or shrubs.

Keep a sharp lookout for the cut worms. They will soon be active.

Start a few muskmelons, cucumbers and watermelons in pots or boxes in the cold frame.

The hop vine, wild cucumber, cardinal climber and morning glory are good annual vines to use as screens.

Pergolas or summer-houses may be made not only beautiful but useful by growing the wild vine or Beta grape over them.

Use plenty of manure in the garden. Good cultivation and plenty of plant food is resuonsible for most of the "good luck."

Many flowering annuals, such as petunias and portulacas, many be sown in the open ground as soon as it is well warmed.

Early May is not too late to set out a few King raspberries, Senator Dunlap strawberries, Beta grapes, or Perfection currants.

Prune gooseberries and currants in May if it has not already been done. Take out old, weak wood and any new shoots that are crowding.

A group of highbush cranberries in the back yard not only adds color to the yard in autumn but also furnishes a good jelly material close at hand.

Protect and shelter the birds as much as possible. A few windbreaks or thickets of brush on the farm give the birds a nesting place and they pay for it by catching many injurious insects.

FOR PREVENTION OF THE MOSQUITO PEST.

By C. W. HOWARD,
Assistant Entomologist, University Farm, St. Paul.

A state like Minnesota, with many small ponds, lakes and swamps, is sure to be more or less afflicted with the mosquito pest each season. Many of our "wild" mosquitos deposited their eggs last autumn on the dead leaves and grass where water will collect this spring. So we may soon expect to find "wrigglers" in such places, although these collections of water may be only temporary. This early generation of mosquitoes will remain with us all summer. Other "wild" mosquitoes breed in our ponds and swamps and along quiet, shallow margins of lakes and rivers, during the entire summer.

We may also speak of "domestic" mosquitoes, for several species prefer to breed in our rain barrels, clogged up roof-drains, broken bottles, dishes, and old tin cans on the rubbish heap which have collected rain water.

Mosquitoes can breed only in water, nothwithstanding the many popular statements to the contrary. The whole structure of the young mosquito fits it for a life only in water. So in combating mosquitoes, the obvious remedy is to remove the breeding places. No pool or collection of water is too small or too filthy to serve such a purpose. The only requisite is that it be stagnant and that it remain permanent long enough for the mosquito "wrigglers" to reach full growth. Care must be used therefore in searching for breeding places so as not to overlook some of the smaller ones.

Draining of marshy lands, or sometimes filling of such places, dredging of the margins of lakes so that there are no weedy shallows left, and the introduction of small fish are the best remedies to give permanent relief. A film of kerosene or light fuel oil placed on the surface of water prevents the wrigglers from breathing and kills them. About one ounce of oil will cover a surface area of fifteen square feet. It must be renewed once in two or three weeks.

For "domestic" mosquitoes, clean up rubbish, place tight-fitting mosquito screens over the rain barrels and, if necessary, place oil on top of collections of water not otherwise removable.

PRUNE YOUNG TREES AT PLANTING TIME.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—Lack of sufficient top pruning immediately following planting is likely to result in serious injury and the frequent death of young fruit trees. In fact, severe cutting back at this time is regarded as essential to successful planting by J. C. Moore, horticulturist at the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin.

The reason for this is that the roots and tops should be about equal, and in transplanting the roots are always broken off and cut back, making it necessary to prune the top as well. When the tree is dug, a large proportion of the root system is left in the ground, and the remaining roots are given too great a task in supplying the top with food and moisture. It thus becomes necessary to reduce the top of the tree to a minimum.

With trees over one year old the pruning at planting time will largely determine the character and form of the branches of the tree and the height of head. Mr. Moore declares that in Wisconsin the open cultured tree is usually preferred, and this necessitates the removal of the central branch, commonly known as the central leader. Not more than two or three branches should be left, and these should be well spaced around the tree and also perpendicularly around the trunk. Eight inches is none too great a space between the branches, if suitable ones can be found at this distance.

BEST TIME TO GET RID OF THE GOPHER.

By A. C. ARMY,
Assistant Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

The latter part of April and the first week in May is the best time to get rid of the gophers in and around the field that is to be planted to corn this year. Poisoned corn is good bait. By laying the first bait about the middle of April, the second near the end of the month, and a third during the first week in May, the gophers should be pretty well eliminated by corn-planting time.

The poisoned corn may be prepared as follows: In a quart of hot water dissolve one-fourth of the amount of strychnine contained in a one-eighth ounce bottle. After the strychnine is dissolved and the water is cool, as much corn may be put in as the solution will cover. If less corn than that is needed, put in about what will go around. Leave the corn in the solution twenty-four hours, then remove it, saving the solution that was not taken up by the corn for use a little later.

If all of the gophers are not killed before the corn is planted, then corn soaked twenty-four hours in the strychnine solution mentioned above may be planted thicker than usual in a few of the outside rows. In a recent trial at university farm, corn soaked in a strychnine solution for twenty-four hours germinated just as well as corn that was soaked in pure water for the same length of time, or as corn that was not treated at all. If the gophers are not out of the way by corn planting time, this method should be given a trial. It will help you get a better stand of corn, which means a higher yield. The planter will have to be regulated so as to give the desired drop of the soaked corn. Strychnine is a deadly poison and should be handled with the greatest care. Keep the strychnine solution and the soaked corn out of reach of children and all domestic animals.

ERUPTION ON HAND COULD NOT SLEEP

Looked Like Boils. Inflamed, Itched and Hurt. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Hand Well.

R. R. No. 17, Thornstown, Ind.—"My husband while working skinned a little place on his hand and it made a running sore and others broke out all around it. They looked like boils. The skin all around them was red and inflamed. It would itch and hurt so badly that he could not sleep at night.

"We tried several kinds of medicines but nothing helped it until I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent and got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after the first two or three days using it began to heal. He would bathe the sores with the Cuticura Soap and then use the Cuticura Ointment night and morning. He used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. In a week's time his hand was well." (Signed) Mrs. Bertha Gleason, June 16, 1913.

HOMES AND BUILDING LOTS HOLD CENTER OF THE STAGE

Waverly Park Lots Will Be Placed on Sale Next Month.

Duluth Exchange Will Try to Live Up to Code of Ethics.

Though the week was unfavorable from a weather standpoint, the list of transfers shows that a fair volume of business was put through in the aggregate. Moderate priced homes and building lots continued to absorb the bulk of the interest, and from the present outlook, operators are sanguine that transactions in that department will set a new high record during the present season. So far these sales have been well divided between the different sections of the city, and the demand is regarded as emphasizing the present scarcity of houses available for rental at a moderate figure.

The increasing inquiry for the more expensive homes in the Eastern residential district has also been a subject of comment. Several transfers of such properties have been reported during the last few weeks, and it is understood that negotiations are now on that may lead to the closing up of other interesting sales in the near future.

Merritt Home Sold.

The feature in that connection during the week came in the purchase by H. R. Spencer yesterday of the Alfred Merritt home at 2105 East Second street, at a consideration reported at $15,000. The property has a frontage of fifty feet on the street, and is regarded as one of the most modern in the East end in its exterior and interior arrangements.

The Duluth Real Estate exchange which is improving Waverly park, the new sub-division at Hunter's Park, for the sale next month, intimates that it would be willing to give those who are planning to build at once, the opportunity of choosing their lots before the June sale. Prospective builders would thus have the first choice of lots and could get started on plans and contracts, thus insuring the early completion of their houses. No other lots will be sold until the sale in June. The clearing, grading and other work at Waverly park is progressing rapidly and the next three weeks will see it nearly finished. Victoria street will be graded from Woodland avenue along the south side of the sub-division, and by the middle of June all the other streets will be graded and sidewalks will be in. All the sewers planned for will be installed within a week and water and gas pipes are already in on Victoria street and the Snively road.

Will Improve Waverly Park.

Waverly Park like most of the best residential districts platted nowadays is to be restricted. Dwellings erected must cost at least $3,500. No double dwellings or flats may be erected. Building lines are established and other reasonable restrictions imposed to insure its being a desirable residence section. There is no part of the city prettier than this and it is considered that lots there should speedily command a handsome premium.

Charles E. Lee has purchased the property at No. 517 North Sixteenth avenue east and adjoining lots. The property was bought to be used as the home of Mr. Lee and his family and will be remodeled and modernized into one of the city's attractive residences.

Comment is made upon the great interest that has been shown of late in the monthly meetings and luncheons of the local real estate exchange. At the last meeting, held at the Commercial club on Tuesday noon, interesting addresses were delivered by Thomas Ingersoll of Minneapolis, executive secretary of the International Association of Real Estate Exchanges, and by John McCabe, a leading real estate operator of Superior. An effort is being made to raise the standard of the profession. To that end, members of the Duluth exchange express themselves in favor of adopting the following ethics as promulgated by the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges:

"Be absolutely honest, truthful and efficient. Ever bear in mind that the broker is an employe, that his client is his employer and is entitled to the best service the real estate man can give—his information, talent, time, services, loyalty, confidence and fidelity.

"Be conservative in giving advice and, where not reasonably well posted, refrain from giving opinion of value.

"Inspect client's property, if possible, before offering it for sale, and always inform the buyer if that has not been done.

"Do not depreciate the price of property unless the price is too high; ask that the price be reasonable, and tell the owner that it must be so if he expects his agent to make an attempt to sell it.

"Obtain sole agency, in writing, if it is property worthy of a special effort to sell.

"Advocate that the real consideration be shown in a deed to property, or one dollar and other valuable considerations.

"Do not give special information to inquiries over the telephone, or otherwise, unless they are willing to give their names and addresses. Let them understand that the broker deals in the open, and expects them to do likewise.

"An agent should not ask for a net price on property, unless he intends to buy it himself, and so notifies his client.

"He should request his client not to discuss price with the prospective buyer, but persuade his client to refer the matter to the agent—thus strengthening the agent's position with the buyer, and thus helping the agent to make a better deal for his client.

"An agent should always exact the regular real estate commission of the association of which he is a member, and always give his client to understand at the beginning that he is entitled to such and expects it."

The Hanford Construction company sold to W. C. Prudhomme, four lots on Minneapolis avenue, near Isanti street. It is understood that the buyer proposes to improve the property in the erection of buildings during the present season.

The Hooper-Kohagen company reported a gratifying general inquiry for properties during the last few days, leading to sales of building lots on east Fifth and east Sixth streets, six lots in Park Drive addition, adjoining Chester Park, and of four Home Land acre tracts.

The Harris Realty company had a busy week resulting in the following sales of homes: For X. Demil to Max Gorodrizky house and lot No. 420 east Ninth street at $1,700.

For the Dickerman Investment company to W. H. Brooks, house and lot No. 2128 Water street at $1,200.

For Elmer S. Parsons to Joseph W. Selner, house and lot No. 801 west Ninth street at $1,000.

For Charles M. Forest to G. Joseph Harris, house and lot No. 706 west Third street at $2,100.

For John Lindgren to A. Zevin, house and lot No. 319 east Ninth street at $2,300.

The Ebert-Walker company effected sales of two 160-acre tracts on the Vermilion range, adjoining Pine Island to S. P. Whitcomb and R. H. McBride, both of Hennepin county. The office also sold to R. McBride for T. Martin, 160 acres near Brimson, Minn., for improvement.

A. W. Kuehnow, president of the Gary Land Company, reported an improved investment inquiry during the last few days for Gary properties, and from the general indications, expects a substantial expansion in building operations to materialize during the present month. Six Gary lots were disposed of yesterday to a syndicate of outside buyers.

The Greenfield Realty company commented upon a steady inquiry for Lakeside building lots and homes. Members of the company are of the opinion that the development of that suburb during the present season will compare favorably with other years.

MINNEAPOLIS WILL HAVE NEW BUILDING HIGHER THAN ALWORTH

Revised plans for the First National-Soo line building, Minneapolis, have been made by Architect R. W. Gibson, which materially change the general appearance. In the original plan there was a bridge at the seventeenth floor spanning the two sections across the area. This has been eliminated. The change will give unobstructed view of the inner wall of the second section from Marquette avenue. Architecturally the bridge gave a somewhat distinctive feature and was intended to relieve the long corner lines. But officers of the First National-Soo Line Building company, which is erecting the structure, preferred the simpler front. Removing the bridge will make the building look wider and taller, they say.

One million dollars' worth of 5 per cent bonds will be issued about June 1 by the First National Bank Building company, Minneapolis, which has the ground cleared at Fifth street and Marquette avenue for the erection of a nineteen-story building.

The proceeds will be used to finance the construction of the building, which will be completed early in 1915. The Minneapolis Trust company and the Minnesota Loan & Trust company, Minneapolis, have underwritten the bonds and it said have advanced subscriptions for $470,000 of the issue.

GOOD INDICATIONS IN BUILDING CONTINUE

Last Week Shows No Let-up in Plans for Improvements.

Many Permits Issued--Residence Construction Is a Feature.

Building permits of the present week made another gratifying showing, numbering thirty-four, with the cost of improvements involved placed at $87,328.

The taking out of a permit for $25,000 to cover the building of an additional story to the McKay hotel at First street and Fifth avenue west, was the feature. It is understood that the work is to be proceeded with immediately.

A permit was issued to Bentley P. Neff for a tile and frame home on Sixth street between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth avenues east. According to the plans as designed by Holstead & Sullivan, architects, the structure will be one of the most artistic in its general lines, in the East end residence district.

Mrs. Margaret Melville took out a permit for a frame dwelling now under erection at East Fourth street and Woodland avenue.

Architects have still considerable work on their tables, some of which are expected to be ready to go out for figures within the next couple of weeks. It is nearly all for new residence construction, mainly in the eastern and central portions of the city.

Included in the larger buildings now approaching completion, is the St. James parochial school at Fifty-seventh avenue west. It is of Menominee brick and terra cotta construction, two stories and a basement, containing eight classrooms, gymnasium and a large auditorium, with a seating capacity of 1,000. It has an outside boiler and heating plant and a mechanical ventilating system. The general contract for its construction was carried through by the Bowe-Burke company, and the plans were prepared by Holstead & Sullivan, architects. The structure will cost approximately $50,000.

Vernon J. Price & Co., architects, will have revised plans for the Barrows, Minn., school out for bids on May 23. The structure is estimated to cost $8,000.

* * *

The contract for a frame residence for George Borzick of Ely, Minn., has been awarded to Harry Pearson at $7,000. The plans were prepared by Holstead & Sullivan, architects.

* * *

Anthony Puck, architect, has prepared plans for a frame and stucco home to be built for M. J. Benson on Twenty-third avenue east, at an estimated cost of $8,000. The contract will be let on May 23.

* * *

The contract for the proposed Bernard Silberstein residence at Twenty-first avenue east and First street, has been awarded to Appleby Bros. The house will be of brick, and is to be modernly appointed throughout, entailing an expenditure of about $15,000. The plans were prepared by F. G. German, architect.

* * *

Ivan Holmberg proposes to build a $4,000 bungalow at Columbus and Lewis streets, Glen Avon. The plans are being prepared by Arthur Hanford, architect.

* * *

The general contract for the Irwin Fish home at 420 Gladstone avenue, has been awarded to James Falconer, and the plumbing and heating to Archie McDougall. The plans were prepared by Arthur Hanford, architect.

* * *

Edward P. Shurick, architect, will have the plans ready for figures next Thursday for a residence for J. St. Clair on Woodland avenue above Sixth street east.

The same architect is taking figures on the plumbing and heating to be installed in the house being built for Mrs. M. McGrath at Kenwick, Minn. He is, besides, receiving bids on the general contract, plumbing and electric wiring for the new home of L. F. Deylin at Lakeside.

* * *

The contract for excavating the foundation for an office building and dwelling for the Highland company at Duluth Heights, has been let to John Robertson. The general contract for the structures is expected to be let during the present week. The plans were prepared by Arthur Hanford, architect.

* * *

A firmer market in brick as a result of the improved demand for materials, is reported by the Duluth Builders' Supply company. Among the contracts obtained by the company recently was one covering the brick and other materials for the new Munger school.

* * *

Circulation Greatest—Rates Lowest

The Duluth Herald has the greatest circulation of any newspaper in Minnesota, outside the Twin Cities. Its rates for classified advertising are less per thousand circulation than those of any other paper in Minnesota. Best results are gained from ads when definite information is given. When information is lacking the presumption is that desirable features are lacking. Information as to contract rates and the probable amount of space your ad would take, gladly given.

GOMPERS CONTEMPT SENTENCES KNOCKED OUT BY HIGH COURT

Labor Leaders Win Appeal for the Second Time.

Statute of Limitations Is Declared to Operate in Cases.

District of Columbia Court's Action Finally Overruled.

Washington, May 11.—The contempt sentences imposed by the district supreme court upon Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, labor leaders, were set aside today by the supreme court for the second time as barred by the statute of limitations.

Second Setting Aside.

The contempt charges against Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison grew out of the injunction issued by the District of Columbia supreme court to prohibit the Federation of Labor from boycotting the Buck's Stove & Range company. Proceeding as if the contempt cases were part of the injunction suit, the district supreme court held the labor leaders in contempt, and sentenced Gompers to one year in jail, Mitchell to nine months and Morrison to six months. The supreme court of the United States, on May 15, 1911, set aside those sentences, holding that penal sentences had been erroneously imposed in a civil suit.

The day after the sentences were set aside the district supreme court began new proceedings against the labor leaders. A committee was appointed to report whether there was reasonable cause for holding the men guilty of contempt. It consisted of J. J. Darlington, Daniel Davenport and James M. Beck, attorneys of record for the Buck's Stove & Range company.

Report of Committee.

The committee reported that the three labor men had been guilty of contempt. It charged that Gompers, in December, 1907, had hurried out an is-

Harbin, Manchuria, May 11.—Southard P. Warner, United States consul at Harbin, committed suicide today in a hospital here where he was undergoing treatment. BOY DIES IN FIRE THAT RAZES HOME

North Dakota Baby Left Alone in House With Girl.

Kenmare, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home and the 1-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Reud were burned on their claim in the hills. Mr. and Mrs. Reud were both out of the building when an 8-year-old girl started a fire in the stove. It became so heated the roof caught on fire and the parents could not get in to rescue the child, though both were nearly overcome in their efforts to reach it.

AVIATOR IS FACTOR IN FRENCH VICTORY

Directs Fire of Artillery and Drops Bombs Among Moors.

Fez, Morocco, May 11.—Tazza, a French military aviator, was one of the principal factors in yesterday's victory of the French troops over the Moors at Teza, which gave the French command of the eastern approaches to Fez.

The airman flew back and forth over the Moorish positions and directed the fire of the French artillery. At the same time he dropped a number of bombs among the Moors, who became demoralized and fled, leaving many dead on the field.

NORTH DAKOTA LID LIFTER IS SUICIDE

Farmer Cuts His Throat While in Jail at Bowman.

Bowman, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Using a razor to cut some deep gashes in his throat, F. P. Young committed suicide in jail here. He was a farmer living near town, and was charged with violating the prohibition law. He disappeared for awhile but recently returned, entered a plea of guilty and was serving his sentence. Two other prisoners heard his body fall and called the sheriff, who found Young just dying. He had been very despondent since his sentence.

THREATENED LIFE OF J. D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

"SWEET MARIE" GANZ.

New York, May 11.—Marie Ganz, called derisively "Sweet Marie" because of her gutter vocabulary, is the woman who threatened the life of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and who was arrested by the New York police. She was sentenced to serve sixty days in jail for disorderly conduct.

TORNADO HITS NEAR MADISON

Dane County Woman Killed and Buildings Demolished.

Tobacco Suffers Severe Damage From Heavy Hail.

Madison, Wis., May 11.—A Mrs. Olson of Klevenville was killed and four others injured when the tail end of a tornado originating in Iowa today passed over Dane county from the Southwest, wrecking farm buildings and doing great damage to crops.

Mrs. Olson was killed when the laundry at the county farm at Verona was blown down. Wires are down and only meager information is available.

Four tobacco sheds in the vicinity of McFarland are partially demolished and the cupola of a barn torn off.

Big Damage to Tobacco.

The storm lasted twenty minutes and was accompanied by a heavy downpour of hail.

Farmers report the greatest damage to tobacco heads the tender plants being ruined by the hail. This damage is said to be thousands of dollars.

Madison was not in the direct path of the storm although the streets were white with hail.

O'SHAUGHNESSY TO SEE WILSON TUESDAY

Former Charge Has Had Several Talks With Bryan.

Washington, May 11.—President Wilson, it was announced today, will receive Nelson O'Shaughnessy, former charge of the American embassy at the City of Mexico, tomorrow. Mr. O'Shaughnessy has conferred with Secretary Bryan several times since his arrival in Washington last week. He also has talked with Secretary Tumulty, but the president has not found an earlier opportunity to see him.

U. S. IS RUSHING WORK ON TRANSPORT

Mechanics Will Work While Ship Goes to Destination.

New York, May 11.—In order to rush to a finish the work of preparing her for use as a transport ship, 200 mechanics will be aboard the liner City of Macon, which was chartered by the war department Saturday, when she sails tomorrow for Galveston.

The City of Memphis, which was chartered at the same time, also will sail for Galveston tomorrow. She arrived here yesterday from Boston and was sent to a drydock in South Brooklyn, where a force of carpenters and mechanics was set to work putting her interior into shape for the soldiers.

The steamship Minnesota is also in drydock here, being made ready for transport use.

Neither the City of Macon nor the City of Memphis will carry troops when they leave New York, but it is expected that they will be held in readiness at Galveston for an emergency call.

The Minnesota will be used as a livestock transport and will sail for Galveston later in the week.

REBELS BLOW UP MORELOS

Destroy Abandoned Gunboat of the Mexican Federal Forces.

Skirmishing at Mazatlan Continues, Says Admiral Howard.

Washington, May 11.—Rear Admiral Howard of the Pacific fleet reported today that the abandoned Mexican Federal gunboat Morelos was yesterday boarded, set fire to and blown up by the Constitutionalists at Mazatlan.

Admiral Howard further reported that the Constitutionalist artillery at Piedras island drove the Mexican transport Korrigan out of the harbor.

All Americans are reported safe in the Culiacan district. The Paul Jones has arrived at Mazatlan and the Stewart at San Blas.

The yacht Iola, on which Arthur Payne, a wealthy young member of Mento Park, Cal., started for Guayamas, is safe. It was two weeks overdue at Guayamas and had been reported captured by Mexican revolutionists.

Payne, with seven companions, sailed from San Diego on April 8. They were bound for Tiburon island, in the Gulf of California.

LAY THREE MURDERS TO GEORGIA YOUTH

Victims Talked About Member of His Family, It Is Said.

Ocilla, Ga., May 11.—Charged with killing three other youths with a shotgun, Preston Williams, 16 years old, is in jail here. The victims were Elbert and Robert Gay, brothers, and Jesse Sumner, all members of prominent families.

The three boys were killed as they drove away from the Williams' home near here. Testimony given at a coroner's inquest tended to show that the Williams youth resented remarks the youths made about a member of his family.

SEEK PARDONS FOR WOMAN'S SLAYERS

Movement Is Begun in the Case of Annie Mullins.

Cambridge, Mass., May 11.—The murder of Annie Mullins in March, 1908, a noted Middlesex county case, is recalled by a movement today to secure the pardon of James Mantir and Peter C. Delorey, convicted of the crime.

District Attorney Corcoran announced today that he would ask Governor Walsh to give them their liberty. Mantir is serving a life sentence and Delorey a twenty-year term.

The body of the young woman, who was employed as a maid by Prof. Von Jagerman of Harvard, was found in a field in Arlington. Her throat had been cut. It was not until a year later the authorities obtained evidence sufficient to make an arrest. Delorey implicated Mantir, but later repudiated his statement.

MEDIATOR TALKS TO PRESIDENT WILSON ABOUT LIGHTHOUSES

Huerta's Latest Protest Guardedly Referred to in Conference.

Shively Says There Is No Sign of Crisis in Mexico.

Reports of Zapata Threats Against Foreigners Cause Anxiety.

Washington, May 11.—The navy department today called upon Rear Admiral Badger for a complete report concerning an unofficial statement that an American force had landed on Lobos island, eight miles from the Mexican shore, between Vera Cruz and Tampico, and taken possession of the lighthouse there.

Washington, May 11.—Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil, reported at length today to Ministers Naon of Argentina and Suarez of Chile, his fellow envoys in the Mexican mediation, on his conference yesterday with President Wilson before the latter's departure for New York to participate in the memorial to American Vera Cruz dead.

No announcement was made by the envoys of the results of this conference, but from an authoritative source it was stated that, among other things considered, Ambassador Da Gama took up with the president a protest from Huerta's minister of foreign affairs, Mr. Ruiz, against the seizure of the Mexican lighthouse by American forces on Lobos island, off Tampico.

Action Is Criticized.

While it is understood that the reported seizure of the island was referred to in an extremely guarded manner, there was a disposition to regard this action as not altogether wise, in view of the armistice, even though it was intended merely as a precautionary measure and not as an aggressive movement.

Some government officials took the view that the order issued by Huerta last Saturday to shut down lighthouses on the Pacific coast might be considered as a violation of the armistice, inasmuch as it operates to hindrance of shipping and the movement of American warships in Mexican waters.

TEXAS RAILROAD LAW IS INVALID

Statute to Regulate Freight Conductorships Unconstitutional.

Washington, May 11.—The Texas statute providing that a person should not act as a freight railway conductor without having had two years' experience as a freight brakeman, except in cases of emergency, was today annulled as unconstitutional by the supreme court.

U. S. REPRESENTATIVES BEFORE MEDIATORS

FREDERICK W. LEHMANN.

JOSEPH R. LAMAR.

Washington, May 11.—Associate Justice Joseph Rucker Lamar of the United States supreme court and Frederick W. Lehmann of St. Louis, former solicitor general, have been selected by the president to represent his views before the South American mediators in the Mexican mediation negotiations at Niagara Falls, Can. Secretary Bryan made this official announcement today.

Whether a third representative would be appointed Mr. Bryan declined to indicate, stating that it could be assumed that there would be no other, although he did not wish to indicate definitely that such a possibility was foreclosed.

NEW VENIRE ON HAND IN THE BECKER CASE

Witnesses for the State Are Being Guarded By Detectives.

New York, May 11.—With 100 talesmen in attendance at the opening of court today, the two jurors needed to fill the jury box for the second trial of Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal were expected to be selected in short order and the actual taking of testimony begun before the adjournment today.

"Bald Jack" Rose, the chief witness for the prosecution, is in the city under guard by the district attorney's men. Detectives from Mr. Whitman's office will act as escort for "Bridgie" Webber from Passaic, N. J. Webber asked the district attorney to furnish him a body guard on his trips to and from the court.

Harry Vallon has made no such request, but is still available. Sam Schepps, another of the so-called informers, has told friends that he fears nobody, now that the gunmen are dead.

NO ANXIETY OVER CORRESPONDENTS.

Vera Cruz, May 11.—Little anxiety is felt here for the safety of Richard Harding Davis and Medill McCormick, correspondents who went through the lines to Mexico City last week. Davis carried credentials from the Brazilian consul here and Mr. McCormick had a letter from the British consul. They were accepted by Gen. Maas and the two correspondents were sent forward, although Frederick Palmer, who attempted to go through the lines as an American, was turned back.

Palmer said he felt certain that Davis and McCormick were safe, and credited the report that they were on their way to Puerto Mexico.

NATION PAYS HONOR TO MEN WHO FELL IN FIGHT AT VERA CRUZ

President Wilson Leads Funeral Procession Through City.

New York, May 11.—To the men of the navy who died in the occupation of Vera Cruz, the city, the state and the nation paid tribute today in a demonstration chiefly remarkable for its silence and solemnity.

For four miles through the city streets the funeral cortege passed, and behind it in an open carriage rode the president. He sat for the most part with head bared, though the May sun beat down upon him and the mercury climbed above 70.

Perhaps a million persons saw the seventeen coffins, each on a caisson, borne from the Battery plaza in lower Manhattan to the Navy Yard in Brooklyn. The procession was nearly two hours in passing. Such was the feeling of the massed thousands that the silence at times, particularly in the canyons of lower Broadway, was oppressive.

There were a few sporadic outbursts of applause as the president's carriage passed, but these were quickly hushed. At Dey street came the first short burst of such applause. It was started by a girl in white on the sidewalk, who clapped her hands, doubtless from severe nervousness.

Seventeen Flag-Draped Coffins.

Two hours before the city was astir, seventeen flag-draped coffins were removed from the boat deck of the armored cruiser Montana and placed on caissons on the plaza in Battery park. Few witnessed this ceremony, for the sun was but half risen, but thousands later lined the streets to watch the slow procession wind its way to the navy yard.

Perhaps not since the Dewey parade has there been such a spontaneous demonstration. That, however, was a noisy tribute to a returning victor; this was a reverent one to the returning dead.

The dead from Vera Cruz are:

SAY TAMPICO IS CAPTURED

Unofficial Reports Are Received By Rebels at Juarez.

Leaders Believe Main Attack Is Yet to Be Made.

Juarez, May 11.—News of the fate of Tampico still is awaited here by Constitutionalist officials. While unconfirmed rumors have reached here through unofficial channels that Gen. Pablo Gonzales and Gen. Luis Cabellero, in command of the insurgents, have captured the city, officials here believe the main attack on the position of Gen. Zaragoza has not yet been pressed home.

They place supreme confidence, however, on the handling of the artillery by Maj. Manuel Prieto, who is in charge of the rebel guns. Maj. Prieto is a graduate of Chapultepec military academy and is expected to open the opportunity for a dash by the dismounted troops of the rebel forces.

George C. Carothers, special representative of the United States state department, left today for Torreon, where he will join the rebels. He expects to accompany Gen. Villa and Gen. Carranza on the campaign against Saltillo and San Luis Potosi.

Judge Dancer of district court today signed an order for an injunction restraining the First National bank from allowing two notes, one for $50 and another for $75, running from L. The notes are in the possession of the First National bank and the action which is pending is one in which it is sought to have the instruments cancelled.

EXPLAINS GOD'S PURPOSE IN PERMITTING CALAMITIES

W. H. BRADFORD.

Lecturing before a large gathering of Duluth citizens yesterday afternoon, in the Woodman auditorium, W. H. Bradford explained to his attentive listeners the purpose of God in permitting calamities and excessive sufferings with loss of life.

He called attention to similar troubles in the Lord's day and to what the Lord said of these:

"There were present at that season some who told Him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. And Jesus answering said unto them, 'Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans because they suffered such things? I tell you, nay; but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower of Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, nay; but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."—Luke 13:1-5.

"Noble and praiseworthy in the sight of both God and man are the generous impulses of charity and sympathy, awakened by calamities and sufferings," said the speaker. "Those bereaved of home and family are deserving of our deepest sympathy and ablest assistance, but is it not well to inquire at this time, what may be God's purpose in permitting all this suffering?

"To comprehend this cause fully, we must go far back, to the very beginning of sickness, pain, death and sorrow—to the Garden of Eden, where neither famine, pestilence, cyclone, earthquake, nor death in any form was permitted; where man and his surroundings and conditions were pronounced 'very good,' even by God himself, and must certainly have been greatly appreciated by man, who had to be driven out and prevented from returning by the fiery sword which kept the way of access to the life-sustaining fruits of the garden.

Man a Convict.

"Adam and Eve, therefore, went forth from Eden convicts, under sentence of death; self-convicted under the most just of all judges, their Creator and Friend. The convicts esteemed it a mercy to be allowed to die gradually rather than suddenly; while to the Creator and Judge this was expedient because of His plan for their future, in which experiences with imperfect conditions would be of great value—a plan for the increase of the race, and for its discipline and final redemption and restoration.

"The death penalty, inflicted in this manner, God foresaw, would through experience, furnish man such a lesson on the exceeding sinfulness of sin and its baneful results as would never need to be repeated—a lesson, therefore, which would profit all who learned it to all eternity; especially when contrasted with Christ's millennial reign of righteousness which shall manifest the fruits of righteousness. Had the death sentence of God (in addition to a loss of Eden's comforts and beneficial experience with sin and death) condemned His creatures to an eternity of torment and anguish, as some still believe and teach, who could defend such a sentence, or call the Judge just or loving, or in any sense good? Surely no one of a sound mind!

Death the Penalty.

"But when it is seen that the Scriptures teach that death (extinction), and not life in torment, was the penalty pronounced and inflicted, all is reasonable. God has a right to demand perfect obedience from His perfect creature when placed under perfect conditions, as in Adam's case. And the decree that none shall live everlastingly except the perfect, is both a wise and a just provision for the everlasting welfare of all God's creatures.

"There is a depth of meaning in the Creator's words as He sent forth His fairly tried and justly condemned creatures, among the thorns and briars, to labor and sorrow, to suffer pain and disease and to be subject to the casualties and calamities of nature's unfinished work. He said: 'Cursed is the ground for thy sake;' i. e., the earth in general is in its present imperfect condition for your profit and experience, even though you may not esteem it so.

"We can see, then, that labor and toil were prescribed for man's good. They have kept him so employed that he could not plan and consummate evil to the same extent that he otherwise would have done. And so the earth becomes more fertile, approaching perfection, man's vitality becomes less; so that now, with greater leisure to plot and scheme and grow wise in evil, the period of life in which to do so is shorter. What a mercy in disguise is present shortness of life, under present conditions! Were some of our 'shrewd business men' who accumulate millions of dollars and grasp great power in a few short years, to live 930 years, as Adam did, what might we expect but that one man, or at most a syndicate or trust, would own every foot of land, control every drop of water and every breath of air, and have the rest of the race for their dupes and slaves?

Calamities a Blessing.

"Calamities, then, are to be regarded generally as accidents, attributable to human imperfection and lack of experience, or to disturbances incidental to the preparation of the earth for its more quiet and perfect condition during the Sabbath, or seventh thousand years (the millennium), and for its state of absolute perfection forever after the millennium.

"Man is exposed to these calamities and accidents, and not defended from them by his loving Creator, because, first, man is a sinner condemned to death, and is not to be spared from it, but must be allowed to pass through it; and secondly, by the present experiences with trouble and sorrow and pain, all of which are but elements of death, mankind is learning a lesson and laying up a store of experience with sin and its awful concomitants, sorrow, pain and death, which will be valuable in that millennium age, when each shall be required to choose between good and evil. The evil they now learn first; the good, and its blessed results and rewards, but dimly seen at present, will be fully displayed then—during the millennium."

FARMERS WANT MARKETS IMPROVED

Would Have Better Accommodations at Western Selling Points.

City markets will be discussed next Monday evening at the meeting of the Farmers' and Producers' club of Hermantown. Resolutions asking for some improvements to the present markets in the West end and in West Duluth will be presented for adoption.

It is proposed to ask the city to provide a better enclosure for the markets in order that the farmers may not be exposed to the weather while engaged there. At the West end market it is proposed to ask to have some boards placed over the rear of the stalls so that in case of rain the water will not blow on those standing in the stalls, and at the West Duluth market a request will be made to have the two ends of the market enclosed.

Good roads will also be a subject taken up at this meeting. The club's road committee is preparing plans for showing to the county commissioners a number of spots in the town roads which are in most urgent need of repair.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

G. A. R. and Citizen's Staff Map Out Program for May 30.

Veterans Will Be Given Better Chance to See Parade.

Plans for the annual observance of Memorial day, May 30, were completed Saturday evening at a conference between the G. A. R. veterans and a committee representing the citizens' staff. The meeting was held at Memorial hall, court house.

It was decided that M. H. Boutelle, Minneapolis attorney, would be asked to deliver the principal address of the day. Mr. Boutelle has a reputation of being one of the best orators in the state and the veterans believe that they have made no mistake in their selection.

As in former years, representatives from the Grand Army and other patriotic organizations will attend the Memorial day exercises which will be held in the public schools on May 29. Many of the veterans will give short talks to the children.

So far as possible autos will be provided for the old soldiers on this occasion and members of the other patriotic organizations will accompany them and take part with them in the exercises of the day.

It is also planned to have the Memorial day parade countermarch before the veterans to give them a chance to see the parade themselves. This has not been done in former years. The veterans who will work with the citizens' staff in carrying out plans for the Memorial day observance are: Comrades Moody, Clark, Pressnell, Wilson and Kimball.

The citizens' staff committee which is working with the old soldiers is composed of: C. S. Prosser, president; T. F. Upham, vice president; A. T. Banning, Jr., secretary; J. E. Horak, treasurer; E. B. Dunning, Frank Crassweller, Carroll Graff, A. H. Davenport and W. S. McCormick.

The citizens' staff, the object and purpose of which is to make each succeeding year of greater moment to the fewer veterans left to enjoy it, is making an appeal to the general public for cooperation and support. A nominal fee of $1 a year enlists one as a member.

At the meeting of the G. A. R. posts Saturday evening the matter of cooperating with the Superior veterans in an effort to land the 1915 national encampment for the head of the lakes was taken up. Representatives were present from the Superior post. The proposition met with favor from all sides and it was decided that further plans would be left to a joint committee from the Duluth and Superior posts.

The meeting closed with a drum and fife exhibition given by two old comrades.

WILL LECTURE ON AMERICAN POSSESSIONS

Congressman Clarence B. Miller will deliver an address on the work of the United States troops in the Philippine and Hawaiian islands, at a meeting of John G. McEwen Camp No. 6, United Spanish War Veterans and its auxiliary, Wednesday evening at Memorial hall.

The lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon slides. In addition to telling what the soldiers have done towards civilizing the natives of these islands, Mr. Miller will also touch upon what has been done along lines of sanitation, education, agriculture and good government in the islands since American occupation.

The musical part of the program will be furnished by Miss Bernice Haverty, who will play a piano solo, "Forest Murmurings," by Liszt, and Mrs. Edgar B. Smith, who will sing a vocal number.

STEEL PLANTS RETAIN BASIS

No Let Up in Operations of United States Corporation's Capacity.

Independents Fall Off Slightly; Corporation Has Great Development.

Operations of plants of the United States Steel corporation are estimated to be still on a basis this week of 65 per cent of capacity with the independent concerns slightly below that figure. At the plants of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company the same departments are in operation to start the week, and the Youngstown Carnegie mills are running on a basis of about 80 per cent of capacity. Four of the six bessemer stacks are in commission there.

Despite the present waiting period in the steel trade, preparations are being made for improving plants in the various districts and increasing their capacities. Contracts have just been let by the Trumbull Steel company of Warren, Pa., for doubling its plant, and the Bethlehem Steel company is proceeding with plans for considerable new construction.

In the event of the interstate commerce commission rendering a decision favorable to the Eastern railroads in their petition for a five per cent increase in freight rates, a substantial quickening in steel plant activity is looked for.

The remarkable development of the United States Steel corporation since its organization is attested in the statement that it had 228,906 employes on its payrolls last year, entailing a wage disbursement of $207,206,176 as compared with 168,127 employes and an aggregate wage outlay of $120,528,343 in 1902. During that period the average annual wages per man in the corporation's employ rose from $717 in 1902 to $905 last year.

It is pointed out that it has never been the policy of the corporation to reduce wages even during periods of stress in the steel business. In 1903 the common stockholders received less in dividends than in the preceding year, but the average wage was $3 per man higher. The corporation has never been forced by strikes to raise wages, the increases having always been voluntary. There was considerable comment when an increase of 10 per cent was made to the cheaper class of employes at the beginning of last year, adding about $12,000,000 to the annual payroll.

The total amount disbursed to common Steel corporation stockholders from 1902 to 1913, inclusive, was $200,697,276 or an average of $16,724,773 per year. During the same period it paid out for wages a total of $1,782,520,894, or an average of approximately $148,568,408 annually. It has thus paid in wages an average of nearly nine times that disbursed in common dividends per year.

DEAD AFTER THREE YEARS' ILLNESS

Arnold Sandstedt, Native of Duluth, Succumbs to Long Affliction.

Arnold Sandstedt, 25 years old, died at 6 o'clock last evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sandstedt, 515 East Second street, after an illness of three years.

Besides a widow, he is survived by his parents, three brothers and a sister. The brothers and sister are Mrs. A. W. Rehbein of Minneapolis, Frank, Herbert and Robert Sandstedt, all of Duluth. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen and Modern Samaritans.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the family residence, and interment will be at Park Hill cemetery. The body has been removed to the Grady & Horgan undertaking rooms, where it is being prepared for burial.

MOTHER'S CLUB MEET.

Last Gathering of the Season Is Held at Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last meeting of the Mothers' club for this school year took place Saturday night at the Lincoln school. The club adjourned to meet again next September. It meets for nine months of the year. No meetings are held during the summer months. One of the significant things about Saturday night's meeting was that there were as many women present as the night the club was organized two years ago, about 250 women being present. The average attendance of the club is over 100 mothers at each meeting. The utmost cordiality and good fellowship prevails and much merriment takes place over the coffee cups as light lunch is served at each meeting. In addition to Saturday night's program there was a large and beautiful fancy work exhibit which was very interesting to all. The program was as follows, Swedish folk dance, children of the schools; chorus "Wake," pupils of the Jefefrson school, under direction of Miss Gilbertson; paper, "The Child's Birthright," Mrs. J. C. W. Havens; remarks, "Mothers' Clubs," Miss Nilsen, county superintendent, Carlton county; report of International Child Welfare congress held at Washington, D. C., Mrs Peter Olesen. Mrs. John Sheean is president; Mrs. C. P. Cochrane, secretary; Mrs. Peter Olesen, Mrs. R. McLean, Dr. Elizabeth Barnard, Mrs. Newman, Miss Clausen, Mrs. Oswald comprise the program committee. Mrs. Ole Bruno was chairman of the refreshment committee.

ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE WAS NOT SUCCESSFUL.

People at the rooming house where Sellers lives notified police headquarters and he was taken to St. Luke's hospital in the police ambulance. This morning an attendant at the hospital said that Sellers spent a restful night, and that he is expected to recover.

BULL MOOSE MEET.

North Dakota Aggregation to Have Confab at Minot.

Minot, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Progressive party central committee of North Dakota will meet here tomorrow to receive the resignation of State Chairman Dorr Carroll, who is a candidate for attorney general on the Bull Moose ticket, and does not desire longer to hold the state chairmanship.

Prominent members of the new party will be present at the banquet in the evening.

Mark Chatfield, former Republican member of the state legislature from this county, is chairman of the program committee; U. R. Whiting is chairman of the arrangement committee, and Frank Kaufman is chairman of the general reception committee. Plans are being laid by the third party leaders for placing complete county tickets in every county in the state.

Woman Alleged Burglar.

Minot, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ida Hackmester, charged with burglary, was bound over to the district court for trial at a hearing held Saturday. The woman is accused of breaking into the Alfred Zink home in this city, and stealing a quantity of clothing.

There are approximately 15 million telephones in the world. More than half of these—8 million in round numbers—represent the power and scope of the Bell System in the United States.

All Europe, with four times the population of America, has less than three million telephones.

America has a telephone for every ten persons—Europe has one for every 150 persons.

Consider the buying power of money here and abroad, and America has the cheapest telephone service in the world.

The wages of American telephone employees are double the lowest and average higher than the highest paid anywhere.

Every kind of telephone material except copper costs more here than in any European country.

JOIN THE CLEANUP BRIGADE!

Mayor's Proclamation

Complying with the request that a period of time be designated during which public-spirited citizens and civic organizations improve those parts of the city where rubbish has accumulated during the winter and spring months, and during which time citizens of Duluth may carry on an active campaign to brighten up, clean up and paint up the city generally, as well as to plant and care for lawns and parks, I hereby designate the ten days beginning Monday, May 11, 1914. The citizens of the City of Duluth will co-operate with the newspapers and civic organizations to make these ten days a big success from a clean-up standpoint.

The Commissioner of Public Works promises to add to the regular force of teams and men in order to assist in removing promptly the waste matter piled up in the alleys and in the vacant lots.

The Health Department welcomes the movement as one that will be highly beneficial to our city and citizens.

I would respectfully urge upon all public-spirited citizens to assist by cleaning their own yards, and other property, by assisting in the removal of rubbish from waste places near their homes, by refraining from scattering refuse of any kind and by brightening up and cleaning up their own property and urging the same upon their neighbors. Such action will give Duluth a thorough house-cleaning and will be of inestimable aid in raising the standard of health in the city.

W. I. PRINCE, Mayor.

TRIBUTE TO MOTHERS

Churches Throughout the City Hold Special Services.

Motherhood Declared to Be Women's Most Exalted Sphere.

Yesterday was Mothers' day and churches throughout the city honored the occasion with special services. Testimonials for mothers and motherhood were voiced from the pulpit and Duluthians everywhere paid silent tribute to their mothers by the wearing of carnations—pink for the living and white for the dead. Pink flowers greatly predominated.

This being a day in which women are in the front rank in the struggle for reform and equal suffrage, the pastors of the many churches found ample matter for a broad discussion of women's sphere in life. In practically all instances the sphere of motherhood was pronounced the most exalted and fraught with the most vital powers for good. The mothers of the land were pronounced the home-makers.

At the First M. E. church, Dr. John W. Hoffman chose the single word, "Mother," for his morning sermon. Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, spoke on "Church Unity," saying that "the spirit of motherhood has its perfect exemplification in the great universal mother—the church." Rev. Willard Kern, pastor of the Cumming Avenue Methodist church, Superior, spoke on "Mothers' Day," and advocated the trailing arbutus instead of the carnation as the proper flower for the occasion. The women of the church had gathered about 200 bouquet of trailing arbutus and these were distributed among the congregation. Rev. Charles N. Thorp preached yesterday morning at the Pilgrim Congregational church on "Mothers' Day," and special vesper services were held at 4:30 p. m., which were featured by special music and a sermon on "Some Bible Mothers." Dr. Robert Yost of the First Presbyterian church preached on "The Mother of Today." "The Mother's Task" was the topic Rev. W. H. Farrell of the Asbury M. E. church chose for discussion. A Mothers' day service was held at the First Baptist church in the evening and Rev. Edward Sayles preached on "Our Mothers." At the First Unitarian church Dr. George Gebauer spoke on "Kitchen, Kirk and Kinder," paying special attention to the sphere of the mother.

PREACHES ON THREE "K"S

Dr. Gebauer Discusses "Kitchen, Kinder and Kirk" of the Kaiser.

In his sermon yesterday morning Rev. Dr. George R. Gebauer, pastor of the First Unitarian church, preached on "Kitchen, Kinder and Kirk," expanding upon these and showing how they best fitted the greatest activities of woman. Dr. Gebauer spoke in part as follows:

"These three words are said by some to comprehend the complete sphere of woman's activities and ideals and are attributed to the kaiser. I do not know how far he is responsible for this 'winged' epigram, and while I should not for a moment indorse it in the sense in which it is understood by some very estimable feminists and held up to ridicule by them, I am frank to admit that there is a larger interpretation of it, which has considerable truth.

"These three 'Ks' represent to me life in its most vital aspects, physical, moral and spiritual, and no civilization has ever endured in which these fundamental things were neglected. In this every student of history and sociology will concur. I well know that I touch here upon something not very popular in certain circles, where the words awaken thoughts of woman's bondage and distasteful drudgery. There are not a few who will see the kingdom come in a communal dining room furnished with automatic waiters and a brass band, and in the municipal nursery with its staff of baby experts, and in the old church converted into a beautiful theater and ethical lecture room. They will look upon any man who will dare speak of a woman's special sphere in life, as hopelessly old-fashioned and sociologically obsolete. They think such a man a natural enemy, who looks with disfavor upon equal rights for women.

Human Toys.

"Doubtless there are enough men who see in women merely human tools and toys and would keep them at home for six days in the week and send them on the seventh to church, where she might be told that man is her rightful lord and master. But no right thinking man will take such an attitude, even if he believe that his own mother in her limited sphere, was the greatest of women. Such a man will not think less of woman in her various spheres of endeavor, but he simply will still consider her supreme in those spheres to which she is best adapted by her sex character. Indeed the special view we may have of woman's place in society, has nothing whatever to do with her natural rights as a human being, a political individual, a member of the community. The free man indeed will ever stand up for the freedom of women, but this will not blind him to the fact that woman will find her highest freedom and opportunity in those spheres of endeavor, which are best suited to her as a woman, and where her natural duty and and inclination leads her. And we shall find that her duties and privileges lie largely in those spheres which we have indicated.

"The great trouble in the past has been, that man has over-estimated his own position in life, and that woman has been foolish enough to believe him. It is a mis-statement to say, that woman is the helpmeet of man; it is much nearer the truth to say, that man is the helpmeet of woman. She is the maker of the home; he is merely the provider. And now a most essential feature of the home is the kitchen. Where the culinary department is neglected the home is most apt to become the vestibule to the hospital. It is from such homes that the unfit issue into the arena of life. It is underfed childhood which fails in its work at school. It is the underfed husband who stays away at meal time and looks for consolation elsewhere. It may be sad that this is so, but we have to face facts. If husband and children would thrive by having read to them at dinner time a beautiful poem by Browning or a drama by Brieux, I certainly should advocate such dinner literature. But the average man and boy at least is still built on the old-fashioned materialistic lines, and he demands the things of the body. Thus the kitchen is important and it is a worthy sphere for any woman's effort. But the home is not necessarily circumscribed by four narrow walls, and to say, that every girl ought to merely be a housekeeper is foolish. Even if we desired it, conditions make it impossible. Yes, I can even see how a woman may fit herself better in some other pursuit for what is her special sphere. The main thing is, that she remains ever true to her home instincts and that her work represent as much as possible her innate sex talent. No greater mistake to put a woman, where a man should be and in filling positions to forget the weighty matter of sex.

The "Kinder."

"The second 'K' stands for 'Kinder,' children. It is hardly necessary to say, that here is the grandest and greatest and most natural field for woman's ambitions. We begin to see today, that all this talk, that woman in the first place must consider her own personal pleasure and well being and freedom is a selfish and cowardly philosophy. There is no way in which woman may find her highest and best so well as in what is her natural womanly duty.

Of course there are exceptions, and some of the finest women I have known were not mothers, but you will all agree with me, that generally speaking, a woman will attain fullest womanhood through motherhood. And of course it must be so, if we consider what sacrifice and love and care motherhood calls for. Motherhood is a holy thing and makes holy her who gives herself to it. In every mother is a possible madonna. But here again we have to give the word mother a wider interpretation. If on this day we wear a white carnation in honor of our mothers, let us not forget that this honor belongs to many a woman, who never bore a child, that is belongs to many a sister and aunt who became more than mother to some child.

The "Kirk."

"The third 'K' stand for kirk, church. Superficial thinkers laugh when it is said there here is eminently the woman's sphere. Is the woman really belittled through her fealty to the church? Certainly she is, if the church be something trifling and small, for the thing we love judges us. Now the church at all times, in spite of many failings has stood for what is highest and best in life. If then the church is woman's sphere, it is only to her credit, and to the discredit of him who smiles at it. I personally do not believe that the church is more the sphere of woman than of man, but I know that for good reasons the women have been the true pillars of the holy cause of religion. And so, too, the men, who most earnestly stand by the church and her work have in them a large share of the 'eternal womanly' which, as Goethe tells us, lifts man onward and upward. There is no greater sphere of ambition than the church of God, whose doors open wide into the life of thought and noble deed. The highly spiritual woman is the doing woman, and is the thinking woman, who has found that with wider knowledge comes higher reverence and love. Now if by force of conditions the church has become woman's sphere in a special sense, is it not something woman should be proud of?

"See then how these three little 'Ks;' kitchen, kirk and kinder, cover the whole gamut of life. Indeed the woman who is a good homemaker, a good mother, a true member of the church of God is the greatest among her sex."

MOTHER IS HOMEMAKER

More Potent in Shaping Society Than the State, Declares Dr. Hoffman.

The mother is the real homemaker, and in this capacity is more potential in shaping the ends of society than the state or any other individual said Dr. John W. Hoffman in his sermon on "Mother" at the First M. E. church yesterday morning. While the state safeguards and supports the marriage vow and the house in which one lives, it is only the mother who can create a home.

"Children may come and fill rooms and halls with laughter and song," said the speaker, "but unless the woman is a genuine homemaker, we shall have a collection of bric-a-brac with a group of living beings with a roof above them and four walls about them, but not a home.

"Wealth and culture cannot give the mysterious touch which converts our color scheme and placement of carved oak into a home. Only woman has this genius.

"The atmosphere of the hearthstone, the sentiments and ideals of the family circle are chiefly the product of mother.

Her Chief Mission.

"Whatever necessity summons her to the platform, whatever responsibility she may accept in the administration of public life, whatever leadership in movements of reform she may assume, must always be secondary to her divine function as homemaker. Her chief mission to the race must ever be in shaping the habits of her child which are fundamental to his life.

"Mother is the first educator of the race, not by virtue of the information she imparts, so much as because of the training of the affections of her child.

"Technical training for one's life work there must always be, but habits of honesty, chivalry, courtesy, truthfulness, these are primary. Skill without honor, knowledge without generosity may make a valuable mechanic but not a wholesome citizen. Mother must inculcate the virtues of the heart which make a man good as well as great.

"It is rare that good men come from bad mothers. It is, alas, too evident that devout mothers cannot guarantee noble sons. Too many boys forget the devotion, heroism and self-sacrifice of mother. Baseness usurps the place of prayer our mother taught us. Profanity soils the lips mother kissed with all the sanctity of her soul. Impurity stains the body formed by her whose life is as spotless as an angel. The Bible our mother taught us lies unopened. The God our mother loved is forgotten."

CHURCH IS REAL MOTHER

Is Perfect Exemplification of Motherhood, Says Dr. Ryan.

Motherhood is a priceless blessing and its spirit is perfectly exemplified in the great universal mother—the church, said Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, yesterday morning in his sermon on "Church Unity." In his discusston Dr. Ryan carried out the analogy of the mother and the church, showing how the sphere of the latter should be similar to the former. Dr. Ryan's sermon in part follows:

"The most gracious and lovely memories of life cluster about the word 'mother.' To have a mother and to be a mother are among the most priceless blessings. Just as the mother stands in her relations to the family life, so the fhurch stands in its relations to the life of the world.

"At this time one of the important questions presenting itself to churchmen is the great world conference on faith and order, planned to bring together in closer relationship the followers of all creeds and forms of faith.

"The Master's prayer was that His people might be one. In the days of the primitive church this condition prevailed, and lasted until the tenth century, when schism rent the church and divisions of belief lead to the Reformation and to spiritual and political upheaval.

Defects of Church.

"The Teutonic race has always laid great stress on liberty, and this found voice in the spirit of reformation and the appearance of innumerable sects. The spiritual life must always return to the two great influences—liberty and love, just as in the physical realm we recognize the great forces of nature; but the liberty of the church as a centrifugal force has been carried too far and must be overcome by the magnetic force of the center of the Christian religion—which is Christ.

"The defects of the church today are perfectly plain. We do not take care of the country districts, nor do we properly care for the poorer sections of our cities. We are not influential as a concentrated body would be and, as a consequence of this and of the limitations of the ministry, we are driving unselfish people into philanthropic and charitable service who, otherwise, would not seek a place of labor outside the church.

"The church of today is too cheap an institution; it carries too little weight with its people to have the effect it should on business, society and political life. This is an age of unity, and the business life of the times teaches the value of organization and concentration.

An Age of Truth.

"Most of all, we need the scientific spirit which will enable us to reach unerringly, the facts in the case. This is an age of truth. People are looking for the truth and will be satisfied with nothing short of it. We can not have a uniform church, for there will be always the divergent opinions and temperaments, but we can have a uplified church.

"The new church which will arise from this struggle toward unity will be broad enough to welcome within its borders every honest seeker after truth, and it will at the same time shake off the limitations which are preventing the church of today from coming into its own place and the fulness of its power."

STRAW HATS VS. EAR MUFFS; LATTER WIN.

On the crowded streets of Duluth Saturday evening two brightly cleaned straw hats made their appearance. The owners seemed utterly oblivious of the fact that the first of June is the dead line in the straw hat habit, and also seemed unaware of the fact that the people were curiously gazing at the hats and their owners. Saturday evening was balmy. Today on the streets of this fair city a man was observed walking down Superior street wearing a fur overcoat and ear muffs.

BODY OF WEALTHY AMERICAN FOUND

Papers Showing Citizenship Pinned on Breast of Corpse.

El Paso, Tex., May 11.—Word has filtered through to the border of the finding of the body of James S. Beard, a wealthy American, near Parras, Coahuila. Beard was owner of a process for separating the fibers of the cactus, used in the manufacture of ropes. He is said to have been the victim of Gen. Benjamin Argumedo, once a follower of Pasquale Orozco, Jr., and later a member of the garrison of Torreon.

Beard is said to have been killed at the time of the retreat of the Federals from Torreon. When Argumedo reached Parras, according to the story told here, Beard was seized. He produced papers to prove himself a citizen of the United States. Argumedo is said to have thrown the papers in his face and ordered him shot. It is said that the papers were found pinned on the breast of Beard's body.

Gen. Francisco Villa, it is said, has ordered that Argumedo, who now is said to be in Mexico City, be executed if captured.

MEXICO COMPLAINS AGAIN OF ARMISTICE

Protests Seizure of Lighthouse By American Forces.

Mexico City, May 11.—Foreign Minister Ruiz has telegraphed the South American mediators in Washington that several United States torpedo boats, with a transport and tender, have appeared off the Island of Lobos, on the east coast of Mexico between Vera Cruz and Tampico, landed a party on the island and arrested the lighthouse tenders, who were released after they had turned over the instruments and apparatus for operating the lighthouse. The mediators were asked to make representations to the United States government in connection with the armistice.

To Keep Lights Burning.

Washington, May 11.—The navy department has not made public anything concerning the operation of vessels about Lobos island. Admiral Howard cabled Saturday to the navy department that Huerta had ordered the lighthouses on the Pacific coast extinguished, so as to impede navigation by American ships. The same order by Huerta is reported to have been made as to lighthouses on the Atlantic side, so that the reported seizure of the lighthouse on Lobos island might be held to be a precaution to keep the lights burning to protect all shipping.

As such a precautionary measure, the taking of the lighthouse, it is contended, would be without significance as an occupation or territorial acquisition of the island, and therefore would not justify any charge of violation of armistice.

FUNSTON DENIES ARMISTICE BREACH.

Vera Cruz, May 11.—The publication in Mexico City papers of a statement by Gen. Blanquet, minister of war, that the Americans had already broken the armistice by extending their lines and scouting, has caused Brig.-Gen. Funston to notify Washington that there is no truth in this report.

Recently it has been somewhat easier for farmers to bring their produce into the city, as the close watch that was originally kept on them by the Federal soldiers has been relaxed. But bands of irregulars have been seriously interfering with them in certain districts.

Francisco Vargas, leader of one of these bands, entered the city Sunday and was promptly arrested, being held for the disposition of military headquarters.

STORY OF KILLING OF AMERICANS FALSE.

Douglas, Ariz., May 11.—The report that two Americans had been killed at El Tigre, May 6, has proved untrue. A Mexican named Daniel Rascon escaped from jail, wrested a rifle from a guard and shot and killed a Japanese mason, who was standing near. Rascon was shot and killed by soldiers called to the scene by the shooting. The Japanese is said to have acted as consular representative for his people at El Tigre.

IF SKIN ITCHES AND BREAKS OUT APPLY SULPHUR

Get Ounce of Bold-Sulphur Cream and Heal Eczema Eruptions Right Up.

For years, common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections, by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin.

The moment you apply it to an itching or broken out skin the itching stops and the healing begins, says a noted dermatologist. Just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream effects such prompt and remarkable results, even in aggravated Eczema that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which should be applied to the irritated or inflamed parts, like the ordinary cold creams. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the eruption is accompanied with itching.

PRIMARY BATTLE IS ON IN DEAD EARNEST

All Lines Clearly Marked and Candidates Know Who Opponents Are; Governor Begins His Campaign at St. Cloud Next Saturday; Capitol Janitors Are Raising Funds for His Campaign; Hammond Strength and Prospects Growing.

Now that the last day on which candidates for state, congressional and legislative offices could file has passed, the lines are drawn for the primaries of June 16, and the public can be expected to be belabored with reasons why they should support this, that and the other candidate for such and such an office. The last day on which candidates for county offices can file will be on May 27, after which the battle will be even thicker than it is now, but that is a non-partisan matter.

* * *

With the real campaign for the governorship on, it is generally believed that the ultimate result in November is likely to be the election of Congressman Hammond. The fight in the Republican ranks is becoming more bitter as it progresses. William E. Lee is pouring some hot shot into the Eberhart-Smith combination in his speeches and the papers that are supporting him are following suit, while the Eberhart press is spending most of its ink in sneers.

Governor Eberhart has not yet started on his platform campaign, but it is announced that he will begin it next Saturday night at St. Cloud. After that other dates will be announced. There has been considerable dread about sending the governor out to talk to the voters because of the dangerous questions regarding his stand on certain public matters and about the extravagance of his administration that are likely to be hurled at him; and because of doubt of his ability to meet them successfully. The governor is a fluent talker of the after-dinner order, and makes a good showing until somebody begins to question him. His faculties are not of the campaign fighter kind and questions disconcert him. Public Examiner Andrew Fritz, a resident of St. Cloud, is said to be responsible for the governor having selected that city for his opening talk.

Mr. Fritz is the man who received the first installment of the campaign assessment for the governor's campaign, put up by the state capitol janitors. The janitors have paid 10 per cent of one month's wages into the fund. Mr. Fritz is collecting the contributions from the various state offices and departments. He says that the janitors' contributions were entirely voluntary. He probably tried hard to fight them off, too.

* * *

It would be interesting to hear the governor trying to talk back to Senator Ole Sageng, who made a speech some days ago in which he gave the governor some awful blows. Here are a few of the Ottertail senator's pungent phrases:

"I know Adolph O. Eberhart pretty well. When he presided over the senate he packed every important committee.

The governor vetoed the Minette bill because the Bell telephone system was against the measure. The veto of the Nolan bill was a crime.

Adolph O. Eberhart is the absentee governor.

No man is big enough to run the state of Minnesota and neglect things the way Mr. Eberhart does. No wonder taxes are mounting up.

After five years as governor, I would never have called a commission of thirty men to tell me what was the trouble with the government.

He now asks one more chance to remedy matters. It looks to me like a confidence game.

When we put Lee's record up against Eberhart's record, there is no question whatever as to where those who stand for good government ought to be.

The governor wants to make the primary law an issue in this campaign. That law has been violated more by the men who meet secretly than by those who meet publicly, and the governor knows it.

* * *

Louis M. Osborn, who is a candidate for state representative in the Sixty-first district, is a young lawyer with a good record. He has been a resident of Virginia since July, 1907, and for three and a half years prior to that he was in the attorney general's office at St. Paul as an assistant. He has taken an active part in measures for the furtherance of this county, and of his district in particular, and has never before been a candidate for office.

* * *

Edward Hatch, postmaster of Eveleth, is thinking some of filing against County Auditor Halden. Mr. Hatch will not be through with the postoffice for about a year and a half yet, unless he resigns to run for the county office mentioned, and those who are friendly to him are hardly likely to advise such a move with so little chance of satisfactory results.

In view of the possibility of Mr. Hatch going after the most important office in the county, men from other towns on the range are expressing themselves as believing that Eveleth is a trifle more ambitious than conditions would seem to warrant. It is pointed out that, not content with having a leading candidate for congress, a state treasurer, a formidable candidate for representative, and one for county commissioner, her ambition may lead her to seek the chief county office.

* * *

Edward N. Westerlund of Mound, who surprised everybody but himself by filing for the governorship nomination against Hugh T. Halbert on the Bull Moose ticket, is out with a statement in which he says that he has filed because Mr. Halbert is about to betray the party by urging affiliation with the Lee forces. Mr. Westerlund seems real mad about it, too.

* * *

The upholding by the supreme court of the reapportionment law calls to mind the fact that Senator Victor L. Johnson of Center City was chairman of the senate committee on reapportionment and that he put up a vigorous, valiant and effective fight for the bill. To his battle for justice in the matter of state apportionment was largely due the victory. His policy on this measure, despite the fact that his own district was not concerned, endeared him to Northern Minnesota and filled it with well-wishers in his present campaign for congress.

* * *

Progressive party men generally express approval of the statement by Hugh T. Halbert, their candidate for governor, to the notification committee that he would make no primary campaign because of W. E. Lee's candidacy it was said today.

"There is no difference except in name between Progressives and progressive Republicans," Mr. Halbert said. "Our plan is to put no obstacle in the way of the progressive Republicans in their fight on Governor Eberhart and, if they should be defeated, we would expect their good will in the fall campaign."

Mr. Halbert denies having said that he expected Eberhart to be nominated. "That is not my affair," he said. "I am not mixing in the Republican fight, but some well-posted men tell me that Lee is sure to win at the primary."

* * *

Elwood L. Raab of Duluth, who has filed for the Republican nomination for governor, has just issued his platform, and is pursuing his campaign. The platform favors economy, the statewide primary law and corrupt practices act, law enforcement, effective regulation of public service corporations, state development, and home rule in the handling of local public utilities.

Sandstone Courier: Victor L. Johnson is now making an active campaign for congress from the Tenth district, and is meeting with hearty support from all parts of the district. Mr. Johnson has made an exceedingly fine record as state senator for two terms and it would be hard to find a man in the district who is better qualified. Besides, he is a man of right principles and judgment, and his honesty cannot be questioned. Minneapolis people dislike to see any office get away from them and have picked a candidate.

When the baby can't sleep

When you have undressed the baby, sponged his body, and put fresh things on him, he should sleep long and quietly. If he keeps waking up, there is something wrong and that something is just about always his food.

Your baby can't sleep when his little stomach is struggling under the weight of cow's milk that he can't digest. Your baby can't sleep when summer complaint and even consumption gets into his blood from the milk of such cows.

Your baby will have the sleep he needs, when he has the food his stomach can digest easily. Such a food is

Nestlé's Food

Mothers of three generations have found that their babies grow as healthy on NESTLÉ'S as they do on mother's breast milk, because NESTLÉ'S gives the babies the same body-building qualities as mother's milk. We could tell it to you in scientific terms—but it really is just this:

One cow in three has consumption, even in such a state as New York, and babies get consumption and summer complaint from the milk of such cows. But NESTLÉ'S is made from the clear, pure milk of healthy cows. And then to be absolutely safe and sanitary is sent to you in air-tight cans—free from germs and sickness.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Women's Home Missionary Society Elects Officers.

The annual district meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church was held at Endion church Friday, Mrs. J. C. Swan presided.

The morning session opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. N. P. Burns. Reports were heard from the auxiliaries at Aitkin, Lester Park, Brainerd, Grace, Endion, Two Harbors M. E., and Cornell. Short sketches of the institutions to which money is pledged were given as follows: McCrum Slavonic Training school, Mrs. Hoffman; Indians, Mrs. McKee of Two Harbors; Nome, Mrs. J. A. Stevenson; Rapid City hospital, Mrs. W. C. Ives; Conference fund, Mrs Cherey, Aitkin; Haven home, Mrs. H. T. Hare; and Deaconess home, Misses Morgan, Hall and Thompson.

The quiet hour that opened the afternoon session was in charge of Mrs. Jacob Dyson of Henriette. An address on "The Duluth District, a Missionary Field," was given by Dr. Burns. He spoke of the impossibility of a true Christian's not having a missionary spirit. He also spoke of the cosmopolitan crowd embraced in the population of Duluth and the vicinity and added it was almost impossible to speak of it without drifting into a foreign missionary speech. Although believing in both home and foreign missions, Dr. Burns asked what could be the use of sending missionaries across the seas if persons right at home were not thought worth saving.

Mrs. J. A. Johnson of Minneapolis told of the work the Women's Home Missionary society is doing for women's suffrage, nation-wide prohibition and the abolition of polygamy.

Solos were given by Mrs. Walsh and Miss Winnifred Downing of Fergus Falls.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. A .C. Taylor, First church; vice president, Mrs. A. L. Richardson, Aitkin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. E. Goodman, First church; recording secretary, Mrs. H. T. W. Smith, Brainerd; secretary children's work, Mrs. E. E. Satterlee, Brainerd, and secretary literature, Mrs. L. A. Larsen, First church.

PENSIONS FOR EMPLOYES

Water and Light Department Workers Present Request to Council.

Characterizing old and superannuated employes as obligations to be met as they mature from year to year, the employes of the water and light department have submitted a communication to Commissioner Leonidas Merritt, head of the division of the public utilities, asking him to lay before the council the matter of establishing old age pensions for that department.

They contend that they have materially assisted in promoting the department's prosperity; that the system would increase efficiency, aid that it is in keeping with modern industrial and civic development. They do not ask that the pensions be provided by taxation, but by the earnings of the department.

Commissioner Merritt will submit the communication to the council this afternoon, and it will probably be referred to the legal department for an opinion. The employes' statement is as follows:

"We, the employes of the water and light department here assembled, respectfully petition you to place before your colleagues, the commissioners of the city of Duluth, the matter of establishing old-age pensions for its employes for good and sufficient reasons, some of which are herein set forth:

"First—Inasmuch as the past prosperity and success, financially and otherwise, of this public utility has been accomplished by its management through the co-operation of its employes, and since 'the laborer is worthy of his hire,' it seems to us proper and just that provision be made by the utility for the declining years of those who have given faithful service through their prime.

"Second—In support of the justice of such provision we would call to your attention the fact that the operation of this utility has provided a vastly improved service, has effected enormous savings to its patrons through reduced rates and, in addition, has accumulated a substantial surplus, and this without the investment of a dollar by the city of Duluth. To us this seems strong evidence that the employes of this department have given of their best in intelligent and efficient service in promoting the general public good over and above what was necessary to insure the receipt of their monthly pay check.

"Third—It is not our wish that the people of Duluth be taxed to provide pensions, but we desire that the commissioner of public utilities be given authority, if he already has not such authority under chaper 4, section 19, of the city charter, to establish a pension roll to be met from the earnings of his department as the obligations, in the form of superannuated employes, mature from year to year.

"Fourth—Compliance with this request would not be creating a precedent. It would be merely a step toward bringing our practice abreast with modern thought and tendencies in industry; for this plan of providing for their employes, as an acknowledgement of services rendered, has beeen widely adopted by private and municipal corporations and by national governments.

"Fifth—We believe that the establishment of such a system will tend to increase efficiency among the employes of the department, by increasing contentment with conditions of employment and by giving each employe a financial interest in the department.

"In conclusion, we submit this matter to your judgment and consideration, trusting that it will appear meritorious to yourself and your colleagues and that it will be found feasible, under our 'home rule' charter, to put some such system into effect."

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

Pineapples from some tropical section may be had at almost all times of the year, but May is the month when pineapples of Florida and Cuba are at their best, that is the month when we may buy good ones at the lowest prices.

The fruit is said by dietitians to be unsurpassed as a tonic and in its large per cent of healthful fruit salts. It is good to eat pineapples for the sake of health now when the fresh ones are in market and to can and preserve them for the winter when their health giving qualities will be of even greater value, owing to the comparative scarcity of fresh fruits and vegetables. Pineapple juice is considered a good remedy for sore throat. Aside from its medicinal qualities the fruit is invaluable for desserts and salads.

Pineapple souffle is a delicate dessert and not difficult to make:

Beat the yolks of three eggs and add the grated rind and juice of one lemon, one-half cup sugar and a little salt. Cook over hot water, stirring until mixture thickens. Remove from the fire and add two-thirds of a cup of grated pineapple and two tablespoons granulated gelatine soaked in two and one-half tablespoons of water. When mi one-half tablespoons of water. When mixture begins to thicken beat in one-half cup rich cream and the whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Turn into a mold and chill thoroughly.

A dainty salad may be made of one pint of pineapple, one pound white grapes, one pound nut meats, two oranges and three apples. Halve and seed the grapes and cut the fruit in small pieces. Toss together with whipped cream just before serving.

College Women Should Make Good Mothers—Lot to Learn.

The president of one of the leading women's colleges in this country, in enthusiastic praise of the college-bred woman, declares she makes the better wife and mother. This is in comparison with the woman who has not had her educational advantages. I think it might better be said that the college woman should make the better wife and mother in view of what education and association do, or should do, in broadening one.

There are thousands of good mothers who have never entered the portals of a high school. They have the same love for their children that the university graduate has. They have to learn the child's needs and the methods of discipline gradually, and this, college women have to get first hand. No college sends them forth prepared to bring up a child in the way he should go with a set of rules warranted to give satisfaction.

Undoubtedly a college prepares a woman to be a better mother if she has the disposition for motherhood, by opening up various avenues of information and training. But four years at college is not a passport to ideal motherhood or anything like it. Being a good mother is more a function of the heart than of the head, though a proportionate combination of the two is more satisfactory than all heart and no head or all head and no heart—that is, no heart that comes to the surface.

There are certain basic principles of child-rearing. Every mother wants her children to be healthy, honest, obedient, loving and possessed of ability in some recognized direction—but here arises the difficulty. You cannot make children any or all of these things by the same methods. It's a matter of study and experience with every single child born into a family.

You may exact obedience, honesty, confidence, love and other desirable human qualities from them, but you cannot bring them out by the same methods. And you cannot become enthused with a lot of theories as to the proper up-bringing of children while in college and apply them willy nilly with success afterward.

The young mother not many years removed from her college days is much disposed toward her theories and her hard and fast rules. She often speaks with a decisiveness concerning her young children that makes older women smile. She finally gets down to a very few ideas regarding them that have carried over from one child to another and with these she mixes a deal of latitude. This the woman trying to be a mother does, whether she is an A. B. or just a plain little woman.

WHY NOT DULUTH?

The city of Waseca is a tidy little community with a little more than three thousand people.

Its humane and public-spirited citizens are working to get together fifty thousand dollars for a county hospital, and so much of this sum is now in hand that there is no longer doubt about the success of the project.

If Waseca, with three thousand people, can have a county hospital costing fifty thousand dollars, at the same rate Duluth, not figuring at all its greater relative need, should for its ninety thousand people have a hospital costing a million and a half.

Though it will not need one so elaborate, Duluth should have a county hospital. It needs one right now. It will take many months to arrange for it and build it—legislation may be necessary, and that can't be had until the legislature meets next January—and therefore the quicker the decision to have one is made the better.

The first idea was a county and city hospital, to be built by the city and county on shares and managed jointly.

Lately, because this plan has not worked out so smoothly as it might in the management of the city and county work farm, the suggestion has been made that a better way would be for the county to build a county hospital, and require the city to pay the cost of caring for the patients it sends to it.

The iron ranges, too, need such an institution, and in more or less chaotic form there is strong sentiment for the building of two county hospitals, one at Duluth and the other at some central point in the range country.

This new plan is worth considering, and those who are interested in supplying the need of ample hospital facilities in this county should get together and talk it over.

What particular plan is adopted is far less important than that the county's hospital needs be fully met, and that this great and rich county be freed of the stigma of permitting its unfortunates to suffer from neglect.

To the man at home, it seems a little hard to understand the mental processes of those Americans in Mexico who positively refuse to get out.

DIRECT LEGISLATION IN OREGON.

Minnesota is about to vote on an amendment to her Constitution provided for the initiative and the referendum. It should be interesting, therefore, to know how the system of direct legislation has worked in Oregon, which has had it in operation for a number of years, and which has gone all the way with its experiment.

Richard W. Montague, a Portland lawyer who is frankly an advocate of the system, makes some interesting and important comments on the history of direct legislation in Oregon in the National Municipal Review.

The public already is familiar with the fact that sometimes the scheme has been overworked in Oregon, and that the ballot has been loaded up with a ridiculous number of propositions calling for public judgment. It is familiar, too, with the famous incident of 1908, when rivalry between fishing interests on the upper and lower Columbia brought about by the initiative the submission of two opposing measures. Instead of choosing one of the two, the public adopted both; and thus put a stop to all fishing until the laws could be repealed. This has been made the basis of much criticism; but the public did precisely the right thing when it rebuked these warring interests by temporarily putting both of them out of business. This whether it was by intention or inadvertence.

Much more interesting than such factors as these is the question whether the people take an interest in these many legislative proposals. Mr. Montague's statistics leave little doubt about that.

Since 1902 the people of Oregon have voted upon 108 propositions under the initiative and referendum. Figures showing the relation between the total vote on each of these propositions and the total vote cast for candidates make a splendid showing for the principle of direct legislation and for public intelligence in Oregon.

The vote on these propositions is generally more than eighty per cent of the total vote cast, rises above ninety per cent in a number of cases, and in issues involving the liquor traffic were more than a hundred per cent.

This leaves little doubt on the question whether or not the people will vote on legislative matters. Of course the wisdom of their votes is another matter. On this point Mr. Montague says:

> The composite voter whose mind and purpose are portrayed by these votes appears to be one jealous of his own right and privileges, as most men are; resolute to see his government actually, as well as theoretically, deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed and to see politics clean and fair; desirous of improvement of his institutions; open to thoughtful advice, and mindful of well reasoned opinion as to the means of betterment, but averse to visionary innovations; reluctant to create new offices, and stingy with salaries to public officers, but yielding on that point occasionally when involved with some higher good; nearly abreast of the best thought of the time in matters of social and industrial regulation, but lagging behind, and a bit muddled, in economics; and, until he reads the title clear of would-be spenders of the public money, saving with it to a fault.

Those most familiar with the capacity and psychology of the average state legislature are likely to be least fearful of the experiment of popular legislation.

It is not too much to say that the chances of well deliberated and deeply considered legislative results are at least as good from the people at the polls as from a state legislature in its petty turmoil.

Now it appears that Col. Roosevelt lost fifty-five pounds during his trip in South America. Will Yale be able to keep Prof. Taft at home after that?

GOOD WORK.

The West Duluth Commercial club, to stimulate interest in home gardening, has offered a series of prizes to the boys and girls of that end of the city for accomplishments in flower and vegetable gardening.

This is along the line of the work which has been carried on successfully for several years by the West End Commercial club, and it is good work—good for the boys and girls, good for the generation to come, good for the community.

Not to speak of the fact that boys and girls engaged in gardening are safe from the mischief which Satan finds for idle hands to do, this plan works for the community welfare by teaching the young people the pleasure and profit in gardening, thus insuring that when they have homes of their own there will be back yards which will be put to fruitful uses. Back yard farming, like the early rising that goes with it, helps to make folks "healthy, wealthy and wise."

The West Duluth Commercial club is to be congratulated on its enterprise.

What have the critics of the army's size to say about this ability to take care of Mexico and Colorado at the same time?

COULD IT WELL BE WORSE?

For pity's sake, tell how it could be worse!

The Republican party in Minnesota has been guilty of sins enough without deliberately committing the sin of turning out Lyndon A. Smith to provide a new job for James A. Manahan.

Down in Pennsylvania they are going to put the college students to work on the roads. Seems rather careless, for most of the dirt is likely to find its way back to the students' rooms as souvenirs.

ROCKEFELLER AND COLORADO.

Labor conditions in Colorado—a national shame and disgrace—are due in a large measure to a point of view: the absentee employer's point of view toward industry.

From this point of view, industry is a source of profit only, not at all a service to society, not at all a human responsibility, not at all with any regard to the human rights of the workers dependent upon it.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" asks the absentee stockholder.

The answer is, "you are, sir!"

Some employers, large and small, have learned to think of their employes as human beings, and of their own function of ownership as involving human responsibilities—responsibilities of human brotherhood. Such employers have profited in many ways, and have benefited society in many ways, by treating their workers as human beings.

The Rockefeller interests, judging by Colorado, have not yet learned to see it that way.

Hence—anarchy and civil war.

No, Jerome, the fact that bats eat mosquitoes is no excuse for getting on a bat in the mosquito season.

Yale beat Princeton in the track meet the other day. No doubt Prof. Taft will see in this a complete and ample vindication.

Norwegian Homecoming

Editorial in the Springfield Republican.

Thousands of American visitors are expected in Christiania during the summer to witness the celebration of the centennial of the independence of Norway from Denmark. The celebration will also commemorate 100 years of peace on the Scandinavian peninsula. An exhibition which will seek to show the progress made in Norway during the last century will be opened by King Haakon in Christiania on May 15. Norse-Americans have been invited to participate in the exhibition and in the celebration generally. In a special pavilion called "Norway Abroad," the Norwegians who have sought a home in America will show their home-staying countrymen the life they lead in their adopted home.

The plans for the exhibition and festivities have met with great interest and enthusiasm in the United States, a substantial indication of which is the appropriation by North Dakota of $10,000 for the expenses of the official participation of that state. Alfred Gabrielsen has arrived to take charge of North Dakota's exhibit. Minnesota and Wisconsin will also be adequately represented, but in a less official way. An interesting feature of the exhibit of these states will be the publication of special histories of the states, showing the strenuous work of Norwegian pioneers who helped to build them up, and the prosperous conditions under which they now live.

One of the most interesting festivities of the program will be a great home-coming gathering of Norwegian-Americans, and preparations are being made to entertain at least 50,000 people. Some societies from the Norwegian states have chartered their own steamships and will sail direct from New York to Christiania. These parties will be accompanied by their own bands. Americans are expected to take a very conspicuous part in the celebration, not only because of the large number of Norwegians settled in America, but because of the good feeling prevailing between the two countries. The Stars and Stripes will be seen everywhere displayed beside the red, white and blue of Norway.

In the parade of May 17 the Decorah college band from Decorah, Iowa, will march in the place of honor. Under the leadership of Prof. Sperati this band will tour Norway during the summer. The Fourth of July will be celebrated with all of its latest safe and sane attachments. The celebration of America's natal day will center about the presentation of a statue of Lincoln to Christiania by Governor Hanna of North Dakota. The governor will attend in person and deliver the unveiling speech, which will be followed by a reception given by the American minister, Albert G. Schmedman, at the American club headed by F. Herman Gade. A banquet, attended by King Haakon and the diplomatic corps of the capital, will be held in the auditorium of the exhibition. It is expected that besides the 400 American singers, who will go to participate in the singing festivals, the thousands of unofficial Norse-American visitors and a host of their Norwegian relatives will unite in a demonstration to show honor to a country, which by Norwegians is held second in affection only to their country.

The centennial will celebrate the dramatic event which marked the beginning of Norway's history as a nation. In 1814 as the result of the close of the Napoleonic wars the great powers of Europe forced Frederick VI of Denmark to give up Norway, which had been attached to Denmark for 434 years, to Sweden, and provided a ruler for the acquisition in the person of the Swedish Crown Prince Charles Jean Bernadotte. Sweden had in 1808 lost Finland to Russia after a war, and was now given Norway in compensation.

The Norwegians rebelled against this disposition of their country, and under the leadership of Prince Christian Frederick refused to submit to Sweden. In the face of all Europe, Norway declared its independence and proceeded on May 17, 1814, to adopt a constitution. The prince was elected king and since that day May 17 has been to the people of Norway what the Fourth of July is to the United States. Sweden went to war against the new country and the struggle continued until November, 1814, when peace was made which led to a union on an equal basis. The union lasted until 1905, when it was peacefully dissolved on account of the dissatisfaction with the arrangement.

Good Business.

Waco News: A Florida cynic having in mind that there are sixty-two drinks to a gallon, and the profit that is made by the seller, says, "Start a saloon in your own house. Buy your drinks from no one but your wife, and by the time the first gallon is gone she will have $8 to put in the bank and $2 to start business on again. Should you live ten years and continue to buy booze from her, and then die with snakes in your boots, she will have money enough to bury you, educate the children, buy a house and marry some decent man."

State Press in Galveston News: It is a good idea. It is logical from an economic standpoint and praiseworthy from a patriotic standpoint, because the husband who patronizes his wife's saloon helps her to earn money and at the same time he supports home enterprise. If, in addition to the liquor itself, the husband should demand the concomitant joys of the down town saloon, the wife can easily equip her front room with swinging doors, rig up a bar with a footrail, carpet the floor with sawdust and cigar stubs, malodorize the premises with the scent of stale beer, place repulsive cuspidors in easy reach in all directions, set up a waxy mirror with soaped lettering on it, hang the walls with brewery pictures showing nymphs au naturel disporting in seas of foam, invite a congenial company of pimply soaks known to the trade as good fellows, and constantly mop the top of the counter with a dirty rag while the crowd leans around and laughs sottishly at its own vulgarity. Any lady who will thus cater to her husband's tastes and preferences will deserve his trade, and she will also have the sweet satisfaction of knowing that her drunkatorum is just like some drunkatorums down town.

In the Public Eye.

Chicago News: "Somehow," said the genial station official as he seated himself beside the traveler, "there are some things which lead people to appreciate our wonderful improvements for their convenience and comfort."

"Oh, don't worry," laughed the jolly traveler. "There are some things about your line that are always in the public eye."

"I am glad to hear that, sir. And would you mind naming them?"

"Cinders, sir—cinders!"

Attempting Uncertain Methods.

Cleveland Leader: The hand that rocked the cradle may not be doing it any more, but it is still determined to rule the world.

The Unmedaled Heroism

From the Indianapolis News.

Volunteers are needed in the army for a dangerous service. Instantly there spring forward ten times the number of men required. Those selected become heroes by their choice, on the spur of the moment. The United States needs men to sink the Merrimac in the channel of Santiago harbor. Hobson and his brave comrades sank the vessel and bottled up the Spanish fleet. And the world proclaimed them heroes all, which they were.

But the world hears little of the every-day acts of heroism stretching over years instead of hours. What of the widow left with a family of small children and no money? There can be no trumpet sounding the "Charge!" to lend courage; no knowledge that the eyes of the world are focused on her; she does not march to the battle with banners flying and stirring music urging her on. She is face to face not with an act of bravery that may be consummated in a few minutes or a few hours, and that will be blazoned through all the land—she is confronted with a struggle that must go on for years, with nothing to lend strength but her love for those for whom she must labor.

The charge of the light brigade at Balaklava! "Cannon to the right of them, cannon to the left of them, volleyed and thundered!" The "noble 600" were in the heat of battle. They were filled with the unholy battle fire. Inspiration could point to nothing else than "to do or die." John Paul Jones' "I have not yet begun to fight" deserves no greater place in the annals of heroism than the silent resolve of the widow: "I'll keep them all together, God giving me strength." It is premeditated wisdom that enables a mother to say that—premeditation that sees the long, weary struggle, perhaps days over the washtub, back-breaking task; mending the children's clothes long after the wearers have been tucked into bed; twelve and sixteen hours of work a day; scheming and planning, instead of sleeping, in order to keep the little flock together. She is and must be "thankful to work for all the seven, trusting the rest to One in heaven."

There are dark days in this self-imposed task—days when it seems that life is not worth the struggle, days when it seems that flesh cannot stem the tide, days when there is no vista beyond the dull, dreary monotony of doing for a brood that is too young to appreciate the herculean struggle.

There is no grateful nation to present the mother with a medal. Her heroism will go unsung. But somewhere, the One who notes the sparrow's fall has weighed the wartime hero and the little mother, and in writing in the book of gold the world may be sure that the little mother's name is not going to be the last on the page. For how could the heroism of battle be possible without the foundation of heroism of the little mother?

Clothes and the Tariff

New York Evening Post: In minimizing the beneficent effects of tariff reduction on prices it has been customary to subject the woolen schedule to a so-called practical test. The public was asked to consider the number of yards of material that goes into the making of a suit of clothes, and to subtract the amount of duty formerly paid. The result has usually been a ridiculous gain of a fraction of a dollar that hardly seemed worth while striving for. One reply that suggested itself was that the effect of tariff reduction would be psychological as well as direct, that the forcing of a reduction, no matter how small, by a lowered duty, would entail a sympathetic reduction in other items entering into the cost of a suit of clothes. Today we read in an advertisement by an eminently respectable firm of merchants the following statement:

> Customers will find a saving anywhere from $2 to $5 on practically all our suits and overcoats of imported woollens. This roughly is the difference the tariff made—labor cost is of course unchanged.

This suggests that to the argument that the tariff would make only a difference of 43 cents or 57 cents or some other unimpressive sum in the cost of a suit of clothes, the proper reply was the easiest—that the figures simply were not true.

Weariness.

I am weary of ladies who sag,
And who linger and loiter and lag;
Who are hipless and spineless,
Whose figures are lineless;
Who walk with a Rosetti drag.

I am tired of costumes that slink,
That crawl and that cling and that kink,
That are Poiret expressions
Of insane obsessions
In yellow and purple and pink.

I am tired of coiffures that hide
Ears, eyes and some more things beside;
Of hats like big bowlders,
That rest on the shoulders,
With three-foot stick-ups at the side.

I simply am hungry to see
Some woman break loose and be free;
To dress herself neatly,
And walk about fleetly,
Ignoring Dame Fashion's decree!

Attacking the Press.

Chicago Evening Post: Every now and then somebody who wants to impress the world with his superior wisdom launches an attack upon the inaccuracy, sensationalism and general moral turpitude of the modern newspaper.

The next morning he looks eagerly for a report of his remarks, and probably a little later, discussing some other topic, bases his views upon the information that has come to him through the columns of the very medium he affects to despise.

> Nothing can now be believed that is seen in a newspaper. Truth itself becomes suspicious by being put into that polluted vehicle. The real extent of this state of misinformation is known only to those who are in situations to confront facts within their knowledge with the lies of the day. * * * The man who never looks into a newspaper is better informed than he who reads them.

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, Champ Clark? No; none of these. It was Thomas Jefferson who thus described the newspapers of his day—the good old days of conservative, scholarly journalism we so often hear praised. And yet the Republic survives, and the newspaper remains the bulwark of liberty and the greatest agency of public enlightenment, in spite of its human faults and its unjust detractors.

Father's Objections.

Life: Irate Parent—No, sirree. You can't have her. I won't have a son-in-law who has no more brains than to want to marry a girl with no more sense than my daughter has shown in allowing you to think you could have her.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Wilson was obliged to turn from the affairs of state the other day and write his personal check in payment for three months' board of a foolish-looking cat that was not worth 10 cents—all because of Edward B. Clark.

Clark, who is the Washington representative of a big Chicago newspaper, gullelessly "shooed" a scrawny little black cat into the main doorway of the White House one day, thinking that the cat looked hungry and might find hospitality within—and also that it might bring good luck.

In a few moments the president came along and the black cat rubbed against his leg. One of the negro employes at the White House noted the act of the cat in rubbing against the president, and when some one made a move to chase the cat away that negro was horrified.

* * *

"What!" says he, "chase away a stray black cat after it done rubbed against the president's leg and brought him good luck?"

Other colored servants about the executive mansion took the same view, and were in great alarm lest the cat should be sent away. The situation was brought to the attention of the president, and to humor the superstitions of the servants he agreed that the cat should be permanently annexed to the household. However, the cat was far from a well cat, and grave fears were entertained that if might die in the White House. Everybody conceded that no good could come of a black cat giving up its lives there.

* * *

So the cat was sent to a hospital for treatment. You see, it was not regarded as bad luck to send it away, once it had been officially recognized as belonging to the White House.

For three months it stayed in the hospital, and at the end of that time the president sent his personal check for its treatment. Now it is back at the White House and will remain there.

But those versed in auguries might point out that something about the handling of the cat was wrong, else the president's troubles over canal tolls and Mexico would not have set in. Perhaps a black cat shedding its coat against one's trouser leg is not such all-fired good luck after all.

Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger was one of the stars in his class in his Annapolis days. He finished eighth in a class of twenty-nine and stood second in seamanship. There was just one branch of the Annapolis course that Badger could not master, and that was fencing. At the time of his graduation there were only two members of the class who could not fence better than Badger. He used to slip off by himself and practice in front of a mirror by the hour, but 'twas no use; at fencing he was a hopeless cripple. If the Mexican affair were to be settled by personal conflict, with the sword or cutlass, as in the old pirate tales, and Badger were put up to represent our side, we would find ourselves in a pretty mess indeed.

Badger's low standing in fencing and high standing in all other branches recalls the fact that at the naval academy, as at most other institutions of learning, the boys that swipe all the honor prizes are not necessarily those that have the highest batting average in after life. Badger is one of the exceptions. As a rule, the boys at the academy who have the best chance to become rear admirals and such are those that stand neither too high nor too low. For example, Rear Admiral Fletcher, one of the most efficient officers in the navy, stood fourteenth in a class of thirty-two; Rear Admiral Mayo, who handled the Tampico incident, was fourteenth in a class of forty-two, and Rear Admiral Beatty was twenty-second with thirty-two in the class—the same class with Fletcher. The boys who showed too great promise in their student days often "burned themselves out" too young, and ended up as instructors or got out of the navy entirely.

Charles J. Badger is one of the most loved officers in the navy. He has a jovial, magnetic temperament that makes strangers warm right up to him. His attitude toward his friend, Rear Admiral Fletcher, at Vera Cruz, is said to have been typical of Badger. Though he outranks Fletcher, and was entitled to take full command at Vera Cruz, Badger felt that inasmuch as Fletcher was first on the scene he should be allowed to go ahead in his own way. For that reason Fletcher, rather than Badger, will receive whatever credit is due for the handling of the Vera Cruz situation.

Senator Oliver of Pennsylvania got into the newspaper business late in life by right of purchase. One day recently another publisher asked him how many "ems" there were in his columns—the number of ems being the measure of the width of a newspaper column.

"I'm sure I don't know," said Oliver; "I presume they use enough m's to spell all the words correctly."

Foxiness of Father.

Philadelphia Telegraph: The foxiness of father was referred to at a recent social affair when Senator George Sutherland of Utah was reminded of an incident along that line.

Some time ago, the senator said, a pretty little baby girl arrived at a happy suburban home, and immediately the entire family, including aunts, cousins and mothers-in-law, were busy selecting an appropriate name.

"Harry," joyously cried mother when the old man returned home one evening, "I have decided on a name for the baby! We will call her Gwendolyn!"

For a moment father did a hard piece of thinking. The name Gwendolyn sounded to him like a fire whistle out of tune, but he knew better than to openly oppose mother. Therefore he grew foxy.

"Gwendolyn! Gwendolyn!" he musingly replied. "I like that a whole lot, dear. Long before I met you I had a girl named Gwendolyn, and she——"

"Who said anything about Gwendolyn?" icily interjected wifey. "Your hearing must be defective. I said we will call the baby Mary, after my mother."

One in a Million.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Why are you so pensive?" he asked.

"I'm not pensive," she replied.

"But you haven't said a word for twenty minutes."

"Well, I didn't have anything to say."

"Don't you ever say anything when you have nothing to say?"

"No."

"Will you be my wife?"

1904—Echoes of Harmony—1914

The State Press on the Republican Split.

Both on Same Record.

Deerwood Times: Governor Eberhart and William E. Lee have announced their candidacies for the Republican nomination for governor of Minnesota. The former stands on his record—the latter stands on Mr. Eberhart's record, and there you are. There is no doubt but that the governor will make a hard campaign, but Mr. Lee will make a harder one, backed by the aspirants who had, previous to the "elimination conference," announced their intentions of going after the scalp of the Eberhart-Hamm-Smith machine. The preliminaries will tell whether or not Governor Eberhart's platform was made of seasoned oak, or whether it was flimsy canvas.

Which Seems Best.

Luverne Journal: Speaking about "conferences." There was the "conference" of several hundred patriotic, disinterested Republicans which united on William E. Lee, a man hated and feared by every interest in this state, and selected him as its candiate for governor. Then there was the "conference" between the only other Republican candidate for governor and the known representative of the brewery, Twin City Street railway and other interests, at a restaurant in St. Paul, which "conference" brought forth this second candidate for the chief office in the gift of the people of Minnesota. Take your choice between the two "conferences." Each will be represented on the Republican primary ticket June 16 by the man typical of the "conference" which approved his candidacy.

Still Smarting Over Iverson.

Roseau Times: The Minneapolis Republican conference had the voice of Jacob but the hand was the hand of Adolph.

Or Maybe to Save It, Granny.

Anoka Union: The rump convention was not a representative one. It was made up of a lot of sore-heads, disappointed office holders, trouble breeders and those who want to defeat the Republican party.

A Glossary on Republicanism.

Preston Times: What is a Republican? It is safe to say that two-thirds of the men, including the successful candidate, who participated in the recent rump convention, bolted Taft outright only two years ago and yet they now lay claims to being the only Simon-pure Republicans to the manor born. And supposing Lee is nominated at the June primaries, how can he lay claim to the support of regular Republicans in November? Will he and his followers support Eberhart, should he be nominated? Probably not, and this brings up back to the question, what is a Republican? The modern definition seems to be to support the particular faction to which you happen to belong provided your favorite candidate is nominated, otherwise, bolt.

Don't Let Them Forget.

St. Peter Free Press: Both Governor Eberhart and Mr. Lee promise economy and similar inducements come from the other side. But what do these promises really stand for? We have had them in every campaign, yet the taxes are constantly growing, despite the enormous growth of the state's income from other sources. The taxpayers would be more satisfied if some scheme could be devised under which the candidates could be held to make good their election promises.

Building New Machine.

Luverne Herald: Mr. Lee is the candidate of a bunch of men who while posing as purists, and while denouncing "machine rule," were fighting like fiends to organize a "machine" from within their circle. And to all of these acts Banker Lee, the great moving spirit in these "reforms," gives his hearty sanction and fights to profit personally thereby.

Dislikes Lee's Machine.

Detroit Record: As a matter of fact, the intelligent voter readily realizes that all this talk about "machine" and "anti-machine" is the veriest bunco, for under our form of government the office seeker who has no organization or "machine" has about as much chance of being elected as a peanut. So, while Mr. Lee cries "anti-machine" at the top of his voice, he opens up with one of the most perfect working pieces of mechanism the state has ever seen. It doesn't look good to us and we shall refuse to follow this will-o'-the-wisp merely because of its deceptive label.

It Would Be a Crime

M. N. Koll in Cass Lake Times: The news comes that Miss Annie E. Shelland, the best booster, bar none, in Northern Minnesota, who has been county superintendent and King Booster for her county of Koochiching, is to have opposition for re-election.

Shame on Koochiching for allowing anybody to think that there would be even a chance to defeat her!

I care not who the man is who is to be a candidate against her. I don't know him, and I know as many boosters in Northern Minnesota as anybody. I also know from my own personal knowledge that Annie E. Shelland has been doing more efficient work for her beloved county than any man in it.

I have seen her before committees of the Minnesota house and senate pleading for legislation that would ameliorate the distressing conditions in her county due to the lack of roads and finances to build them on account of the great amount of state land that paid no taxes to help.

I have seen members of those committees moved to tears by the stories she told of conditions among her beloved people on lands isolated for the lack of road facilities.

I have seen members of other associations come out of the committee rooms after pleading their causes in other matters and I have seen these self-same senators and house members smile derisive smiles at the backs of them, but when Annie E. Shelland got through with her story they sat with tears in their eyes and bowed heads and the victory was won for her people.

The proposed constitutional amendment which calls for a $250,000 revolving fund from state school funds for the purpose of building firebreaks and roads to protect the lives of the settlers is due to no person's effort more than to Annie F. Shelland's. Many other matters have received her effective attention.

Every newspaper in Northern Minnesota should help out beyond question the re-election of Annie E. Shelland to the position of county superintendent.

If Koochiching county wants to drop from being one of the most considered counties in the state to one of the least—let it relegate Anne E. Shelland to private life.

Sufficient Reason.

Philadelphia Telegraph: This one was told by Barratt O'Hara, lieutenant governor of Illinois, at a social affair in Washington some time ago when the conversational tide turned to sufficiently explaining a thing.

Small boy named Jimmy, who was employed in a big baking establishment, suddenly gave up his job and took another one with an upholsterer at less money. Naturally all his friends were amazed.

"Say, Jimmy," remarked a young man friend on meeting the youngster one afternoon, "why did you give up that good job in the bakery and take a worse one for less money?"

"Had to," was the laconic answer, "couldn't stand the pressure."

"Couldn't stand the pressure?" returned the puzzled young man. "I don't get you."

"It was this way," explained Jimmy. "I worked in the pie department where you stone the cherries, an' they have got a rule there that every boy must whistle all the time he's workin'."

Force of Habit.

Philadelphia Telegraph: They were speaking of force of habit, and Henry C. Hall, recently made a member of the interstate commerce commission, was reminded of a pretty little telephone girl named Miss Marie.

One night Miss Marie went to church and, being somewhat tired, she fell asleep during the rather protracted sermon. Finally the sermon was concluded and after the usual prayer the minister picked up the hymnal.

"Brethren and sisters," he announced, glancing first at the choir and then at the congregation, "we shall sing hymn 343. Hymn 343."

"The line is busy," cried Miss Marie, suddenly waking and hearing the dominie's last words. "Please call again."

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 200 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

J. E. Bergstrom of 130 Twentieth avenue west has kindly sent in a copy of "Lasca" or "Down in Texas on the Rio Grande." It was published in The Herald Friday evening, but the editor would like to express his gratitude to Mr. Bergstrom.

FAIR PLAY TO THE LATIN REPUBLICS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

We people of Duluth have grown tired of the rantings of the News Tribune's editorial column in regard to Mexico and our sister republics of Latin America. The worthy editor takes a gratuitous fling at the republic of the United States of Colombia once in a while as to Panama revolution. For the benefit of the editor in question I am submitting a few words about the Panama canal deal.

Ten years ago Panama was a province of Colombia. Theodore Roosevelt, then president of the United States, was very anxious that work on the canal should begin under his administration. The French company was quite as keen to get $40,000,000 for its abandoned work. A treaty with Colombia was negotiated but failed of ratification by the senate of that country. If Panama should rebel and proclaim its independence, President Roosevelt might achieve his ambition and the Frenchman might get his money. Panama revolted. The revolution would have easily been stamped out if Colombia could have sent her troops by sea. But before the revolution took place President Roosevelt ordered American ships "to prevent the landing of any armed force, either government or insurgent."

On what high ethical grounds of international honor the United States could prevent Colombia from landing her own troops on her own coast is not even yet quite clear. But the subsequent "revolution" was successful naturally. And Washington at once recognized the republic of Panama and concluded the treaty under which the canal was built.

But there is a greater power than Colombia behind the Hay-Pauncefote treaty; so international honor and high ethical considerations replace the big stick.

In conclusion I would say from the comparison of the circulation department of our two daily papers the masses of the people are sick of the revolutionalist attitude of the Tribune in regard to Latin America, its social, political, religious and educational problems, for which it (the Tribune) is noted for being anything but friendly.

LIMITED SUFFRAGE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you kindly inform me by the Open Court column of your valuable paper, if there is a law in any state in this country that a man must own property before he is allowed to vote. If so, please name it. Thanking you very much for the information, yours truly, NATHAN HORWITZ, 314 East Fifth street.

Duluth, May 9.

There is no state which limits the suffrage strictly to those owning property. Louisiana has the nearest approach to such a law in the provision limiting the suffrage to those able to read and write, or who own $300 worth of property assessed in their name, or whose father or grandfather was entitled to vote on Jan. 1, 1867.—The Editor.

WHEN THE COWS COME HOME.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Last evening I received a letter from Capt. W. H. Smallwood as follows: "I thank you for sending The Herald that beautiful and patriotic little poem, "Driving Home the Cows," by Kate P. Osgood. I believe, however, that the poem called for by Judge Edson must be "When the Cows Come Home," by Agnes E. Mitchell. I cannot find it in my library and wish you would look it up.

I assumed that the poem furnished you by Mrs. Lester was the one referred to by Judge Edson, but on looking it up I find that there are two poems with the same title. I herewith submit the one called for by Capt. Smallwood, written by Agnes E. Mitchell. C. E. LOVETT.

"When the Cows Come Home."

With klingle, klangle, klingle,
Way down the dusty dingle,
The cows are coming home;
Now sweet and clear, and faint and low,
The airy tinklings come and go,
Like chimings from some far-off tower,
Or patterings of an April shower
That makes the daisies grow.
Ko-lingle, ko-langle, ko-linglelingle,
Way down the darkening dingle
The cows come slowly home;
And old-time friends, and twilight plays,
And starry nights and sunny days
Come trooping up the misty ways
When the cows come home.

With jingle, jangle, jingle,
Soft sounds that sweetly mingle,
The cows are coming home;
Malvine, and Pearl, and Florimel,
De Kamp, Redrose, and Gretchen Schell,
Queen Bess, and Sylph, and Spangled Sue—
Across the fields I hear her loo-oo
And clang her silver bell.
Go-lingle, go-langle, go-linglelingle,
With faint far sounds that mingle,
The cows come slowly home;
And mother-songs of long-gone years,
And baby joys, and childish tears,
And youthful hopes, and youthful fears,
When the cows come home.

With ringle, rangle, ringle,
By twos and threes and single,
The cows are coming home.
Through the violet air we see the town,
And the summer sun a-slipping down;
The maple in the hazel glade
Throws down the path a longer shade,
To-ring, to-rang, to-ringleringle,
By threes and fours and single,
The cows come slowly home.
The same sweet sound of wordless psalm,
The same sweet June-day rest and calm,
The same sweet scent of bud and balm,
When the cows come home.

With a tinkle, tankle, tinkle,
Through fern and periwinkle,
The cows are coming home;
A-loitering in the checkered stream,
Where the sun-rays glance and gleam,
Starine, Peachbloom, and Phoebe Phyllis,
Stand knee-deep in the creamy lilies,
In a drowsy dream.
To-link, to-link, to-linklelinkle,
O'er banks with buttercups a-twinkle
The cows come slowly home;
And up through memory's deep ravine
Come the brook's old song and its old-time sheen,
And the crescent of the silver queen,
When the cows come home.

With a klingle, klangle, klingle,
With a loo-oo, and moo-oo, and jingle,
The cows are coming home;
And over there on Merlin hill,
Hear the plaintive cry of the whip-poorwill;
The dew-drops lie on the tangle vines,
And over the poplars Venus shines,
And over the silent mill.
Ko-ling, ko-lang, ko-linglelingle,
With ting-a-ling and jingle,
The cows come slowly home.
Let down the bars; let in the train
Of long-gone songs, and flowers and rain;
For dear old times come back again
When the cows come home.

SIGNS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Do we believe in signs—that woe and war are etched upon the locust's wing before their day—that "steel" is prone to moult its dollar signs before a reign of Democrats?

Successful business establishments usually fix upon a sign, or trade mark, by means of which they are to be distinguished from the mass of similar concerns.

In pursuing fair claims to distinction it is important that Duluth confer an appropriate name on its week of midsummer festival.

To successfully phrase a headline to this event is to fashion into the prose of iron, and ships, and mills the magic of desire and unto the whole hallmark Duluth.

There is a common goal in quest of which all men are kin, which is lavishly diffused about our ascending slopes—an atmosphere of home, the charm of which no pretty phrase of speech can overstate.

Pause upon the height of cliff above the plane where commerce rides and rests, drink deep from the air of the summer night that wings in from the land-locked sea, feel the vibrations from the surcharge of health that it holds. You have learned to live in the land of "Midsummer Nights."

Submitting the thought to the common good, I am, dear sir,

H. WILL.

Strawberry Short Cake

For dinner every Sunday and once or twice on week days is not too often to serve this delicious dessert as long as strawberries last. The whipped cream for the top is not absolutely necessary, but it makes a short cake more attractive to the eye as well as to the taste.

K C Strawberry Short Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

2½ cups sifted pastry flour; 2½ level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful salt; ½ cup shortening; about ¾ cup milk; butter; 2 baskets strawberries; between 1 and 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 cup or more double cream.

42

Hull, wash and drain the berries; reserve a few choice berries to garnish the top of the cake; cut the rest in halves and mix with the sugar. Beat the cream and set aside to chill. Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; work in the shortening; then mix to a soft dough with the milk. Spread the mixture in two layer cake pans. Bake about twenty minutes. Turn one cake out on a hot plate, spread liberally with butter, pour on part of the berries; cover with the second cake, also spread with butter, pour over the rest of the berries and put the whipped cream above, with the whole berries here and there.

The Cook's Book contains 90 just such delicious recipes. You can secure a copy free by sending the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder to the Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago, being sure to write your name and address plainly.

REALITY OF RESULTS BRIGHTS DISEASE

Patient, Draper S. Greene, 33 W. Rittenhouse Ave., Battle Creek, Mich.

Case, diagnosed by two physicians as Bright's Disease and incurable.

Patient could not lie down for nine weeks. Legs were so bloated with dropsy they had to be bandaged. One of the physicians said he could probably live a month or so; the other did not think he would last a week.

Fulton's Renal Compound was then administered, with gradual recovery. The permanence of the results are shown by a letter from this patient dated Feb. 16, 1914, written five years later, giving the names of two Battle Creek lawyers, N. A. Briggs and H. A. Jacobs, as witnesses of his recovery.

He closes with the statement that "another bad case was given up, changed to the Renal Compound and is on the streets again."

The ability of Fulton's Renal Compound to reduce albumen in many cases of Bright's Disease is not a matter of opinion, but A FACT IN PHYSICS. We will mail formula for albumen test that will show the precentage from week to week. As the albumen declines improvement commonly follows, recoveries having been reported in thousands of cases. Formula and literature sent on request. John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco. For sale at druggists.

CHICAGO SUICIDES ON THE INCREASE

Coroner Makes Report "Intended to Shock Humanity."

Chicago, May 11.—"There are 12,000 persons in Cook county at this moment contemplating suicide," asserted Coroner Peter M. Hoffman in his biennial report yesterday. The report, the coroner said, is "intended to shock humanity."

"Suicides increased from 523 in 1911 to 554 in 1912 and 572 in 1913. This is an increase far in excess of the increase in population. It is a special doctrine of Socialists that the number of suicides in any community is a reliable gauge by which to measure the community's efficiency in the line of social justice. This increase should become the subject of thoughtful inquiry on the part of the educators, moralists and social workers."

The report shows 328 persons were killed in Chicago last year with firearms, "exactly twenty more than all our losses in battle during the Spanish-American war."

MONTHLY DINNER OF OFFICE MEN

Julius H. Barnes and Congressman Manahan Will Be Speakers.

Talks by Congressman James Manahan and Julius H. Barnes will feature the monthly dinner of the Duluth Association of Office Men which will be held Thursday evening at the Commercial club at 6:30 o'clock.

Just what Congressman Manahan will speak on has not been announced. Mr. Barnes, it is believed, will discuss transportation matters. The address by Mr. Manahan will be the first to be given by him since he announced his candidacy for the office of attorney general of the state.

According to C. R. Pattinson, president, the May dinner will be one of the best ever attempted. The office men's chorus under the direction of Harry Soady will make its initial appearance. The Smith & Allen company and Stanley Lamb will assist in providing other entertainment for the evening.

It is expected that 200 members of the association will attend.

KNOX OPPOSES BILL TO REPEAL TOLLS ACT

Taft's Secretary of State Denies It Violates Treaty.

Washington, May 11.—Philander C. Knox, secretary of state in President Taft's cabinet, who rejected Great Britain's protest against the right of the United States to exempt American coastwise shipping from the payment of Panama canal tolls, is in Washington, and last night he issued a public statement arguing against the exemption repeal bill now under consideration in the senate.

Primarily Mr. Knox asserted that toll exemption for American coastwise ships is not in violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, as set forth in the protest of Sir Edward Grey, the British secretary of foreign affairs. He confined his discussion of the subject to the conclusion by President Wilson that it does violate the treaty.

CARRY FIGHT INTO CHURCH

Ten Rockefeller Critics Are Arrested By Detectives.

Leader Tries to Talk to Congregation About Colorado.

New York, May 11.—Ten persons were arrested in Calvary Baptist church Sunday in suppressing an attempted demonstration against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who teaches Sunday school there. Mr. Rockefeller was not present, remaining at his country home in Pocantico hills.

The demonstrants were a new group, calling itself "the church of the revolution," led by Bouck White, formerly a pastor of a Congregational church in Brooklyn. White and nine followers, including a woman, were removed from the church to patrol wagons.

Several were bruised in resisting ejection. They were arraigned on common complaint of disorderly conduct. White was also charged with disturbing a religious service.

Wrote to Pastor.

Public announcement by White in a letter to Rev. Cornelius Woelkin, pastor of Calvary church, that in sympathy with the Colorado mine strikers he would attempt to address the worshippers, had caused a force of detectives to be sent to the building.

Arriving before the commencement of the service, White took a rear seat in a side aisle. He remained quiet until the announcement of the text of the sermon, and then started towards the pulpit. He reached the front pew where he turned and cried: "I am here to speak the truth."

Seized by detectives, he was pushed down the aisle. Half way down he grasped a pew, and shouting to the worshippers, many of whom were now standing on their seats, he said he wanted to speak of a member of the church who was guilty of the murder of forty-three men, women and children.

Seized By Detectives.

White's followers darted toward their leader from diferent parts of the auditorium, but were seized by the detectives.

Sixteen "mourners" with crepe banded sleeves journeyed up to the Rockefeller estate at Pocantico hills Sunday and marched up and down in front of the gates for several hours.

MME. NORDICA DIES IN JAVA

Noted American Singer Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia.

Voice Delighted Hearers in All Parts of the World.

Batavia, Java, May 11.—The body of Mme. Lillian Nordica, the American singer who died here from pneumonia last night, is to be sent to the United States. It will leave here on May 16 inclosed in a Chinese casket.

Mme. Nordica had been ill since the steamer Tasman, on which she was a passenger, went ashore on Bramble Cay, in the Gulf of Papua, Dec. 28 last. Nervous prostration was followed by pneumonia.

The Tasman was floated in three days and put into Thursday island. There Mme. Nordica was placed under the care of a physician, who remained in constant attendance upon her until April 1, when she sailed for Batavia. It was against the advice of her physicians that she made the trip.

Had Slight Recovery.

Arriving here the singer seemed very ill, but recovered somewhat after a stay of three weeks. The improvement, however, was only temporary, and when a relapse occurred the physicians gave up all hopes of her recovery.

It was the intention of Mme. Nordica when she came here to sail for Genoa, where she was to meet her husband, George W. Young, a New York banker. She already had taken passage for the voyage when the relapse occurred.

Sang for Forty Years.

Lillian Nordica was an American singer of world-wide fame. Her admirers ranged from the men of the Bowery section of New York, where she had sung at mission meetings, to the most critical box-holders of grand opera houses in all of the world's great musical centers. The purity of her voice, employed in many tongues, had delighted hundreds of thousands since the day, forty years ago, she first appeared in public as soprano soloist at Grace church in Boston.

Nordica and Eames—although the latter was born of American parents in far off China—were of old New England stock, both claimed by the state of Maine, and they made up a notable American contribution to the operatic world. A farm house built by the prima donna's great grandfather on a hill just outside the village of Farmington, Maine, was Nordica's birthplace, in 1859. Her true name was Lillian Norton. She changed it to the Italian, Nordica, twenty years later when she began to study in Italy for an operatic career.

After her graduation from the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, and successful singing of the leading roles in several of the oratorios given by the Haendel and Haydn society, she went to Europe, in 1878, as a soloist with Gilmore's band. She clung tenaciously to classical music, and was well received by great audiences in the Crystal palace, London, and the Trocadero, Paris. She decided to remain in Europe and attempt an operatic career. She went to Milan and became a pupil of Sangiovanni, and within six months she had mastered ten operas.

MME. LILLIAN NORDICA.

Debut in Opera.

Her debut in opera was at Brescia in 1879 in "La Traviata." After a trip to St. Petersburg she appeared for trial before Ambrose Thomas and the impresario, Vancorbeil, who engaged her for the Grand Opera House in Paris. Her first appearance there, in 1882, as Marguerite in "Faust," was a triumph. The critics observed her American accent, but said it gave piquancy to her tone, and her acting was lauded as equal to her singing.

She returned to America and toured this country with great success. In the succeeding years she appeared in opera or concert in almost every city of musical culture in the world. Her repertoire included more than fifty operas. Her success with Wagnerian roles became the pinnacle of her fame. At Bayreuth in 1984, she appeared as Elsa in "Lohengrin" and she is, perhaps, best remembered in that part. She received decorations of various sorts abroad, and gifts without number from friends at home. The stockholders of the Metropolitan Opera House presented her with a diamond tiara.

Three Times Married.

Her matrimonial ventures numbered three. She was first married in 1882 to Frederick A. Gower, a wealthy electrician and a native of her state of Maine, whom she met in Paris. Shortly after she had begun separation proceedings in 1884; Gower disappeared. He attempted a balloon trip across the English channel. Although the balloon was later found, nothing was ever heard or seen of him.

In 1896, Mme. Nordica married Zolton Doeme, a Hungarian army officer and singer, from whom she secured a divorce in 1905.

Her third marriage was in London, in 1909, to George W. Young, a wealthy New York banker. It was announced at that time that Nordica would retire from the stage, but after a honeymoon spent in part at the old Norton homestead in Maine, she decided upon a farewell concert tour of the world. It was while making one leg of this trip on the Dutch steamer Tasman that the accident and exposure brought on pneumonia.

Mme. Nordica's admirers felt it to be a particularly tragic circumstance that the famous singer should have fallen dangerously ill on the other side of the world.

The Nordica fortune must be large. It was published as a fact in 1909, that she had made $128,000 during that season alone. Much of her money went toward realizing her dream of "a Bayreuth in America." She bought a large tract of land along the Hudson near Ossining, and, with great enthusiasm, sketched plans for a great musical institute. It was said a million dollars was back of the scheme, but it was never brought to full realization.

sue of the American Federationist, containing the name of the Buck's Stove & Range company on the "We Don't Patronize List," so as to have it published before the injunction took effect, and circulated the edition after the injunction became effective.

It charged contempt for the court in various utterances of Gompers in speeches and editorially in the Federationist. Still another charge was that he printed and circulated a paper known as "An Urgent Appeal for Financial Aid in Defense of Free Press and Free Speech," in which it was contended that he suggested members of the federation might violate the injunction and defeat its object provided they were not within the District of Columbia.

Morrison and Mitchell.

Frank Morrison was charged with co-operating with Gompers, as secretary of the federation, in making these publications. Mitchell was likewise charged with co-operation in the circulation of the Federationist and of the Urgent Appeal and with presiding over a meeting of the United Mine Workers on Jan. 25, 1908, when a resolution was adopted placing the Buck's stoves and ranges on the unfair list, and providing for fines for members who purchased such a stove or range.

The report was approved by the District supreme court, and the identical sentences of the first proceedings were imposed.

The District of Columbia court of appeals remanded the case with direction that the sentence on Gompers be modified to one month's imprisonment and the imprisonment of Mitchell and Morrinon be changed to a fine of $500 for each man.

The District supreme court committee insisted before the supreme court that the court of appeals had no right to modify the sentences. Alton B. Parker, recent presidential candidate, and Jackson H. Ralston contended the men had not been guilty of any contempt.

mer Solicitor General Lehmann to represent the United States in the mediation conference at Niagara, Canada, had been received with great satisfaction, it was said, by the South American envoys.

No Sign of Crisis.

"There is nothing to indicate a crisis in Mexico," said Senator Shively of the foreign relations committee, after a brief conference with Secretary Bryan.

Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, also conferred at length with Secretary Bryan. He said upon leaving the department that he had discussed "an entirely personal matter."

Persistent reports from Mexican sources that the revolutionary leader, Zapata, in the southern part of the republic, is an immediate menace to Huerta and to foreigners in Mexico City, led the state department today to seek all possible information on the subject. Foreign ambassadors and ministers here whose countries have diplomatic representatives in Mexico City were appealed to by the department to investigate thoroughly alarming rumors concerning Zapata's threats and the actual movements of the bandit forces.

Asks for Information.

The department also asked the foreign diplomats for information as to actual conditions in Mexico City, particularly the rumors that Huerta's position is rapidly weakening.

Some of the diplomats here have received reports within the last few days in which no mention of Zapata was made, but messages to another source gave alarming information regarding Zapata's activity, expressing fear for the safety of foreign residents in Huerta's capital.

HE REDUCED 57 POUNDS.

New Method of Flesh Reduction Proves Astonishingly Successful.

Johnstown, Pa., May 10.—Investigation has fully established that Hon. H. T. Stetler, of this city, has reduced his weight fifty-seven pounds in an incredibly short time by wearing a simple, invisible device, weighing less than an ounce. This, when worn as directed, acts as an infallible flesh reducer, dispensing entirely with dieting, medicines and exercises. Many prominent men and women have adopted this easy means of reducing superfluous flesh, and it is stated the inventor, Prof. K. Z. Burns, of No. 17 West Thirty-eighth street, New York, is sending these outfits on free trial to all who write him.

SUMMERLIN, Randolph, private marine corps, Wilacoochee, Ga.

WATSON, Walter L., ordinary seaman, battleship Arkansas, Orleans, Mass.

Of these fourteen will be sent from the navy yard to relatives. The bodies of three—Haggerty, Percy and Watson, will be taken back on the Montana to New England.

President's Talk Informal.

President Wilson had no formal address prepared for the ceremony at the Brooklyn navy yard. Secretary Daniels read to him the names of the nineteen American dead in whose honor the services were held. The president's reply was delivered with slow impressiveness. His voice was low and fervent and his face was grave.

"Mr. Secretary," he said, "I know that the feelings which characterize all who stand about me are not feelings that can be expressed in eloquence or oratory. For my own part, I have a mixture of feeling.

"The feeling that is uppermost is one of profound grief that these lads should have had to go to their death. But yet I feel a profound pride and envy that they should have been permitted to do their duty so nobly.

"Their duty is not an uncommon thing. Men are performing it in the ordinary walks of life. But what gives these men peculiar distinction is that they did not give their lives for themselves, but gave their lives for us because we, as a nation, called upon them.

All Will Be Worked Out.

"Are you sorry for the lads? Are you sorry for the way they will be remembered? I hope to God none of you will join the list; but if you will, you will join an immortal company, and while there goes out of our hearts an affectionate sympathy for them, we know why we do not go away from this occasion with our hearts cast down, but with confidence that all will be worked out.

"We have gone down to Mexico to serve mankind, if we can find the way. We don't want to fight the Mexicans; we want to serve them.

"A war of aggression is not a thing in which it is proud to die, but a war of service is a war in which it is a proud thing to die."

"They Were Americans."

"I listened to the list," he added, "with profound feeling, because they were not Irishmen, or Germans, or Hebrews when they went to Vera Cruz. They were Americans, and no matter where their people came from, they did the things that were American.

"War is only a sort of dramatic representation, a symbol of a thousand forms of duty. I never was in battle, or under fire, but I fancy it is just as hard to do your duty when men are sneering at you, for when they shoot at you they take your natural life, and when they sneer at you they wound your heart.

"As I think of these spirits that have gone from us, I know that the way is clearer for the future, for they have shown us the way."

Sky Almost Cloudless.

The weather for the occasion could not have been better. The sky was almost cloudless, and there was just enough breeze to stiffen, afloat and ashore, the thousands of flags which flew at half mast.

Silent thousands, long before 8 o'clock, began making their way toward Lower Manhattan; others massed about the city hall, where the procession was to halt briefly; still others lined the approaches to the Manhattan bridge, and finally a great throng gathered at the navy yard where eulogies were to be paid. Many wore little bows of black; others wore bands of black upon their sleeves.

President Wilson arrived in the city from Washington shortly after 7 o'clock, almost unobserved. He was taken immediately to the home of his friend, Col. E. M. House, and thence to the Battery, to take a place in the procession.

President Changed Plans.

It had at first been arranged that the president was to go to the navy yard to receive the nation's dead on government ground, but at the last moment Mr. Wilson changed his mind and was driven to the Battery, so as to participate in the ceremonies from beginning to end. When he reached the Battery, the hero dead were upon gun caissons, police had lined the way and the procession was ready to move.

Twenty-four picked mounted police led the way. Behind them were the combined bands of the dreadnoughts Wyoming and Texas, and behind the bands 600 blue jackets from these ships.

Next came the coffins, in single file. At the side of each rode a policeman, and at the corner of each caisson trudged a national guardsman. The Stars and Stripes alone covered the caskets.

Behind the last caisson came the carriages bearing the president, the secretary of the navy, senators, congressmen and representatives of the state and city.

Order of Procession.

They moved in the following order:

With President Wilson in No. 1 carriage were Dr. Grayson, his physician, and Secretary of Tumulty.

No. 2—Secretary of the navy, Governor Glynn, Lieut. Commander Jones, U. S. N.

No. 3—Assistant secretary of the navy, Franklin D. Roosevelt; president of the board of aldermen, George McAneny.

No. 4—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N.; Lieut. Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt and other national guard officers.

No. 5—Collector of the port of New York, Dudley Field Malone; Brig.-Gen. George Barnett, U. S. M. C.; Capt. William D. McDougal, U. S. N.

No. 6—Gen. Horace Porter; former Mayor Seth Low; Surgeon-Gen. William C. Braisted, U. S. N.; Corporation Counsel Frank L. Polk.

No. 7 to 9—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Joseph H. Choate, A. Barton Hepburn, Dr. St. Clair McKelway and others.

No. 10—Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, the mayor of Chicago's committee.

No. 11 to 21—Congressional committee.

No. 22 to 24—State legislative committee.

No. 25 to 37—Officers from Governor's Island and navy yard.

New Scene for Battery.

Never had the battery witnessed such a scene as today's. Noiselessly, almost, tugs moved up to pier A, and with a precision that is the navy's, the seventeen dead were landed, grouped on the caissons. Immediately the blue-jackets who were to march began to assemble. The men from the Texas came by tug from the navy yard, whence their ship was to sail later in the day for Mexican waters. The Wyoming's men came ashore in their own boats. It was the Wyoming that convoyed the funeral ship into the harbor yesterday, and all night she swung at anchor 300 yards ahead of the Montana's bow.

The cortege began to move at 9 o'clock, the ship's bands playing a funeral march; bluejackets with arms reversed. The crowd stood with bared heads, silent. Through lower Broadway, past Old Trinity church, and into the city hall plaza the procession passed.

At the city hall, the columns and portico of which were draped in black, the cortege halted while Mayor Mitchel placed upon a caisson a wreath of orchids, the city's tribute. As he did so the bluejackets stood at present arms, and 800 school children sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Gathered at the city hall were perhaps 10,000 spectators.

From there the route lay north, across Manhattan bridge to Brooklyn and the navy yard, where the ceremonies were simple and comparatively brief. After a hymn by the battleship bands and an invocation by Chaplain William G. Cassard of Annapolis, came President Wilson's address. Prayers by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Father John P. Chidwick, chaplain of the Maine; three volleys by a detachment of marines from the Texas, and "taps" by a bugler completed the program.

Secrets of London Complexion Doctors

Famous London specialists who cater to titled ladies and others of social prominence, employ a remarkable method of complexion rejuvenation. One undergoing this treatment visits the beauty doctor late in the afternoon, has something dabbed over her face, then, heavily veiled, departs in her motor car. This is repeated daily for a week or so, when a complexion of snowy purity and exquisite delicacy is in evidence. The secret of this method is—ordinary mercolized wax. Anyone can apply the wax without assistance of a specialist. An ounce of it costs very little at any drug store (obtainable here as well as in England.) It is used like cold cream, before retiring, and washed off mornings. Its success is due to a peculiar absorbent property which gradually removes wornout particles of cuticle, revealing the younger, healthier skin beneath.

A wonderful wrinkle-chaser, also in vogue among Englishwoman, is prepared by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. Used as a wash lotion, this completely and quickly effaces even the deepest lines.

CRIPPLED ON DOCK; WANTS $25,000.

Injuries which Joseph E. Wickman received July 25 last while employed as a laborer on the docks of the Pittsburg Coal company in this city left him a hopeless cripple, according to claims made in a $25,000 damage suit against his employers brought to trial before Judge Ensign and a district court jury this morning.

Wickman claims that while he was working on the top of a 65-foot high rig his clothing became caught in a set screw on a revolving shaft and that he was pulled into the mechanism and whirled around at the rate of 100 revolutions a minute. The experience nearly cost him his life but he was not thrown from the platform. His ribs were broken, neck dislocated and chest injured. His attorneys are Anderson & Whipple.

Abbott, McPherran, Lewis & Gilbert appear as counsel for the defendant company. The company sets up contributory negligence as a defense.

RAY HIGGINS THE CHOICE

Is Slated for Election to Presidency of Boat Club.

According to "dope," Ray Higgins is going to be the next president of the Duluth Boat club.

Dope is ofttimes deceiving, but Mr. Higgins, one of the deservedly popular young business men of Duluth and a real hustler, seems to be the popular choice for the place.

B. Murray Peyton will not accept the position. This is final. Pressure was brought to bear on Mr. Peyton, one of the most popular members of the club and a man who has done much for the club in the past, but to all the persuasions and arguments, Mr. Peyton has answered no.

Miller McDougall, another of the prominent young business men of the city, has been mentioned in connection with the presidency of the club, and W. S. Telford has also been spoken of. Capt. Dan Mahoney, one of the most faithful and popular of the "old guard" has declined to run.

It is generally believed among the members of the club that Ray Higgins would make a very able president. Able, energetic and well liked by a large list of friends, those who are boosting Mr. Higgins for the place point out that he combines the qualities most needed in an executive.

Some of the influential members of the club have expressed it as their opinion that it would be an excellent proposition to place young directors on the board and to try the experiment of having new blood in the organization. In this connection there is some talk of asking Charles McLennan to make the run for secretary.

James E. Ten Eyck has been filling the position of secretary for some time past and it is understood that a large number of members of the club are anxious to see the rowing coach elected to the position. Combining the position of coach and club secretaryship will be an arduous job, but Ten Eyck is a hustler and has a way of accomplishing things all his own.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the election of tomorrow evening. It is the first time in ten years that it has not generally been understood that Julius H. Barnes would be elected without question. With Mr. Barnes absolutely refusing to permit the use of his name as a candidate, and with J. E. MacGregor also announcing that he will refuse to be a candidate, it is natural that there should be considerable interest manifested over the new slate.

In addition to the interest centered in the election of the new officers of the club, the personnel of the new board of directors is causing considerable speculation. It is stated that the names of a number of the more prominent younger members of the club will be placed in nomination for directors.

MASONIC NOTICE

There will be a meeting at the Duluth Commercial club rooms at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening of this week, at which the Superior members of the Brule Outing club will be present and explain the plan of organization of the club and an oportunity will be given to Duluth parties to sign applications for memberships. This club owns one of the most beautiful places on the Brule river with lodge buildings and about 250 acres of ground, with about two miles and a quarter of river front. Those interested in a proposition of this kind are cordially invited to be present at that time and learn all about it.

PROPERTY IS SOLD FOR TAXES

Approximately $15,000 was realized by County Auditor Halden this morning at the regular delinquent tax sale. Several hundred descriptions of city property on which the 1912 taxes are delinquent, were bid in. The sale will probably be concluded this afternoon when descriptions outside of the city will be sold for taxes.

Owners of the property are given three years under the law in which to redeem from the purchasers of the tax title. If at the end of the three years the owner has failed to redeem and there is subsequent default after sixty days' notice, the title to the land becomes invested in the purchaser of the tax title. The sale which is being held today is an average one, so far as the number of descriptions disposed of is concerned.

Tomorrow County Auditor Halden will conduct a forefeited tax sale which was but recently authorized. It will be held under authority of a law passed by the 1913 legislature, which is an act to enforce the payment of real estate taxes which have been delinquent for fifteen successive years prior to 1914.

About 2,000 descriptions coming under this classification will be offered for sale. The law allows a purchaser of a tax title to give notice immediately without waiting three years. If the owner does not redeem in sixty days the holder of the tax title is entitled to a governor's deed to the property.

DULUTH HEIGHTS HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Fire starting from chimney sparks almost completely destroyed the residence of Samuel Maghan, 123 East Myrtle street, Duluth Heights, shortly before noon today. The damage is estimated at about $2,000.

The fire department had considerable trouble at first in fighting the flames, which had gained considerable headway by the time the apparatus arrived. More than 1,500 feet of hose was stretched to fight the flames and then the firemen had to put the pump on the new engine into use to obtain sufficient pressure.

The flames destroyed the entire second floor of the dwelling and the furnishings in the entire building. The damage is partly covered by insurance.

Another chimney fire at 9 o'clock this morning slightly damaged the roof at 328 East Eighth street.

The house of delegates, representatives of the various district associations, will meet here tomorrow morning, and will continue in session throughout the day.

The physicians who have promised papers include Dr. Julian Sedgwick of Minneapolis; Dr. H. A. Beaudous of St. Paul; Dr. F. C. Smythe, Bismarck; Dr. C. J. McGurren, Devils Lake; Dr. N. O. Ramstad, Bismarck; Dr. A. M. Brandt, Bismarck; Dr. W. D. Jones, Devils Lake; Dr. W. T. Cain, Underwood; Dr. Fred Ewing, Kenmare; Dr. J. D. Taylor, Grand Forks; Dr. J. E. Engstad, Minneapolis; Dr. C. N. Callander, Fargo; Dr. J. C. La Mont, Dunseith; Dr. C. Kackelmacher, Fargo; Dr. H. M. Erenfeld, Anamoose.

Banquet Wednesday Night.

Wednesday evening a banquet will be tendered the visitors, with Doctors Beck of Lakota, McGurren of Devils Lake, Kerr of Minot, Skelsey of Fargo, and Evans of Minto, and Attorneys Bronson and O'Connor of Grand Forks, as the speakers. Dr. J. D. Taylor of Grand Forks will preside.

Several important questions coming before the house of delegates relate to the legislative activities of the association. These have been quite marked in previous years, and have been largely responsible for the adoption of the several state laws relating to the medical profession.

It is probable that several measures will be proposed for the consideration of the next assembly, and these will be outlined at the meeting here this week.

PAY TAXES UPON RESERVATION STOCK

Cattle Grazing on Standing Rock Reservation Are Now Taxed.

Bismarck, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—At an important meeting of the North Dakota tax commission just held at Mandan, a long-drawn-out contest between that body and the cattle owners on the Standing Rock Indian reservation came to a close. More than a year ago the tax commission undertook to assess the propmission undertook to assess the property of citizens of the United States on the Indian reservation. The cattlemen, representing some of the largest stock interests of the United States, opposed the tax on the ground that property on a Federal reservation was not assessable by a state.

Admit Right to Tax.

The attorneys for the cattlemen admitted the right of the state to tax property of citizens of the United States on the reservation, and paid the tax levied last year, together with interest and penalty. There was involved cattle to the amount of $500,000. The smaller property owners on the reservation will not contest the matter further, and property to the extent of nearly $3,000,000 is thus placed permanently on the tax rolls of Morton county.

The Charm of Youth

A youthful appearance counts for just as much in a man as it does in a woman. In business it is often essential. Youth means energy and strength.

WARROAD CAMPAIGN.

Temperance Advocate Leaves Thief River Falls for Northern Town.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A two weeks' temperance crusade conducted here by A. C. Rankin came to a close Friday night. The closing meeting was held in the Auditorium, over 600 people being in attendance. Mr. Rankin succeeded in hold the vast audiences through the entire two weeks. Between 500 and 600 people signed the temperance pledge during the meetings.

The crusade was conducted under the auspices of the Civic league of this city. The meetings were financed by collections taken up each night and the last meeting closed with ample money in the treasury to take care of all the expenses.

Mr. Rankin is endeavoring to create a sentiment all over the state in favor of a bill which it is proposed to present to the legislature at its next session to provide for the establishment of a state department to have full charge of the enforcement of all the liquor laws. Mr. Rankin showed how the state as a political unit makes the liquor laws, but it is left for the town, village, city or county to enforce them. The object of the proposed bill is to make the state enforce its laws and not leave it to local men.

Mr. Rankin left here for Warroad to conduct a two weeks' series of meetings there.

GREAT NORTHERN WRECK.

Passenger Train Leaves Track Near Euclid; No One Injured.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern passenger train No. 132, which left Noyes at 3 p. m., Friday, became derailed when about two miles out of Euclid. The baggage coach overturned and lay on its side. One coach went off the track but maintained an upright position. Twenty-eight rails were broken or twisted and about 250 ties torn up. No one was injured but the damage to the track necessitated the Great Northern detouring their No. 8 train over the Northern Pacific line from Emerson to Crookston. The supposed cause of the accident was a broken flange.

MOVING PICTURE MANIA.

North Dakota Woman's Obsession to See Movies Causes Arrest.

Mandan, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Katie McGee's desire to see motion picture shows landed her here in a hospital for observation as to her sanity. She walked from her home at Wade to Raleigh, a distance of twenty miles. Securing employment there, she earned $2.50 and hired a horse to ride to Flasher. She left the animal there and walked seventeen miles to Strain, and from there a greater part of the way into Mandan. On her arrival here she went to the motion picture show and walked in without a ticket. When asked for the price of admission, she stated a local attorney would pay it. After spending the night at a hotel, she inspected the town, and her actions were so strange she was taken to a hospital.

TO DISCHARGE WARDENS

Unless Court Orders Iverson to Pay Over Game License Fees.

St. Paul, Minn., May 11.—The state game and fish commission has made an official demand on State Auditor S. G. Iverson for the $30,000 in resident game license fees which the auditor has withheld from the commission's funds on the ground that the law requires that all such receipts be turned into the general revenue fund of the state and shall not be used for department maintenance unless specifically appropriated for that purpose by the legislature.

The commission decided to get a supreme court decision on the disposition of this money. By agreement, Mr. Iverson promptly refused the demand on him, and early this week suit will be brought by the Minnesota game and fish protective league. It is believed a decision can be obtained within ten days.

If the commission is denied the use of this money, all wardens now on the payroll, thirty-one in number, will be discharged and the state will be without game and fish protection until Aug. 1, when the next annual appropriation will become available. The commission has $3,400 left in its funds for the employing of wardens, and this will be exhausted by June 1.

SEND WOMAN MONEY.

Former Marquette Resident Suffering From Hunger in Japan.

Marquette, Mich., May 11.—Suffering in general with her charges from the scarcity of food that is bringing woe to Japan's millions, a Marquette woman, Mrs. W. F. Johnson, formerly Miss Sadie McLeod, who with her husband is doing missionary work in Japan, will be aided by her Marquette friends. The Woman's Society of the Presbyterian church dispatched $25 to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. While that sum appears small in this country, in Japan it will sustain life several weeks, as the articles of food are not varied and even at famine prices are cheap when compared with the prices of the Western world.

Aids Husband in Work.

Mrs. Johnson has been in Japan since her marriage seven years ago. Recently the Woman's society received a letter telling of the conditions and asking that aid be sent.

MAY CHANGE ITS NAME.

East Grand Forks May Be Known Hereafter as Nashville.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 11.—This city may be known in the future as Nashville, if the plan proposed to the commission in charge of the drawing of a new city charter, is adopted.

Declaring that the present name is too long, and that, because of early day conditions in this district, certain odium is attached to the name, a movement in support of the change has been launched. East Grand Forks was, for years, known as one of the toughest towns on the frontier, and the changes of recent years for the better have not effectually wiped out the early day sentiment.

The new name suggested is the one by which the earliest settlement in this locality was known, and it was given in recognition of John Nash, the first white settler of the area now embraced in the city.

Just Between You and Me

By BRUCE

THE spectacle of our baseball team losing three games is not an alarming one—when one stops, pauses and listens to the argument that all of the games were dropped by the narrow and lamented margin of one. As has been stated in this and other well conducted columns, it is not always the winning of the pink pennant that cuts all of the ice in the world; have the team out there hustling all of the time, playing bangup baseball, George, and the fans will enthuse.

Winona swiped us three in a sad row, 'tis true, too true—but the games were all of the lu lu brand of endeavor and such coming in the fore part of the season cheers us much and leads many of us to brighten and hope for the best in the baseball sense.

Large Edward May Officiate.

EDWARD L. SHAVE, a large and muscular writer of the St. Paul Daily News, may journey to the head of the majestic lake and act as a third man in the ring the evening of the tangle between Cutler and rival Westergaard.

Before entering the certain sanctum of a newspaper office and securing the job of pounding an unruly and battered typewriter, Edward was one of the leading amateur wrestlers of this particular part of the hemisphere. Therefore it might be stated, should be stated, in fact, that large Mr. Shave is eminently well qualified to judge of the merits of the mat quarrel.

Following the Lines of Dope.

THE other evening a crowd was seated in a leather settee, or part of the crowd was, and the subject fell upon the national sport. In our fevered midst—fevered in times of past tense—there was a gent by the name of Rasty Wright. Referring to the times of the more remote past, permit us to state that he was one of the leading sluggers of the minor leagues.

According to the lingo sprung by the Rasty one, for twenty long and effulgent baseball years he swatted the pill for a yearly average of over the magic and high sounding figure of .300.

Asked why he did not have the figures compiled and set against the memorable long run of high figures hung up by that rugged baseball character, Adrian C. Anson, the Wright one replied that the figures of the minor leagues did not command the same august attention as the lurid hitting features of the luminaries of the larger leagues.

And before the conversation came to an abrupt end by the dowsing of the glim, Mr. Wright came through with the opine that Curt Welch was the greatest outfielder of past or present generations, with Dickey Johnstone and James McAleer keeping company with Curtis.

Following More of the Same.

FUNNY when you stroll down and around what you pick up in the way of rusty reminiscence. For instance one with ragged clothes and whiskers that might be taught to roll over and play dead if they have been trained when they were younger, slid in and went through peculiar motions that are the semi-windup to the touch final.

And everyone was so busy spreading the dope around that they paid little attention to the shadowy edition of Kipling's picture of the man that was.

Finally he cut in, as these strollers have a way of doing—some employ jimmies, but that is neither here nor there.

"Ketchel never trained a day for the big smoke," he began. "Listen, now, I know. I was wearing the white harness out in the Barbary coast at that time, and take it from one who was on the spot, gang, this Ketchel spent most of his time in that red buzz wagon and went around to see that no one put out any of the lights in the city.

"He was a great kid, Steve was, but he didn't have no fight on his mind till two or three days before the battle, and then he used to laugh and say he would kill the smoke. Ketchel was roving around the Barbary territory and buying things for other people, but the black was watching his right all the time, like a Frisco cop watches the guy with the kickin."

How the Pirates Are Going.

BACK some several decades ago one great baseball team succeeded in the prodigious task of winning four pennants in a row. This team was the old St. Louis Browns, and since the accomplishment that has rolled down the canyons of baseball history no team has been able to duplicate this golden trick of ability and fate.

The famous Bostons of Nash and brilliant confreres made a gallant assault and won in three grouped seasons. The dashing Baltimore Orioles, the members of which team used to fist fight in the bus on the way from the grounds, also won three times running.

Pittsburg came dashing to the battle front of baseball and for three successive seasons carried the pace making with the bit in its teeth. But it was Kismet or something akin that robbed the Corsairs of the flag in the trial for the fourth consecutive win.

And so it was in the case of the Cubs. Four years it seems is too long a span in the life of any team at its highest grade of efficiency. The Giants are at the present time trying to set aside the long record of failures on the great old record, and the way the Pirates are going at the present time causes many to wonder if the coveted accomplishment is going to be achieved by the doughty Muggsy McGraw.

Is Vogt to Blame for It?

FOR three consecutive Saturdays W. C. Vogt has planned to give an exhibition of casting at the end of one of our piers. And for three successive Saturdays it has rained. If you have anything to do with the rain, or are in any way to blame, Mr. Vogt, you have a lot to answer for.

Why Welsh Is Great.

FREDDY WELSH is not strong and he can't hit—and yet they say that he is the last man in the world Willie Ritchie wants to fight. Willie also likes money. Welsh is one of the few boxers in the world, they do say, who is clever at long range boxing and a past master of work in the clinches. He is a friend of the king.

THOUSANDS ATTEND CHICAGO BALL GAMES.

Chicago, May 11.—Fifty-six thousand persons attended the three major league games in Chicago yesterday, according to estimates made by newspaper men and based on a knowledge of the seating capacity of the parks. The estimates gave the plurality to the Federal league park, where "Mordecai Brown day" attracted 20,000 to the St. Louis game. Eighteen thousand saw the game at the American league park and the same number of fans witnessed the Pittsburg Nationals play.

BASEBALL REVIEW FOR THE LAST WEEK

New York, May 11.—Western clubs in the Federal league did well enough in the intersectional series just ended to hold three places in the first division, though St. Louis long in the lead, was forced out in a losing streak and Baltimore jumped to the top.

The American association race assumed its normal see-saw aspect. Louisville took the lead by downing Milwaukee on Wednesday, but Milwaukee won and went to the top on Friday. Yesterday's results put Louisville again in first place.

The week saw a continuation of the Pirate dash pennantward in the older major league, but at a lessened pace, because of three days of rain and a week-end defeat at the hands of the Cubs.

Two other first division clubs fared equally well, the record for Pittsburg, Brooklyn and New York standing at three games won and one lost by each.

A week of contests with Cleveland and Chicago as opponents only served to increase Detroit's advantage in the American league race, the Tigers sustaining but one defeat in six games. Only one other club did better than to break even, the trio playing .500 ball being Philadelphia, St. Louis and New York.

WHITE SOX WIN AGAIN

The Dooks Take Measure of Fargo By 3 to 0 Score.

Young George Cunningham Holds Enemy to Three Hits.

Fargo, N. D., May 11.—Duluth won the second game of the series here yesterday by the score of 3 to 0. George Cunningham, the recruit hurler from Sturgeon Lake, Minn., was on the slab for the visitors and held the Cantillions to two stingy hits. The day was cold and raw, but despite the inclement conditions a crowd of 2,000 people was on hand to see the game.

Dietrich scored in the first round on a brace of hits and an infield error. The visiting third baseman counted again in the sixth on a pass, a hit and an error by Briere. Jerry Phillips, the slugging outfielder of the Dooks, counted the final run in the eighth when he busted the ball over the paling in left.

Despite the cold and the heavy condition of the field, the game was well played. The Duluth White Sox look like a real baseball team and the pitching of Cunningham was a revelation for so early in the season and under so unfavorable conditions.

DARBY'S DOOKS ALSO WON SATURDAY GAME.

Fargo, May 11.—Duluth won from the Fargo Newlyweds Saturday by the count of 2 to 1. Will wonders never cease? Darby O'Brien clouted the ball over the fence in the fourth inning, tying up the count, and in the sixth Hi Brackett hit to left for two bases and came romping home with the winning run of the game when Dietrich singled past the infield.

In the past Darby O'Brien has usually waited until sometime along in August for his home run. But this year he has made his annual offering earlier. The Duluth fans had hoped that this feat would be pulled on the home lot, but it seems that fate ruled otherwise.

Greiner started the visitors, but was yanked when Woods went in to bat for him. Leahy mounted the mound and later gave way to Cunningham, who finished strong.

RED BLUHM MAKING GOOD IN NEW ORLEANS.

"A Cleveland boy, Harvey Bluhm, better known in baseball as 'Red,' is the big noise of the New Orleans club, leaders in the race for the Southern league pennant. Decreed not good enough for the Cleveland Warriors by Manager Jim Sheckard, the boy was turned over to the New Orleans club, where his phenomenal playing has made a great hit with the fans and made the youth a great favorite in the Crescent City."

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease. Agent, Wirth's Red Cross Drug Store, 13 West Superior street.

CUTLER FINDS MANY SUPPORTERS IN DULUTH

Sentiment Undergoes a Change in Regard to Picking Winner of Big Mat Bout---Either Man Has a Chance at Championship.

BY BRUCE.

On April 3, 1908, Frank Gotch won the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world from George Hackenschmidt, at the Drexel Park pavilion in Chicago. The Humbolt farmer was the first American heavyweight to win the highest wrestling honors of the world.

Sometime before this Tom Jenkins wrestled Hackenschmidt in Madison Square Garden, New York City, and was beaten by the huge Russian in straight falls. This fact led the followers of the game to believe that no American possessed the power or strategy to dethrone the wonderful big men of Europe. The victory of Gotch was therefore in the nature of a distinct shock even to the most ardent friends of the Iowa man.

With Gotch out of the field for all time the championship narrows to some three or four men. Stanislaus Zbyszko is the champion with Gotch out of the running. Opposed to him are Cutler, Westergaard and Americus. Followers of the game are generally willing to admit that Cutler and Westergaard stand the best chance.

Frank Gotch was born in 1878 and wrestled Hackenschmidt in 1908. He was 30 years old at the time. Until this time Gotch was never considered in the light of a phenomenal wrestler. He was simply considered the best American and a corking good man, strong, fast and possessing a remarkably versatile attack.

Westergaard and Cutler at the present time lack one year of the age of Gotch when he began to show his greatest improvement. As a matter of fact Gotch only claimed the 190-pound championship up to the time he defeated the Russian Lion.

If Gotch reached his most wonderful development as a wrestler after the turning of his thirtieth year, there is some basis for at the least the hope that Westergaard or Cutler may show like development.

Big Grapplers Are Ready.

Duluth is to be the scene of one of the really important struggles of the season when Westergaard and Cutler meet at the Auditorium arena tomorrow evening.

If this country is to develop a champion to take the title from Zbyszko, it is generally believed that either Cutler, built remarkably like Frank Gotch, or the taller and more lank Des Moines Swede will have to supply the material.

For two years Westergaard has been developing. It requires five years for a man to begin to know the real science of wrestling. It looks as if Westergaard is just beginning to get good, just as Gotch developed wonderfully after his first victory over the huge Russian.

Cutler has had the greatest year in his career. He has beaten every opponent with remarkable ease. Hundreds of his Chicago friends believe that the Des Moines aspirant for the title will be counted among the list of Cutler's victims.

It is also a fact that there within the last few days a large number of fanciers of Cutler have come to the front. Westergaard started as a favorite, but today Cutler rules an equal favorite with the gigantic Swede.

With both wrestlers and their managers on the ground the referee question will be argued out today. If the Cutler camp refuses to stand for Chris Person, a man who knows every angle of the mat game and is as square as a die, then one of the sporting writers of the Twin City papers will be wired for. This match is so important that it is expected that there will be some quibbling over the question of the third man.

Marty Cutler is coming along with his big brother and will work with him for the final preparation. Marty is to meet the ever popular Karl Lehto in the star semi-windup of the big mat card. This bout is dividing attention with the main bout of the evening and promises to be a real battle. Lehto is out to win high honors in the light heavyweight division, and in Cutler he is going against one of the real tough boys. Loren Curtis may go on in the curtain raiser. The lanky Halsted man is expected here tomorrow morning.

BLUME GIVES SOX PRAISE

President of Duluth Club Says Dooks Show Real Quality.

"While it is early to judge of the Duluth team," said President Harry A. Blume of the local club today, "I sure am pleased with the way the club has started off. The loss of three games to Winona is not grumbled at when the club plays the kind of baseball it did in those three games.

"Look over the box scores of the team and you will observe that right from the first game the Dooks have been playing some great ball. When it is taken into consideration that the training trip was not as satisfactory as it might have been, owing to the wet weather, I think the boys are entitled to praise on the showing to date.

"Of course, before the trip is over the team may fall down; but simply on the showing to date I am satisfied.

"Jerry Phillips looks like a find. Young Cunningham looks good, but in the case of a pitcher it is too early as yet to judge. If Brackett makes good in the outfield, and I have not the least doubt that he will, the garden should be one of the best in the league. This big youngster, McGuff, at first looks like a find. We should not grow too enthusiastic, for some of the boys going good might prove a flash—but we have made the best start in the matter of clean and fast ball playing that any Duluth team had made in some seasons, and I am tickled over it."

After Fargo comes Grand Forks and Winnipeg, and then the Sox open the home season with Superior. If the team continues to play the quality of baseball that has so far marked its efforts, the fans will give it a right royal welcome on opening day.

Aad patrol and drum corps, which left here Friday for Atlanta, Ga., where they will participate in the Shriners' conclave, have been making a big hit at every city in which they have stopped. The Duluth men joined in a big parade in Chicago.

A telegram from Potentate H. W. Richardson to The Herald states that the Zenith City party is having a fine time, and has met with a hearty welcome at every stop. There are about sixty in the party.

It is expected that the Duluthians will reach Atlanta some time today and be on the ground when the conclave opens. Shriners from every temple in the United States will be present and the conclave will begin today and continue throughout the week. Thousands of Shriners, bearing banners decorated with the crescent and scimetar, and wearing the fez, are already assembled in the Southern city, and special trains are arriving from all parts of the country. Shriners are expected to continue their invasion of the city for several days.

BOYS' EXPOSITION COMES TO CLOSE

Arthur Castonguay Voted the Most Popular Boy in Duluth.

The boys' exposition conducted at the Y. M. C. A. Friday and Saturday proved to be one of the most successful affairs ever held under the auspices of the association, warranting the extensive attention which it attracted.

Great interest was shown in the numerous excellent exhibits, all of which were made by the boys. These included domestic science products as well as work in leather, wood, metal, pottery and mechanical and artistic drawings. The gymnastics were of a high order. Ribbons were awarded the prize winners, and the school prize went to the school having the most ribbon winners.

Arthur Castonguay of 2631 West Fifth street was voted the most popular boy in Duluth in the contest conducted in connection with the exposition. He received 82 votes of 487 cast for the 85 candidates. He attends the Bryant school.

Gordon Clayton of 2221 West First street, a student at the Adams school, was second with 57 votes. Fred Saxine of the Jackson school was third, receiving 52 votes.

GOSPEL MISSION HAD BUSY MONTH.

The Gospel mission, 102 Lake avenue south, served 5,684 free meals during April, according to the report which has been issued by Rev. F. E. Plumb, who conducts the institution. During the month 2,349 men slept on the floor of the mission and 8,121 attended religious services. The dispensing of free beds and meals is being discontinued with the coming of spring, but will be resumed in the fall. The report shows that seventy-two men secured employment through the agency of the mission, while eight were supplied with clothing. Sixty-five meetings were held, at which forty men announced their desire to turn over a new leaf.

THE STREET IS A DANGEROUS PLAYGROUND

The street is never a safe playground, but if boys must play in the street they should be warned by their parents and teachers not to choose a busy highway. The child is naturally thoughtless. Moments of carelessness cause the bad accidents. It is the duty of parents and teachers to train children to think of SAFETY FIRST. Their whole future happiness is at stake, and may be sacrificed to one moment when they "didn't think."

GARDEN CRAZE HAS FIRM HOLD ON DULUTH

If you see two Duluthians in serious conversation with their heads close together, don't think they are anarchists plotting; or if you see a group of men gesticulating wildly, don't decide they are telling what should be done in the Mexican situation. Just get close enough to them and you will hear, "That's the way I managed my onions and we had onions on our table three weeks before anyone else," or "I raised so much lettuce in that little patch we couldn't eat it all; supplied all the neighbors and had to feed some to the chickens."

Duluth men, women and children have the garden craze, in Duluth, as never before.

At the Y. M. C. A. course in gardening that has just closed "Poultry" Chapman, or "Uncle Norton" as he is familiarly known, told how to raise both chickens and a garden. Those have always seemed the most incompatible things imaginable but some how or other "Uncle Norton" reconciled them. He realized the strained relations that generally exist between raisers of fowls and aspiring raisers of vegetables, for he said he was afraid a poultry talk was out of place in a garden course.

Prof. R. S. Mackintosh's course in gardening included talks on the testing of soil, its preparation and fertilization as adapted to various types of plants; the selection, testing and planting of seeds, and the harvesting, storing and marketing of products. He gave the general principles governing the laying out of gardens and showed how to make a hedge cat, dog and hen proof.

Under "Tree Pruning" he showed the tools to be used and gave practical hints on how to obtain the best results in shaping trees. He described simple preventatives and remedies for prevalent diseases of garden plants and gave instructions on raising cabbage, celery, asparagus, onions and lettuce.

Splendid Remedy For Eczema

Also for Salt Rheum, Acne, Tetter, Psoriasis and Other Skin Troubles.

After using S. S. S. for a while, the characteristic marks of all skin troubles change completely. When eczema has become chronic the lower skin loses its power to divert impurities and thus they continue to gather in the weak spots or those already attacked. The action of S. S. S. is that of an antidote, and this fact has been demonstrated time and time again in the most severe forms of weeping eczema.

Its influence in the tissues where the tiny arteries transfer the red blood for the worn-out blood to the veins is quite remarkable and goes on constantly with every tick of the clock—the beat of the heart.

And new skin is thus caused to form while the germs of irritating influences that cause eczema are scattered and their harmful nature entirely suspended.

S. S. S. has a wonderful tonic influence in the blood because it contains no "dope," is entirely free of any mineral drugs or any other drugs except the remarkable medicinal effect of the pure vegetable products of which it is made.

Few people realize how harmful are many of the strong, crude ointments that used to be in favor before they learned that S. S. S. is safe, speedy and sure. Ask at any drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. Give it a good trial and you will soon see a decided improvement in any form of skin trouble. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 539 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for special free advice and new book on skin or blood trouble.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

THE city of Cleveland has two municipal dance halls that earned more than $500, above expenses, the first week of the new season, when 34,381 tickets were sold. Christiana Zimmer, as director of the Cleveland Municipal orchestra, is paid $200 a month. A resolution creating the position and fixing the salary was passed by the council.

New York City, to combat the evil influence charged against the public dance halls, has thrown open school buildings for municipal dances. The first night more than 500 couples participated in one school building, paying a small fee.

The plan is to extend the dances to the school buildings in other cities.

The board of education is opening the school buildings in the night time. These school buildings are idle evenings and from the economic standpoint this is considered a waste, as the public buildings do not render the maximum amount of public service.

Duluth school buildings are being utilized nights through the social centers under the direction of Miss Margaret Culkin. Dancing is part of the programs but not the sole amusement. They include entertainments of various kinds, lectures debates upon various public and community questions, gymnastic exhibits, etc. The city has no municipal dance halls but regulates the public dance halls by ordinance, which includes a license provision.

THIS WEEK'S WEATHER

Washington, May 11.—Generally unsettled weather during the coming week is forecasted by the weather bureau.

"There will be frequent showers the first half of the week in the Middle West, the region of the Great Lakes and the Middle Atlantic and New England states," said the bulletin.

"A disturbance that now overlies the Rocky mountain region will advance slowly eastward and reach the Atlantic states about Monday; this disturbance will be preceded and attended by general precipitation east of the Rocky mountains during its movement eastward.

"Another disturbance will appear over the Western plateau region about Tuesday and prevail over the Middle West at the end of the week; this disturbance will be preceded by rising temperature and be attended by general showers and thunder storms."

THREE VIOLENT DEATHS SUNDAY.

Chicago, May 11.—One man was shot and killed by a woman after he had broken down the door into her apartment; another was shot and fatally wounded in a quarrel over a card game and a third was found with his head nearly severed from his body in this city today.

The first victim was Matthew Hetzer. He was killed by Mrs. Mary Baer. The police declared the "black hand" was responsible for the shooting of Pasquale Marone by Thomas Cohackicko over a card game. The man found with his throat cut in a lonely spot had not been identified.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB EXPLODES IN CHURCH

London, May 11.—A bomb placed by suffragettes exploded Sunday afternoon in the gallery of the Metropolitan tabernacle in South London, an edifice made famous by the late Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon.

Little damage was done. It is believed that the bomb was placed in the gallery during the morning service. An hour later the explosion occurred. Near the spot where the bomb exploded was a card on which was written:

MYSTERY CLEARED UP.

Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph: She walked in and banged a hunk of yellow substance on the counter. "This," she announced, sarcastically, 'is the soap that does the washin' itself. It's the soap that makes washin' a pleasure; it's the soap that—"

"That ain't soap, ma'am," interrupted the grocer, as he took the substance in hand and examined it. "Your little girl was in here yesterday for half a pound of cheese and half a pound of soap. That's the cheese."

"The cheese!" exclaimed the woman. "Then that accounts for the other thing.

"Why, I lay awake the whole night wondering what made the welsh rabbit we had taste so queer."

ON THE IRON RANGES

HURLS SELF UNDER TRAIN

Carl Carlson Tragically Winds Up Spree Near Forbes.

Cut to Pieces Before Cars Could Be Brought to Stop.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a climax to a drinking bout of about two weeks' duration, Carl Carlson, a farmer aged 64, living at the farm of N. E. Peterson, near Forbes, threw himself before a Missabe railroad train near Forbes about 10:30 Saturday night and was cut all to pieces. Deputy Coroner Crow of this city went to Forbes yesterday to investigate and learned that it was clearly a case of suicide he did not deem an inquest necessary. The fragments of the body were gathered up and interment made here.

Was Walking Along Track.

Carlson was walking along the track to the Peterson farm and as the train approached he pulled his coat and vest off and then deliberately hurled himself in front of the pilot of the big engine. The engineer tried to stop the train, but could not, though he reversed the engine and applied the airbrakes. Pieces of the man's body were ground along on the wheels and strewn beside the track. Carlson is said to have a family, from whom he has been separated some time. Some time a go he sold his farm to Mr. Peterson with the understanding that Mr. Peterson in return should support and in case of death give him burial. Mr. Peterson carried out the latter part of the unusual contract today.

CHISHOLM IS URGED TO GIVE MEN WORK

Mass Meeting Asks That Miners Out of Jobs Be Employed.

Chisholm, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The labor problem, the chief topic of conversation here, was discussed Sunday afternoon when a large crowd of citizens at the request of the Commercial club gathered at the Finnish opera house. The opera house was crowded and President Edward Freeman, who called the meeting to order, requested all to freely state their position. Short talks were made by a number of citizens representing all the different factions and in conclusion a committee consisting of Edward Ahonen, A. H. Kleffman, Anton Mahne, Nick Kovacevitch and Simon Sapero was appointed to prepare a resolution. Harry Austin drafted the resolution and it was adopted. The resolution was addressed to the village council and to the water and light board and requested that steps be immediately taken by these bodies to place at work at once, all the men the departments could use and have the summer's work immediately put under way. The wages as set forth in the resolution were to remain unchanged at $2.50 per day for eight hours' work.

Miners Out of Work.

The sentiment expressed at the meeting was that the mines are employing a much smaller number of men than ordinarily, and this forces a large number of men to seek employment elsewhere. Many of the unemployed are men of families, a large percentage of whom own their own homes and to remove to some other place would work a great hardship on them. The village authorities have been appealed to within the past week and have been urged by business men to increase their forces. The business men have been suffering from lack of employment of the men and many of their best customers have been out of work so long that their accounts are growing to such proportions that further credit has been denied them.

Paving, park development, sewer work, laying of water mains, etc., will probably now be put under way at once and the situation will be greatly relieved. Should the village decide to start all their outside work at once there will still be a large number of men unemployed.

NEW ELY SCHOOL.

Will Be Erected This Year and Ready By Dec. 1.

Ely, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of education has perfected the plans for the new school building, and will let the contract June 1. It will be finished by Dec. 1.

The building will have about 200 feet frontage, and will be about 160 feet deep, containing twenty-four recitation rooms, in addition to offices for the visiting nurse, the musical director and the principal, and also a splendid auditorium, which can be used as a gymnasium. The auditorium will seat 1,200 people and will be on the ground floor, and will have a stage with a 30-foot opening and 28 feet deep, with two dressing rooms at the side of the stage and two under it, with shower baths.

The new building will be erected near the present high school building and will be used entirely for grades; and sixteen of the twenty-four rooms will be used at once.

The boilers will be removed from the high school building and placed in a small building outside and used to heat the two buildings. The rooms vacated at the high school by the removal of the grades to the new building will be used for more extensive work for the high school, giving both the domestic science and the manual training departments more room for their work.

FISH NETTERS ARE FINED BY JUDGE

Pair Caught By George Wood at McQuade Lake Mulcted.

Hibbing, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The plea that Ed. Krandall and Charles Ouimi put up before Judge Brady when arraigned this morning charged with netting fish in McQuaid lake availed them nothing in the face of the evidence that George Wood, special constable for Stuntz township, who made the arrest, offered and Judge Brady fined them both, Krandall $16.62 and Ouimi $24.62, including costs. Mr. Wood arrested them Saturday night when they were netting on a point of land jutting into the lake. The men claimed they were looking for land at night and on a peninsula, a claim the court could not sustain.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police believe they have caught the man who has been robbing local hotels and lodging houses and who also relieved John Knope, a woodsman, of $400 a few nights ago, while the two were sleeping in a local lodging house after drinking freely. His name is Walter Burghart and he was taken into custody yesterday. Knope identified him as the affable stranger he met on the electric car from Eveleth and with whom he drank here and went to bed with and who disapeared during the night with his money. The accused had a hearing this afternoon and was bound over to the grand jury.

The other mill will continue operations for this period and will not be closed down until the other one is again in running order.

The business of the company has been very good this year, being very little different from last year, and it is expected that the season will be as good a one as in former years. Many of the employes of the mill will not be thrown out of the work, however, but will be employed in the repair work.

CITY HEATING PLANT PLANNED

Virginia Expects to Spend About $75,000 on Scheme.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A municipally owned heating plant, to cost about $75,000, extending along all of Chestnut, Maple and Walnut streets, and perhaps portions of Mesaba and Wyoming avenues, will be erected this year, if the plans outlined by Mayor Boylan at a special meeting of the city council Saturday afternoon are expected.

Municipal Gas Plant Too.

A municipal gas plant may also be installed. There will also be much paving and sewer work. The plans are all tentative and will be threshed out in committee. Expected opposition to this extensive plan for municipal improvement did not develop as expected. It is now possible the matter will be decided upon definitely tomorrow evening at the regular meeting of the council.

CHISHOLM WILL OPEN NEW LIBRARY.

Chisholm, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the finest public libraries in Minnesota will be thrown open to the public next Friday evening when the doors of the new local institution, built by the village without the aid of any outside benefactor, are opened. It is brick, built on the corner of Lake street and Third avenue and cost completed $85,000.

The library has over 3,200 volumes, of these 75 are in Finnish, 159 in Italian, 164 in Slovenian and 122 in Servian. More than half the Italian books were a gift from the Dante Alighert society.

Of the 3,700 books now ready for circulation, 657 are fiction, 779 are for children and the remainder are in foreign languages and non-fiction. Those in foreign languages will be exchanged with neighboring panige libraries, thus making a small collection meet large needs.

Congressman Clarence Miller will be the principal speaker Friday night. The program follows:

Every such girl should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore her to a normal healthy condition, then work will be a pleasure. GALE IS THE PROMISE FOR IMPENDING WEATHER

FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. TUESDAY.

For Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges: Rain or snow tonight and probably Tuesday; continued cool, with freezing tonight; strong northeast and east winds, probably becoming a gale.

SNOW

The prediction for today is serious business for it forecasts a gale of some dangerous proportions. The conditions today are reminding of winter, with the real cold existing and the wind added thereto. Yesterday was nasty and raw, a day on which close relations with a well steamed radiator were the very thing to seek. A year ago today was divided between fair weather and rain. The sun rose this morning at 4:36 o'clock and will set this morning at 7:31, giving fourteen hours and fifty-five minutes of sunshine, six minutes more than Saturday.

Mr. Eshleman makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four to forty-eight hours the temperatures have risen over the central and southeastern sections of the United States. A change to much colder has occurred in the Northwest. Temperatures are at freezing or slightly below from the Dakotas and Wyoming northward, and heavy or killing frosts occurred last night in the Lake Region. Moderate to heavy rains are reported in the upper Mississippi and the Missouri valleys.

General Forecasts.

Chicago, May 11.—Forecasts for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Wisconsin—Rain tonight and probably Tuesday.

Minnesota—Unsettled weather tonight and Tuesday, probably rain or snow; continued cool with temperature near freezing in north portion tonight.

Iowa—Unsettled weather tonight and Tuesday, probably showers; thunderstorms in east portion; colder in west portion tonight and in east portion Tuesday.

Lower Michigan—Rain tonight and Tuesday; continued cool.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Indian War Pictures.
EMPRESS—"At Saratoga Springs."

AT THE LYCEUM.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw Will Be Followed By Stock Company.

Repairs to the Lyceum theater will be completed this week.

Saturday, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will be seen matinee and night, and Sunday the season of the summer stock company will open. The Baldwin players will be seen for the first time in "The Spendthrift."

* * *

At the head of a big organization in the latest London musical success, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, the most talked of women in the world, will be the attraction at the Lyceum Saturday in "Mariette" a French divertissement by Maurice Voluy, which ran for nearly a year at the Alhambra theater, London.

Mrs. Thaw comes directly here from triumphant engagements at the London hippodrome and Hammerstein's Victoria theater, New York.

For six years—ever since her husband's trial—Mrs. Thaw has lived in seclusion, perfecting herself in her chosen profession—the stage. With her painting and modeling she has been able to make a living. During this time she has been studying and working both at dramatic art and at dancing and at last perfected herself to such an extent that when she made her debut in London under an assumed name she was an instantaneous success. This success induced her to come to America where her popularity was renewed at Hammerstein's. All of the London dramatic reviewers greeted her with unstinted praise.

This will be the only opportunity to see Mrs. Thaw in this city for after a brief tour of the United States and Canada she returns to Europe to fulfill contracts calling for her appearance for several years in continental theaters.

There will be a special popular priced matinee during her engagement here.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

Indian Wars Are Reproduced By Motion Picture Camera.

There is something in the sight of troops in action or on parade that stirs the blood.

The Orpheum audience which witnessed the reproduction of the Indian wars for the motion picture camera, yesterday grew enthusiastic and applauded frequently the sight of the United States regulars in a charge against the Red Men.

The pictures are remarkable, both for the entertainment they offer and for their historical and educational value. They give a very clear and impressive review of the Indian wars, lasting more than two hours. They will be shown at the Orpheum this week with a daily matinee. A lecturer explains the pictures and the Orpheum orchestra provides appropriate music.

Three epochs of Indian warfare are shown, the battle of the 60s, the battles of the 70s and then the ending of the 300 years of warfare between the Indian and the white man in the War of the Messiah, which was turned from bloodshed into eternal peace by Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles at the peace congress in Pine Ridge in 1891.

Six miles of films are necessary to show the various activities of the Indians and the white man in the different bits of warfare. There is displayed the victory of Gen. E. A. Carr at Summit Springs in 1869, when Buffalo Bill killed Chief Tall Bull, and the soldiers under Carr's command fought the renegades of Tall Bull's command off the war trail and back to peace. There is shown also the bloody fight at War Bonnet creek, in 1876, when Gens. Wesley Merritt and E. A. Carr intercepted the Ogallalla and Brule Sioux, who were seeking to join Sitting Bull. It was in this battle that Buffalo Bill fought his famous duel with Yellowhead and scalped him, while hostile Indians and soldiers, eager for fighting, stood at rest, awaiting the outcome.

The Ghost Dance war, or War of the Messiah, is shown, too, in all its phases; the call of the Messiah, the sending forth of emissaries, the return, the dances, the death of Sitting Bull, the rush of the Indians for the Bad Lands, the stopping of Big Foot and the Battle of Wounded Knee, the Battle of the Mission, the offer of peace and the final council of friendship at which Gen. Miles (Bear Coat) took his hostages and swore the Indians to eternal peace.

And every detail of these pictures was taken upon the actual battlefield. Where the peace council of 1891 was held in the agency yard at Pine Ridge, it was again held by Gen. Miles before the motion picture camera. His staff was present when he swore the Indians to friendship and again when the camera clicked there stood beside Gen. Miles, Maj.-Gen. Jesse M. Lee, Maj.-Gen. Charles King, Brig.-Gen. Frank Baldwin, Brig.-Gen. Marion P. Maus, Col. H. G. Sickel and Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill).

AT THE EMPRESS.

Don Clark and His Company Greeted By Big Audience.

Don Clark, former Herald newsboy and amateur actor in many home theatricals, returns to Duluth at the head of his own company in "At Saratoga Springs," which the young man wrote himself, and which opened a four-day engagement at the Empress theater yesterday afternoon.

Of course, the local playhouse was packed at the opening performances yesterday, there being many in the audience who are acquainted with Mr. Clark, while the others came just to see a former Duluthian act. But none was disappointed, for Mr. Clark and company present a delightful entertainment, full of funny lines, comedy scenes and catchy songs. There is not a dull moment in the entire show, and the former Duluthian newsboy proves conclusively his ability to entertain.

Don Clark is some funmaker as Johnny Wise, the tout, while he is ably assisted by Peter Curley as Michael McSweeney, Bert Rose as Isadore Lechinsky, and Ernest Barnes as Count De Butt. They form a quartet that is the life of the production. Betty Davidson as the mechanical doll presents several good song numbers and is assisted by a well-trained and well-costumed chorus.

"At Saratoga Springs" will continue until Wednesday evening, with the regular daily matinees.

BURIED AT BRAINERD.

Body of Man Who Died on M. & I. Train Taken There.

International Falls, Minn., May 11.—Mr. and Mrs. James R. Harman left Saturday evening for Big Falls to take charge of the remains of a brother of Mr. Harman who died on a train Friday evening while en route from Bemidji to Big Falls. He had been a resident of the Pine Island country for ten years, having homesteaded there, and was by trade a hoisting engineer. He had heard that he had gone to Bemidji for treatment for rheumatism which, presumably, was responsible for his death. The remains were taken to Brainerd for burial.

MANY FORKS ROBBERIES

Police of North Dakota City Are Having Lively Time.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four robberies in two days have put the police of Grand Forks on their mettle, and a total of ten suspects, lodged in the city jail, is evidence of results obtained up to date. The robberies, and booty obtained, follow: Fashion Clothing store, $150 worth of clothes; Golding store, $200 worth of merchandise; Red River Power company, $100 worth of various articles; Great Northern Dry Cleaning company, $100 worth of clothing.

The police are confident that they have conclusive proof against two or three of the suspects.

Daudet received $200,000 for "Sapho"; Victor Hugo $100,000 for "Les Miserables," but Dwight L. Moody received $1,000,000 for his share of the profits on the famous hymn book.

MINNEAPOLIS LADY BADLY SCALDED WHILE COOKING

While preparing dinner a young Minneapolis wife had the misfortune to scald her hand so badly that over half the skin came off. She was alone at the time and rushed over to her neighbor's for help. This neighbor promptly applied Allen's Ulcerine Salve and in ten days the hand was completely healed without a scar.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing. Because it is so powerful, it will heal burns and scalds without a scar in a remarkably short time.

Allen's Ulcerine Salve heals from the bottom up and draws out the poisons. If applied on new cuts and sores it heals in one-third the time that common salves and liniments take. Sold by the Spencer Pharmacy company and other leading druggists.

WHAT TO DO FOR NEURALGIA

The one great symptom of neuralgia is pain; the one great cause is lack of nutrition for the nerves, in plain language—starved nerves.

There are two things to do for any form of neuralgia. Apply heat to the affected part to soothe the pain, and feed the nerves by taking a tonic containing the elements needed by them. Heat, as afforded by hot flannel, hot water bags, etc., lulls the inflamed nerves into temporary quiet. It does not cure. Not until the nutrition of the nerves is restored will the inflammation subside.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills furnish to the blood the needed elements and the blood conveys them to the nerves. The only way of getting food or medicine to the nerves is through the blood. Remember that.

Neuralgia is a general term. It means inflammation of a nerve. It is given different names according to the nerve affected. Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. Application of heat will soothe the pain in all forms of neuralgia and Dr. Williams Pink Pills will correct the condition that caused it.

Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., will send you a little book on "Home Treatment of Nervous Disorders" for the asking.

INTO RED LAKE FALLS.

Northern Pacicif Line to Be Extended Into City.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 11.—The welcome news has been received from St. Paul that the Northern Pacific officials have at last concluded to extend their line into the main portion of the city. The officials had been contemplating this move for some time and now that a decision has been reached, it is expected that work will be commenced in the very near future and rushed to completion.

OPTION HAS EXPIRED.

Reported Lease of Line By Great Northern Not in Effect.

New Rockford, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a feeling of relief here on learning that the Great Northern option on the Northern Pacific line from Carrington to Turtle Lake had expired. The option was secured three years ago. As a result, Carrington and many other people had felt confident the Great Northern line eastward from Lewistown, Mont., would connect with the Northern Pacific branch at Turtle Lake and be run through Carrington, instead of coming by New Rockford across the Berthold reservation and striking the new Great Northern main line from Fargo at this point.

Sheriff Sued for Fees.

Bismarck, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Suit has been commenced against Sheriff Barnes of Burleigh county to recover $450 in fees he is said to have collected as sheriff and failed to turn over to the county treasury. The state's attorney maintains that the fees should be covered into the county treasury under the law, while it is understood that the sheriff maintains they belong to him.

Bishop Heber, while on a visit to his father-in-law, Dean Stanley, wrote "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," in fifteen minutes, making only one correction, the change of "savage" for "heathen" in the second verse.

Good Suggestion to Duluth People

It is surprising the amount of old, foul matter the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka, drains from the system. This remedy became famous by curing appendicitis and acts on BOTH the upper and lower bowel so thoroughly that ONE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation almost IMMEDIATELY. We are mighty glad we are Duluth agents for Adler-i-ka. W. A. Abbett, druggist, 205 West Superior street.

ALL FACTORS ARE BULLISH

Market Gains on Export Demand and Wet Weather in Northwest.

Flaxseed Closes Slightly Higher, With Steady Buying By Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 11.—The market was strong up to the close. May wheat closed ¼c up; July ⅝c up and September ⅝c up at 88¾c bid. May durum closed ⅜c up and July ⅝c oc.

Oats closed ⅝c up at 37⅝c for on the track and 36⅝c for to arrive. Rye closed unchanged at 57@59c and barley unchanged at 54@59c for choice stuff.

At Winnipeg May oats closed at 38@38⅛c bid, and July at 38⅜c bid.

Puts on Minneapolis July wheat durum closed ⅛c up and July ⅜c off, asked.

Conditions were bullish in the wheat market again today, and quotations were advanced moderately during the first three hours' trading. There was a continued good export demand and some business was reported to have been worked in No. 1 and No. 2 northern wheat.

Liverpool cables were higher affected by the strength of the cargo market, scarcity of first hand offers and reports of dry weather conditions on the Danube. Duluth houses interested in the trade say that the market here is steadily on an export basis with the rapid falling off in the world's supplies, causing foreign consumers some anxiety and leading them to come into the market freely to cover their current and prospective requirements.

Wheat supplies at Duluth were decreased to the extent of 2,442,479 bu, bringing them down to 7,911,300 bu. These will be still further sharply cut when a number of vessels now under the elevator spouts for loads are reported out.

The American visible supply report today showed a reduction of 5,271,000 bu in the week, bringing supplies down to 38,101,000 bu, as compared with 43,562,000 bu a year ago.

Crop reports from over the winter wheat territory were all favorable, showing perfect condition of the plant. Some anxiety was expressed, however, over the continued cold and wet weather through the Northwest, resulting in delaying seeding in the lowlying sections in Northwestern Minnesota and North Dakota. Apprehension is felt especially in the Canadian Northwest, where the seed is getting into the ground perilously late.

May wheat opened ¼c up at 93½c, and held there up to the final hour. July opened ⅛c up at 93¾c, and gained ½c more, and the September option opened ⅛c up at 88½c and held at that figure.

Durum was weak on light demand. The May option opened unchanged at 88c and did not move. July opened ¼c off at 89½c and weakened ⅛c more.

Crushers Buy Flaxseed.

Steady demand from crushers developed in flaxseed today and the market advanced moderately on a light volume of trading. The seed was firmly held under the influence of small receipts and estimates that a reduced acreage would be sown in the Northwest this spring.

Winnipeg was strong and cables were higher.

Antwerp closed 1¼c up; Buenos Aires 1c up and London 1¾c up. Final prices here showed gains of ½@⅝c.

Opening prices were all unchanged. May flax opened at $1.56¾ and closed ⅝c up at $1.57¾ asked; July opened at $1.58 and closed ⅛c up at $1.58½ bid; September opened at $1.59½ bid and closed ½c up at $1.60, and October opened at $1.56⅞ and closed ⅝c up at $1.57½ bid.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.36⅞ bid and July at $1.40 asked.

MARKET GOSSIP.

The following boats have been loaded, but shipments have not as yet been reported out of elevator stocks: Parent, 29,000 bu bonded barley; Ireland, 81,000 bu durum and 80,000 bu bonded wheat; Zimmerman, 79,000 bu bonded wheat and 18,000 bu durum.

The following boats are at the elevators loading: Zimmerman, taking on 142,000 bu durum; Cornelius, 260,000 bu spring wheat; Vulcan, 56,000 bu bonded oats, and S. Parks, 200,000 bu bonded wheat.

Wheat on passage, 41,000,000 bu, increase, 1,120,000 bu; corn, increase, 595,000 bu.

* * *

Supplies of wheat in Duluth and Minneapolis elevators on May 9 aggregated 24,6660,000 bu, against 21,806,000 bu last year. Duluth stocks were 7,911,000 bu, against 12,540,000 bu a year ago, and at Minneapolis there were 16,755,000 bu, compared with 19,266,000 bu a year ago.

* * *

Lecount wired Baker from Bradley, S. D.: "Prospects for this country never were better. The soil is thoroughly soaked. Seeding has been interrupted frequently on account of rain, yet seeding is progressing nicely and another week of favorable weather will about finish the barley seeding. Corn acreage has greatly increased here this year. There were light rains today."

* * *

Flaxseed supplies at Duluth and Minneapolis as on May 9 were 2,231,900 bu, against 4,575,000 bu a year ago. At Duluth there were 1,970,000 bu, against 4,238,000 bu a year ago, and at Minneapolis 261,000 bu, compared with 337,000 bu last year.

* * *

B. W. Snow wired from Russell, Kan.: "Abandoned acreage in Northwest Kansas has been exaggerated. The government estimate of acreage of the state is too low by fully 300,000 acres. Some good wheat was actually plowed up to make room for corn because there was not enough land left for that crop. The total corn acreage is much reduced. Wheat condition in all Kansas is perfect, with plenty of surface and sub-surface moisture. If the present prospects are maintained the state could easily make 160,000,000 bu. The ground is so heavily shaded that it can withstand much dry weather. Oats acreage is small, but condition good."

* * *

The Minneapolis cash market was strong, with good local and outside milling demand. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 2½@4c over July and velvet chaff at 2@2¾c over. There was no change in flour sales which were moderate. Some mills accumulated fair shipping directions over the week-end. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from 93c to 95c and No. 2 northern at from 91c to 93c.

* * *

John Inglis wired from Kansas City: "Have only to report the same general high condition of wheat through the western counties of Missouri. Its height and foliage is above normal. This present cool weather is favorable, but will increase the length of the straw. Dry weather is needed for the best results as next week will be the blooming period through the Southwest. Some corn is up. Oats and meadows are fine."

* * *

World's shipments—American, 3,688,000 bu; Russian, 4,856,000 bu; Danubian, 1,424,000 bu; Indian, 104,000 bu; Argentine, 1,344,000 bu; Australian, 2,112,000 bu; Chilian and North African, 104,000 bu; total, 13,632,000 bu, against 9,248,000 bu last week and 12,178,000 bu last year; corn, 3,145,000 bu, against 4,167,000 bu last year.

* * *

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—Larger world's shipments than expected and disappointing American cables brought about a soft opening, unchanged to ½d lower. Following this, shorts covered, and a good demand developed for Australian and Manitobas. Spot markets were firm and the Continent took liberally. These influences, coupled with a sharp advance in corn, induced an advance of ½d to ¼d, and at 1:30 p. m. the undertone was firm unchanged to ⅛d higher.

"Corn opened ¼d to ½d higher and later advanced ¾d to ⅝d further. The strength in Buenos Ayres Saturday, slight Plata offers, rain in Argentina and decreasing stocks here, scared the shorts, who covered freely. At 1:30 p. m. the undertone was strong, ⅝d to 1⅛d higher, with July leading the advance."

* * *

Liverpool weekly stocks were: Wheat, 3,128,000 bu, a decrease of 88,000 bu; corn, 825,000 bu, a decrease of 136,000 bu.

* * *

The Argentine spot situation in corn is still strong, owing to arrivals being damp.

* * *

Paris wheat shorts covered freely at the opening today. Crop reports were the principal factor, and native offers were light.

* * *

Duluth car inspection: Wheat—No. 1 northern, 27; No. 2 northern, 16; No. 3, 4; durum, 12; mixed, 5; total wheat, 64, last year 119; flax, 6, last year 21; oats, 3, last year 7; barley, 8, last year 16; total of all grains, 75, last year 116; on track 123.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Open Strong, But Weaken With Lack of Support.

Chicago, May 11.—Although the wheat market showed some strength today in sympathy with higher cables, prices later weakened because of lack of support. Selling from speculators became general on the advance. One of the reasons for the selling was an opinion by a leading expert that the crop outlook for South Dakota was never better. Opening prices were ⅛@¼c to ⅝c higher, but afterward the market sagged to below Saturday night's level.

Unfavorable weather northwest, large export clearances and a huge falling off in the domestic visible supply helped to cause a rally. The close was strong at ⅜c to 1c net advance.

Argentine reports that new crop arrivals were in poor condition tended to make corn here firm. Demand, however, was only moderate. The market opened ½c to ½@⅝c higher and seemed inclined to hold nearly all of the advance.

A big decrease of the stock in store here had a hardening effect on prices. The close was firm, ½c to ⅞c net higher.

Oats had but little change. Trading lacked volume.

Declining prices for hogs carried provisions down grade. First sales varied from the same as Saturday night to 10c lower with later transactions at a material further setback.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Sentiment More Cheerful and Prices Rise During Forenoon.

Bears Make Attack in Late Dealings—Close Is Easy.

New York, May 11.—The stock exchange was closed until 11 o'clock today, owing to the services in memory of the Vera Cruz dead. First transactions were quiet, with an upward tendency. The best gains were made by Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific, which rose a point each. Missouri Pacific strength was due to reports that the Kuhn-Loeb interests might still decide to undertake the road's financing. Consolidated Gas fell nearly 2 points, owing to the forthcoming issue of new stock.

Sentiment was more cheerful and prices advanced in Wall street during the forenoon. The improvement was not checked by announcement of arrangements for exportation of $2,000,000 more gold or by the discouraging tone of advices from foreign financial centers. Of the gold engagements $1,000,000 was for Paris and the remainder for Berlin. The latter consignment was the first arranged in about a year for Germany and was believed destined for Russia. Buying of stocks while not heavy, proceeded steadily. Representative shares, such as Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley, Great Northern and Reading, were lifted 1 to 1½. Bonds were irregular.

Trading lacked snap in the afternoon, but buying continued in a small way and most stocks topped their earlier prices. A decline in American stocks in London was followed by selling here for European account, amounting to about 10,000 shares. Another consignment of gold for Europe was engaged, bringing up today's total to $3,000,000. Announcement was made that the $16,000,000 of Southern Pacific convertibles left in the hands of the underwriters had all been sold. The market closed easy today. In the late dealings the bears renewed their efforts to locate soft spots and caused a sharp decline in Canadian Pacific and Missouri Pacific, which affected the entire list.

GOOD ADVANCES IN COPPER STOCKS

Advances were general through the mining stocks list at Boston today on the development of a good class of buying and strength on Wall street.

Greene-Cananea was a feature, advancing $1.38 on the announcement of the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share.

Butte & Ballaklava turned strong on the intimation that three feet of eight per cent copper rock had been cut on the 1,600-level. The crosscut is said to be not yet through the vein.

CROP CONDITIONS MOST FAVORABLE

The Van Dusen-Harrington company is of the opinion that crop conditions in the Northwest taken as a whole, are more favorable than in several years. In its weekly crop letter the opinion is expressed that small grains seeding is completed in Southern and Western Minnesota and that in North Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, at least 75 per cent of the wheat and 25 per cent of the oats seeding has been completed.

"The past week has been one of cold weather in all of the three states," the letter says. "Some rain and some snow have been received, but not in sufficient quantities to materially alter the situation. Farmers were unable to do very much field work during the week, being unable to seed only on one or two days. The low temperatures have been of material benefit as the soil has absorbed all the moisture which it has received, and the surface instead of caking has remained soft and porous, allowing the shoots of the growing grain to push through easily. The low temperatures have also caused the grain to develop good roots, and when warm weather does come, and the plant begins to grow above the ground, it will be found to have

WOUND MAY PROVE FATAL

West Duluth Girl Shoots Herself While Unloading Revolver.

Agnes Androsky, 18 years old, 314 South Sixty-second avenue west, lies at the point of death at the Duluth hospital as the result of a wound received from the accidental discharge of a revolver at her home Saturday afternoon. The bullet entered her abdomen and physicians have as yet been unable to locate it.

The girl was unloading the weapon when the accident took place. Holding it in her hand with the muzzle pointed toward her body she tried to extract a cartridge that stuck in the cylinder. In making the attempt the hammer was tripped and the gun discharged.

She was taken to the hospital and physicians operated in an attempt to get the bullet, but were unsuccessful in locating it. Dr. David Graham, superintendent of the hospital, said that the girl was in a serious condition but expects that she will recover. Her condition this afternoon was said to be improving.

BIBLE STUDENT'S SERMON ATTACKED

The sermon of Judge Rutherford given recently at the Lyceum theater on "Where Are the Dead" was attacked last night by Rev. W. H. Farrell, pastor of the Asbury Methodist church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street. The pastor charged that the Bible student did not live up to expectations and that he presented nothing new.

"For reasons best known to themselves, the 'Millenial Dawn' folks do not advertise who they represent," said Rev. Mr. Farrell. "Judge Rutherford, presenting their doctrine from the standpoint of a lawyer, failed to come up to the advertisements. The matter in his address was not new. The books published by Russell, who appears to be the society sometimes called the 'International Bible Students,' contain all there was in it. Other representatives of Russellism have preached the same stuff to Duluth audiences months before the judge got to it.

"The doctrine of soul sleeping with its attendant hersies arose among the Arabian and Armenian sects centuries ago. During the twelfth to sixteenth centuries they were passed upon by various church councils and discarded.

"Mr. Rutherford says that Satan said to Eve: 'There is no death.' Russell may say that was what Satan said but the Bible says Satan said: 'Ye shall not surely die,' a very material difference. Satan sought to mislead and he has continued an adept ever since.

"Was Adam dead after he sinned? The judge says he was legally. What is meant? The Word says 'The soul that sinneth shall die;' 'the wages of sin is death.' Paul writes 'Dead in trespass and in sin.' Though Adam did not die until 930 years later the judge says 'I say in the light of the word, 'He died to righteousness.' To pass into death by sin is far more terrible than physical death. To lose the innocence of childhood and the consciousness of God's love out of the soul is the awful tragedy of human life. This was what came to Adam as the wages of sin.

"The judge claims that all who were born were without the right to life and, therefore, sinners is not scriptural. The Scripture quoted by the judge to show that the dead are unconscious has reference solely to the physical man and the things of this life. The experience of Stephen, of the penitent thief, of Jesus, Moses, Elijah on the mount of transfiguration reveal the condition of the spirit of men after death."

WILLING TO HEAR HIS EXPLANATION

In order that West Duluth residents may know why the city commissioners favor the Gogebic street route as the best for the subway under the Northern Pacific railroad at Smithville, the West Duluth Commercial club has extended an invitation to Commissioner R. Murchison to attend the meeting of the club next Friday evening. The club recently went on record as favoring the subway under the tracks at the point where the county road crossed the railroad.

The latter place is not only favored by members of the West Duluth Commercial club, but has also been indorsed as the most feasable by the improvement club of Gary, and the New Duluth Commercial club. Members of these clubs say that the subway under the railroad at the county road will not only be cheaper for the city but will also do away with a large number of turns that would be objectionable.

Residents of the western suburbs say that if the Gogebic street route is chosen, the city will have to go to the expense of condemning the right-of-way through several lots and pay for this damage, as well as to pay property owners above Grand avenue for damages sustained by vacating the old county highway north of the railroad. The vacation of this road is believed to be necessary in case the Gogebic route is chosen.

The city commission is said to have gone on record as favoring the Gogebic street route, and members of the West Duluth Commercial club are desirous of learning why it is that this route is preferred. Mr. Murchison will be asked to explain.

LITTLE HOPE.

Even Antis in Debate Believe in the Affirmative.

A debate on the question of "Women's Suffrage" will be the feature of the program at the social center meeting at the Irving school tomorrow evening. Two young people, have been found who are willing to take the negative side of the question, although they have confessed that they are believers in granting women the right to vote.

The debate is one of a series conducted weekly by the Irving Social Center Debating class. The entire membership of the class are believers in women's suffrage. All points against the granting of suffrage to women will be fully reviewed during the evening and strong arguments to dispel all of the objections will be presented.

WILL BEGIN WORK ON NEW BRIDGE.

Contractor W. H. Kilton will start a crew of men at work next week on the construction of the concrete bridge over Keene's creek. The bridge will be completed on Sept. 1.

The bridge will be of a handsome design and will connect the city with the lower end of the Getchell road as well as with the road leading to Proctor. This bridge will also connect the boulevard with the proposed extension of this drive to Fairmont park.

The contract was let to Mr. Kilton last week by the county commissioners. The bridge will cost the county $3,200.

Hanscombe of Willmar, Minn., deputy organizer for the grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, arrived in the city this morning for the purpose of conducting a campaign for the West Duluth lodge, No. 145. Forfeit Bail.

Steel Plant Team Loses.

The Steel Plant baseball nine made its initial bow to the public yesterday on the baseball diamond. The team lined up against the Sorensen Shoe nine, and lost to it by a score of 11 to 4. Manager James O'Brien intends looking for another game with the same team later in the summer when he expects to have his team in shape to win from all comers.

No Additional Officer.

Commissioner Hicken said this morning that the report that an additional policeman will be stationed at New Duluth is incorrect. The police force will not be increased, but another fireman will be sent to the suburb at the time the team is sent there for the gasoline pumper.

"Old Time Party."

A joint meeting of the Pocahontas and West Duluth councils of the Royal League will be held tomorrow evening at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms. Following the business meeting a committee will hold an "old time party." Various old time games will be played and prizes will be given. The affair will be for members only. Mrs. T. F. Olson and Mrs. Thomas W. Brain are in charge of the arrangements for the program.

MARINE NEWS

NO PROFITS FOR OWNERS

Many Vessels May Be Laid Up Until Conditions Improve.

So poor has traffic been on the Great Lakes since the beginning of navigation this season, that many of the vessels depending upon ore, grain and lumber cargoes, are expected to tie up until conditions improve. Prospects at present are not bright, according to local marine men.

"At the beginning of the season," said a Duluth marine man today," vessel men decided to run for a time despite poor business as long as the trips could be continued without loss. The way matters now stand, it will be impossible for vessel owners to make enough to pay their crews and other necessary expenses. The expected improvement has not come.

"Rates on grain in the East have practically been reduced from 1¼ cent to ⅞ of a cent and a five-cent reduction on ore has come with the lowering of the grain rate. Put this on top of a poor call for all grades of lumber, and vessel men are losing courage."

It is said that in the East coal shippers have chartered vessels to return from Lake Michigan light to load coal. Ore cargoes are so scarce and grain so unprofitable that it does not pay to send vessels to Lake Superior for grain. A few wild ore cargoes have been chartered during the last few days, but were not plentiful enough to help the traffic.

Some chartering has been done for boats to load at Duluth this week for Buffalo at 1¼ cent and a small boat was placed for Collingwood at 1-cent on corn. Cargoes of this kind are not coming fast enough to help traffic materially. The congestion at Buffalo is not being relieved and the dispatch is such that all profit is wiped out before the boats are unloaded.

WANT WARNING ON KEWEENAW POINT

Calumet, Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the stranding every season, year after year, almost without fail, of one or more of the big lake carriers and many of the smaller ships on the reefs that line the west and north shores of Keweenaw point, the establishment of a warning and beacon has been suggested and the mater is put up clearly to the Lake Carriers' association through the press. It would be almost impossible to estimate the losses that have occurred along this shore because there is no warning whistle to apprise captains of their locality during foggy or thick weather. The last warning they are given until they reach the shores of Keweenaw, when downbound, is at the Apostle islands, 10 miles to the west. The point of Keweenaw, jutting out half way across Lake Superior, must be crossed or navigated about merely by the "feel" and by compass and it has become noticeable that the compass often goes wrong as boats approach this west shore.

Upbound the boats have plenty of warnings on the east coast and point, but downbound it is a different matter.

Signal at Five Mile.

It is proposed that a fog warning and beacon be established at Five-Mile point some distance west of Eagle River and west of the dangerous Sawtooth reef, on which the Moreland, the Pickands, the Baker and a score of other carriers have been stranded the past ten or twenty years.

It is suggested that if the Lake Carriers' association cannot prevail upon the government to establish the station it would almost pay the association to take care of the matter, for it is estimated that losses to ships along this west shore since the Pickands went to pieces there in 1894 have amounted to $3,000,000. True, there has been no great loss of life, with the exception of the time the wrecker Fern went down with five persons, but the loss to ship owners piles up more and more year after year.

GALE EXPECTED OVER GREAT LAKES

Storm warnings for the upper lakes have been issued by the local branch of the weather bureau and navigators are requested to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Warning was received here of a storm in Eastern Nebraska which is moving rapidly eastward. It will hit the upper lakes at almost any time in the form of a northeast and east wind with gale force, that being forty miles an hour or over. Rain or snow will accompany it.

The weather observer has warned all shipping offices and all points on the bay where ships report.

A strong northeast wind began to blow early this morning and attained a velocity of twenty miles an hour by noon.

Below freezing temperatures are reported all over the northwest and parts of Canada. Snow is falling in Montana and the Dakotas. The worst of the storm, however, is expected to follow a southerly course and the lower lakes will probably get the brunt of the gale.

NINE NEW PLATES FOR THE AMERICA.

The steamer America, which was taken to the dry dock at Superior after being released from the rocks on Fisherman's Point near Two Harbors last week, will be put into commission again this week. It is not certain just yet when she will be able to sail again. It was found that nine new plates were necessary.

Marine Capitalist Dies.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 11.—Waldo Avery, Detroit capitalist, former steamboat and lumber man, died at his home at Grosse Pointe, Saturday, after an illness of a year. Mr. Avery was at one time one of the best known vessel owners on the lakes, having been a member of the firm of Avery & Roby, later the Hawgood & Avery Transit company, which owns the S. S. Curry.

He began his career as a lumber tallier on the Saginaw river. After serving with gangs of lumberjacks, he laid the foundation of his fortune by delivering logs to the many mills in the Saginaw valley. Then he started a small planing mill. When he died he was interested in a half dozen banks, one of Detroit's largest office buildings and many other enterprises.

Tug Schedule Changes.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 11.—Local managers of the Great Lakes Towing company will meet at the offices of the company in the Rockefeller building Tuesday morning to arrange working schedules that will comply with the government regulation that prevents a tugman working more than thirteen hours at a shift. Officers of the tugmen's union also will be present, and the wage contract entered into early in the spring will be revised to meet the new conditions.

It has been held no tugmen can be on duty more than thirteen hours, regardless of whether the tug is being navigated or not. The Buffalo strike will probably be settled at the meeting Tuesday.

Huron Wants Fleet.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 11.—Huron will extend an invitation to boat owners to lay up their craft there next winter, with a promise of protection against fire and other damage. Fitting out vessels wintering at Huron has brought a great deal of patronage to local dealers.

Grain Is Condemned.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 11.—The Yuma lost about three days at Milwaukee when inspectors condemned grain she was loading. She had to unload 50,000 bushels of the poor quality at their order. She is loading 132,000 bushels of wheat for Buffalo.

NERVY GIRL NAMES SLOOP DEFIANCE

Bath, Me., May 11.—The Defiance, second of three America's cup candidates to plunge into the sea, was favored with ideal weather conditions for her launching today.

The difficulty surrounding the christening ceremony which arose when it was announced some time ago that the sloop would be launched bow first, was solved by the decision of Miss Frances Clark to stand on the deck and smash a bottle of wine on the bow as the boat took the water.

Miss Clark is a daughter of E. Walter Clark of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Tri-City syndicate, which built the boat.

Besides George M. Pynchon of New York, managing director, and other members of the syndicate, Governor Haynes and the mayors of several Maine cities were present.

DAMAGE DISPUTE IS ADJUSTED

Differences which arose between Frank Spicker and his employer, the Hobart Iron company, as to the amount of compensation Spicker was to receive for injuries sustained in an accident at the Elba mine, Jan. 15 last, have been adjusted.

Under the terms of a settlement which was approved by a district judge and filed with the clerk of the court today, Spicker will receive $201.25 from the company for the loss of the little finger of his left hand and a bad cut on the ring finger of the same hand. Settlement was made in accordance with the new workingmen's compensation act. Spicker resides at Gilbert.

Nick Vickage, 27, has accepted $165 from the Zenith Furnace company for a fracture of a bone in his right arm received in an accident at the West Duluth blast furnace Feb. 12 last. The settlement, made under the terms of the new law, was approved today in district court.

Notice is hereby given that on June 17, 1914, at 10 o'clock a. m., in the office of the County Auditor at Duluth, St. Louis county, in the state of Minnesota, I will offer for sale certain unsold state lands and also those state lands which have reverted to the state by reason of the non-payment of interest.

Terms: Fifteen per cent of the purchase price and interest on the unpaid balance from date of sale to June 1, 1915, must be paid at the time of sale. The balance of purchase money is payable in whole or in part on or before forty years from date of sale; the rate of interest on the unpaid balance is 4 per cent per annum, payable in advance on June 1 of each year; provided the principal remains unpaid for ten years; but if the principal is paid within ten years from date of sale, the rate of interest will be computed at 5 per cent per annum.

Appraised value of timber, if any, must also be paid at the time of sale. Lands on which the interest is delinquent may be redeemed at any time up to the hour of sale, or before resale to an actual purchaser.

All mineral rights are reserved by the laws of the state.

Not more than 320 acres can be sold or contracted to be sold to any one purchaser.

Agents acting for purchasers must furnish affidavit of authority. Appraisers' reports, showing quality and kind of soil, are on file in this office.

Lists of lands to be offered may be obtained of the State Auditor or the State Commissioner of Immigration at St. Paul, and of the County Auditor at above address.

ACRE TRACTS.

FACTS ABOUT LAKEWOOD PARK GARDENS.

To start with, the price is $100 less per acre than is asked for other acre tracts within city limits.

No other tracts have transportation facilities like Lakewood Park Gardens. Four trains daily stop within stone's throw of tracts; auto road to every tract; phone, electric light and city water can be had. Tracts lie well, gently sloping towards the lake; good soil, easily cleared, no stone.

The Congdon boulevard, which is now a certainty (thousands of dollars having been spent to date), adjoins this property.

One acre, 2½ or 5 acres can be bought on easy terms.

BARTLETT-PEARSON CO.,
First National Bank Building,
Duluth, Minn.

ON TROUT STREAM.

Four acres within city limits, all cleared, now in meadow; Amity creek (trout stream) crosses land. This land has all been plowed and is very fertile. Only 25 minutes from car line. $150 cash will handle this, balance can be paid in small payments on time. Price is only $800. This is much closer in than other acres that are selling from $250 to $300 per acre, unimproved and without the trout stream.

See me at once about this.

L. H. WHIPPLE,
701 Torrey Building.

SALE — MISCELLANEOUS

OUR METHOD OF SELLING FURNITURE, RUGS, ETC., for the home 35 to 40 per cent less than retail shop prices has brought huge success to the promoters of this business. We have knocked clean off the map the old idea that it is necessary to make 100 per cent profit on every piece of furniture sold in order to show a reasonable return on the dealer's investment. No concern in the furniture world has equaled our record the past year. We claim it is possible to furnish "good furniture" for the home at a much lower price than has been asked heretofore in Duluth by retail shops and yet win success galore. Our method of doing business with its wonderful price saving to purchasers has been the means of creating a much greater demand for "good furniture," rugs, etc., for the home because the average homemaker found he could buy much more for less money at our salesrooms. Therefore, we are trade stimulators and important factors in reducing the high cost of living.

SAYS THE NEW HAVEN FINANCES ARE CASE FOR THE CRIMINAL COURTS

Suggestion Is Made By Commerce Commission Official.

Voucher for $381 "for 15,000 Prayers" Is Presented.

Inquiry Into Billard Company Affair Is Nearing End.

Washington, May 12.—Indications today were that the inquiry being conducted by the interstate commerce commission into the financial operations of the New Haven railroad and the Billard company soon would run its course.

"This is a case for the criminal courts," suggested one official of the commission, "not for a civil proceeding. It appears doubtful whether, in a proceeding of this kind, the real facts can be developed."

Upon resumption of the hearing today Timothy E. Byrnes, former vice president of the New Haven, was recalled.

Mr. Folk submitted a voucher for $381 in favor of Sylvester Baxter, "for 15,000 prayers."

"Prayers," mused Mr. Folk; "what did the New Haven want with 15,000 prayers?"

"It probably needed more than that," said Mr. Byrnes. "People were praying then, just as they are praying now, for a rest."

Paid "Expert" $1,000.

Questioned as to the employment of W. S. McNary of Boston, Mr. Byrnes said McNary was given about $1,000 for making a careful study of the probable effect of the Grand Trunk railroad coming into Boston.

"McNary was an expert on transportation matters," said Mr. Byrnes. "He had made speeches for years before chambers of commerce, trade bodies and similar organizations."

"Did his holding a public position have anything to do with his employment?"

"At that time he had no public place. He was a clerk in a furniture store."

"You didn't pay him to keep him quiet?"

"The money paid him did not change his attitude."

GULF PIPE LINE HEARINGS PLANNED.

Washington, May 12.—Cato Sells, commissioner of the Indian bureau, today announced that, acting with Lieut. J. O. Richardson of the navy department, he would open hearings May 21 under the senate resolution proposing an investigation of the feasibility of a government oil pipe line from the Oklahoma oil fields to the Gulf of Mexico.

CLAIM BODIES FROM MEXICO

Relatives Take Those Sent Home From Vera Cruz.

Pittsburg and Philadelphia Honor Dead From Those Cities.

New York, May 12.—The great public tribute at an end, the relatives of three of the seventeen sailors and marines killed at Vera Cruz claimed their bodies and took them to their homes in this city. The bodies of the others were sent to their various destinations.

Pittsburg Mourns.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 12.—With the arrival here today of the body of Francis P. Delowry, Pittsburg began to do honor to its son who died with eighteen others in the fighting incident to the American occupation of Vera Cruz. Tomorrow morning, which will be a public holiday by proclamation of Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, the public funeral will be held in St. Paul's cathedral.

The body lay in state today in Soldiers' Memorial hall. This evening it will be taken to the home of the dead seaman's parents and tomorrow it will be taken to the cathedral. All flags in the city are at half mast.

Mourning In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 12.—The bodies of George McKenzie Poinsett and Charles Allen Smith, Philadelphia sailors killed in action at Vera Cruz, rested today within the darkened homes of their grief-stricken families. As a tribute to both men there lay on the coffin of Seaman Smith a beautiful wreath sent by the president of the United States. Both homes were closed to all except relatives and near friends. Later in the day private funeral services were held over both bodies.

At sunrise tomorrow the bodies of the two young seamen will be conveyed under military escort to Independence hall, where Philadelphia's tribue to the dead will be paid. The bodies will lie in state until the afternoon, when a military funeral will be held. All the bluejackets and marines at the navy yard, the national guard regiments in Philadelphia, local civic bodies, the mayor and council will participate.

The Poinsett family has received a letter from Chaplain C. H. Dickens of the battleship Florida, saying that the officers and men of the ship, of which Poinsett was one of the crew, desire to erect a tombstone over the grave of their comrade.

ACCUSED OF HIRING FALSE WITNESSES

JOHN BECKER.

New York, May 12.—John Becker, the brother of Charles Becker, who is also on the police force, has been directly accused by one of the parties to the recent false evidence in the case of the four gunmen, of having procured the perjured testimony in favor of the gunmen for its influence in the case against his brother.

ROSE REPEATS MURDER STORY

"Bald Jack" Testifies at Becker's Second Trial.

Shapiro, Driver of the Murder Car, Also Is Witness.

New York, May 12.—"Bald Jack" Rose, star witness at the first trial of Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, appeared in that role again today. A trifle stouter than when he appeared before, he took the stand shortly before noon and calmly told of the part he played in the events leading up to the gambler's death. Substantially it was the same story that he told at the first trial.

Briefly, Rose recited how Becker and Rosenthal had entered into partnership in a gambling establishment; how they quareled; how exposure for Becker was imminent, and how Rosenthal's death was plotted.

Shapiro's Story.

William Shapiro, driver of the gunmen's car, also testified today. He said he knew "Bald Jack" Rose and "Bridgie" Webber. He told of receiving a call at his stand in front of the Cafe Boulevard late at night on July 12. He then went to Tom Sharkey's saloon, where he picked up Rose, Harry Vallon and Sam Schepps.

"At 'Bridgie' Webber's poker rooms the occupants of the car got out," he said. "Fifteen minutes later, Dago Frank, Gyp the Blood, Whitey Lewis and Lefty Louie came out and I was ordered to go to the Metropole hotel.

"At the Metropole, Dago Frank ordered me to turn the car around so it would face toward Sixth avenue. The four men got out and went to the other side of the street.

"In fifteen minutes I heard a shot and then four more. I looked toward the Metropole and saw a man fall. I started my machine. I was going to get away from there. I had gone about fifty feet when the four men caught up with me and jumped on board.

"Becker Has Fixed Them."

"I heard Whitey say, 'Make the

DEMOCRATS FACE LIVELY CAUCUS

Program to Allow Adjournment Early in July Is Sought.

Washington, May 12.—Prospects today were for a lively meeting when the house Democrats caucus tonight to formulate the party legislative program for the remainder of the session, with adjournment early in July in view.

Plans of the leaders today were for passage of the annual supply bills, enactment of anti-trust measures, the rural credits bill and a vote on the prohibition amendment. The caucus will consider all these measures, and the prohibition amendment may be injected into the deliberations.

Some of the Democrats, however, launched a movement today to have the caucus declare in favor of adjournment of congress immediately after disposing of the appropriation bills. Majority Leader Underwood is prepared to offer a resolution at tonight's caucus to give precedence to pending features in the legislative program.

A contrary movement was on foot today to introduce a resolution at the caucus favoring passage by congress of the remainder of the appropriation bills, and then adjourn. The prospects were, however, that the latter plan would not be successful.

NOYES WRITES OF THE A. P.

President of Big News Association Answers Its Critics.

Sends Letter to National Newspaper Conference at Lawrence, Kan.

Lawrence, Kan., May 12.—The newspaper profession is as sacred a calling as the ministry, in the opinion of Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus, Ohio, as expressed in an address made by the preacher and former editor before hundreds of newspaper men here today at the National Newspaper conference being conducted by the University of Kansas in connection with Kansas newspaper week.

Other speakers on today's program were H. F. Harrington of the Ohio State Journal and Will Irwin, a magazine writer. A letter from Frank B. Noyes of Washington, D. C., president of the Associated Press, on press association work, was read.

Dr. Gladden decried what he referred to as a tendency of some newspapers towards "habits of exaggeration" and the exploitation of crime, vice and scandal.

Rejoice in the Good.

"I know of some newspapers," said Dr. Gladden, "that are doing much to bring to earth a reign of good will. They are disposed to discern the good and rejoice in it; they cultivate gracious speech and kindly judgment of their fellow men. And yet I fear that it is true that in collecting and presenting the news of the day, the habit which so largely prevails of fixing the attention upon the evil of society, of keeping the seamy side of life uppermost, of exploiting crime and vice and scandal, furnishes to quite too large an extent the common notion of the function of journalism.

"Is it not true that one of the deepest needs of our social life is the need of a kindlier judgment of our neighbors? The need of a disposition to see the good side of everybody? And has not the newspaper a very large responsibility in obtaining such conditions?

Letter From Frank B. Noyes.

A large part of the day was given to discussions of news associations and questions pertaining to memberships in the same. Charles H. Grasty, editor of the Baltimore Sun, is to address the editors tonight. Mr. Noyes' letter was as follows:

MOYER MAY NOT BE TRIED UNTIL JULY

Heavy Docket Will Delay Case in Michigan Court.

L'Anse, Mich., May 12.—The trial of Charles H. Moyer, president, and thirty-seven other officers and members of the Western Federation of Miners, who are under a joint indictment in Houghton county on the charge of conspiring to interfere with non-union copper mine workers, probably will not begin before the latter part of June or the first of July.

Judge O'Brien has set the case for trial at the May term beginning here next Monday, but owing to a heavy docket it probably will not be reached until late in the term, it was learned today.

Moyer has sent word that he will appear for trial without extradition when the case is called. He has not been in Michigan since his indictment last January. He is now at the union headquarters in Denver. The conspiracy case was one of the results of the copper mine workers' strike which ended last month.

HUERTA FORCES HAVE ABANDONED SAN BLAS; ORDERED TO CAPITAL

Dictator Is Said to Plan Strengthening of Army There.

Americans in Yaqui Valley Decide to Stay on Ranches.

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan, Mex., May 11, by wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 12.—Mexican Federal troops defending San Blas, a seaport half way between Mazatlan and Manzanillo, have evacuated the town. It is understood they were ordered by Provisional President Huerta to proceed to Mexico City to strengthen the force there. It is believed troops at other points on the west coast will be ordered to the capital.

Americans in the Yaqui valley have decided to remain on their ranches. Gen. Obregon is said to have guaranteed every protection.

Killings Confirmed.

Walter Neal, an American wounded by Federals recently near El Favor mine, is now safe with his family aboard the cruiser Maryland at Manzanillo, according to a wireless message received today from that vessel. Neal confirmed the report of an attack on the mine April 26 and the killing of C. B. Hoadley, an American, and of G. E. Williams, an Englishman.

Desultory fighting continues at Mazatlan.

The gunboat Guerrero, which left Mazatlan May 7 carrying city officials and other refugees, touched yesterday at Manzanillo and discharged several passengers.

MEXICANS ARE NOT AFRAID OF ZAPATA

Conditions in the Capital Are Reported Not Abnormal.

Washington, May 12.—Our response to the request of the state department through foreign diplomatic channels here for information as to actual conditions in Mexico City was received today. The message stated that the situation in Mexico City was not abnormal; that the people were not particularly alarmed over reports that the bandit leader, Zapata, might swoop down upon the city, and that there was no apparent weakening on the part of Gen. Huerta.

ANTI-AMERICAN LABEL ON EMBASSY

"Death to Americans" Appears Written in Spanish at Paris.

Paris, May 12.—"Death to Americans!" was written in Spanish in large black characters across the stone doorstep of the United States embassy offices in Paris early today. The authorities have posted three policemen on permanent duty in the vicinity.

WHERE AMERICAN GUN-FIRE TOOK EFFECT

CHURCH STEEPLE, VERA CRUZ.

Washington, May 12.—In the firing incident to the occupation by Americans of Vera Cruz, churches were spared at first, but there was continual sniping from this tower and the "Chester" was ordered to drive the Mexicans out. The hole from a 5-inch shell can be seen at the top.

FIRST SHIP THROUGH CANAL NEXT WEEK

Cucaracha Channel Will Be Finished By Thursday.

Panama, May 12.—The first ship to pass through the Panama canal under regular conditions will probably make the trip early next week.

According to Governor Goethals, the channel through Cucaracha will be completed about Thursday. Observations will be maintained on the slide for a short time, and then a Panama railway ship, with cargo, will be sent through. The channel is being dredged at the rate of 100 feet daily, and the Empire suspension bridge will be removed immediately.

The report that the steamer Pennsylvania of the Pacific mail line will make the passage of the canal is erroneous.

HUERTA AND ZAPATA FORCES HAVE CLASH

Washington, May 12.—Admiral Howard, commanding the American fleet off the west coast of Mexico, today reported a battle between Mexican Federals and Zapata revolutionists, twenty miles from Acapulco. Admiral Howard said that sixteen Zapatistas were killed.

The fighting at Mazatlan continues, the report said.

WILL REBUILD TENT COLONY

Colorado Strikers Clearing the Ground at Ludlow.

Ammons' Plan for State Constabulary Is Killed in Senate.

Trinidad, Col., May 12.—Union leaders in the Southern Colorado strike fields today began preparations for the erection of a new tent colony at Ludlow. Strikers were engaged in clearing the site of the old colony, which was destroyed by fire April 20 when 22 people were killed.

Present plans contemplate the erection of the new colony adjacent to the old site.

According to previous statements of the military officers, authority for the construction of a new camp was not to be given until union leaders had secured approval of the men selected to have charge of the colony and submitted a roster of its inhabitants. When this would be done was not known definitely.

Operators were formulating plans for the operation of mines which were being run before April 20.

Enforcement of disarmament of the contending factions in the strike district, in accordance with the proclamation issued yesterday fixing 5 o'clock Wednesday evening as the time limit for voluntary surrender of arms, is expected to bear out the promise of strike leaders that no hostilities will be shown to the Federal troops.

The coroner's jury has found that nine persons who died at the battle of Forbes, April 29, came to their deaths from "gunshot wounds inflicted by weapons fired in the hands of striking coal miners." The jury did not fix responsibility upon any individual striker.

PRESIDENT WILSON IS OPTIMISTIC OVER MEXICAN SITUATION

Statement Is Made After Meeting of the Cabinet.

Huerta Inspirer of Complaints at Arrests of South Americans.

Funston Denies Apparent Danger of Attack at Vera Cruz.

Washington, May 12.—Members of the cabinet after a prolonged conference with President Wilson today on the Mexican situation declared the president maintained confidence that mediation would succeed and that further serious consequences in Mexico would be averted.

Most of the discussion in the cabinet, it was said, related to mediation and the views to be presented on behalf of this government by Justice Lamar and Frederick W. Lehmann, when the South American envoys seek views of the United States and Huerta's representatives at the Niagara Falls conference.

Cruiser From England.

The report from London that Great Britain had ordered the Bristol, a speedy cruiser, to proceed to Tampico, was not regarded as particularly significant here. As the Bristol is of light draft it was believed she might be used to operate in the Panuco river, along which the British oil properties are located.

Secretary Bryan announced after the meeting that the representations made to this government by the South American mediators in behalf of the South American "snipers" under arrest in Vera Cruz, were made at the request of the Huerta government. He understood, he said, that this had been done on the ground that the "sniping" had occurred in Mexican territory. He added that there was a question as to whether one of the South Americans accused was a Brazilian or a Venezuelan.

BAD FLOODS IN MICHIGAN

Heavy Rainfall Does Great Damage in South of State.

Kalamazoo and Vicinity Suffer Most—One Man Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., May 12.—All Southern Michigan has suffered severely because of the unusually heavy rain storm which has prevailed since yesterday morning, with no immediate prospect of abatement.

Reports today indicated that at least one life had been lost and the property damage will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. City cellars are flooded and the country lowlands in many places practically washed out. In many districts the rainfall was the heaviest in years.

Teamster Drowned.

At Kalamazoo, Thomas Graham, a teamster, was drowned today while attempting to get his horses out of the water. The Kalamazoo celery crop is reported almost entirely washed out, and the entire crop will have to be reset. The fruit crop there was also badly damaged.

Telephone wires are down and little information could be gathered this forenoon from outside points. Traffic is delayed on all railroads passing through Kalamazoo.

Floods at Adrian.

The city of Adrian was practically without fire protection today, the Raisen river having overflowed its banks and reached the highest stage recorded in many years. Several families living in the lowlands have been forced from their homes by boats and in some cases buildings have been washed away. Alarm was felt for the safety of the railroad bridges in this district.

The local weather bureau reported that the Detroit rainfall in the last twenty-four hours was the heaviest May rainfall in forty-two years, having reached a stage of 2.36 this forenoon, with the rain still falling. Cellars are flooded in the northern part of the city, and some of the large automobile factories have been compelled to close down.

BASKING IN SUNSHINE

Warm Weather Brings Out Idle Men Along Michigan Street.

"Lure of the Road" Beginning to Make Itself Felt.

The change in weather today with sunshine and warmth brought hundreds of idle men into the streets. Michigan street was crowded with them today and the railings about the railway stations and the Sixth avenue bridge were lined with idlers basking in the sunshine.

Between 200 and 300 could be seen at almost any time leaning on the railings or sprawled on the grass near the tracks. Many were gathered in front of the employment offices looking for jobs while others watched the outgoing freights for a chance to "hook" a ride to some other city.

From all appearances the "lure of the road" has seized the migratory worker, and restlessness is apparent on all sides. Discussions of prospective jobs, politics and labor troubles occupied little groups of men here and there, and now and then some individual would express a deep yearning for the "good old days" when free lunch was plentiful.

"I remember the time," said a knight of the box car trail as he nursed a black clay pipe to warm up his sentiments and stimulate his flow of language, "when I made $6 a day during the world's fair in Chicago and then had to eat at the soup house in the winter. But it's gittin' warm and the box cars is good enough for muh."

Few of the men are pessimistic, as work is opening up as the season advances. The lateness of the spring has caused delays in many lines of enterprise, but orders for men are beginning to come in at the employment offices, and much better times are looked for by the men.

Duluth Inventors Allowed Patents.

Messrs. Herbert O. Johnson and Daniel Keefe of this city have just been allowed a patent by the United States patent office upon an improvement in curb boxes and cock support.

The inventors have realized for a long time the need of an improvement in curb connections for water and gas and the present invention is the result of their careful study and practical experiments and which has fully overcome the objections to the old form of connection.

The patent was secured through the office of S. George Stevens, 716 Fidelity building.

PAVING WORK IS UNDER WAY

West Superior Street Improvement Is Progressing Rapidly.

The city's improvement program for the season is now well under way.

The paving of West Superior street between Fifteenth and Thirtieth avenues, west begun last week and a large part of the surfacing on the lower side has already been removed. The city is doing the job by day labor for the first time in its history. James Preston is in charge and he will push it through to completion without delay. Being the first big paving job to be handled directly by the city, both Commissioner Murchison, head of the works division, and Mr. Preston are eager to establish a record. A brick pavement on a concrete base will be laid.

Saturday was the last day for filing notices of appeal from the assessment, amounting to $275 for each 50-foot lot. No appeals are being taken. As the property owners are getting an excellent bargain, it is unlikely that any difficulty will be experienced in collecting the assessments.

The underground work on Lake avenue, which will be concreted from the canal to Twelfth street, has been finished and the grading will soon be under way, closely followed by the laying of the concrete. This is also being done by day labor under the city's direction.

Yesterday afternoon the council awarded the contract for paving Vernon street with brick on a concrete base to E. A. Dahl. The improvement will extend from Grand Forks avenue to the west line of Bryant's addition and will be a connecting link between First and Third streets. When this and the West Superior street job are finished, the city will have a better highway from the downtown section to the western suburbs, than has been the case for years. Traffic will be able to follow West Third street, which has been resurfaced, to Vernon street, take Vernon street to First street and then hit Superior street.

The contract for the Duluth Heights sewer system has been awarded to Rogers & McLean. It is the biggest sewer job of the year, involving more than $11,000.

Several small jobs have been let and are under way. The laying of plank and cement sidewalks has been started, and in a short time the full maintenance and repair gangs will be busy on the streets. The cleaning and sprinkling contracts were let some time ago.

STATE AID FOR RURAL SCHOOLS

Out of $50,000 which will be apportioned among the schools of the state this year under the state land aid appropriation, the schools of St Louis county will receive the sum of $13,163. This amount was received from the state treasurer today by County Treasurer George H. Vivian.

The sum allotted to St. Louis county will be divided among the various school districts in proportion to the acreage of state land in each district. The Duluth district will receive nothing as no state land is included within its boundries. The largest amount goes to the unorganized school district, which will receive $4,970.

The act under which the money is appropriated provides that no part of the money appropriated shall be used for the purchase of any school site or for the erection of any school building. Under the terms of the act, no school is entitled to receive more than $250 in any one year.

SUPT. DENFELD BACK AT DUTIES AFTER LEAVE

Supt. R. E. Denfeld of the city schools has returned from Battle Creek, Mich., where he has been taking the rest cure for the last six weeks. Supt. Denfeld caught a cold in the early part of the winter, and despite all efforts to rid himself of it, it hung on, until he felt it imperative that he take heroic measures.

So the school board gave him six weeks leave of absence and he proceeded to kill the cold. He has been successful and has returned to his duties with most of his old-time vim and energy.

WILL RESUME WORK ON STEVENS ROAD

Work on the Stevens road out of Brookston, which has been held up for several months by an injunction suit brought by James Richardson, a settler, over whose land a portion of the highway traversed, will be resumed this summer.

Judge Bert Fesler in district court today after hearing the injunctional suit on its merits, denied the application of Richardson for a permanent injunction restraining St. Louis county from proceeding further with the construction of the road and dismissed the temporary restraining order which has been holding up the work.

The Stevens road was established several years ago by the county board. It was established along the quarter line running south through the village of Brookston in section 34, 54-18. Last fall, when the county attempted to improve the road, it was found that in some places along the line established, it was impracticable to build a highway.

Under regular legal proceedings, the board of commissioners ordered the original route changed, and in doing so placed the right-of-way on higher ground so that it cut across the corner of Richardson's land in the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 34, 54-18.

When Commissioner Kauppi of the Fifth district attempted to go ahead with the work last fall, he was stopped by an injunction issued from the district court temporarily restraining the county from proceeding until after the case had been tried in district court on its merits. The action came before Judge Fesler this morning and was dismissed on the motion of C. E. Adams, attorney for the county board.

INSULT TO INJURY.

M. Kavalumas Is Arrested After Having Nose Broken.

After being struck on the nose, and having it broken by the blow, Michael Kavalunas, 38 years old, had to suffer more humiliation last evening by being arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

Kavalunas asserts that he was walking along Superior street about 11 o'clock, when some one struck him in the face just as he came to the corner of Seventh avenue. The blow broke his nose and cut his upper lip, but Kavalunas is unable to tell who attacked him. He went to Patrolmen Ricketts and Le Beau, who brought him to police headquarters, where his injury was dressed by Police Surgeon Murphy. Later he was placed in a cell on a charge of drunkenness.

In police court this morning Judge Cutting dismissed the case against Kavalunas after hearing the injured man's story.

NEW TRAIN TO SUBURBS

Better Service Will Probably Be Provided By Northern Pacific.

A change in schedule of the operation of trains between Duluth and the steel plant suburbs is being considered which will enable people to get to the suburbs earlier in the morning, later in the evening and also enable those employed in the city to get uptown earlier. The matter is to be taken up for official consideration Thursday when the assistant general manager of the Northern Pacific railroad will be in the city.

The proposed change will provide a through train that will leave the Union station shortly after 6 o'clock in the morning. This train will not take any of the employes to the steel plant. On its return trip it will make all of the regular stops and arrive at the Union station at about 7:50 a. m.

A steel plant train will follow this eastbound train from West Duluth carrying from eight to ten coaches. It will arrive at the plant at 7 o'clock, giving the men fifteen minutes to get to their places before the whistle blows. This train of coaches will be held at New Duluth as at present until 5.50, when it will make its return trip picking up the workmen about ten minutes earlier than at present.

This latter train will be able to leave earlier owing to an arrangement which is expected to be made for a later train from the city to Fond du Lac. It is expected that this train will leave Duluth about 5:50 or 6 o'clock and the two trains will pass each other near Sixty-third avenue instead of as present at New Duluth. It is not expected to change the time on any of the other trains.

A delegation of New Duluth and other suburban residents will wait on the officials of the road on Thursday to present their request. Among those who will appear before the officials will be members of the New Duluth Commerical club.

"THE ORACLE" IS READY FOR PRINTERS.

At the meeting of the Industrial high school commission and board of editors for the "Oracle," to be held Friday, final arrangements for placing the publication in the hands of the printer will be made. All of the matter to be published in the book will be in at that time.

It is expected to publish about 200 copies of the Oracle. Last year about 150 copies were disposed of to students of the school. The cost of publication will amount to about $500.

PROCTOR RESIDENTS BEAUTIFYING VILLAGE.

Today and next Tuesday have been designated as "clean-up" days in Proctor. Hundreds of people are today busily engaged in removing rubbish from their back yards.

Following a campaign that has been under way for several weeks every resident of the village has taken a hold of the proposition to beautify Proctor. Lawns are being laid out, flower beds and vegetable gardens seeded and in front of many of the homes trees are being planted.

Not only are the residents taking hold but the city officials have a large force of men cleaning the streets and alleys. Business men have also co-operated, and all rubbish which has gathered in the rear of these stores has been removed during the day.

Annual Track Meet.

RACE ROW ENDS IN COURT.

Two Pay Fines for Fighting on the Streets.

Theodore Olson, 24, and Jesse Wilkeson, 25, colored, had to pay a fine of $3 and costs each in police court this morning as the final act in their debate on the race problem, which they attempted to solve at Tenth avenue west and Superior street last evening.

According to their stories in police court, Wilkeson and his wife were walking along Superior street and in passing Olson on the corner of Tenth avenue west, the latter pushed Wilkeson, who resented the action and started an argument. This led to a fight, after the race question had been brought up by the two men, and only the timely arrival of Patrolmen Ricketts and Monahan prevented possible serious results.

Both Olson and Wilkeson were arrested on a charge of fighting on the street. In police court this morning they pleaded guilty, each drawing a fine of $3 and costs or three days in the county jail. They paid their fines.

FOUR KILLED IN WISCONSIN

Storm Injures Score More and Does $500,000 Damage.

Iowa, Kansas, Ohio and Pennsylvania Towns Suffer.

Chicago, May 12.—Four persons in Southern and Central Wisconsin are reported killed as a result of the wind and rain storm that struck that state yesterday. Many buildings were demolished and reports from Dane, Rock, Jefferson, Waukesha, Milwaukee and Racine counties indicated that the damage to buildings and crops would be more than $500,000.

Three dead:

MRS. L. OLSON, Klevinville, Dane county, killed at Verona, when county laundry was wrecked.

HARVEY SJOBLOOM of Stoughton, killed by falling tree.

LAYMAN FREDERICKSON, Oregon, 4 years old, struck by lightning.

WILLIAM POST, Westport, struck by lightning.

The storm extended into Northern Illinois. At Freeport, Miss Carrie Warner was struck by lightning. The depot at Starved Rock, near Ottawa, was struck by lightning and destroyed.

Catholic School Hit.

Racine, Wis., May 12.—Lightning yesterday struck the St. Rose Catholic school building and 500 little children dashed for the doorways. Several were bruised, but all made their way to the street without serious injury.

A high gale on Lake Michigan demolished smallboats in the harbor and wrecked several old buildings on the lake shore.

About Twenty Injured.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12.—Belated dispatches from the stormswept district of Southern Wisconsin show that seven counties suffered severely with money losses amounting to from $100,000 to $200,000 in each county, growing crops of tobacco being especial sufferers. In Dane county alone the loss from destroyed barns figured about $125,000. There were four killed in the district affected and about 20 injured in all.

Two Hurt in Kansas.

Cherryvale, Kan., May 12.—Two persons were injured and small buildings blown over in a storm here late yesterday. Elmer C. McKnight and his sister, riding in a rural mail carrier's wagon, were badly bruised when a tree at the roadside was blown down, killing their horse and crushing the wagon.

Damage in Iowa.

Spencer, Iowa, May 12.—A small tornado passed north and northeast of this town about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Barns and other outbuildings on many farms were wrecked and windmills blown down. Trains coming from Spirit Lake and Estherville had to stop repeatedly to remove debris from the track. No fatalities have been reported. North of Dickens, Clay county, heavy damage was done to farm property.

Tornado Follows Heat.

Davenport, Iowa, May 12.—A tornado yesterday tore the roof off and blew in the side of the Davenport Mattress factory, doing damage to the extent of $8,000. Other plants were also greatly damaged.

Roofs were blown off of many residences and trees were uprooted and thrown across electric light wires, delaying street car traffic. No one was hurt as far as is known.

The storm followed one of the hottest May days ever recorded here. The thermometer registered 87.5 degrees Sunday.

Two Dead in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, May 12.—A rain and electrical storm swept Northern Ohio last night. Mrs. Abram Drake, aged 70, of Van Wert, was struck by lightning and killed. Mrs. F. Elward of Findlay died from exhaustion while hurrying to her home when the storm broke. Several persons were reported injured by lightning and many buildings, set afire by lightning, were destroyed.

Heavy Storm Near Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 12.—During a severe rain and wind storm at Arnold, near here, shortly before midnight last night, a three-story tenement, housing thirty persons, was demolished. Two negroes were killed and at least ten persons were injured.

George Johnson was killed and five other persons were seriously injured when a tenement at New Kenington, Pa., collapsed in a storm soon after midnight. Fifty persons lived in the old building, but no others were hurt.

The storm was the most severe of the season and did damage amounting to many thousands of dollars, much of which was in the oil fields where scores of rigs were blown down.

ROSE REPEATS MURDER STORY

chauffeur turn around and wait. The cops are all fixed. Everything is all right. Becker has fixed them.'"

Rose then took the stand. He gave his occupation as a lecturer and writer. Under questioning he told how he first met Becker in 1911. He talked in a low tone, and persons in the back of the room could hardly hear him.

Rose described a New Year's eve banquet at the Elks' club.

"Becker," he said, "went up behind Rosenthal, who was sitting next to his wife. He placed his arms around Rosenthal, and to Mrs. Rosenthal said: 'You don't have to worry any more. I'll take care of him from now on. Everything is all right.'"

Told of Alleged Meetings.

Rose also told of alleged meetings between Rosenthal and Becker at the latter's home and at other places.

"Once Becker told me," began the witness, "that he was going to try to help Rosenthal get his gambling house in Forty-fifth street open. My advice to him was to keep out of the business. Later Becker said Rosenthal would let him in for $1,500. So the house was opened and I went there to look after the 25 per cent we were to get for the $1,500 investment."

Established Fact of Death.

When the trial was resumed today, District Attorney Charles S. Whitman called Dr. Dennis Taylor to the witness stand as the last of several witnesses to establish the death of Rosenthal. Dr. Taylor's testimony was necessary because it was he who pronounced the gambler dead.

The district attorney was expected to call his two star witnesses, "Jack" Rose and Willie Shapiro, the chauffeur of the car in which the gunmen are said to have escaped from the scene of the murder.

Five witnesses were placed on the stand late yesterday, after District Attorney Whitman had told the jury what he had expected to prove. Jurors No. 11 and 12, selected in the forenoon session, were Frederick A. Sprock, aged 35, a bookkeeper, and Frederick C. Barrett, aged 54, a consulting engineer.

Becker "the Brains."

As soon as they had taken their seats, the district attorney began his preliminary address. In it, he told how Rosenthal was killed, named the gunmen who did it and accused Becker of being the "brains" behind the murder conspiracy.

The afternoon session opened with John J. Brady, a policeman, on the stand. He and the next witness were used to prove the crime. Brady described how he had heard five shots and seen the body of Rosenthal lying on the sidewalk in front of the Hotel Metropole under the glare of arc lights.

Louis Krause, formerly a Coney Island waiter, was the last witness of the day. He told of being stopped at the corner of Forty-third street and Broadway by a man who told him if he wished to keep out of trouble he must move on. Krause then saw four men fire. He saw Rosenthal fall and watched the assassins climb in an automobile and whirl away.

Said Sullivan Smiled.

He saw Jack Sullivan lift Rosenthal's head from the sidewalk. Sullivan was smiling, said Krause. He said he later had seen the four gunmen who were executed last month in Sing Sing. They were the men who he saw fire at Rosenthal.

At the conclusion of yesterday's proceedings, Justice Seabury fined the editor, city editor and a reporter of an afternoon paper, as well as the corporation owning the paper, $250 each for contempt of court. Through a mistake the newspaper, on Saturday, published an advance copy of District Attorney Whitman's opening address. The men were committed in custody until the fines are paid.

NOYES WRITES OF THE A. P.

me that I cannot be present at what I am sure will prove to be a most interesting and profitable conference.

"You ask me, inasmuch as I cannot be with you in person, to write you my views on the question you are to discuss today and this I am glad to do though I am not at all sure that I correctly understand the meaning of the question.

"As you give it to me it is divided into two parts:

"First. To what extent is a member of a press association entitled to a monopoly of news in a community?

No News Monopoly.

"My answer to this is that no member of any press association can under any conceivable set of conditions be 'entitled' to a monopoly of news in a community.

The question answers itself.

"As a matter of fact no such monopoly exists and as an equal matter of fact no such monopoly could exist.

"The news of the world like the news of the vicinity is open to all.

"It is utterly impossible to monopolize it.

"If the question is intended to read 'To what extent is a member of a press association entitled to monopoly in a community of news gathered by the association of which it is a member' a different question is presented.

"I can only deal with this as an individual who took part in the formation of The Associated Press (the present organization).

Collect and Exchange.

"Our desire was to form a co-operative association of representatives of newspapers that should be the agency by which we could exchange news with each other and jointly collect news for our common use.

"We conceive that we have an entire right morally and legally to do this, just as much as a paper in Philadelphia, a paper in Chicago and a paper in Washington have a right to employ Richard Harding Davis to go to Vera Cruz and send dispatches for their joint use.

"It is for us to decide, in our view, whether we will enlarge our group by the admission of new members—as a matter of fact our present membership is very much larger than when we organized in 1900 though it now has only about one-third the daily newspapers of the country represented in its membership.

"We have provided a method by which new members may be elected.

"My own view—and I have consistently acted on that view—is that a member should be elected when it is to the benefit of the association generally.

Who Should Be Admitted.

"This does not at all mean that I would admit every applicant. We want our members individually to be strong and solvent. It does not strengthen or benefit the organization to elect another member in a field that will not support another paper.

"I have also repeatedly refused to vote for an applicant for membership when I thought that his admission would tend to break down a competing news service.

"I see by your program that Mr. Irwin is to speak on this subject. I greatly regret that I will not have the pleasure of hearing him—if only for the purpose of correcting some of his misapprehensions as shown in a recent article that appeared in Harper's Weekly. I am sure, however, that Mr. Irwin will forgive me if I take this opportunity of pointing out to him where he is in error—at least from my point of view.

Replies to Irwin.

"First, the success that was made of The Associated Press of Illinois under the leadership of Victor F. Lawson and Melville E. Stone was not at all due to any marked superiority in news gathering.

"It was due to a determination that so far as the members of that association were concerned, their news service should not be controlled by a private ownership—that it should in fact be gathered for and by the newspapers and controlled by them and non-profit-making and this is true of the present organization and is its basic principle.

"Second, Mr. Irwin states that most of the members of The Associated Press hold what is known as "rights of protest." He is mistaken—only a small fraction of the members hold such rights.

"Third, Mr. Irwin falls into a not surprising error, though it is rather surprising that, writing as a supposed expert, he should base an indictment on that error by asserting that the bond vote has controlled the election of the board of directors—as he picturesquely put it, 'the old crowd hold absolute and perpetual control. Nothing has ever so much as shaken that control.'

"Very picturesque and very untrue.

"I suppose that I am in a position to know as much about the affairs of The Associated Press as Mr. Irwin.

As to That Bond Vote.

"My belief is that the result of no election would have been different if the bond had been entirely eliminated.

"This is because no issue has been presented where the interests of the more important papers who carry the burdens of the assessments have come into conflict with the smaller papers.

"As a matter of fact, when there have been contested elections the bond vote has been split up just as the membership vote has.

"At the annual meeting of the association, held on April 21, because of this assertion by Mr. Irwin, I requested (as I had been renominated as a director) that a report be made by the tellers of the vote by membership, excluding the bond vote, as if it was true that I was not the choice of the membership and was maintained in office by the bond vote when no issue existed between the larger and smaller papers, I should be given food for serious thought.

How the Vote Went.

"The report of the balloting was as follows, arranged according to the membership vote:

	Membership.	Bond.	Total
Frank B. Noyes	400	3,376	3,776
W. L. McLean	369	3,462	3,831
Adolf S. Ochs	294	2,653	2,947
W. Y. Morgan	287	2,415	2,702
A. C. Weiss	273	3,312	3,585
C. D. Morris	166	1,669	1,835
A. C. Kessinger	113	466	579

"Total members voting, 461.

"The first five named were elected and, as will be seen, the result would have been the same had there been no bond vote.

"For myself I may say that I can see no evidence in receiving 400 out of 461 votes cast that the will of the majority is being trampled in the dust by the bondholders.

Two Not Bondholders.

"It is significant also of the width and depth of Mr. Irwin's error in this matter that Mr. Weiss of Duluth, who was re-elected, is not a bondholder at all, and neither is Mr. Morgan of Hutchison, Kan., who was elected for his first term.

"I will leave to the representations of the other news services the heavy task of proving to you that the Associated Press has no monopoly of the news.

"Coming to the second question, 'Should not the competitor of such a publisher have the right to demand and receive the same news service at a reasonable cost and with the privilege of having the first cost to him rebated over a term of years?'

"I do not know what is meant by 'having the privilege of having the first cost to him rebated over a term of years,' and so cannot attempt an answer.

"As to the first part of the question, I think that a competitor has as much right to demand and receive the same news service as he would to demand and receive the use of the other paper's presses, composing room, editors, reporters, and every other facility.

"Just as much right and no more.

"And that is absolutely no right at all. Very sincerely,

"FRANK B. NOYES."

steamer lying in the harbor when the American troops were landing.

When the naval officers located the snipers, they signalled the ship to cease firing, and later an officer boarded the vessel and caught the five men with what he reported to be evident marks of their guilt. He promptly arrested them and turned them over to Gen. Funston, who ordered their trial by a military commission. The penalty for the offense is death.

Secretary Garrison informed Gen. Funston, pending further action by the state department, that any representations made to the American government in behalf of the prisoners must come from the diplomatic representatives of their governments.

Secretary Bryan let it be known that the Brazilian ambassador and the Argentine and Chilean ministers, as mediators, had made formal representations to the state department in behalf of the South Americans. Mr. Bryan declined to disclose the nature of these representations, but said that an investigation was being made.

Report From Funston.

Just before the cabinet met, a message was received from Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz, in which the American commander declared that no attention should be paid to "alarmist reports" that Mexican forces were threatening to attack the Vera Cruz water works. Gen. Funstan said there was no indication of movements of Mexican troops preparing for any such attack.

"There have been rumors," Gen. Funston's message said, "that an attack was threatened. These have been due to remarks attributed to Gen. Maas. The water works cannot be taken from us by force. If the pipe line should be cut, it could be repaired in a few hours."

Gen. Funston added that 200 sacks of American mail destined for Mexico City and delivered at the break in the railroad, still lay on the tracks in possession of the Mexican outpost. He had no news of Private Parks, who rode into the Mexican lines and has not returned.

The manning by American forces of the lighthouse on Lobos island off Tampico, which Huerta's foreign minister has protested is a violation of the armistice, also was taken up in the cabinet meeting.

Envoys Await Orders.

Justice Lamar and Frederick W. Lehmann, chosen to represent the United States at the mediation conference, awaited word early today from Secretary Bryan before completing arrangements for their important mission.

Consul W. E. Alger, from Mazatlan, reported today at the state department for instructions. He stated that between 14,000 and 16,000 Constitutionalists were in the vicinity of Mazatlan when he left. At that time they were projecting troops on the firing line in alternating thousands in the hope of wearing out the Federals.

Thirty Americans were left at Mazatlan at their own wish. Most of these were women and children. Several hundred foreigners of other nationalities also refused to leave.

Consul Alger said that the country was in a pitiful condition of devastation, and that continued revolutions of the last few years had left marked effect upon local institutions, especially the schools.

the liquor license of a saloonkeeper who had violated the military prohibition against the sale of any liquors. The council declared the same action would be taken against all violators of the prohibition.

No State Constabulary.

Denver, Colo., May 12.—The administration program met its first serious setback in the special session of the general assembly late yesterday when the senate, in committee of the whole, killed the bill establishing a state constabulary. Administration bills, however, made rapid progress during the afternoon in the house, which passed the $1,000 000 bond bill on third reading, and also passed on third reading the senate bill authorizing the governor to close saloons in districts affected by riots. The last named is the first measure to be enacted by both houses.

The house bill authorizing the issue of $1,000,000 in bonds for past and present expenses of the militia of the state was the center of a brisk fight when it was passed on second reading last week. At the last, however, there was little opposition. The roll call on the third reading was 44 to 15.

The senate liquor bill previously had been amended as to minor details in the house. On final passage there was slight opposition. The vote was 57 to 1.

In the meantime the senate was settling down to business on the constabulary bill. The judiciary committee brought in a report on this bill without recommendation. The same committee made an adverse report on the bill authorizing the governor to prohibit the importation of arms.

The firearms bill went over for one day under the rule. The constabulary bill went to the committee of the whole.

ATLANTA IN HANDS OF 30,000 SHRINERS

Every State in the Union Is Represented at Meeting.

Atlanta, Ga., May 12.—Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from every state had reached Atlanta today in time to participate in events incident to the imperial council's formal opening. Long before the hour set for the morning parade the streets were filled. The chief parade will take place tonight.

It was estimated that more than 30,000 Shriners had arrived for the annual meeting. The only formal event yesterday was a grand reception and ball last night in honor of William W. Irwin, imperial potentate of Wheeling, W. Va. Portions of the downtown streets were converted into dancing floors and thousands participated in the informal open-air dancing.

The meeting will continue through Friday.

Coal and Supplies for Fleet.

Norfolk, Va., May 12.—The naval collier Orion has sailed for Vera Cruz with coal supplies for American warships now in Mexican waters. The Orion has a coal carrying capacity of 10,500 tons.

HAS ISOLATED THE TYPHUS FEVER GERM

Young New York Doctor Will Report on Experiments.

New York, May 12.—In a paper which he will read tomorrow before the American Association of Physicians, in convention at Atlantic City, Dr. Harry Plotz of the pathological department of Mount Sinai hospital of this city will tell of his discovery and isolation of the germ which causes typhus fever. Dr. Plotz, who is 24 years old, graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons a year ago.

The isolation of the typhus bacillus, it is asserted, has demonstrated that Brill's disease, which it was thought was a separate ailment, is really another form of typhus fever. Dr. Plotz is now attempting to find an anti-toxin for typhus, and it is hoped that his researches may lead to the discovery of anti-toxin for scarlet fever and measles.

Bring Nordica's Body Home.

New York, May 12.—The body of Mme. Lillian Nordica will be brought to New York for burial, according to an announcement made today by her husband, George W. Young, banker. Mr. Young probably will go to Brindisi, Italy, to meet the body.

APPLICATIONS ARE USELESS

No More Saloons at New Duluth or Gary This Year.

May Revoke Dawson's License—Brick Pavement for Vernon Street.

The city council yesterday afternoon passed a resolution giving it as the sense of the council that no additional saloon licenses will be granted at New Duluth or Gary this year.

Since the new commission took office a year ago various applicants have been appealing to the members of the council, and particularly to Commissioner Hicken, to be allowed to transfer saloon licenses to the steel plant suburbs. This has consumed much of the commissioners' time and they hope that the resolution of yesterday will give them a respite for a few months.

One saloon is now located at Gary and another at New Duluth. The commissioners feel that this is sufficient for the present, especially in view of the limited police protection.

Luther Dawson, colored, proprietor of the saloon at 21 West Michigan street, was cited to appear before the council next Monday afternoon to show cause why his saloon license should not be revoked. He was recently convicted of violating the liquor ordinance. The license will doubtless be revoked.

Vernon Street Paving.

Vernon street was ordered paved with brick on a concrete base from Grand Forks avenue to the west line of Bryant's addition. The job goes to Contractor E. A. Dahl on his bid of $22,027.65. The roadway will be improved to a width of thirty feet with five-foot sidewalks seven feet from the curb. This action was taken after a hearing of the property owners, the majority of whom expressed a decided preference for brick.

The Endion Lumber company submitted a bid of $2,650 for the house and lot owned by the water and light department on South street, near Fifteenth avenue east. The city will accept the offer and an ordinance providing for the sale was given its first reading. The money will be turned over to the utility fund, as provided by the charter. When the property was advertised for sale the Endion Lumber company submitted a bid of $1,950, but Commissioner Merritt objected to its acceptance, declaring that he could get a higher price. Two other offers were later received, one for $2,500 and another for $2,600. Yesterday the lumber company put in a second bid, raising its original offer $700.

A petition was received from property owners on Woodland avenue between Fourth street and Kent road asking that the overhead wires on the avenue be put underground and necessary sewer, water and gas connections be made this year in order that it may be paved early in 1915. They state that they are willing to pay an advance assessment of 50 per cent. The petition was referred to Commissioner Murchison.

Richardson, Day & Cheadle sent in a communication stating that the Norton estate would be willing to dedicate an easement for the 36-inch water main in the east half of section 24, 51-13, provided the council would agree to abandon the present road when a new road is improved. The council wished to more thoroughly investigate the matter before passing upon it, and took is under advisement. The contract for laying the main will go to King & Runquist on their bid of $6,325.25.

The grading and gravelling of Ninth street between One Hundred and Thirty-first and One Hundred and Twenty-eighths avenues west to the east line of Fond du Lac was ordered. The estimated cost is $2,073.72.

The communication of the employes of the water and light department to Commissioner Merritt, asking that old age pensions be provided, was laid before the council and referred to the city attorney.

Dance Hall Licenses.

A dance hall and roller skating rink license was granted to L. Hammel at Third avenue east and First street. A dance hall license was granted to the Duluth Finnish society local, subject to the payment of the $50 fee. The society asked that it be granted a license without charge, on the ground that the proceeds would be used for charitable, philanthropic or literary purposes.

The bid of L. McNamara to furnish the city with an automobile for $1,000 and the old car of the works division was accepted. The ordinance appropriating $500 from the works fund and $500 from the general fund to pay for it was passed yesterday.

The ordinance appropriating $500 to pay half the cost of a culvert across Ninety-third avenue west, west of Zimmerly avenue, was passed.

A sanitary sewer was ordered in Sixth alley and Sixth street in the vicinity of Twenty-seventh avenue west. The estimated cost is $1,359.44.

A petition was received for a sanitary sewer in Seventh street between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenues east.

The contract for the Duluth Heights sewer was awarded to Rogers & McLean, and the contract for furnishing power for the pumping station at Woodland was awarded to the Great Northern Power company.

An ordinance appropriating $600 for the purchase of an automobile for the police department was introduced by Commissioner Hicken. The car will be placed at New Duluth.

The city attorney was authorized to settle the damage suits of Mrs. J. R. Gillis and John Wilds against the city for $75 each.

Several changes were made in the locations of street lights at Gary and New Duluth.

"BIG BROTHER'S HEART IS RIGHT"

Health Department Bulletin Praises The Herald's Attitude.

Dr. H. E. Webster, director of public health, in the April issue of the health department bulletin, compliments The Herald upon its policy relative to patent medicines as a cure for consumption.

He states that the department has been greatly pleased with The Herald's editorials on this question and that the service it is doing for the public is far greater than appears evident by a cursory glance. Under the caption, "A Little Leaven Leaveneth the Whole Lump," the bulletin says:

"A newspaper which will demonstrate its independence to such an extent as to point out to its readers, the worse than useless nature of patent medicines, as a cure for disease, notwithstanding the fact that it carries a goodly number of these frauds in its advertising columns, is doing a service to the public far greater than appears evident by a cursory glance. We have been pleased with several editorials in The Duluth Herald recently on matters pertaining to the public health. These articles have been broad in scope and demonstrate the fact that advertisers can no longer control its policy. A business concern which can arise above the influence of money considerations and speak out boldly for the right is building for itself a more substantial and enduring monument than that derived from the exploitation of the specious doctrinaire and his harmful product. We are glad to see newspapers divorce themselves from the chariot wheels of Mammon. We extend our hand to The Herald as a comrade in the great cause. We have always believed in the moral soundness of our big brother's heart."

FALLS NINE STORIES IN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—Charles H. White, representative here of a Des Moines, Iowa, life insurance company, fell nine stories to death in an elevator shaft in an office building here yesterday. Mr. White's left foot caught as he attempted to enter the car from the ninth floor. The operator lifted the car a little to release him and Mr. White plunged under it to the bottom of the shaft. He is survived by a widow and five children.

An undertaker's ambulance on the way to the office building to receive the body of White ran over and probably fatally injured John Norton, a clerk.

INQUIRY FOR FARMS GOOD

Fully 3,000 Settlers Are Expected During the Coming Season.

D. & I. R. Railway Pleased With Number of Sales Put Through.

Inquiry for farming tracts in St. Louis and Aitkin counties this spring is the best in the experience of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad. Judging from the number of sales so far put through and the prospects it is predicted that 3,000 settlers will be brought up this way during the present season.

It is reported by D. M. Cole, sales manager of the railroad's land department, that the call being met with for farming areas is exceeding the available supply in view of the fact that the company is pursuing the policy of settling farmers only in districts that have been made accessible to the market through the building of roads. It is also the rule to clear and render available for immediate cropping a portion of each forty offered.

The company has opened for settlement this spring a tract of several thousand acres south of Aurora, Minn., and also a large additional block at Floodwood. Preparatory to developing additional areas, a dredge is now at work putting in twenty-four miles of ditching in section 53-19, near Meadowlands, and ditching that will aggregate sixty miles is now proceeding in the Kelsey and Wallace districts.

"We are getting a remarkable call for land this season from Pennsylvania, Iowa and South Dakota and as a class those who are coming up appear to be well qualified to make good," said Mr. Cole this morning.

"A substantial acreage has been disposed of in the vicinity of Payne and Wallace. We are also settling a large colony of South Dakota people in the vicinity of Aitkin."

Good, all-around progress is said to have been made in dairying and the railroad is encouraging that branch of enterprise in the building of a creamery at Meadowlands this spring. A creamery at Floodwood, established two years ago, "made good" from the start and has led to the gathering together of some valuable herds in that district.

The department has also worked hand in hand with its settlers in the bringing in of six carloads of thoroughbred Holstein cattle which have been sold to farmers on easy terms of payment where desired. To promote the improvement of the grade of cattle in the district the railroad has inaugurated a revolving fund for the purchase and sale of dairy animals and up to date this has been found to work out satisfactorily.

BLINDNESS DUE TO SMALLPOX

Health Department Says Even So-Called "Mild Cases" Have Their Dangers.

One patient lost the sight of both eyes, going totally blind, and the sight of one eye in two others was inpaired, as a result of smallpox last month, according to the April issue of the health department bulletin.

Dr. I. J. Murphy, medical inspector of the department, explains that this was due to the development of pustules on the cornea. "It is just as well to remember that in mild smallpox the 'pimples' are just as apt to develop in the eye as they are in the severe form," he states. "Whenever they form on the delicate cornea the resulting scar impairs the vision."

Seven new cases of smallpox have been discovered in the city in the last few days. Three of those came from outside the city and the others were in various localities.

The bulletin's summary of local health conditions is as follows:

"Scarlet fever continues to occupy considerable of our attention. However, it seems to have reached its height and is now, we believe, on the decline. There were sixty-five cases recorded this month—one less than last month. The fact that it has not increased is significant, because since the first of the year there was a gradual increase each month—thirty-seven cases in January, fifty-nine in February, sixty-six in March.

More Cooperation.

"Of late there has been more co-operation on the part of the public. Most families have been calling on their private physicians or the health department when a rash or sore throat appeared in the family. That is what they should do. Evidently the public is now quite well educated to the fact that a mild attack of an infectious disease in one individual may lead to the death of another.

"There were two deaths from scarlet fever again this month. This goes to show that by no means are all the cases mild.

"Measles increased from twenty-eight to twenty-nine cases. Most of these were discovered by the medical inspector when checking up children 'out of school with a rash.' No doubt there would be twice that number of cases if they were all found or reported.

"Smallpox dropped from forty-one to ten. Our smallpox, although of the so-called mild variety, is dangerous enough to go to the bother of being protected by vaccination. One of last month's patients lost the sight in both eyes on account of pustules developing on the cornea. Two others had impaired vision in one eye.

"It is well to remember that in mild smallpox the 'pimples' are just as apt to develop in the eye as they are in the severe form. Whenever they form on the delicate cornea of the eye the resulting scar impairs vision.

"Chickenpox dropped from thirty-six to fourteen cases.

"The tuberculosis register was increased by 25 new cases and decreased by 24 deaths. The nurses and medical inspector made 242 visits. Sanitarium admissions were secured as follows: State sanitarium, 7; Nopeming, 9; County Pavilion, 11. The number of applicants on the waiting list dropped from 27 to 10. This was due principally to the opening of a 'summer tent colony' at Nopeming. Nopeming is straining every facility to make room for more patients. For this the visiting nurses are very grateful; the families who are thus accommodated should be more so."

"Handsome Jack" in Joliet.

Chicago, May 12.—"Handsome Jack" Koetters was taken to the penitentiary at Joliet yesterday to serve a life sentence for the murder of Mrs. Emma Kraft, the Cincinnati widow who was beaten to death here with a hammer in November, 1912.

"TIDAL WAVE" IN LAKE MICHIGAN.

Chicago, May 12.—A sudden rise of Lake Michigan resembling a tidal wave wrecked numerous small boats on the shore yesterday and damaged buildings along the water front. The wave was between five and six feet high and was reported as far north as Waukegan and south to Indiana Harbor.

A shift in the wind from north to northeast had the effect of piling the surface water against the west shore, it was stated by Capt. Charles Carland of the United States life-saving station here.

"This has happened before," said the captain, "but it has been many years since as high a rise as this has been driven in. There is a storm on the lake, but no vessels in distress have been reported here."

The rise was gradual enough to give boat and vessel owners time to see to the safety of their craft.

Skin and Scalp Troubles Banished

(From American Health Review)

"A case is reported from a nearby city, where a woman twenty-three years old had suffered for four years from eczema of the scalp. The hair was thin and straggly from continued scabby formation.

"She was advised by a neighbor to use quintone, which she did as follows: She procured two ounces of quintone from her druggist, dissolved it in a half pint hot water, then applied the solution to her scaly twice a day. Relief from the torturing itching was the result of the first application. The two weeks' treatment restored the scalp to a clean and healthy condition.

"Quintone has been used successfully for treatment of eczema, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm and other eruptions of the skin."—Advertisement.

The DOCTOR'S HELPS

By Donald McCaskey, M. D.

Member of Staff, General Hospital, Lancaster, Pa.; Fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine

THE COCAINE MENACE

Americans used last year 10,000 pounds of cocaine and 500,000 pounds of opium. I have just procured the United States government figures from Chief A. H. Baldwin of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of our department of commerce at Washington. Where does all this cocaine and opium go? For what purposes is it used? Is such an enormous quantity of these deadening drugs necessary for our American nation? These are some of the questions I shall attempt to answer in this series of articles.

Let us look into the first question. As soon as the custom officials levy their duty on the amount of coca leaves imported at our seaport towns, the leaves are shipped to the manufacturer. He decocainizes them, extracting about 10 ounces of cocaine from every 100 pounds of the leaf.

Last year the customs officials collected $58,789 duty on coca leaves valued at $139,035 or at the rate of 43 per cent of the entire shipment. Five cents a pound was the duty levied and the enormous quantity of 1,175,780 pounds was officially shipped into the United States. Just how much in addition was smuggled is of course entirely unknown.

But what does the cocaine manufacturer do with each 10 ounces of the drug he extracts from every 100 pounds of the Coca leaves he procures through the customs house? Does he use it himself? Is there anybody employed by him who uses it? Could there be any "buyer,"—any jobber, any middleman who uses it? Or does the merchant who buys from the decocainizer of the coca leaves clandestinely sell it to the illegitimate trade channels and dope trafficking agents?

This much is certain,—cocaine finds a ready market and 10,000 pounds of this deadening drug was absorbed by the American people last year. This is the equivalent of 120,000 ounces.

FOR THE CHILD WHO WETS THE BED.

Occasionally an inquiry comes in as follows: "I wonder if you can help me. I have a boy 6 years old who wets the bed regularly every night, and I know several other children who do the same. Is it impossible to cure this trouble for there is indeed a great need for something to help, but as far as I have ever heard, there is nothing to be done?"

Answer.

Wetting the bed has a number of causes. The chief one is any unusual excitement or irritability around the neck of the child's bladder. The muscle of the neck of the bladder is a muscular one. It is under the control of the nerves, and is so exceedingly sensitive that it dilates almost as readily as does the circular muscle in the pupil of the eye. No child suffering from this trouble, the medical term of which is eneurisis, should have any water pass their lips after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At least one bowel movement a day should certainly be a habit of the youngster and the best time for this would be some time in the latter afternoon. By all means every boy should be circumcised promptly. This will relieve a lot of unnecessary irritation that helps to continue the constant annoyance of bladder irritability. Another very effective remedy is that of massage. There is a nerve called the interior puendencal nerve running along the inner border of the pelvic bone and on either side fillment from this nerve supply the bladder area, and this nerve can be massaged readily by a skilled operator through the rise of the child's rectum. The diet of the youngster likewise should be one of fruit, vegetables and nuts. Sugars and unduly rich and stimulating foods should be avoided. There is no one remedy which will cure every case of wetting the bed. On the other hand I have never seen any one patient suffering from this condition in which the ordinary health was free from all disease germs that could not be cured readily. First of all the source of greatest irritation must be located. After this the right remedy can be applied. Procure and study the former Doctor's Helps article, "When the child's bladder is weak;" also "How to secure relief from a scalding bladder pain." Don't give your child any powders or pills for curing this trouble. Get his system better balanced along the lines I have just suggested, otherwise you are filling his tender tissue cells with a lot of dope which merely depresses and poisons rather than exhilarates and strengthens permanently. By all means don't forget the warm bath all over for your child every night before he goes to bed. This brings the blood out into the skin, opens up the skin pores and has a quieting, restful influence upon his entire nervous system, which in turn reacts favorably and quietly upon the nerve supply of the bladder.

If the condition still persists stubbornly for a few weeks in addition to the above line of treatment, apply a hot wet towel over the bladder for an hour before he goes to bed.

ASKS RESTORATION OF TWIN LAKES

Fifth Ward Club Will Request Improvements From City.

The Fifth Ward Improvement club will hold its postponed meeting this evening at the Emerson school, Eleventh avenue West and Third street. Among the business to be taken up will be improvements to streets on the hillside as well as improvement to park property in the district.

According to members of the club it is proposed to ask the park board to re-establish the Twin Lakes which nearly five years ago were destroyed by a cloudburst. The building of a retaining wall on the lower side of the boulevard will, it is said, be all that is required.

The Twin Lakes were destroyed by the bursting of such a wall on July 19, 1909. The lakes were two small ponds, one on each side of the boulevard, and were considered one of the chief beauty spots on the famous driveway.

The club will also discuss sewer and water extensions as well as make requests for additional arc lights for the district.

SOCIAL CENTER IS NOT A FAD

Health Inspector Murphy Urges Greater Activity In This Field.

Dr. I. J. Murphy, medical inspector of the health department, declares in the monthly issue of the health department bulletin that the public health aspect of the social center work in Duluth should be more strongly emphasized and more effectively utilized.

"The social center idea which is spreading over this country so rapidly is no passing fad," he says. "It is a movement worthy of the attention and support of every thoughtful citizen. In all cities where it has been tried the eager, enthusiastic public's response placed the movement on a substantial foundation. In this respect Duluth has been no exception.

"Briefly the prime object is to utilize each school plant or some central place for the utmost good—socially, intellectually, morally and physically—of every individual in its neighborhood.

"Naturally this activity is of immense importance from the public health standpoint.

Public Health Aspect.

"The writer is at a loss to understand why the public health aspect of this movement has not been properly emphasized or effectively utilized.

"We have not time nor words to empaasize the matter as it much deserves. The effect of home environment upon individual health, and of civic environment upon community health, are now quite well understood in all their phases. Preventative rather than curative agencies are being energetically applied to all forms of social distress which are indeed all closely interwoven.

"The preventative phase is what makes the social center movement timely. In the past few years we have witnessed the launching of numerous campaigns for the cure and relief of delinquency and distress. In fact there has been a tendency to become over sympathetic about many forms of delinquency. If this energy was directed along preventative channels it would do real effective work.

"We should place befitting emphasis upon the well recognized fact that humanity is inherently healthy. All it needs is an environment that will give nature at least half a chance. Just now the calamities of war are being brought to our attention. But we forget that it kills off the more active and vigorous and leaves the weakling to propagate a so-called civilized race.

Reduces Delinquency.

"Juvenile delinquency, crime, vice and disease result from a lack of wholesome environment. There was a time when the whole family could romp freely over fields or in the woods. Now too often the only playground for the boy is a dirty alley or the business street; for a social gathering place the other members of the family have the saloons, the pool rooms and the dance halls.

"The school seems to be the logical place for this activity to center about.

"It is the place where social, racial and religious prejudices are forgotten. It is the place where Greek and Barbarian, Jew and Gentile are wrestling with the common foe—disease, social and individual."

MAY TERM CASES ON TRIAL MONDAY

E. Kickalo Faces Robbery Charge; V. Linn Pleads Guilty.

Trial of the May term criminal cases will begin in district court before Judge Bert Fesler Monday morning, May 18.

Among the first case to be tried, according to the county attorney, will be that of the state against Elias Kickalo, charged with robbery in the first degree. Kickalo was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Judge Fesler and entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment returned against him by the May grand jury. He is charged with having, on March 3 at Cedar Valley, held up and robbed Mike Alapers.

Victor Linn, indicted on a charge of third degree burglary, entered a plea of guilty when arraigned yesterday afternoon. He admitted having broken into a farmhouse May 3 at Taft, town of Grand Lake, and to have stolen several articles. The court deferred sentence.

Are Wrinkles More Common?

Because life is more complex—Because women are interested in so many more things than they used to be—Because dividing a day among household duties, politics, clubs, charities, society, business, and personal care is a strenuous thing—and strenuous life makes marks upon the face, the woman of today who wants to look right has long since started to aid Nature in its uneven fight and many of the wisest and busiest have decided upon this economical vegetable jelly cream as the simplest wrinkle remover and skin stimulator. It protects the surface of the skin and brings the blood to the surface where it performs its upbuilding work. Just get from your druggist an ounce of almozoin, put it into a fruit jar and add half a pint of water and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Let this mixture stand for several hours, stirring occasionally during this time. Before retiring apply rather thickly over wrinkled or flabby surface and allow it to dry. It will harden rapidly and, when applied, you will note a slight tightening of the skin. In the morning remove with hot water and note the immediate effect which is lasting.—Advertisement.

Woman's Realm

Dr. George Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota, gave an interesting talk at the reception given yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club by the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. W. H. Hoyt, the retiring president, who took occasion to express the gratitude of her organization to Col. Eva and the Commercial club for the use of the clubrooms.

Dr. Vincent's remarks were addressed particularly to the senior girls of Central and Irving high schools and the normal school, the special guests of the afternoon. The reception yesterday was the fifth one given by the Collegiate Alumnae for the senior classes for the purpose of interesting them in college.

Dr. Vincent said last year he made a short speech at the play given by the hostesses of yesterday, but this time he was the whole show. Admitting his inability to interest his audience by singing, dancing or acting, he launched into an accomplishment with which he is perfectly conversant, and made a speech that was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

Imagination.

Taking for his subject "Education as a Training in the Use of the Imagination," Dr. Vincent pointed out that a subject interests a person to the extent to which he has been prepared to receive it. Education forms a background for experience, and unless this background exists, a great deal of the enjoyment of life is lost.

In speaking of literature and imagination that necessarily goes with it, the speaker said to a person from another planet our books would be pieces of wood fiber with black marks upon them, because he would not have associations with the things the words represent, and consequently could not exert his imagination in regard to them. "Literature," he said, "is just the way men and women of great ability have imagined life. If we are to enjoy literature, we must be able to imagine life as portrayed by the various authors." As an example of this he said Anthony Trollope is one of his favorite authors because he is familiar with and fond of the English people, English customs and English scenery that Trollope describes. Dickens, Scott and Thackery are also delightful writers to him, and the characters portrayed in their novels are a great deal more real to him than many living persons.

"To be an educated person in the best sense of the word is to be at home with the greatest number of these characters," he said. He spoke of the convenience of having labels for persons met and seen, as calling this man "Mr. Pickwick," or another one "Tracy Tupp," and so on, as their characteristics fit in with the famous characters.

"Educated persons talk the language of imagination, but you can't make literary allusions when talking with persons who have not read much," he said.

To show the pleasures to be derived in every day life by those whose imaginations have been cultivated through education, Dr. Vincent took a political allusion, "log rolling." He described the way a pioneer who wished to clear his land invited all his neighbors to help him roll and burn the logs and the feast that was served at the end of the work. Another pioneer did the same thing and log rolling became a sort of reciprocity arrangement, hence the application of the term to politicians' helping each other's bills through. Without the knowledge of frontier life and customs, this allusion cannot be understood or appreciated.

Tearing Poetry to Pieces.

Speaking of poetry that requires more imagination than any phase of literature, Dr. Vincent said it is a wonder persons have as much love for it as they have after studying it in the unimaginative way used in some schools, tearing it to pieces and parsing the words, for he said poetry was not meant to be parsed; in fact, it won't parse.

Coming to the more materialistic side of life, Dr. Vincent said there is danger in this country of people's splitting up into factions and classes because they can not see life through the eyes of others. "A truly educated man or woman refuses to live in a little group but demands the privilege of seeing into the lives of other persons," he said. "This ability to imagine the conditions that govern those in other classes is what makes successful social workers." As an example of this, he told of a classmate, Miss Katherine B. Davis, recently appointed supervisor of criminal cases in New York city, who has entered into the lives of others through her sympathy that came of imagination.

The speaker said all great men and women have had ideals. He urged all the youthful members of his audience who were going to college not to regard their degrees as something to feel proud of as having placed them among the educated but to come out of college feeling a deep obligation to the times and to their fellow creatures, with larger ideals and purposes and with a broader sympathy.

An informal reception followed Dr. Vincent's address at which the hostesses were: Mrs. H. A. Dancer, Mrs. J. H. Hearding, Mrs. E. W. Bohannon, Mrs. L. W. Kline, Mrs. Gilbert Dickerman, Mrs. Francis De Groat, Miss Ethel Rockwood, Miss Agnes Wells and Miss Dorothy Olcott.

Women of the State University Train Themselves.

Madison, Wis., May 12.—About forty University of Wisconsin women are organized in two campfire groups for the purpose of training themselves, as future teachers and social workers, to become guardians of younger girls in the committees in which they take up their work.

Honors are given for varieties of accomplishments such as baking bread or nursing the sick, to building a campfire or riding horseback. Initiations and promotions in rank are conducted according to the beautiful ceremonial of the national organization, with its inspiring music and poetry.

Amusement Notes.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will be at the Lyceum Saturday in a French musical divertisement, "Mariette" by Maurice Volny, coming from a successful engagement at the Alhambra theater, London. Mrs. Thaw is supported by a large company.

Mrs. Thaw has but recently returned to the stage. For six years after the unfortunate affair with which her name was connected she remained in seclusion perfecting herself in her chosen profession—the stage. It was not until this spring when she thought that all notoriety connected with her name had died down that she decided to appear. She selected the London hippodrome as the theater for her first appearance, for fear, that if she returned to the stage in New York she would be accused of making capital out of the publicity given the actions of her husband.

It was not until Mrs. Thaw's success in London was assured that she accepted an engagement to appear in America. On her appearance in New York she was enthusiastically praised.

Mrs. Thaw's dancing partner, Jack Clifford, will be seen in this production under the direction of Emil Agoust, of the Alhambra theater, London.

In addition to "Mariette" a number of American and European novelties are introduced including Bernard and Weston, Abe Atell, Arnaud Brothers, Peppino and others.

There will be a popular priced matinee during Mrs. Thaw's appearance here.

A new form of preserving history is being shown at the Orpheum, that of history re-enacted by the men who made it, correct in every detail, true in every feature—so true in fact that the United States government has given its approval and announced the intention of its preservation in the government archives. Buffalo Bill's Historic Film company of the Indian wars in the West visualized, is presenting motion pictures of the three last decades of the century' battles between the Indian and the white man for the supremacy of the continent.

Every feature, each true in the smallest particular, of the final years of the Indian's struggle against the invasion of the white man is shown. There is the battle of Summitt Springs, fought in 1869 between the command of Gen. E. A. Carr and the followers of Tall Bull. There is the bloody fight on Warbonnet Creek, when Buffalo Bill slew Yellowhand, the Indian chief, in a hand to hand duel, while Indians and soldiers alike awaited the outcome. There are shown the conditions which led to the woes of the Messiah. The call of the Messiah, the starting forth of the emissaries, the return, the ghost dances, the death of Sitting Bull and then the rush of the Indians toward the Bad Lands—all these things are shown in historically correct details in the pictures.

Margaret McBride, the clever and dainty prima donna with Don Clark at the Empress theater in the musical comedy show, "At Saratoga Springs," confesses she has given up all idea of getting married, to say nothing of falling in love. "I see nobody but actors," she says, "and I will never look for a husband in the profession. A man can't be in love with two objects at once, and as he is in love with his work, which in its lot of cases means himself, his wife has to suffer. Then again I don't want to look for a mate outside, for I too, have my work, before me. A girl can't hope to progress in her work in this business if she has someone to drag along with her."

"The Colonial Minstrel Maids," an organization of eighteen girls, will be the attraction at the Empress theater for four days starting with the matinee Thursday, May 14. The show opens with a minstrel first part, the girls grouped around the stage in the familiar semi-circle. Various song numbers and dances are introduced, and I am injected. In the olio, vaudeville specialties are offered by Katherine Selsor, the girl who talks, "Aline," the girl with the hoops, and Marie Genaro the flexible Venus, and Loletta Sisters in songs and dances. The closing shows the interior of a big New York restaurant, with a cabaret show in full blast. This affords the opportunity of introducing a number of singers, dancers and other entertainers, such as violin specialties, duets and quartets.

KING COMMANDEERS THE LONDON OPERA

London, May 12.—The Royal opera house, Covent Garden, was commandeered last night by King George for a gala performance in honor of the king and queen of Denmark, who are paying their accession visit to this country. The singers included Melba and Emmy Destinn.

The audience included leaders of the political, diplomatic and social world of London, the men in the uniforms of their rank, and the women in beautiful gowns and jewels of untold wealth.

The scene, which was of gorgeous brilliance, was for a time marred by a suffragette demonstration. During an interlude a suffragette rose in the balcony stalls and shouted: "King George, women are being tortured in your dominions."

Two men seized the disturber and dragged her outside, while others ejected women who started "demonstrating." They shrieked, kicked and clawed as they were being carried from the building. Meanwhile other suffragettes in the gallery above the royal box threw down suffragette leaflets.

King George and Queen Mary, with their guests, occupied a box in the center of the house, while members of the diplomatic corps, the cabinet ministers, and special guests of the monarchs occupied the other boxes and stalls. The general public had to be content with the upper galleries.

TWO NEW METHODIST CONFERENCES MADE

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 12.—Two new annual conferences to be known as the "Mexican Border Conference" and "The Central Mexican Conference" were created at yesterday's session of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, meeting here in quadrennial session.

A resolution was adopted urging the necessity of additional chaplains in the United States army and navy.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA TREATMENT FOUND.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 12.—Locomotor ataxia is responding to intravenous and intraspinous treatment, according to a declaration by Dr. George Draper of New York before the annual convention of the American Society for the Advancement of Clinical Investigation.

Dr. Draper described, with charts, the progress of experiments upon six pronounced cases in which, he declared, decided improvement had been noted.

The meeting was preliminary to the convention of the Association of American Physicians.

FORMER IRONWOOD MAN IS SUMMONED.

Marquette, Mich., May 12.—Funeral services were held for Carl A. Windoft, aged 47, a native of Sweden, and an old resident of the Upper Peninsula, who died at his home here very suddenly. He came to America in 1887, was married twenty-five years ago, and for eighteen years was a resident of Ironwood. He lived here for the last nine years. Mr. Windoft is survived by a widow and six children: Thure, Clarence, Agnes, Gertrude, Clara and Eugene. The latter is now in service on the torpedo boat destroyer Reid, in Mexican waters. Another son, Clarence, is a student at the Western State Normal school at Kalamazoo. He arrived home yesterday.

Mr. Windoft was a member of the Elk and Eagle lodges here, the Marquette council, United Commercial Travelers, and the Scandinavian society.

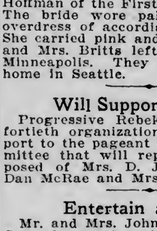
OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Modern Woman Is As Lovable As Old Type.



Are women gradually losing the softness of their sex and becoming more masculine as the years roll by? I would say, no, women are not losing the softness that is natural to their sex, or becoming masculine to any extent that we need fear harm.

The soft, sweet, clinging type of woman who blushed rosily and coquetted shyly with bashful, downcast eyes and simpered sillily whenever there was a man in sight, is not as much in evidence as she was once. She belongs to the years that are gone, and though we have no intention of maligning her we think the present-day woman is more active.

The woman of today everywhere is as wholesome and helpful as any that has gone before. Every period has had its freaks and absurdities, but these do not represent real women of any age, and heaven be praised they are not numerous, only conspicuous. Every section has its type, but with all their mannerisms and peculiarities we find them to be women at heart under all kinds of exteriors. No more and no less were the women of past generations.

It is claimed that the active part women take in business life detracts from their femininity and charm, but this is rarely true. I have observed that usually, whatever a woman loses in purely womanly qualities she is likely to gain in humanness and breadth of vision—two things that are very much worth while to male or female.

Woman becomes more independent for one thing. And independence, in women, if not carried too far, is an excellent quality. There is such a thing as over-developing this trait, but women who appeal to us as being too independent are not so numerous as to make us fear the future in this respect.

As for the contention that women have fewer opportunities to marry because of their sterner attributes, the fact remains that most women do marry. I think that nowadays they more often marry for love than ever before. While they may not be as well versed in the art of coquetting and clinging as were the maidens of other days, they have qualities equally alluring.

I am well aware that many of the soft and clinging wives of the long ago, with their sweet voices and gentle, timid manners, made Spartan wives and mothers, and rose sublimely to every call of duty as they saw it. So it has always been as far as true women were concerned, and so it will ever be.

THE RESERVE BOARD.

Here are facts worth remembering about the Federal reserve board selected by President Wilson:

Some people feared political manipulation of the national finances; and the board does not include a single politician.

Some people feared dangerously radical control of the national finances; and the board does not include a single unstable and erratic radical.

Some people feared monopolistic control of the national finances; and the board does not include a single reactionary of the Tory stripe.

The board does not include a man who would apply a firebrand to the business fabric, nor a man who would shackle progress and bid the world stand still in its tracks.

There is nothing finer and more substantial in the president's splendid record than his choice of the men who are to handle the nation's currency and banking system.

There are at least four less persons intensely interested in this Becker trial than there were in the other one.

THE SITTING HEN SITS!

We live and learn!

The Toledo Blade paragrapher recently got himself into a controversy—to which he was manifestly not averse—by challenging one of his contemporaries who used the phrase "the setting hen."

The Blade man said that hens don't "set," but "sit"; and the Houston Post paragrapher came back at him furiously with a charge of bad grammar.

Taking note of this spirited controversy, the Albany Journal said: "Why don't they get a dictionary and find out?"

Whereupon the St. Louis Globe-Democrat sadly exclaimed: "The Blade has; unhappily, so have we, and upset the belief of a lifetime."

And the Toledo Blade, triumphant and cocky, says: "Alas, the Post, convinced against its will, is of the opinion that the hen sets still."

We, of course, should have sided with the Post offhand, with all the confidence in the world, if it had not been for that little remark of the Globe-Democrat's about getting a dictionary.

And, like the Globe-Democrat, we consulted a dictionary and thereby upset the belief of a lifetime.

The hen actually does sit!

What, oh shade of Lindley Murray, do you know about that?

Bailiff, call Mr. Webster to the stand.

Mr. Webster, being duly sworn, deposes and says as follows:

> The use of the verb "set" for "sit" in such expressions as "the hen is setting on thirteen eggs," "a setting hen," etc., although colloquially common and sometimes tolerated in serious writing, is not to be approved.

On cross-examination, Mr Webster gives the following definition, among others, of the verb "to sit:"

> To cover and warm eggs for hatching, as a fowl; to brood, to incubate; as, "a sitting hen."

Boy, bring the Blade man any cigar he likes. He wins.

Having overlooked the annual opportunity of May first, Huerta mustn't be surprised if he is called on to move anyway later on.

BRITISH BUNTING IN AMERICAN FLAGS?

Listen, now, for the agonized shrieks of the Anglophobes.

A British firm has underbid its American rivals on the contract to furnish bunting for navy department flags.

Congressman Rogers of Massachusetts protests against placing the contract abroad; but his protest is useless, for the navy department finds its patriotism balked by a law enacted in 1855 which stipulates that in buying material for flags officials must remember that "the price must not exceed that at which an article of equal quality can be imported."

Would it be unpatriotic to buy bunting for American flags in England, even at a large saving?

Perhaps.

But why not look at it from another angle: Is it not unpatriotic for American bunting manufacturers, who doubtless belong to a bunting trust, to try to work their Uncle Sam for a higher price than English manufacturers are content to receive even after the tariff duties are paid?

During these weeks of college athletic contests there are certain days when the Mexican question is completely forgotten in certain of our cities.

A BITTER TASTE OF WAR.

Yesterday the nation bowed in grief during the funeral of the nineteen bluejackets slain in Mexico, while the president feelingly and fittingly expressed its woe.

The chorus of jingoes, blithely inviting us to conquest and pillage, reckless of the cost in human life and human misery, was silent for the moment in the face of this solemn lesson in the meaning of war.

It was impressive, significant. It made for thoughtfulness, and so a bereaved people turned a deaf ear to the urgings of the war-mongers.

But this is just a first taste of war.

War does not reach its maximum of horror till the flag-draped bodies of the dead are so many that they cease to impress.

It is when human souls are calloused to suffering, and these pathetic bodies with their eloquent wounds have become commonplace, that war becomes real and most dreadful.

All America will pray, with the chaplain who conducted yesterday's services, that it will not come to that.

Lehmann and Lamar have been chosen to represent the United States in the Mexican mediation proceedings. Do the initials indicate what Uncle Sam is likely to raise if the proceedings are fruitless?

THE CANAL TOLLS ISSUE.

Is exemption from canal tolls a subsidy?

Those favoring the exemption say it is not; yet everybody knows that if it were not a subsidy nobody, least of all the coastwise shipping trust, would be interested in it at all.

Is it a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty?

Those advocating the exemption say it is not; yet if it discriminates in favor of our vessels against the vessels of other countries, it is a violation because the treaty forbids discrimination in tolls.

Is there discrimination? Coastwise trade is limited by law to American vessels. Therefore foreign vessels, not being able to participate in this trade, are not permitted to avail themselves of the exemption. So the discrimination, and therefore the treaty violation, is clear.

The New York Sun puts the case vividly, thus:

> 1. The question is simply whether the discrimination at the canal gate by which a vessel sailing from Eastport in Maine to Port Townsend in Washington passes the toll gatherer at Panama deadhead, while another vessel sailing under the British flag from St. John in New Brunswick to Victoria in British Columbia is stopped and made to pay the dollars demanded for the privilege of not having to circumnavigate South America by way of the Strait of Magellan—whether this constitutes inequality of treatment. If so, it surely violates our contract made with Great Britain when that power released us from the inconvenient obligations of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty as to joint control of any canal between the oceans.
>
> 2. If taxing the British vessel for the maintenance of the canal where the American vessel passes free does in fact constitute unequal treatment, then the refusal of the senate to repeal the coastwise exemption of the canal act of August 24, 1912, is naked repudiation of the treaty contract which the senate itself made with the British government. Such repudiation after securing the benefit of the bargain is infamous conduct either in a nation or in an individual.
>
> 3. The talk about "surrender" is the crudest bosh, unworthy of any senator or newspaper of intelligence. The Milky Way is not more remote from the question than is the assertion of the right of this American government to manage its own property, and, if it pleases, to subsidize its own shipping. If the rate charged was based upon all canal traffic, including our own coastwise trade, there would be nothing either in the letter or in the spirit of the Hay-Pauncefote contract to prevent this government from paying back to its coastwise trade, or even to its foreign ocean-going trade, every dollar collected as tolls at the canal. There would be no discrimination or unequal treatment in that proceeding, for Great Britain, or any other nation, would possess and might exercise the same right to reimburse her ship owners for canal tolls paid at Panama. But the fact remains that if the rate charged to British subjects in order to provide a proper revenue for maintenance, interest and amortization is higher on account of the exemption of the American coastwise trade than it would have been without such exemption, there IS discrimination, there IS unequal treatment and there IS broken faith with Great Britain.

Never in the history of this nation was there less doubt in a disputed question than there is in this one.

Every reason advanced for opposing repeal of the tolls exemption provision is untenable and unworthy.

Every senator who opposes repeal lays his conscience, his patriotism and his scruples open to suspicion.

One rather wonders just what old lady Europe thinks to see the different nations on this hemisphere working together for the common good.

It can hardly be said that the railroad magnates' opposition to a law against interlocking directorates will raise a popular prejudice against such a law.

Caste in the Hobo World

From the Survey.

"Mission stiffs, panhandlers, bums and strikebreakers are not allowed here. Get out!"

Thus reads a neat pasteboard card dangling in the window of a little room on the first floor of 816 Callowhill street, Philadelphia. It is flanked by a card announcing the establishment of a "Hobo Employment Bureau" and urging every hobo to walk in and "join the union."

If the passerby is a bit dazed by this apparent contradiction of invitations, and if he wonders how the "bum" genus differs from the "hobo" genus, he has only to walk in and inquire for Joe Millar, who claims to have crossed the country on freight trains more than one hundred times.

The hobo will always give something for lodging or meals while on the road and he has the most profound contempt for the man who beats his way from place to place without working.

Bums, on the other hand, are the derelicts who strew the park benches and fill the workhouses.

Panhandlers are street beggars.

"Mission Stiffs" are down-and-outers who won't work and are willing to exchange "conversion" for bread, coffee and a free bed.

"The hobo is the itinerant laborer, the fellow who saws lumber in Maine one week and punches cattle in Texas the next," says Joe Millar. "In the East the average public confuses the hobo with the tramp, but in the West, where he obtained his nickname, he is often a welcome guest at the farm in harvest time."

The hoboes of America, or, if you must be dignified, the International Brotherhood Welfare Association of Unemployed, Migratory and Casual Workers, have organized to demand a ten-hour day and a minimum wage of 15 cents an hour. They have a weekly journal, the Hobo News, published in Chicago by August Schurmeyer. They have an I. B. W. A. button, with the word "justice" encircled by the name of the organization. The significance of the emblem is that justice is the keystone to liberty. "Justice," comments the Hobo News, "is what we want; liberty is what we all prize."

Recently the organization held a conference in Cleveland to which delegates were sent from every local organization in the United States, and where all union problems and principles were discussed.

Instead of high union dues, the I. B. W. A. asks only 5 cents a week from members who are favored with employment and 10 cents a month from those who are on the road "to work." The applicant for membership must also sign an "obligation" pledge:

"I promise to be kind and courteous in my treatment of my fellows, to cooperate with them in all their work for the betterment of humanity, to obey the rules of the organization, and to do my utmost for the good of the I. B. W. A. and the advancement of its principles and that I will never be guilty of taking up firearms or the tools of production against my fellow workmen."

In return, the member receives a green card bearing his name and address—that is, the number of the boarding house where he happens to be when the card is issued. The card does not yet entitle the holder to accident insurance. But it does entitle him to use of the free employment bureaus (similar to that recently established in Philadelphia) which are said to be found in every big city of the United States. These bureaus are clearing houses where every employer of casual labor can find men.

Hard times have struck the hobo as well as the clerk and the factory worker. Every day a crowd of men lines up at the office on Callowhill street. Many of these are dismissed at once under the prohibitive clause on the sign board relating to "bums and mission stiffs." The newcomers are gone over in a sorting-out process. The derelicts are sent on their way with the warning that there is no place for them in a hobo organization. Others are admitted and their applications listed. A record is kept of each man who applies for a job. He is compelled to give a fair account of himself as the hoboes are anxious to obtain the confidence of their prospective employers.

Put Clothes on the Chorus

Harold Sterns in Harper's Weekly:

Theatrical producers of musical plays seem now to be engaged in a furious effort to give us "a little bit of everything." Certain managers will ransack the earth to procure for our languid inspection the latest novelties and costumes.

Now, vaudeville was especially devised for those who want "a little bit of everything." Producers of musical plays seem to forget this. Or, rather, they seem to remember it. And with what result? That an appalling number of our so-called musical comedies are nothing but glorified vaudeville. We have come to expect anything in a musical comedy, just as we do in vaudeville—highly dramatic episodes, farcical bits, ragtime song and dance numbers, eccentric "turns." And girls, of course—always plenty of girls.

The mood which in England would prompt us to go to a music hall, the mood which in America prompts us to go to vaudeville "shows," is becoming more and more the mood which prompts us to go to a musical comedy. This is a pity, for there are many moods, and there should be enough variety and differentiation of forms of entertainment to satisfy them all. There are plenty of regular vaudeville theaters, devoted exclusively to this form of entertainment (and in the best estate, not a contemptible form, either) where we can occupy the best seats at a much less price. When we go to a musical comedy, we naturally expect something different and better. Too often we get nothing except the same old thing over again. Too often we get something worse than good vaudeville. Almost invariably we get something a hundred times more indecent. Chorus girls are not enough, however pretty. Stage door "Johnnies" do not support a theater, although they may fill the first ten rows for some weeks. I have seen many a stupid musical comedy in Boston in my own undergraduate days supported for several weeks by enthusiastic college students. But I have yet to see a stupid musical play achieve a lasting popular success. To do so, it must be something definite. A weak imitation of vaudeville and pretty chorus girls are not sufficient. Even managers are coming to see that.

The novelty of woman as a biped has worn off. Chorus girls, like nearly all women, are far prettier and far more attractive when they keep most of their clothes on. Besides being robbed of the charm, their managers wellnigh rob them of their welcome. The chorus is obtrusive, unescapable. It is a great pity, because nowhere in the world are there such flocks and flocks of pretty young women on the stage as in America.

A Bad Trust

Frank M. Eddy in Sauk Center Herald.

We admit that we are a little old-fashioned and conservative. We apprehend that there are a lot of men who are out to bust the trusts because they applied to the trusts for jobs and the trusts did not think they were worth hiring. We know a lot of men who think they are reformers when they are only sore. We are convinced that lots of public men are lambasting "the administration" because they are not the "administration;" are crying efficiency and economy because the other fellows are superintending the expenditures of the public funds, that a great deal of the reform legislation, so-called, is no improvement on the laws they supercede, and for this reason we have always felt inclined to let the world slip along in natural grooves and not try to tear our shirt in reforming a world that does not want to be reformed.

Sometimes there is an innovation so rank, a monopoly so cussed, a trust so devilish and inhuman that if we did not let out a yip of protest we would simply explode like a tail-end baseball team in a minor league.

There is one trust in this land of the free and home of monopolies that is so contemptibly contemptible, so hideously inhuman, so dastardly un-American that, although we have limited command of five languages, English, Danish, Swedish, Hog Latin, Baseball and Golf, our entire vocabulary does not supply us with cuss-words enough for use to express our opinion of it in a fitting and proper manner. We refer to the "Waiters' Trust."

This unholy combination is composed of a mongrel crowd of slant-eyed foreigners, who corral their unsuspecting countrymen into their toils and hire them out as waiters, and to their everlasting shame, a large number of tonicst, highest class restaurants, hotels and eating houses, including the biggest and most stylish places in St. Paul and Minneapolis enter into contract with this low down corporation for their food servers at so much per month, then this soulless crowd supply them, paying the men they employ about one-half or two-thirds of what they receive for their services and compel them to turn over all the tips they receive to this "Waiters' Trust," and to be sure they don't "knock down" they clothe them in tight fitting, non-pocket uniforms, in which it is impossible for them even to conceal a postage stamp without detection, and place a "checker" or spy in each place where they are employed to see that all the "tips" are placed in the "tip-box" each day and duly turned over to the trust. In this way the public is not only compelled to pay the waiters' wages, but also contribute to the fortunes of the robbers who sit in their luxurious offices in New York and Chicago and wax rich out of the efforts of their pocketless slaves in wheedling tips out of generous patrons of first-class institutions, and if they do not prove to be expert wheedlers, they are promptly relegated to the scrap heap.

The "tipping system" is bad, but we have always felt if we are stopping at a place where the waiter serves us promptly and courteously, and we bestowed upon him a small gratuity, it's nobody's business but our own, but when we find that instead of bestowing our gift on the courteous servitor we have dropped it into the pocket of a paunchy plutocrat, we become so blamed mad that we feel like lunching off ten-penny nails.

Here is a chance for our legislatures to get busy; let them pass a law requiring every person who acts as a waiter for hire in the capacity of a food server in a public place be required to register with the hotel commissioner and if she or he enters into a contract to share her or his "tips" with her or his employer to be debarred from ever again acting in a waiter's capacity. Require every hotel keeper, restaurant keeper, caterer, saloon keeper or any other person who employs servants to render personal service to guests or customers to enter a bond not requiring such servants to share their gratuities, or to employ such servants from agencies who require the servants they furnish to share the gratuities or "tips" with them.

Let this statute further provide that any individual, firm or corporation who shall furnish, or agree to furnish any other individual, firm or corporation any waiters, or servants of either sex, whose chief duties it shall be to render personal services to guests or customers, and who require that such servants so furnished by them shall divide the gratuities or "tips" they receive from the parties served, and not be retained by the servants who render the service, shall be hung by the neck until they are dead and afterwards sent to the state's prison for life, and if this does not stop this nefarious practice, more stringent measures should be adopted.

Furthermore, the self-respecting public should refuse to patronize establishments who secure their help from these peonage-creating establishments, and if they find themselves in such a place, refuse to tip a waiter unless he has a pocket in his clothes in which to place the same and keep it for his own use.

Things Long Past.

She came to the shadowy place
In the woods alone.
The house stood there and the trace
Where the path had gone,
Now hidden with weeds that pried
By the rusty gate.
The pine trees, watching her, sighed,
"It is too late."

She parted the wild white rose
By the shattered door
As one who in dreamland goes,
To return no more;
But a shadow stood by the hearth
In a kingly state
That seemed to say in its wrath,
"It is too late."

She passed up the old oak stair,
And from lattice pane
Looked down on the garden there
As a child again.
But the green and gold were dead
With the rose, their mate,
And the fountain voices said,
"It is too late."

She heard the swift-rushing feet
And the whirring wings
Of a thousand dim and fleet
Unearthly things;
But none that her heart had known
For her heart would wait
As a bird, when birds have flown;
That sings: "Too late."
—Mabel Leigh in London Sphere.

Some Mistake.

Ladies' Home Journal: "What name are you calling?" asked the telephone girl over the wire.

"McCohen," the customer answered.

"I beg pardon?" asked the girl.

The man repeated it.

The wire was silent for a moment, then the girl said: "Wait a moment, please. I think the wires are crossed.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vice President Marshall strolled out of the senate chamber across the corridor into his ornate office for a quiet smoke during a lull in the senate debates. Seated in the big chair at the vice president's desk was a tourist who was sitting there for the purpose of being able to boast when he got home that he had done just that. He made no move to get up when the vice president entered, for Marshall is a plain little man and looks just like anybody.

The visitor supposed that Marshall was merely another tourist like himself. Instead of getting up he made himself even more at home when the vice president entered, and picked up a pen from the desk, to show the newcomer that there is no need of being stiff or formal simply because one is in a prominent man's office.

"I think I'll write something with the vice president's pen," the man remarked pleasantly, by way of placing Marshall at his ease. "Want to sit down here and try it after I get through?"

"Yes, I would like to sit there when you're through," replied Marshall, who calmly walked over by the window to await the man's pleasure.

When the man got up Marshall took the seat and began to write something with his pen.

"You act just as if you belonged there," suggested the stranger, affably.

"Yes," admitted Marshall, "that's the sad part of it."

Inasmuch as Rear Admiral Mayo was the man who insisted on Huerta firing a salute to the flag, and who thus caused us to mix it up with Mexico, a great many persons have the impression that Mayo must be a man of impulsive E-string temperament.

As a matter of fact, if one were to line up all the naval officers we have, look them over carefully, and then guess which one would be most likely to start anything, Henry Thomas Mayo would doubtless be picked last of all.

Mayo is the most patient officer in the navy. He is as calm and unruffled all the day long as Oscar Underwood, who is, of course, the calmest human to be found anywhere. True, Mayo is below average height; he probably stands less than five feet six, and there is a theory that men of modest stature are inclined to cockiness. But Mayo's every day manner is as unbelligerent as that of an easy-going old setter dog.

Why, then, is the question, did he start anything in Mexico. To which the navy folk will answer: Simply because he saw nothing to do but play according to the straight rules of the game as he knew them. An insult to the flag calls for a salute to the flag, and no matter how little one might be worked up over the situation personally, there is nothing else to it. If you're playing checkers and jump into a man's king row, there is nothing personal about the move, is there?

When Representative Fowler of Illinois arose the other day and in his wail-like voice began objecting to various items in the appropriation bill that was up, Minority Leader Mann and a few others saw that something must be done with Fowler. He was taking up too much time. It was decided that Mann should be the one to head him off, and the scheme was to try to shame him. So the next time Fowler said anything Mann got up and pointed out the fact that Fowler was consuming a vast amount of time and that time in the house is paid for out of the pockets of the common people—the very people that Fowler claims to befriend. That stopped Fowler only temporarily. In a moment he was objecting to a paragraph which included postage stamps. Whereupon Mann leaped to his feet and made a speech in which he pictured the pathos of the common people with no postage stamps to enable them to write letters to loved ones at a distance.

Now the whole point of our story is simply this: James R. Mann is the only person, so far as can be learned, who has ever succeeded in getting a heart throb out of the printing of a mess of postage stamps. Considerable heart throbbist is the man who can do that.

Old John Sharp Williams looks so savage that he would be the best man in the senate that one would suspect of being full of mischief. Yet the other day Old John Sharp sat in the chamber and amused himself during a dull hour by shooting paper wads with his thumb at a number of unsuspecting associates. He hadn't tried hitting anybody with a paper wad since he was a youngster in school and just wanted to see if he could.

Representative Carter of Oklahoma asked a half-Indian friend of his down there if he purposed to go to the front in the event of war with Mexico.

"Why, no," the man replied. "What do I want to go down there and get shot for? I'm not mad at Mexico."

The Passing of Litigation

Chicago Tribune: It took five years of litigation for a Chicago switchman to obtain a verdict of $13,000 for the loss of an arm, sustained because one of the cars he was endeavoring to adjust had a defective coupler. The United States supreme court the other day swept aside technical objection to the verdict in favor of the man, which was rendered in the Northern Illinois district court years ago.

This incident is worth emphasizing, for it marks the passing of what was once a common and unnecessary hardship upon workingmen who have been unfortunate enough to be caught in an accident. According to a report on the operations of the workmen's compensation laws in the various states, made public by a joint commission of the American Federation of Labor and of the National Civic federation, litigation in just such accident cases has disappeared in the states having workmen's compensation laws.

There are twenty-two states having such laws, the report shows. The number of working people affected by these acts is 5,000,000. Out of 10,000 compensation cases which have come up since these laws went into effect, only ten have gone into the courts for settlement. The rest came to agreements without litigation. The payments of compensation to employes injured in the course of their work are prompt, and usually commence at the end of the second or third week.

Great as are the benefits from these compensation laws, they are not without defects, according to the report. Chief among these is lack of uniformity. A corporation employing men in a number of states has to pay different sums for the same injury in different states. With all their faults, however, the commission says, the present compensation laws mark a substantial advance of social justice.

Keeping Up With Minnesota Editors

Press Comments on Current Events.

We Can Be Content With That.

Anoka Union: One Theodore Roosevelt can never be president again, even if he receives the nomination at the Republican national convention.

Oh! Fie, You Married Man!

Browns Valley Tribune: Alimony is the post graduate fee in the course of love. (Frank Eddy didn't write this).

Quite Smothered in Clothes, in Fact.

Princeton Union: If it is possible for the late Mother Eve of the Garden of Eden to look upon the new styles in feminine attire she has the consolation of knowing that, in her apron of fig leaves, she was not so greatly underclad, after all.

Here to Stay.

Bemidji Pioneer: Although the primary law is being more or less knocked, criticized and abused generally, Democrats and Republicans alike willing to usher forth its weak points, it is here to stay, for after a fair trial its merits will be more fully recognized.

Very Sensitive.

Elk River Star-News: The old bunch are very sensitive over Mr. Lee's statements on public questions and calls it "abuse." We have always noticed that when the record of a politician is ripped up the back his friends commence to cry "abuse," and when they do that it is a safe conclusion that they are on the run.

Still, He Could Live Without a Public Job, Maybe.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: There are not wanting those who predict that Iverson is slated for a seat on the board of control in return for reanimated loyalty to Governor Eberhart. This newspaper does not believe it.

Popular With the Women.

Northfield News: Senator Ole Sageng from Ottertail county has on several occasions demonstrated that among other excellent qualifications he possesses a generous supply of common sense and his refusal to become a candidate for the Progressive nomination for governor is but another bit of evidence in point. If the women had had the right to vote in Minnesota, Ole would hardly have hesitated. As the personal champion of woman suffrage cause in the senate the last two sessions he has won the everlasting gratitude of those who are fighting for woman's rights in this state. Ole's turn will come yet.

The Signpost.

On my green grass plot I stand aloof
Where the four white roads have met,
And I hear the tap of the coacher's hoof
And the hum of the landaulette.
I point the road with a stretching arm,
And the tale of the miles I tell
To duke and squire and man of the farm
And tattered tramp as well.

I'll show you the way to Lythamstoke,
I'll show you the way to Sheen,
The road that takes you to Burton's Oak
And the road to Tyndal Green;
And if you are looking for Foldingfleet
Or Lipcomb or Lilfordlea,
You have only to stand where the four roads meet
And read off the way from me.

In summer the green oak twines a crown
To hang on my half-hid brow;
In winter days when the leaves are down
I am rapped by a windy bough.
And if there are hours when the glad wheels
drone,
And the racing road-cars glance,
There are long, long nights when I dream alone
While the mist and the moonbeams dance.

Beneath my arms have the lovers met
In the dusk of the summer green;
I remember a lad from Hummerset,
And a maid who came from Sheen.
The hours went by and they took no heed
Till the glow worms lit the loam,
And the dark came down and they could not read
The miles they were each from home.

I am friend of the gypsies, maid and man,
And the horse with the broken knees,
And the lurcher dog, and the caravan,
And the camp fire under the trees;
The children wild as a woodland fawn,
The girl with the loose black hair—
I have sped them all at the gray of dawn
Down the road to Lipcomb fair.

But dearest the day when the foxhounds meet
On my grass plot green and wide,
When the pack comes up from Foldingfleet
And the field from every side;
When I hear the far-off hounds in flight,
And the distant horn all day,
Till the parting horsemen call "Good night!"
As I send them each his way.

The roads are white, and the roads are brown,
And the roses bloom and die;
The oak-buds break and the leaves come down,
But apart and aloof am I.
The wheels may come and the wheels may go
With the moods of the changing year,
But white with the dust or white with snow
I stand at the cross roads here.

I'll show you the way to Lythamstoke,
I'll show you the way to Sheen,
The road that takes you to Burton's Oak
And the road to Tyndal Green;
And if you are looking for Foldingfleet
Or Lipcomb or Lilfordlea,
You have only to stand where the four roads meet
And inquire of the way from me!

"She has reformed him all right."

"Sure enough."

"You bet. Before he was married he used to be as good as a meal ticket for me, but when I met him yesterday and tried to borrow a five he made me pay back a tenner I owed him."

A Police Force Is Not "Government."

Newark Star: In reversing the conviction and state prison sentence of Alexander Scott, a Passaic Socialist editor, the New Jersey supreme court points out how badly the law is apt to be strained by prosecutors and local courts in times of labor unrest. Scott's paper charged Chief Bimson and the Paterson police with brutality during the Paterson silk strike. The statute under which the editor was convicted was passed after the assassination of President McKinley. It was aimed at speeches or writings which "advocate the subversion and destruction by force of any or all government," or incite "hostility or opposition to any or all government." Chief Bimson and his men may have done no more than their duty and the charge of brutality may have been baseless. That has nothing to do with the case. Police administration is not "government," and that is what the supreme court decision means. It is plain justice and common sense.

Expected Too Much.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Merrily chuckled Congressman Horace M. Towner a few evenings ago when the conversation at a social session turned to criticism. He said he was reminded of the kick Smith made in a restaurant.

Being far from his usual haunts at dinner time some days ago, Smith dropped into a small restaurant and ordered a steak. Eventually the steak was placed before him, and, being some particular, he began a critical investigation.

"Here, waiter," he impatiently called a minute later, "I want you."

"Yes, sir," responded the waiter party, approaching. "What can I do for you?"

"I want to complain about this steak!" indignantly cried the diner. "It is not tender enough!"

"Not tender enough!" was the quick rejoinder of the waiter. "Say, do you expect it to jump up and kiss you?"

The Magic Word.

Boston Transcript: Diner—I've forgotten what I wanted to order and I had it on the tip of my tongue.

WILL LEVY ON SCHOOLS.

City Would Collect $19,000 for Special Improvements.

Assessments for special improvements can be levied by the city against school property, according to an opinion which has been given to Finance Commissioner Fred J. Voss by City Attorney Harvey Clapp. Under the ruling the city will proceed to collect $19,000 from the school board.

"In most states," a portion of the opinion reads, "unless such property is specifically exempt from special assessment as distinguished from taxation, it can be assessed just as property belonging to the municipality proper can be assessed.

"Minnesota is one of the states in which the courts have treated an assessment as entirely distinct from a tax, and have held that the exemption from a general taxation does not exempt from special assessments.

"The legislature has never exempted public school property from special assessments; and it has, moreover, recognized the above principle by exempting other property."

A GLANCE ACROSS THE RIO GRANDE

By SAVOYARD

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—

"I do not like you, Dr. Fell;
The reason why I cannot tell.
But this I know quite well,
I do not like you, Dr. Fell."

And that is the way our jingoes feel toward Woodrow Wilson. All winter and spring they have denounced him for not interfering in Mexico, and now that he has ordered a naval demonstration to enforce respect for the flag they are dissatisfied with that, too. Thus if Wilson paid any attention to them he would be in this fix:

"You can and you can't,
You will and you won't;
You'll be damned if you do
And you'll be damned if you don't."

Mondell and Willie Alden Smith have nothing but criticism for the action of the president, whose aim is to prevent further insult to the flag and to force apology for unwarranted arrest of our sailors by a ruffian henchman of the butcher, Huerta.

* * *

Early after his inauguration Wilson determined that he would not recognize Huerta. That enraged his critics and forced the resignation of our minister to Mexico, who is a warm partisan of the bloody usurper. In all the assaults of the president from enemies in congress and out of congress the chief complaint has been that Wilson did not recognize Huerta.

Well, Huerta is nothing but a Czolgocz. Suppose the murderer of McKinley had mustered the backing and usurped the office of president of the United States after his bloody work, it would have been precisely what Huerta has done. The difference is that Czolgocz went to the gallows and Huerta went to the palace. That is all, and Wilson and Bryan, being Christian men with a horror of murder, refused to extend the hand of amity to this conscienceless scoundrel.

By the way, the New York World seems to be of opinion that the journalism practiced by one Hearst is calculated to create another Czolgocz, and it was asserted by Theodore Roosevelt that he believed Mr. Hearst is responsible for the assassin who murdered President McKinley.

* * *

If no foreigner had a "concession" in Mexico that country would be as tranquil as ours. All that strife and violence and battle down there can easily be accounted for. Adventurous capital wishes to exploit Mexico. One millionaire will get a "concession" from the government. Another millionaire covets that concession. There is but one way to get it—finance a Huerta and precipitate a revolution. He will cancel the first concession and grant another to his supporter.

That is what "dollar diplomacy" has been doing in Latin America for centuries. This is the age of pelf. There are too many folks in Christendom—Europe and the United States, especially—who hold that man has but one mission in this life and that to get money, honestly and peacefully if he can, knavishly and violently if he must.

* * *

It looks as though the usurper is nearly at the end of his rope. With the administration at Washington resolved to bring him to a sense of some sort of responsibility and the Constitutionalists victorious in the field Huerta is bound to fall. It may be that Carranza is a bad man, but his avowed policy is beneficent and the only policy that will bring peace to his distracted country. In Villa he has a captain of superior military genius and the two may be able to bring order out of chaos.

They announce that the fertile land of Mexico shall no longer be monopolized by a few rich men. Villa says that every Mexican shall have a patch of land of his own, his children sent to school, that peonage shall cease and the slaves be emancipated. You give every Mexican who wants to work a farm and revolution will cease. There are grants of millions of acres to individuals and the land monopoly of Mexico is responsible for all the turmoil down there.

* * *

Of course Carranza and Villa intend to confiscate some, perhaps all, of these immense estates and divide them into homesteads for the people of Mexico, and in proportion to population there are more landless folk in Mexico than in any other country in the world. The mines also are monopolized by a few individuals and doubtless some of these will be confiscated.

Confiscation is a mighty ugly word to a people like ours, but it might as well be understood that there is going to be no peace in Mexico until the land monopoly is broken up and capital, wildly speculative, withdrawn from that unhappy land. Then decent and honest capital will have a show down there.

* * *

It need not astonish you if Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting" shall soon be triumphantly vindicated by the event.

Let us hope that war may be averted.

MEXICANS DRILLING

Otherwise All Is Quiet in the Capital, Say Reports.

American Doctors and Nurses There Refuse to Leave Patients.

Vera Cruz, May 12.—From Mexico City come reports of quiet business conditions, but of large numbers of men and boys drilling in the streets.

A few nights ago a mob gathered before the Brazilian legation and demanded that Luis d'Antin, an attache of the American embassy who had taken refuge there, be delivered over. Threats were made to kill him. The Brazilian minister notified the state department that he would only surrender d'Antin in case he was overpowered.

The antipathy to the attache is due to the fact that he is the only American official left in the capital, and because of his activity in relieving the distress of American non-combatants.

No Fortifications Raised.

So far as is known no measures have been taken to fortify the capital. The Federals, however, are taking steps to provision Puebla, about midway between Vera Cruz and the capital on the line of the Inter-Oceanic. Gen. Navarrete is said to beholding outposts east of Puebla, watching the American lines. It is reported that many cattle have been gathered at Puebla, and much grain and supplies of various sorts are stored there.

A rumor has been current in the capital that in case Villa drives the Federals out, Huerta is planning to make a stand at Puebla, which has military advantages for defense. Puebla is the city where the Mexicans made a desperate resistance against French invasion.

American Is Missing.

An American named Doster, formerly a correspondent for a New York paper, but later employed in a bank at the capital, is missing and is supposed to have been imprisoned by the Federals. Doster resumed his newspaper work when the other correspondents at Mexico City went to Vera Cruz. His quarters were searched, and a secret code was found, to which the authorities attached much importance. He was arrested at the time, but was released under orders to report to the police at a certain hour daily. He failed to keep this agreement and the police began a search for him, and, it is believed, succeeded in finding him.

The secretary of the American consulate at Saltillo, Jose Marchant, called at the Brazilian legation a few days ago and reported that the consulate there had been looted by the Federals. Secret codes and the office records were seized and Vice Consul John R. Silliman and his wife were arrested and taken to the governor's palace. The secretary did not know what had eventually become of them.

The number of American women left in the capital is variously estimated up to 300. They are waiting for what they characterize as "the last indefinite warning."

Almost all the American doctors in Mexico City refuse to leave their patients. The American hospital is open and in it are some American nurses and several American patients. The nurses were all trained in the United States and they are standing by the doctors. The only likelihood of their leaving lies in the possibility of the taking over of the hospital by the Mexican authorities, a contingency which might arise owing to the crowding of the native hospitals by wounded and sick soldiers. Hospital and medical supplies are growing scarcer daily, and medicines and bandages have been commandeered from the drug stores.

Britons Urged to Leave.

The British legation has sent out another notification to all British subjects in Mexico, urging the advisability of their leaving the country immediately. Many of the British residents are heeding the warning which is being spread through the interior by couriers.

In the capital the strictest censorship over messages to outside points is being maintained. At the cable office no messages signed by Americans are being accepted or delivered.

G. E. Williams, accountant, and C. B. Hoadley, mill foreman of the El Favor Mining company at Hostotipaquillo, in the state of Jallisco, both were killed by bandits when their camp was attacked recently. Walter Neal, the manager, and another American, were slightly wounded, but Federal troops arrived in time to save their lives. The bandits took nine bars of bullion and sacked the mine store, but they were driven off by the troops.

Stop Bullion Shipping.

It is reported that Gen. Huerta is determined to prevent the further shipping of bullion from the country. The express companies have been prohibited from accepting shipments without permission from the government. This, mining men say, it will be impossible to obtain.

It is understood that great quantities of bullion, both in the capital and mines, are being held under the ruling. The mine managers and foreign employes are abandoning properties in all directions, leaving them to the care of Mexican employes.

Nutter, correspondent of the Boston Herald, and a photographer who went to Saltillo recently while on the way from Torreon, on Gen. Huerta's invitation, reached Vera Cruz yesterday. They had a terrible experience at San Pedro and elsewhere after the rout of the Federals at Torreon. They were repeatedly thrown into jail, lost all their possessions and were subjected to many indignities before they made their way to Mexico City and thence here.

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER RELEASED.

Vera Cruz, May 12.—Walter C. Whiffen, correspondent of The Associated Press, who was arrested by the Mexican authorities on his arrival from Vera Cruz at Mexico City on Thursday evening and released on Saturday, returned today to Vera Cruz.

A. J. Sutton, a Washington newspaper photographer who was arrested and released at the same time, was taken from the train at Cordoba on his way from the capital to this city.

MOST AMERICANS OUT OF TAMPICO.

Washington, May 12.—All American citizens who will leave are now out of Tampico, Rear Admiral Mayo cabled the navy department. The dispatch made no mention of fighting reported to be in progress between the Federals and Constitutionalists at Tampico.

EX-ARMY OFFICER PUT UNDER ARREST.

Washington, May 12.—First Lieut. Charles M. Maigne, U. S. A., retired, who went through the Mexican line at Vera Cruz in the capacity of correspondent for a Washington newspaper, was arrested yesterday upon returning to Vera Cruz. Advices of his arrest reached the war department from Gen. Funston.

Maigne's arrest was ordered from Washington on the ground that it would be difficult to satisfactorily explain the presence of an American officer within the lines of those who contest the right of Americans on Mexican soil.

Orders had previously gone out for Maigne to cease writing newspaper stories, and when Gen. Funston reported that the retired officer had passed through the Mexican Federal lines the order for his arrest followed.

Officials here took the view that as Lieut. Maigne, although retired, still is subject to the jurisdiction of Secretary Garrison, it would be difficult if not impossible to satisfy the Mexican Federal commander that the officer's presence within the enemy's lines was in his purely civil capacity, as a newspaper correspondent, and not as a military spy.

SLATE OF OFFICERS FOR 1915 PAGEANT

The following list of officers was suggested by T. W. Hugo, chairman of the nominating committee, at the meeting last evening and will be finally voted on at the next meeting of the members:

President—Not named.

Vice presidents—J. B. Crane, John J. Moe, Jesse Norton.

Secretary—Not named.

Treasurer—Daniel Mahoney.

Board of governors—C. A. Duncan, David Williams, F. A. Patrick, Mrs. G. S. Richards, Mrs. E. A. Silberstein, Mrs. S. R. Holden, R. A. Horr, C. A. Marshall, J. H. Hearding, Judge Bert Fesler.

Arthur K. Squier, temporary chairman, and A. C. Pearson, temporary secretary, will hold over until the board of governors and officers meet and make their selection for these two offices.

IS BEGINNING TO TAKE FORM

Festival Committee Considering Name, Constitution and Officers.

"Shan Kiva" Wins Prize—Aero-Yacht Flight Is Indorsed.

OUTLINE OF WORK DONE BY PAGEANT COMMITTEE LAST EVENING.

Constitution adopted.
Slate of officers reported for first pageant in 1915.
Prize winners in name contest announced.
Committee appointed to work with the Rotary club committee in behalf of the aero-yacht flight through the Panama canal.
Offer of Commercial club for the use of the club and any expenses that may be incurred by the temporary officers in sending out notices and handling the affairs of the organization, received.

Organization of the general committee for the pageant and festival to be held in Duluth the last week of July, 1915, was partly completed at the second meeting held at the Commercial club last evening, with the reading of the proposed constitution, the announcing of the slate of officers and board of governors and the selection of the prize winners in the name contest instituted by the American Exchange National bank three weeks ago. The final choice of a name has been left to the special committee, of which Judge Bert Fesler is chairman.

M. M. Hanna, chairman of the organization committee, read the constitution as prepared by the members of his committee during the wek. The constitution, which is published elsewhere was received, but approval was laid over until the next meeting, when it will be re-read with the several changes suggested last evening. The members on this committee are: M. M. Hanna, chairman, Dan Mahoney, E. J. Filiatrault, Judge Bert Fesler and Dr. Maurice Lefkovitis.

Slate of Officers.

T. W. Hugo, chairman of the nominating committee, then read the following slate of officers to be chosen at this time for the 1915 pageant: President, left open; vice presidents, J. B. Crane, John J. Moe and Jesse Norton; secretary, left open; treasurer, Daniel Mahoney, and board of governors, C. A. Duncan, David Williams, F. A. Patrick, Mrs. G. S. Richards, Mrs. E. A. Silberstein, Mrs. S. R. Holden, R. A. Horr, C. A. Marshall, J. H. Hearding and Judge Bert Fesler. Owing to the fact that the constitution was not adopted last evening, the voting on this slate was postponed until the next meeting, when the constitution will be finally accepted and the organization of the committee completed. The officers of president and secretary are to be left to the officers and board of governors.

List of Names.

A list of all the names suggested in competition for the two prizes of $10 each offered by the American Exchange National bank was passed out to each member present at the meeting and a ballot was taken. These lists were prepared by The Herald and a special vote of thanks was later given to the newspaper.

The names receiving the highest number of votes were Shan Kiva, which was suggested by P. D. Nelson, 427 North Twenty-seventh avenue west, and Duluth Midsummer Festival and Pageant suggested by Miss Elsa Bieberman of 2031 East First street. It is expected that name chosen for the festival will be announced at the next meeting of the general committee. The name chosen will not necessarily be one of the prize winners.

Flight Is Indorsed.

The proposed aeroyacht flight from Duluth, down the Great Lakes, through the Panama canal, over to San Francisco and then across the country to Duluth, was given an official sanction by the committee and upon a motion, A. K. Squier, temporary chairman, named the following committee to work in conjunction with the Rotary club: Mr. Squier, chairman, Clyde Kelly, August Frey, Glen Van Buren and R. G. Roberts. This committee and the Rotary club committee will now attempt to raise the remaining money needed to defray the expenses of the flight. About $1,700 has already been subscribed by Duluth business men.

A communication from G. H. Bate, president of the Rotary club, was read, in which he suggested that the festival committee work in behalf of a campaign to reduce passenger rates to and from Duluth when visitors here plan to travel by way of the lakes in conjunction with a cross country trip. Mr. Bate pointed out that at the present time a resident of Minneapolis going to New York or any eastern point can come back by the way of the lakes, but he must go through Chicago, in using his through ticket. Mr. Bate is endeavoring to change this system and to include Duluth in the general itinerary. Mr. Squier, on motion of the members, appointed M. M. Hanna, C. R. Pattinson and John Pugh on a committee to work with Mr. Bate in behalf of the proposed passenger rate change.

The date of the next meeting has been left for the temporary officers to decide and a call will be issued within a few days. T. W. Hugo, in behalf of the Commercial club, announced at the close of the meeting that all expenses during the temporary organization of the pageant committee will be met by the Commercial club and that no subscription need be raised at this time for that purpose.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well-fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

The Homecroft Corner

Conducted By C. E. Roe.

Questions sent to Mr. Roe or to The Herald will be answered.

Gardener's Calendar.

Plant trees and shrubs.
Puts in early lettuce, radishes, onions and beets.
Time for sowing poppies.

The weather man does not seem to have any friendly feeling for the gardener this spring.

Consequently, Mr. Gardener finds it difficult to make progress in his planting. However, the season is sufficiently advanced to make tree and shrub planting safe. Before setting, both trees and bushes should be carefully pruned. A safe rule is to cut away about one-half of the last season's growth and to remove any wood that seems rugged or unhealthy. Trees that are properly trimmed will start with greater vigor because there is less wood to feed. Pruning also has a tendency to develop a stronger root system.

The holes in which trees or bushes are to be set should be sufficiently large to allow the roots to go in without any cramping. If the soil is hard or poor more room should be provided, so that a quantity of good loamy soil can be used around the roots. It is important that the soil be firmly packed about the roots, leaving no crevices for air exposure and consequent drying. After setting, a mulch of stable manure may be used on the surface if it kept away from the trunk of the tree. Never use manure around the roots of trees or shrubs in setting. Trees should be set about two inches deeper than they stood in the nursery row. If the soil is moist, no water will be needed at time of planting, but it is well to give them an occasional drenching during any excessively dry period. When water is applied, put on enough to thoroughly saturate the soil.

It is never good practice to plant seeds in mud, but, as soon as the surface has dried sufficiently to pulverize well, lettuce, radishes, onions and beets may be safely planted. A covering of one-half inch is enough for any of the seeds mentioned, and a somewhat lighter covering should be used for lettuce. Plant in rows 12 or 15 inches apart.

Poppies should be planted at once in a finely pulverized soil. The seed is so fine that a gentle stirring of soil with a rake will afford sufficient covering.

As soon as the soil dries a little and the temperature becomes milder, plant gladioli and dahlias, put crown buds about 2 inches below surface, pack soil around the bulb but leaves it loose on top.

In setting shrubbery, as a usual thing it should be grouped in corners of the lot or banked in angles of the house. In other words, try to frame the house and relieve all sharp angles but do not clutter your lawn or obstruct the view. If you need a barrier or fence plant a hedge instead. The cost is not great, it looks far better than a fence and will usually serve the same purpose. Use bush honeysuckle, caragana, barberry, lilac or buckthorn. All are well adapted to our conditions here.

CITY CLEANING CAMPAIGN IS NOW IN FULL SWING

Schedule Furnished, Which, If Followed, Means Spotless Town.

Today really marks the first day of the city's housecleaning campaign.

The weather conditions are ideal, the breezes being not too chilly and the sun doing its best to boost the good work along. It should be remembered that ten days were designated for the clean-up in order that unfavorable weather conditions might be discounted.

"Brighten-up" Borgen, chairman of the brighten-up committee of the Rotary club, is waxing enthusiastic over the task and is lining up all available support. Not only do the Rotary club and the city officials strongly indorse the clean-up program, but the Commercial club and the Builders' Exchange have declared themselves heartily in favor of it. Other organizations are following suit.

At the end of the ten days' scouring Duluth is expected to more nearly resemble "Spotless Town" than at any time since it shed its swaddling clothes and assumed the dignity of a city. Yards, lawns, streets and alleys should be spic and span and all residences and business properties looking their best.

"Brighten-up" Borgen has outlined a tentative schedule for the ten days' effort. If every citizen will make it a point to do each day what the schedule suggests there is no shadow of a doubt but what Duluth will present the best appearance of its history. Practically the whole range of possibilities in the cleaning line is covered. The schedule is as follows:

First day—Clean up all basements and chimneys in the residence and business sections, and have all rubbish removed to the proper place.

Second day—Clean up the front yard and see that the gates are in proper order.

Third day—Clean up the back yard and see that all rubbish, tin cans and ashes are removed.

Fourth day—Clean up the sidewalk; build gutters in front of the house.

Fifth day—See that all fences are in proper condition—repaired and painted to make them look right.

Sixth day—Repair and paint all screens and awnings and have them put on.

Seventh day—Repair and paint all lawn and porch furniture.

Eighth day—Repair and paint all porch floors and steps.

Ninth day—Repair and paint up all roofs, eaves and gutters.

Tenth day—Boost for cleanliness for terminal entries to the city.

During the following ten days, repair and paint up residences and business buildings, and advocate something similar for all public and municipal buildings not now in first-class condition.

SIGNED AWAY DOWER RIGHTS

Wife Says Husband Secured Her Signature Under False Pretenses.

When Carrie Hassinger, 29, affixed her signature to a paper handed her by her husband a year ago, she little realized that she was signing away her dower rights, according to her claims in a suit for separation from her husband, Charles Hassinger, 41, filed in district court today.

Mrs. Hassinger alleges that her signature to a deed to their home was secured under false pretenses and asks that it be set aside. She claims that her husband told her that she was signing a renewal of a mortgage to the property and it was with this understanding that she signed the deed.

She is suing her husband for a limited divorce on the grounds of cruelty. She asks for a separation from his bed and board and that he be required to support her and their one child, Gertrude, aged 2½ months. Hassinger is a butcher.

On June 30, 1913, Hassinger and his wife deeded their home in West Duluth to C. L. Rawowsky, who within less than a month quit-claimed in favor of Sophia Hassinger, mother of the defendant, in the divorce action. Mrs. Hassinger claims that the transfer from Hassinger and herself was made under false pretenses so far as she was concerned and was without any consideration and for the purpose of defrauding her out of her dower rights.

The Hassingers were married Jan. 22, 1913. She alleges that Hassinger abandoned her July 17, 1913, after he had, in the presence of her friends, denied the paternity of a then unborn child. Mrs. Hassinger asks for the custody of the child.

Judge Bert Fesler granted a divorce to Agnes R. Wieland, 22, from William H. Wieland, 33, on the grounds of desertion. The Wielands were married at Eveleth, Nov. 9, 1910 and the alleged abandonment took place less than two months later. Mrs. Wieland was granted the custody of the only child, Henry, now aged 2½ years.

WYOMING SAILS WITH 1,000 MEN.

New York, May 12.—The dreadnought Wyoming sailed last night for Vera Cruz by way of Hampton Roads. She carried 1,000 fighting men, one-half of whom are available for duty ashore if needed. She also took 600 bags of mail.

OPPOSES LICENSING NEWSPAPER MEN.

Lawrence, Kan., May 12.—"Is proposed legislation to license newspaper men desirable or practicable?" was the question discussed by Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times, at the National Newspaper conference at the University of Kansas yesterday.

"Certainly not," was the Californian's answer. "Such a course," Gen. Otis pointed out, "would be to set up a newspaper class, to establish a newspaper oligarchy; an attempt to do the impossible and the undesirable.

"All citizens must be left free to 'break into' the newspaper business, and to fail or succeed therein, according to their respective abilities, or lack of the same, their good or bad motives and their power to impress or disgust their fellow citizens."

Gen. Otis said newspapers should not be regulated by law any further than to be required to obey the law, respect the courts and reverence the Constitution.

YOUNG STEPHENSON IS OUT OF RACE.

Escanaba, Mich., May 12.—Grant T. Stephenson, son of Senator Stephenson, who had received a strong pledge of support in this county and others of the upper peninsula for the Republican nomination for congress, has withdrawn from the contest.

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And this one from Mrs. Haddock:

UTICA, OKLA.—"I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am better than I have been for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medicine and I have recommended it to others."—Mrs. MARY ANN HADDOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

STEEL PLANT SUBURBS

BETTER ROAD IMPERATIVE

Suburbanites Say Their Welfare Depends Upon Improvements.

Commonwealth Avenue and Others in Bad Shape, They Say.

Deplorable conditions of Commonwealth avenue and the main thoroughfare between Duluth and the suburbs are uppermost in the minds of residents of the suburbs. D. H. Lewis, cashier of the Central State bank, says that if the members of the city commission would show initiative, they would provide some means at once for the improvement of the streets.

Gravel, said to be more than 50 per cent clay, is now being dumped on Commonwealth avenue in the Gary district. The material is said to be almost useless during wet weather, the sand and gravel working towards the bottom and the mud coming out on top.

"Gravel is of no use on these streets," said F. W. Damkroeger, president of the New Duluth Commercial club. "The city can, at a small expense, get all the rock it wants close to the principal street, crush it at a small expense and have a road that would hold up the heavy traffic. Crushed rock will be the only salvation for a good road until such a time as the city can pave the street."

"When we want any improvement done here the officials immediately say that there is no money with which to do it," said D. H. Lewis. "It is now four years since the Minnesota Steel company began building its plant. Our officials have done little so far to provide a decent highway from the city proper to the steel plant site. What other city would have waited this long to provide a good road? Will it be any surprise if officials of the steel corporation will disapprove making this plant larger when it is now impossible to get to it from any side on account of the deep mud?

"If the city has not the money, then it is time that it got some. The owners of property on Commonwealth avenue have all benefited by large increase in values. Let the city officials say 'Pave this street, you have benefited by an increase in value.' Let them take the initiative and I am sure that there will be no petition to bar this improvement's progress. It should not be necessary to wait until all of the property owners are willing to stand the cost."

M'EWEN WILL BE TOASTMASTER

Eberhart and Miller Will Speak at New Duluth Banquet.

FANS MAKE BIG BETS ON GAME.

Baseball fans of New Duluth and Gary are very enthusiastic over the prospect of the opening game of the season to be played betwen New Duluth and Gary teams. The supporters of each have, it is said, placed a number of side bets on the outcome of the game and some of the more enthusiastic fans have bet as high as $50. A purse of $50 has also been raised which will, it is believed, add greater stimulus to the playing of the members of each team. The game will take place on the New Duluth grounds Sunday afternoon.

Completes Garage.

John Burns has completed the erection of a garage at the corner of One Hundred and First avenue west and Hurd street. The building is of frame construction and cost about $1,000.

OUTLOOK FOR CROPS GOOD

Seeding Has Progressed Well With Greater Acreage in Many Places.

Many New Settlers Are Seeding Farms in Northern Counties.

Substantial progress has been made in seeding work throughout Minnesota despite unfavorable weather conditions, according to reports received by the state immigration office this week.

A feature commented upon by many of the crop reporters is the number of new families moving into the country, the majority of them coming from Iowa, Illinois and other settled sections of the Middle West. The extension of the areas being planted to corn and the development of dairying are other features.

The seeding of small grains is reported to have been completed in the following counties: Freeborn, Redwood, Dakota, Nobles, Yellow Medicine, Waseca, Jackson, McLeod, Watonwan and Becker.

Progress in the other counties referred to as follows by the crop reporters:

Otter Tail County.

Seeding began about April 20 and most of the small grains have been planted. There is more rain this spring than usual, and work is being delayed. Corn acreage will be increased this year. Tame grass is in fine shape. Farm help will be needed later on in this county; wages $30 to $35 per month with board.

F. R. JOHNSON,
Crop Reporter.

Mower County.

Seeding began about April 1 and will be all finished by May 15. Conditions of the ground are ideal and could not be better. Good dry weather for seeding was followed by a rain when completed. There is some winter wheat in this county and the acreage is increasing every year. Corn acreage will increase about 15 per cent over last year. There is always a demand for good help in this county at from $30 to $40 per month. Considerable alfalfa will be sown this season. A great many farmers are coming here from Iowa and Illinois, and the settlements March 1 for farms sold were over $1,000,000.

O. DORNBERG,
Crop Reporter.

Roseau County.

Slow progress has been made in seeding owing to heavy rains. The ground is in good condition with plenty of moisture. Corn acreage will be increased this year. Farm help is wanted; wages are from $35 to $40 per month with board. Many new farmers are coming into this county this spring. Sixteen active farmers' clubs have been organized in this county during the winter, and due to this fact considerable registered stock is being brought into this county this spring.

GEORGE H. MATTSON,
Crop Reporter.

Cass County.

Seeding began about April 22, and about 25 per cent finished. The ground is very wet with too much moisture. There is plenty of farm help at present. A few new farmers are coming into this county.

B. L. PERRY,
Crop Reporter.

Wadena County.

Seeding began about April 13, and is about two-thirds finished; delayed by rainy weather. The ground has rather too much moisture. There will probably be a small increase in corn acreage. There is plenty of farm help at present. Quite a large number of farmers are coming in.

A. MURRAY,
Crop Reporter.

Hubbard County.

Seeding began April 24, and is about half finished. The ground is cold and very wet. Corn acreage will be increased about 25 per cent. There is plenty of farm help at present.

J. H. NIXON,
Crop Reporter.

Kandiyohi County.

Seeding is late, due to cold weather and heavy rains lately; about three-fourths done, excepting flax, millet, etc. Farm help is needed; wages, $25 to $35 per month. Land is changing hands considerably and many new farmers are coming in.

R. M. POE,
Crop Reporter.

Norman County.

Seeding is two-thirds finished. The ground is in good condition with plenty of moisture. Tame grasses came through well. There will be about one-third increase in corn acreage over last year. The condition of farm work is very satisfactory up to the present time. The soil was in fine condition to receive the seed; there is plenty of moisture to sprout the grain quickly and early sown wheat is out of the ground and growing rapidly. We need some dry, sunshiny weather to put the ground in good condition to receive the corn.

B. A. GRAY,
Crop Reporter.

Itasca County.

Seeding has just begun. The ground is wet with a little too much moisture. Spring is late about ten days. It is not very cold but there was rain and heavy snow April 29. Corn acreage is about the same as last year. Many new farmers are coming in.

A. J. McGUIRE,
Crop Reporter.

Koochiching County.

The spring has been very backward so far. Most of the farmers were able to get their timber out in good shape. There seems to be great interest taken in crops and probably the acreage planted will be 15 per cent to 25 per cent greater than last year. Lots of stock is coming in and many neighborhoods are purchasing pure bred sires. Several communities will make a start towards one variety of potatoes. Many roads are being built. This should be a banner year for this county.

D. B. JEWELL,
Crop Reporter.

Pine County.

Seeding began about May 4. The ground is rather wet with a great plenty of moisture. Corn acreage will be increased. A lot of new farmers are coming in.

GEORGE EMPEY,
Crop Reporter.

Carlton County.

Seeding began May 1. Considerable moisture. Corn acreage will be at least three times as great. Inquiries for farm help are made frequently; wages, $35 per month.

H. A. PFLUGHOEFT,
Crop Reporter.

Dodge County.

The seeding began about April 17 and is about three-fourths done. The ground is quite wet with plenty of moisture. The corn acreage will be about the same as last year. Potato and hay lands will be in excellent condition.

PETER J. SCHWARG,
Crop Reporter.

Ramsey County.

Seeding is 90 per cent done. The ground is wet and cold but the lighter soils are in fine shape. The truck farmers are about as far ahead with their work as usual. Early vegetables have been planted and most of the plants put into the fields from the hot beds.

HENRY C. KRUM,
Crop Reporter.

Douglas County.

Seeding began about April 15 and is about 75 per cent done. The ground was in fine condition for early seeding. A great deal of moisture has come since first seeding. Farm help is needed; wages from $30 to $35 per month. A number of farmers are coming in from Iowa, Illinois and the Dakotas.

ASKS FOR HEARING.

Employe Wants Compensation From Rainy Lake Company.

Because his employer, the Virginia & Rainy Lake company, has refused to settle with him for injuries received at its Cusson lumber camp, Feb. 17, while assisting in "spotting" cars, Joseph Trosha yesterday petitioned the district court asking that a day be set for a hearing. Trosha asks the court to determine the amount he is entitled to under the workingmen's compensation act. He alleges that he sustained fractures of both bones of his left arm and was otherwise injured.

PLAYS LEAR ROLE IN COURT

Richard Naddy Sues for Redelivery of Deed From Sons.

Charges of Father Against Holders of Property Are Sustained.

When Richard Naddy, 64, widower, deeded over his property to his sons, John and Edward Naddy, three years ago, he thought that he was insuring a comfortable home for himself during the winter of his life and that he was secured against the infirmities of old age.

But when the conditions of the transfer of the property were not observed by the two sons, it occurred to the elder Naddy that his own interests would best be served if he could get the property back again. In district court yesterday a suit to enforce a redelivery of the deed prevailed.

The home of the Naddys, the property involved in the law suit, is situated on the rear of two lots at 2127 Fifty-eighth east, where Richard Naddy and his three children reside. John and Edward, sons, are grown up and Kathleen, daughter, is 12 years old.

Provide for Old Age.

On April 5, 1911, Richard Naddy, father, with an eye to the future, entered into a contract with his two sons in which he deeded over to them the property on which they were living and which had been his home for several years. The deed was deposited in escrow with S. W. Gilpin, judge of the probate court, with the understanding that if certain requirements were performed, the deed should be delivered to the sons upon the father's death.

In district court yesterday afternoon, Judge Fesler ordered findings in favor of the elder Naddy in an action brought to recover the deed. Under the judgment of the court, Judge Gilpin of the probate court, is directed to re-deliver the deed to the homestead to Richard Naddy. Judge Gilpin was made a joint defendant in the action.

Obligations of Sons.

One of the requirements between Naddy and his two sons was that a mortgage for $200, the only encumbrance against the property, should be paid by them before it fell due. It was also incumbent upon them to see that their sister, Kathleen, was provided with a good living and a home until she reached the years of majority. The contract provided that when Kathleen reached the age of 16, she was to be provided with a sewing machine.

In the action to compel a re-delivery of the deed, the elder Naddy declared that his sons had wilfully disregarded the terms of the contract in every respect. He alleged that they had not even paid the mortgage and that it was left for him to do after a foreclosure had been threatened by the mortgagee. In addition, he asserted that his sons had failed to pay the taxes as they had agreed to do and that they had neglected the welfare of their sister.

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my freckles, but can't lose them. What do you suggest?" See answer to "Stella." The treatment suggested I've never known to fail in any case of freckles or other cutaneous blemish.

P. J. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles?" Too much massaging may aggravate a wrinkled condition, tending to soften and loosen the tissue. I advise bathing the face in an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like you'd use cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will cause the offensive cuticle gradually to make way, by a process of gentle absorption, for the clear, velvety healthy hued skin underneath.—Woman's Realm.

Railroads

TO VENTILATE TUNNEL.

Northern Pacific Installs Fan System in Mullan Bore.

Helena, Mont., May 12.—The ventilating plant installed by the Northern Pacific railroad in the Mullan tunnel at Blossburg, seven miles west of here, where the railroad pierces the main range of the Rockies with a bore 3,900 feet long, is now in service.

This is the first ventilating plant installed on the Northern Pacific and the third of its kind in the United States. The plant is designed to keep the tunnel free of smoke and cost approximately $75,000. It is operated by steam power.

The system is composed principally of a massive fan which keeps the smoke ahead of the engine while passing through the tunnel. When the train is a freight with engines on either end, the fan keeps the smoke ahead of each engine, but does not drive it into the head engine.

General Supt. A. V. Brown, General Master Mechanic C. E. Allen and Division Engineer F. J. Taylor came West to witness the first operation of the plant.

CONTRACTORS SUE ROAD

Would Recover $29,553 From Fairchild & Northwestern Road.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 12.—A suit for $29,553.99 will be tried before Judge Wickham in circuit court here. The plaintiffs are Peter Nelson, Tom and Michael Foley, doing business as Peter Nelson & Foley Bros., and the defendants are the Fairchild & Northwestern Railway company, and R. A. Jacobson. The railway is owned by N. C. Foster, a millionaire of Fairchild. The road has been in process of construction the past year, the plaintiffs having been engaged in building it for the company.

The case is in the nature of a builder's lien against the railway company. The plaintiffs say they were to be paid, under their contract with the railway company, as fast as the work was completed and certified to by the engineer.

In their answer the company contends that the engineer's certificates were fraudulent and incorrect.

ADDITION TO THE WORK FARM

No contest will be made by St. Louis county against the award made by the board of appraisers in proceedings to acquire title by condemnation to a 20-acre tract of land needed to make an even thousand acres at the work farm site six miles out on the Swan Lake road.

At an adjourned meeting of the county board this morning, a resolution was passed in which the board approved the award of $2,850, and ordered half the sum, $1,425, the county's share, paid. The city will pay the balance as its share.

The board let a contract to the C. D. Steele company to furnish the county attorney's office with a new steel filing case for $255 and to the Woodruff Lumber company for shelving for the county school superintendent's office for $365. The contract for a number of corrugated culverts was let to the Duluth Corrugated Roofing company.

The board of joint county and city work farm commissioners is holding its monthly meeting this afternoon at the courthouse. The meeting is of a routine nature. The report of Supt. Fred Ward was read.

SUCCESSOR TO JOHN TISCHER

Several candidates have been mentioned as possible appointees for the vacancy on the county board caused by the death of the late John Tischer, county commissioner from the Second district. The appointing board, which will consist of Mayor Prince of this city, the township chairmen of the district, will meet Saturday morning at the courthouse for the purpose of selecting a commissioner to fill the unexpired term.

Robert H. McQuade, who is a candidate for the office at the June primaries, has been mentioned quite prominently for the office and many of his friends believe that he has a good chance of receiving the appointment. Others who have been mentioned are Thomas Holder, John Christensen and Edward Totman. Holder and Christensen are candidates at the June primaries for the office and it is understood that Totman may file.

W. W. Sanford today filed as a candidate in the race for commissioner from the Second district. Mr. Sanford is the ninth candidate to file for the office besides the late Commissioner Tischer, who was a candidate for reelection. The list of candidates follows: Gustav Collatz, A. G. Osman, W. W. Sanford, Thomas Holder, John Christensen, Thomas A. Stock, Thomas H. Little, Martin Dillon and Robert H. McQuade.

FOURTEEN SECTIONS OF LAND TO ONE FIRM

Bemidji, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. H. Welcome, bidding for the Union Loan & Investment company of Minneapolis, today bid in fourteen sections of land, promising to pay 12 per cent of the delinquent tax of Beltrami county. The sale was at the government land distribution which this week attracted thousands of persons to Bemidji.

O. H. Diericks and H. M. Robertson were other prominent bidders in the sale today. The law does not require bidders to give their addresses, and these men have proved the dark horses of the sale. W. C. Foster of Chicago is doing some heavy bidding.

WANT STREET END FOR COAL DOCK

The members of the city council went to Rice's Point this morning to look over a street end for which a vacation is desired. It is submerged and part, if not all of it, is said to have already been vacated. The legal department is going through the records to ascertain its exact status.

The Northwestern Fuel company is said to have secured options on property on both sides of the avenue and to be figuring on the erection of a $500,000 coal dock this summer.

From Rice's Point the commissioners went to West Superior street to inspect the paving which has been started. They expressed themselves as gratified with the progress which has already been made.

ONE MORE SALOON OUT OF BUSINESS

Another saloon has been added to the roll of those which have gone out of business under the city commission's law enforcement program.

William Wickham, 31 Sutphin street, has closed his doors. He made application for a license, and it was granted by the council, but he failed to appear in the treasurer's office with the very necessary $1,000 to pay for it.

Several other saloons in the city have gone out of business and others are liable to follow in the same direction, for they are having hard sledding to make both ends meet. Evidently they cannot show a balance in the cash register unless they can push the keys after hours and on Sunday. It is not impossible that the provision in the Hicken code which makes it unlawful for breweries to extend financial aid to saloons, may have something to do with it.

WOODLAND AVENUE IS A MILKY WAY

Woodland avenue was a veritable Milky Way this morning.

At about 7 o'clock this morning, a horse pulling a Zenith City dairy wagon, loaded with milk and cream, became suddenly frightened and made a dash for liberty. The animal ran several blocks down Woodland avenue, spilling milk and cream out of the wagon into the street and along the car tracks. At Victoria street the horse crashed into a pole and dumped the wagon over.

Mervin Kleihm, driver of the wagon, was unhurt, while the horse also escaped injury.

FIRST SALE UNDER THE NEW TAX LAW

More than 200 descriptions were disposed of this morning at the first sale of property under the new law providing for the sale of lands on which taxes have been delinquent for fifteen consecutive years. The sale is in progress this afternoon. It will be finished today, according to Deputy County Auditor Marvin, who is in charge.

The land offered for sale under the new law is not bid in for the delinquent taxes. Instead, one half of the assessed valuation of the land for 1912 is used as a basis. In some of the cases, the bidding was quite spirited. About twenty people attended the sale. Bids ranged from $3.50 to $50.

TWO DOCTORS UNDER ARREST

Efforts on the part of the St. Louis County Medical association to keep anyone from unlawfully operating as a physician, caused the arrest of Emil H. Brommund of the Progressive Medical association yesterday and Adion Cwi, of the Manhattan building today, on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

Both defendants have been arrested before on similar charges and only three weeks ago. Brommund paid a fine of $60 and costs to avoid a thirty-day sentence in the county jail. Both he and his brother, O. H. Brommund, were arrested on April 3 for practicing medicine without a license and after changing their plea to that of guilty, the court fined E. H. Brommund and dismissed the charge against O. H. Brommund.

Cwi was arrested more than a year ago on a similar charge, but was later found not guilty by a municipal court jury. Members of the St. Louis County Medical association assert that the two men have been practicing medicine without being duly qualified, and it was on their request that complaints were made against Brommund and Cwi.

Both Brommund and Cwi pleaded not guilty when arraigned in police court this morning. Brommund's trial was set for next Tuesday morning, while Cwi will be tried the morning of May 26. They were both allowed to go on their own recognizance.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY PASSES

Judge Ensign of the district court today signed an order dissolving the corporate existence of the United States & Dominion Life Insurance company and approving the bond of $2,000 for John A. Eklund of West Duluth as receiver for the firm. Mr. Eklund will proceed to wind up the affairs of the company at once.

According to Attorney James A. Wharton the passing of the company into the hands of a receiver at this time will have no effect on pending litigation against the company. A number of lawsuits which have grown out of the operations of Julius H. Block, former treasurer of the company and his associates will be brought on for trial.

Superior

COUNTY MAY OWN MINE.

Body of Ore Struck on Douglas County Work Farm.

Douglas county officials are already putting the county in the millionaire class. What is believed to be an extensive iron ore bed has been discovered on the Douglas county work farm where workmen have been drilling for a well.

At a depth of 350 feet a deposit of iron ore has been discovered. This ore, according to assayers, is sixty per cent iron. The iron bed is thought to cover a large area of ground in the county and already plans are being made to have extensive drilling done on the property and adjacent lands.

The drill for the well has been sunk through seven feet of solid ore, all of which is said to be of a high grade.

MORE INSURANCE AND HIGHER SALARIES.

Insurance on school buildings in Superior will be increased about $100,000, according to action taken by the school board last night. In former years the board has carried between $400,000 and $450,000. It is now proposed to carry over $500,000. The board also raised the maximum salary of school teachers from $820 to $900 and the minimum was placed at $60 per month.

Jailed for Defending Mother.

Because John Miller, with the assistance of Joe Gill, struck Joseph H. Pecklo and Constable James Baker while the latter two were attempting to get possession of a sewing machine in the home of Miller's mother, the two former were sent yesterday to the county workhouse for sixty days.

In the attempt to get the machine, Pecklo is said to have struck Mrs. Miller in the face. Her son and his companion came to the rescue. All three were arrested for resisting an officer, but Mrs. Miller pleaded not guilty and demanded a hearing. No defense was put up by Miller or Gill.

Buys Duluth Oil Company.

The Northwestern Oil company of Superior has just completed purchasing the interests of the Duluth Oil and Grease company of Duluth. Both concerns will be operated by the former under the former name. The Duluth concern has maintained a dock and tank of the Duluth side of the bay and now the Northwestern company will have facilities for dockage on both sides of the harbor.

LECTURER AGAINST CATHOLICS ARRESTED

Winona, Minn., May 12.—Anna Lowry, anti-Catholic lecturer, was arrested at Rushford last evening following an address there, by Sergeant George Huck of the Winona police force, under a warrant charging her with using obscene language in an address given to women only in Winona on March 15 last. On account of absence from the city of both municipal court judges today she was unable to obtain a hearing before tomorrow.

Anna Lowry's agent, F. P. French, maintains she was kidnaped and not arrested, but the Winona city charter expressly authorizes arrest anywhere in the state by any regular police officer of this city under warrants issued by the Winona municipal court.

Complaint against Anna Lowry, which is unprintable, was made by Miss O'Brien of this city. Anna Lowry says the language complained of was a literal quotation from Saint Alphonsus Ligouri's Roman Catholic theology, and that it was not correctly put in the complaint.

CUTS THROAT ON TRAIN.

Scotchman Studying American Rapid Transit Takes His Life.

Minot, N. D., May 12.—The body of James F. MacLlealand of Glasgow, Scotland, was found in a pool of blood in the toilet room of a sleeper of a Great Northern train as it arrived at the station here Monday. He had cut his throat with a razor. The body and the dead man's baggage were taken from the train. Letters and papers disclosed that MacLlealand was engaged in making an investigation of the rapid transit conditions of the United States and Canada as compared with those of England and Scotland. He carried a letter of authority from Lloyd George, the English chancellor of the exchequer.

Your Face Can Be Kept Free From Ugly Hairs

Then wash the skin to remove the remaining delatone. You will find this a quick, painless method, but be careful to get real delatone.—Advertisement.

CALL LOBOS ISLAND AFFAIR BUT TRIVIAL

Washington, May 12.—State and navy department officials were inclined today to regard as unimportant the Lobos island incident which had caused Gen. Huerta to protest that the landing of American forces there to reopen the lighthouse constituted a breach of the armistice between the two armies. Secretary Daniels said there was no thought of occupying the island in the war sense of that term.

"We have no desire of taking the island," said Mr. Daniels.

An official report on the incident, received by the navy department, states that the lighthouse was abandoned by the Mexicans, and the Americans simply took possession and operated the lights in order to insure continued safety to shipping dependent on that service.

The monitor Ozark is reported en route to Lobos island from Key West.

The state department has announced that American Consul Simpich had reported that James Byington of Boise, Ida., long imprisoned in a Constitutionalist jail at Cumpas, Sonora, had been released.

MORE EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS IN SICILY

Catania, Sicily, May 12. — Slight earthquake shocks were felt today in this vicinity and Mount Etna became very active again.

During the night tongues of flame issued from the crater, which is surmounted by a high column of smoke.

The bodies of all those who were killed during the recent disaster have been interred.

Outside Aid Declined.

Washington, May 12.—The Italian Red Cross today declined an offer of $5,000 tendered by the American Red Cross for relief of earthquake sufferers at Catania. The Italian organization sent this message through Ambassador Page:

"Italian Red Cross expresses highest appreciation your friendly generosity. Outside aid happily not required."

PENNSYLVANIA AT CLOSE OF CAMPAIGN

Philadelphia, Pa., May 12.—The campaign preceding the state-wide primary election entered upon its final week today. United States Senator Penrose is being opposed for the Republican nomination by J. Benjamin Dimmick of Scranton. Martin J. Brumbaugh of this city has the support of the Republican leaders for the gubernatorial nomination. Another candidate for the office is Joseph Caulfiel of Johnstown.

Gifford Pinchot, Progressive candidate for senator, is unopposed, while William Draper Lewis, choice of the Progressives for governor, is opposed by Judge Charles N. Brumm of Schuylkill county.

A bitter contest for all offices is being waged within the Democratic party.

FARM WORK FOR LAW BREAKERS IS URGED

Memphis, Tenn., May 12.—In the rush of prison reforms within the last few years, the misdemeanant, or minor offender against law, has been neglected, declared Amos W. Butler, secretary of the board of state charities of Indiana, in an address before the National Conference on Charities and Correction here today.

"The whole question of the apprehension, treatment and release of the misdemeanant is of tremendous importance, and reforms have been too largely confined to the felon," Mr. Butler said. "We know that jails are the spoil of partisan politics, that most of them are insanitary, lack provision for separating the sexes, are crowded and give no means of employment."

The speaker advocated the farm colony for open air employment for almost all classes of public wards. This has been applied, he mentioned, to the insane in Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Indiana; to epileptics in New York, New Jersey and Indiana, and to dependent and delinquent children in many states.

Recommendations of the committee on correction, of which Mr. Butler is chairman, include a prompt hearing for every person arrested; separate trials for women offenders; absolute sex separation in county jails; indeterminate sentence for misdemeanants and their release on parole, and the abolition of contract labor.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

THE city council of one city, at the instigation of the mayor, passed a bill to compel the sanitary wrapping of every loaf of bread offered for sale in the city. The bill provides penalties. It provides for the sanitary handling of other bakery products in delivery wagons and when on display. This bill affects the handling of food stuff by every one including commission merchants, middle men, wholesalers and retailers. In another city this sanitary measure has included meat stuffs, which are ordinarily handled by prospective buyers and clerks, causing the spread of disease germs.

The Duluth ordinance does not require the wrapping of bread but it provides that bread and all bakery products shall be handled in a sanitary manner. It also regulates bakeries. These are inspected every month and have shown a great improvement since the passage of the ordinance. Other ordinances cover other food stuffs.

Men's Diseases

The more medical science advances, the more apparent becomes the folly of employing harsh and dangerous measures in attempting to cure the ailments of men. Drastic dosing and useless cutting have done irreparable injury in thousands of cases. We cure all special diseases of men promptly and permanently by painless methods that cannot possibly produce undesirable results.

OUR TREATMENT.

Functional derangement is not a disease. To stimulate activity by the use of powerful tonics is an easy matter, and such results are merely temporary drug effects. We have in our service a powerful X-Ray and High-Potential-frequency machine. We will build up your broken down system quicker than gallons of medicines and a surgeon's knife could do. Our treatment is local and constitutional, and corrects abnormal conditions of that vital center. Our cures are real cures and permanent.

Years of successful practice as Doctors in Men's Diseases justifies every claim we make. We promise our patients a complete cure in every instance, and in cases where we cannot safely make this promise, we positively refuse to treat.

DEPENDABLE TREATMENT.

Our treatment is absolutely painless, and perfect results can be depended upon in every instance. We do no cutting, burning or dilating, like is usually done in piles and wormlike veins.

VARICOSE VEINS.

Absolutely painless treatment that cures completely. Investigate our method. It is the only thoroughly scientific treatment for this disease being employed. Instead of cutting the worm-like masses, we dissolve them and remove the cause forever.

BLOOD POISON.

No dangerous minerals to drive the virus to the interior, but remedies that remove the last poisonous taint and clean out and clear up the system. "606" is given after the system is thoroughly cleansed of the poisons that circulate in the blood. No cure is perfect, no matter if a patient had ten injections of "606."

STOMACH TROUBLES

have the least attention from patient and doctor. Last week a man came in our office who thought he had a little dyspepsia, and it proved to be a cancer. Come in, we will cure you.

CORPORATION TAX CASES ARE ARGUED

Appeals Involving Gopher Law Presented to Circuit Court.

St. Paul, Minn., May 12.—Arguments were completed yesterday before the United States circuit court of appeals in the cases of Fred von Baumbach, collector of internal revenue, against the Sargant Land conapany, the Sutton Land company and the Kearsarge Land company. These are actions on writ of errors from the district court of Minnesota.

The litigation grows out of the enforcement of the corporation tax act of 1909. The commissioner of internal revenue determined each of the plaintiffs for the years 1909, 1910 and 1911 had an income sufficient to bring it within the provisions of the act.

The plaintiffs resisted payment because they were not operating the mines.

Judge Willard held that the money received from the mining leases was not income.

Ironwood Funeral.

Ironwood, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Fred Carlson, who died of lobar pneumonia after an illness of a week, was held from the Salem Swedish Lutheran church. He was 42 years of age and was employed as a delivery man at the Swanson meat market, having been with the establishment for the last eighteen years. He was a member of the Swedish Glee club and Scandinavian society, the members of which attended the funeral in a body. Interment was made at Riverside cemetery.

Planning for the Stork's Arrival

Among those things which all women should know of, and many of them do, is a splendid external application sold in most drug stores under the name of "Mother's Friend." It is a penetrating liquid and many and many a mother tells how it so wonderfully aided them through the period of expectancy. Its chief purpose is to render the tendons, ligaments and muscles so pliant that nature's expansion may be accomplished without the intense strain so often characteristic of the period of expectancy.

At any rate it is reasonable to believe that since "Mother's Friend" has been a companion to motherhood for more than half a century no more timely advice could be given the inexperienced mother than to suggest its daily use during expectancy.

Ask at any drug store for "Mother's Friend," a penetrating, external liquid of great help and value. And write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 302 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book of useful and timely information to expectant mothers. It contains many suggestions that are of interest to all women.

In the southern counties where the wheat was sowed early much of it is now over two inches high with a good stand and growing rapidly. Washburn—Over $4,000 worth of fruit trees and shrubbery have arrived for the Washburn fruit district and will be set out this spring. All kinds of small fruits, apples, plums, cherries, and even peaches and pears, grow well in this district and have exceptional flavor and color.

Just Between You and Me

EDDIE KANE of Chicago, here with the Cutlers, is authority for the statement that Joe Mandot, the lad who, it is believed, will be the next opponent of Pal Brown in these parts, is one of the real lightweights of the country—a lad who combines the qualities of ringmanship that go to make up a really great boxer.

"Mandot," says Kane, "is fast and knows more about the real points of the game than most of the boys in the business. He can hit with either hand, is shifty and is a beautiful blocker. And another thing about Joe, is that he is one of the cleanest and nicest boys in the game.

"Mandot will make a hit with the fans in these parts. They will see a real boxer if the French Market kid is pitted against Brown, and you know the real boxers are scarce."

I Love My Country.

GEORGES CARPENTIER is near the age of 21 years. He is also the heavyweight champion boxer of Europe, according to view points that rear their heads in France. At the age when he should be expected to improve, take on weight and generally acquire erudition and polish in his chosen profession, along comes the requirements of the land and Georges must serve the allotted three years in the army of la belle France.

Patriotism is a grand little thing; it has been responsible for martial music, some of the greatest poems of the time and also furnishes us with some fine plots for plays—but, one wonders at this particular time, if Georges does not lineup with the opinion of war that was advanced by Gen. Sherman some time ago.

The Fighting Cutler.

MARTY CUTLER, who is here with big brother Charles, is a fighter as well as a wrestler. The younger of the two brothers is anxious to take on the winner of the Fulton-Palzer go and feels sure that he can take the elastic measure of either of the men who are about to clash for further advancement in the clamoring white hope brigade.

"I can beat McMahon, the lad who beat Kenneth the other night on the coast," said Marty yesterday, "and you know this McMahon had the best of Jess Willard in a bout that was held about a month ago.

"In the event of my getting on with the winner of the Hudson bout and winning—which I will do—there will be the fine little chance for your humble servant to grab off one of the attractive offerings in the heavyweight line."

Some of the New Ones.

READING the box scores and some of the scores that are not box scores, reminds the follower of baseball in these parts that there are a number of strange players in the midst of the Northern league. One or two new names break into the doings of the baseball day every now and then.

Some of the players of last year will be missed—the brilliant Joe Bell, Ewaldt, who is in the Western league at the present time; Miller, Smith, Clothier and our own Sam Meniece—and once again let us remind the fans that some of the old faces will not be thought of again, which fact is one of the penalties that can be laid at the attributing cause of fickleness.

The poorly managed St. Paul team had a team that brought forth some players whose going has not exactly raised the pang of yearning into the sob degree, and in passing it also might be stated that some of the dreary faces of the Virginia team will be let pass without further thought.

* * *

Youth Growing Impatient.

READING the other day of the performance of Christy Mathewson and further finding that Hans Wagner is getting along fine at short field for the Pirates, and still learning that Tommy Leach is clouting the ball for the Cubs and that Eddie Plank is showing incipient symptoms of developing into a useful member of the hurling staff of the Athletics—and then being informed that old man Roderick Wallace of the Browns is still able to fight youngsters out of the shortstop position of the St. Louis outfit, reminds us of the fact that some of the youths patiently awaiting the chance to be served will be gray beards by the time said chance has arrived.

* * *

Making the Best of It.

PERHAPS Lefty Davis believes that he and his team should makes the best of all the games played on the home lot. You know the home schedule of the Pirates is very short this year; the champions will play most of their games away from home, and realizing this the young and sprightly Davis, no doubt, has come to the conclusion that it will be best to win all of them and thus be prepared against the uncertainties and rigors of the road. So far, with one prominent exception, this theory has been working in lovely form.

* * *

Don't Get Too Gay.

READING where John Tecumseth Tillman comes out in the open and says he is willing to swap punches with anyone from Willie Ritchie down, reminds us of the story of the man who tried to cover too much territory. Johnny is a good kid and one of the nicest boys in the business—and that is the very reason why it would not be wise for him to try out with the champion of the lightweight brigade at the present time.

White Hope McDuff Is There.

IF some of the reports that come forth from the White Sox camp are right and true in their intent, Duluth has one of the tallest players in captivity on its team. This man McDuff is said to be around the distance altitude of six feet six. When it comes down to cases that find confirmation in prosaic fact, it will probably be found that Mac is around the six feet two mark. We have never seen anyone to date measuring a distance flight of six feet six who could play ball—hence the hope for McDuff's less expanse of height.

AMATEUR ROAD RACE SUGGESTED FOR DULUTH.

A writer who signs himself "Rolling Stone," suggests that an annual road race be held in Duluth. As the Greater Duluth Athletic club of this city is a member of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, the writer suggests that a running race for Decoration day and also a race for novices would create a large amount of interest among the athletes of Duluth.

"Rolling Stone" further suggests that the sporting editors of the two papers assist the proposition. Here goes for an assist. It is a good suggestion and one worthy of support. The officers of the Greater Duluth Athletic club will secure the sanction from the Central association officials, furnish entry blanks and do everything in their power to assist in the promotion of the contest. There is really no reason why Duluth should not manifest a greater interest in amateur athletics.

COMES AFTER CUP WITH WEAK TEAM

Polo Challenger of England Makes Best of a Bad Bargain.

London, May 12.—Baron Wimborne, manager of the English polo team which has challenged for the international polo trophy held by the United States, has decided to sail for America May 23 with a polo team composed of Mr. Tominkson, Maj. J. Y. D. Bingham, Maj. F. W. Barrett and Maj. C. F. Hunter.

Lord Wimborne's efforts, since the weakness of his team was made apparent, to induce some other team to undertake the task of trying to capture the polo challenge cup from America having failed, he decided to make the best of a bad bargain and take the team over himself. The ponies, numbering 35, will be sent along a week earlier.

Lord Wimborne has stipulated that

Fargo, N. D., May 12.—Duluth dropped the final game of the series yesterday to the Newlyweds by the score of 6 to 2. Greiner started for the visitors and lasted six rounds. BIG AUTO EVENTS FOR PANAMA EXPO.

New York, May 12.—Both the Vanderbilt cup race and the Grand Prix will be contested early in the spring of 1915 at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Cup Defense Candidate Defiance Launched and Mast Is in.

Bath, Me., May 12.—The cup defense candidate Defiance was launched in the Kennebec river yesterday. Within an hour, the second of the three American cup boats built this season had her mast on end and by the last of the week she will be ready for her workout.

The yacht carries the hopes of fifteen Philadelphia, New York and Boston backers, but all Maine also has taken unusual interest in her welfare and several thousand witnessed the launching.

Moha Has It Easy.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12.—Bob Moha of Milwaukee easily outclassed Frank Mantell of Providence, R. I., in a ten-round no decision bout here last night.

Outside of the first and fourth rounds, which were draws, Moha took every round. The fight was slow and featureless.

THE BIG DULUTHS DEFEAT THE COLUMBIAS

The Big Duluths won their first game of the season from the Columbia team by the score of 16 to 12. Neither of the teams has played together before during the present season. The score:

Minneapolis, Minn., May 12.—James Manes, who was last week released by the Millers to the Fargo club of the Northern league, returned here yesterday and will be sent back to the Appalachian league from which he was recruited at the opening of the present season. There has been a hitch in the purchase of the young player, according to President Cantillon.

BY BRUCE.

After a year of conjecture, doping, comparing, speculating and arguing from every angle, two great wrestlers will come together tonight and settle the long awaited question of supremacy.

Jess Westergaard of Des Moines, a lovely little city in the midst of the Iowa fat stock belt, and Charles Cutler from wicked Chicago are to clash this evening at the Auditorium arena for the American heavyweight title and the glory and money that goes with its winning.

Lean and solemn and stoical, the Des Moines Swede has little to say of the outcome of the big battle—for battle every indication points to.

Cutler is not so reserved. Always vastly confident in his own ability, the big Chicago man, bear-like in contrast to the taller and leaner Westergaard, declares that there is absolutely not the least doubt in his mind as to the outcome of the contest.

Thorson is doing the talking for Westergaard. "Jess is the greatest of the Americans," the pilot of big Jess keeps reiterating, "and the outcome of the battle with Cutler will prove this. Any one who beats the big Swede will have to go some and we are ready for Mr. Cutler."

Leaning nonchalantly against the cigar stand of the St. Louis hotel, Cutler got rid of the following opinion:

"For the last two or three years my knee gave me no end of bother. It slowed me up and made me more or less hesitant. I was operated upon by one of the best physicians and surgeons of Chicago, the knee drained, and it is right for the first time in years.

"Another thing. My ambition has never been aroused as it is this season. I am in earnest for once in my life. I have been out on the road and have been really training for the match of my life. I am bigger and stronger than Frank Gotch was at any time of his career. I believe I am as fast—but we will leave the fans up here to judge of that.

"Gotch always had it on us in the matter of using his brains. He also knew leverage like a book. Well I have arrived at the stage of wrestling where brains play at least 50-50 in my grappling program, and I can't figure why I can't go as far as Gotch.

"Maybe this sounds egotistical, but after the contest with Westergaard I believe the fans will bear me out in what I have said. The fans here have not seen me in several years; they will find that I am the most changed wrestler in the world."

The Match Hard to Dope.

The match of this evening is hard to dope. Out in the West end and West Duluth the Scandinavian followers of the game can't see where big Jess, after his remarkable showing against Zbysko, can be beaten by Cutler.

On the other hand there are some followers of the game who realize that when right Cutler is one of the greatest wrestlers this country has ever developed.

Cutler has had a way of upsetting the dope in the past.

He went to Minneapolis some three years ago and surprised every follower of the mat game by making Henry Ordeman appear foolish and easily beating the Norwegian in two straight falls. Again this winter he beat Gustav Fristensky so quickly and apparently so easily that the foreigner was made to look foolish—and yet this same Fristensky nearly killed American by slamming him to the mat with such force that the blood spurted from the nose and ears of the Baltimore wrestler.

Cutler will step into the ring with possibly four pounds on the tall Swede. Westergaard is taller, broader of shoulder, but does not possess the compact built of Cutler, who resembles Gotch more than any of the other wrestlers in physical appearance.

Cutler is aggressive in the matter of confidence, cock sure and seems so sure of the result that he is not even worried.

Big Jess is quiet and expressionless, and the only indication that can be gleaned from the Des Moines man, is that he takes the coming contest very seriously.

Karl Lehto Is Confident.

Karl Lehto, who has made his home here for the last six months, is sure of the result of his contest with Marty Cutler. The stocky Finn, round in body and limbs like most athletes possessed of really remarkable strength, weighs close to the 190-pound mark and is really more fitted to tackle the larger men than ever before.

The Finnish followers of the game believe that Lehto can beat most of the men of his weight, and though Cutler will have it on the Finn in the matter of poundage, the Finnish colony is backing Karley with unabated confidence.

The fact that only heavyweights of the championship caliber have ever scored wins over the Finn give his large number of followers basis for their belief.

Pete Petkoff will oppose one of the best boys in the city in the curtain raiser of the evening.

DULUTH TO SIGN FORD

Superior Player Expected to Join the Dooks Tomorrow.

Dad Ford, formerly with the Superior baseball club, is due to join the White Sox tomorrow.

President Harry A. Blume received a message from the Dook, in which the leader of the Sox stated that another hitter could be used with very good general effect. The release of Ford is expected to be purchased from the Red Sox early today and it is expected that he will hop a rattler later in the day and choo choo in the direction of the next Duluth three-day stand, Grand Forks.

So far the dashing Jerry Phillips has done the hitting for the White Sox. It is the intention of O'Brien to replace Mark Freer with Dad Ford, according to the information that has been received by President Blume. Ford is a clouter, one of the cleanup kind, always dangerous with runners on the towpaths. He is also a corking good outfielder, an infielder of more than average merit and can do his turn behind the bat. The only position that Ford cannot fill with credit to himself is the pitcher's box.

It is stated at the local baseball office that the reason Ford is not with the Red Sox this year is one simple and directly to the point—that Dad cannot align his views with those held by John Landry, the new manager of the Red Sox.

Upon pain of being called very unoriginal it might be stated that it is hitting that wins baseball games. So far in the Northern league pennant flight the White Sox have shown exceptional fielding ability and have played like a real ball team. But one real hitter added to the team will make a lot of difference, according to the calculations of O'Brien, and in Ford the Dook believes he will find the man he is after.

If negotiations go through today without interfence, Ford will be in the lineup of the Sox tomorrow.

Today the Sox open the series with the Grand Forks team. Eddie Wheeler's aggregation has not lost a game to date. From the Forks the Sox make the last stand of the present trip at Winnipeg and then hop the train Saturday evening for home. The grand opening of the local lot will be duly celebrated on next Monday afternoon. Martial music and other things will figure in the opening of the home games.

OPPOSE BILL AS TO TRUSTS

Railroad Men Talk Before Senate Commerce Committee.

Oppose Stock Regulation and Limit on Directors' Powers.

Washington, May 12.—Administration anti-trust bills framed by committees of both houses on congress were sharply criticized yesterday before the senate interstate commerce committee by representation of some of the leading railroads of the country. There were few features of the bills which were objected to, but the railroad men protested most vigorously against the provisions aimed at interlocking directorates and stock ownership by one common carrier or another, and against the proposed delegation of supervisory power to the interstate commerce commission of future issues of securities.

The witnesses, who told the committee they represented about 150,000 miles of railroad, were Judge Robert Scott Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific board; Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania; Frank Trumbull, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroads, and A. P. Thom, general counsel in Washington of the Southern.

"Burning the Barn."

"It seems to me," said Mr. Trumbull, the concluding witness, "that you are burning down the barn to get a few rats."

"If you tell us how to get the rats," replied Senator Cummins, "we'll be glad to."

Mr. Trumbull declared the railroads were anxious to conform to the law, but that they were desirous of seeing the regulatory powers over them confided to a national commission like the interstate commerce commission, or left entirely to state commissions. He favored a national commission.

"The railroads," said Mr. Trumbull, "have been working along national lines, but the legislation has been a long provincial lines." He added that the railroads had lost more than $100,000,000 in the last nine months.

"But," said Senator Cummins, "many other corporations have lost proportionately more than this."

"Yes," replied the witness. "That may be right, but that doesn't give us any credit."

Admitted General Demand.

Both Judge Lovett and Mr. Thom agreed that there was a general demand throughout the country for legislation in some such form as was proposed. The committee expects to hold further hearings and probably will begin consideration of the bill it is to report to the senate later in the week.

"I think if you make this bill retroactive you will give the railroad world the greatest shock it has felt in years. The minute you make this act retroactive and apply it to relations heretofore established, you menace almost every important railroad in this country."

This was the prediction of Judge Lovett, in criticizing the anti-trust bill. Judge Lovett attacked the bill's provisions prohibiting stock ownership by one carrier of another.

"I don't believe that there is an important system in the country," he said, "that would not be disrupted unless it made the proper application and showed that there was not such competition between them as is forbidden by this bill."

Judge Lovett said many roads secured stock ownership of others years ago. He declared the bill should not interfere with these, but be confined to the future.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY FROM ECZEMA

Covered Baby's Back and Arms. Itching Burning. Kept Spreading. Clothing Irritated It. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

6 Norwood Place, Detroit, Mich.—"My baby suffered terribly from eczema. At the age of four months an eruption of the skin showed which covered his entire back and arms. It broke out with a rash. He scratched which caused a fluid to come out. It caused him to be very restless at night from the itching burning sores. The eruption kept on spreading. His clothing irritated it and I had to keep medicated cotton next to the skin. He was cross and fretful.

"We tried several advertised remedies but could not ease the little sufferer. We happened to see the advertisement offering a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which we at once sent for. One application convinced us that we had at last found a remedy, for that night my baby slept all night, which he had not done for weeks. The sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment we bought with the Cuticura Soap entirely cured him in four weeks." (Signed) Mrs. Alfred J. Clyma, June 7, 1913.

For treating poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have been the world's favorites for more than a generation. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Mrs. Victoria Stewart Pushes Claim Against Mrs. Hall.

Mrs. Andrea E. Hall is cited to appear in district court tomorrow and show cause why an order should not be made directing her to transfer to a receiver certain real estate owned by her in Texas and North Dakota to satisfy a judgment obtained against her by Victoria A. Stewart.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Stewart was successful in her suit brought against Mrs. Hall and her husband, W. A. Hall. She sought to compel them to convey her the title to a fruit orchard in Texas or pay her $1,200. She was given judgment for $1,200, but the execution was returned unsatisfied.

In supplementary proceedings Mrs. Hall made a disclosure of her property, stating at that time she had no property which could be taken. The attorney for Mrs. Stewart, however, learned, he says, of her holdings in North Dakota and Texas. The court has appointed John A. Kenny receiver until the matters are settled.

DYING WOMAN KILLS SICK GIRL.

New Philadelphia, Pa., May 12.—Fearing her own illness would prove fatal and not desiring that her invalid daughter, Jessie, aged 18, should be left alone, Mrs. John Grimm, aged 54, of this city murdered the girl, crushing her skull with an ax and slashing her throat with a razor. The mother, believed temporarily insane, confessed to another daughter, Mrs. Lee Kuhn of Canal Dover, who came to spend the day at the Grimm home and was the first to discover the tragedy.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ARSON CHARGE IS BEING PROSECUTED

Preliminary Hearing of Grand Rapids Trio on Arson Charge.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The preliminary hearing in the case of the State vs. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Allen and Herman Deavers, on a charge of second degree arson, in connection with the fire in the Marr building, was commenced at 10 o'clock this morning. Little of material importance was disclosed during the morning session, the only witnesses being two clerks, employed in the Allen store, who testified about the condition of the business, the movements of themselves and of Mr. and Mrs. Allen and other general facts. The hearing is before Justice Kearney. It will probably consume the rest of today. County Attorney McOnat is representing the state with State Fire Marshal Keller and Deputy Robert J. Martin assisting, and F. F. Price is representing the defense.

Arrest Is Ordered.

Fire Marshal Keller and Assistant Attorney General Nethaway, who have been probing the fire, ordered the arrest yesterday afternoon of J. G. Allen, the manager of the Allen Dry Goods company, in whose store it is claimed the fire originated. Mrs. Allen and her cousin, Herman Deavers, all on the charge of arson in the second degree, it being claimed a partly burned candle was found behind the wall sheeting of the Allen store after the recent fire was extinguished. It is alleged the steel sheeting at the place where the fire started had been torn off and fire apparently kindled between the studdings of the wall. Mr. Allen was in Minneapolis at the time of the fire and Mrs. Allen claims to have been in the store with leavers an hour and a half before the fire to get the cash from the safe to take home.

"COWS, CLOVER AND CORN" ESSAY WINS

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Holum, a sophomore in the Grand Rapids high school will go to the state fair this fall as a guest of the management, as a reward for writing the best essay on an agricultural subject. His subject "The Three C's of Northern Minnesota—Cows, Clover and Clover." A number of essays almost as good were turned in, and these, with the Holum boy's essay, give an idea of the knowledge gained by the boys in the agricultural division of the high school.

The winning essay was in part as follows:

Substance of Essay.

"The unit of success in farming in Northern Minnesota is dairying. The timber is rapidly being cut away and the land turned over to farming, and it has been found that dairy farming is by far the most profitable kind of business in this section of the state.

"Any of the leading dairy breeds can be easily kept. There is not much difference in hardiness among the different breeds and any will prove profitable if given the proper care. In dairy farming it is best to have a few good dairy cows rather than to have many scrubs, because as yet in this section of the state very little land is under cultivation and it is best to feed a few good cows plenty and get good results than to feed a lot of common, inferior stock a small amount and get minor results.

Feeding Cows.

"The main thing to consider in connection with dairy cows is the feeding of the animals. Practically all the feeds used can be gotten cheaply in this section and the two main feeds, corn fodder and clover, can be raised here easiest of all. The climate and condition of the soil make them well adapted to this section of Minnesota and crops as high as from four to six tons of clover and from twelve to eighteen of corn fodder per acre, have been produced here. It is of fairly recent years that such large crops could be raised where great forests once existed. Abundant rainfall and large yields make it possible to be very successful in the dairy business.

"Clover will grow everywhere and will make the best pasture that there is for dairy cattle, and when cured makes an excellent hay. It also fits in well with crop rotation, a subject that farmers must give more consideration in the future.

"Corn is very necessary in dairy farming and conditions are such that it can be grown profitably in Northern Minnesota.

"Farmers who have come to depend upon large crops of corn will not hesitate to say that Northern Minnesota is to rank as a great dairy section of the state in the near future, and it will not be long before the Three C's of Northern Minnesota—'Cattle, Clover Corn' will be spread broadcast over this section as the motto of every citizen."

STUNTZ TOWNSHIP LAND BURNED OVER

Supervisor of Forest Patrolmen Tells of Work in April.

Hibbing, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two thousand and forty-five acres of land in Stuntz township were burned over during the few good working days in April by the four fire patrolmen, according to the report of Hugo C. Nelson, supervisor of patrolmen. The report also shows that there are thirty and one-quarter miles of road that will need brushing. Clover seed has been purchased and will be sown along the road, making an excellent firebrake, and at the same time keeping the dust down.

The report tells of the appointment of the following as township patrolmen: James Edwards, William P. Gerow, Martin Milland and A. L. Beaudette, and continues:

"These men were immediately given the necessary literature and instructed in their work. I then divided the territory of the town of Stuntz and each man was assigned as follows: James Edwards to township 56-20, with headquarters at L. T. Laird's, in section 24; William P. Gerow to township 57-20 and the south six sections of 58-20, with headquarters at Hibbing for the present; Martin Milland to township 56-21, and the south half of township 57-21, with headquarters at Kelly lake, and A. L. Beaudette to township 58-21 and the north half of 57-21, with headquarters at Day lake.

Repair Lookout Towers.

"The first work that was done was to repair and put in serviceable condition the lookout towers at the Rock Crusher hill and Maple hill. I have also secured permission to use the water tank of the Dupont Powder company and the coaling station of the Great Northern railroad at Kelly lake as lookout points. Other points will also be selected for that work and fixed up.

"About 100 warning fire notices in English and Finnish have been posted in conspicuous places throughout the town, also a number of notices with information to the general public and having the names of the patrolmen on each notice together with my own, thereby showing the nearest man in charge in case of fire.

Our first work in order to safeguard against possible fires was to burn grassy meadows, sloughs and bad windfalls, and with this in view, work was started, but owing to the wet conditions of the last ten days in April not as much was accomplished as was planned, although a large number of acres of this was burned the first few days after going to work. Work along these lines is still in progress."

Then follows a list of what was burned.

EVELETH PLANS ON MUCH PAVING

Mass Meeting to Consider Work for Unemployed So Decides.

Eveleth, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of furnishing employment for a large number of men with families, who are not being given work as readily as usual in the local mines this year, was discussed at a mass meeting held at the city hall last night in which opinion largely favored extensive municipal improvements to furnish work for the unemployed. Mayor Gleason, presiding, said he favored extensive paving and Councilman J. J. Brine backed him up by saying he favored bonding the city for half a million to carry on improvements and furnish work for bona fide residents having homes here. Editor Pfremmer of the News was of a similar opinion.

A motion that the council start such work as soon as possible prevailed. A meeting will be held May 19 to consider the question of issuing bonds for the work. It is claimed Eveleth has been backward in the matter of paving and now is a good time to begin.

Many Seek Jobs.

A contract paving job was begun on Adams avenue yesterday morning. When work started there were fully 400 men lined up on the street seeking jobs and only about thirty secured employment. The work is a concrete paving contract which was let to the Lawrence-McCann company last year. Men are glad to accept work at a lower scale than has been paid for several years.

One case is reported where a farmer secured all of the able-bodied laborers he could use for their board.

Some Rat Statistics.

The elimination of rats, the matter for which the mass meeting was called, was thoroughly discussed before the other matter was taken up.

Health Commissioner N. C. Bulkley quoted some interesting figures on the number of rats, the extent of their damage and means of killing them.

Many of the citizens present told of their experiences and recommended means of combatting the rodents. Motions were passed recommending to the city council that a bounty of three or five cents be paid by the city, that the dump be dynamited to kill off the rats which inhabit it and that the board of health be authorized to enter private property to see that basements are properly cleaned.

It was stated that the city could never be entirely free of rats as long as the city maintaining a breeding place on the dumping ground. For this reason the council may consider the purchase of an incinerator to dispose of the garbage.

Chisholm Men Given Work.

Chisholm, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sentiment developed at Sunday's mass meeting to consider the labor question bore fruit Monday when the village crews were materially increased. Street Commissioner Flip Harrington stated today that he had over 200 men on his crews and twenty-two teams. This pay roll alone will run close to $15,000 if little rainy weather follows throughout the month. The park crew is well up to its normal summer mark and with the other outside work steadily going on the situation today is considerably relieved.

The meeting Sunday which was in reality a Commercial club meeting resulted in the election of new officers for the year as follows: President, Frank G. Harris; first vice president, C. M. Harkness; second vice president, J. E. Goldenberg; secretary, A. H. Kieffman, and treasurer, R. M. Heskett. Clyde Blough was elected director for a term of two years.

All physicians know mineral water to be a nerve tonic and a vitality builder.

Standing alone in its class, the high regard in which WHITE ROCK WATER is held by the doctors of today is attested by its enormous sale.

FAIR

Mr. Richardson is away if he keeps this up. He predicts continued fair weather with frost tonight and a rising temperature tomorrow.

A year ago today was partly cloudy but not cold. The sun rose this morning at 4:35 and will set this afternoon at 7:31, giving fourteen hourse fifty-seven minutes of sunshine, two minutes more than yesterday. Tomorrow will pass the fifteen-hour day.

Mr. Eshleman makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The disturbance which yesterday threatened to cause rough weather, weakened somewhat and kept to the southward, but it was severe as far north as Escanaba. Freezing temperatures continue in the northwest and the cold weather has spread southward over the central valleys. Moderate rains occurred in the central states, the lower lake region and the Middle Atlantic states."

CRIPPLE ENDS LIFE BY TAKING POISON

Hibbing, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gustav Adamson, aged about 50, a one-legged-man, who has been a sort of an itinerant masseur on the range and was formerly a shoe maker, committed suicide in a Pine street saloon about 10 a. m. today by swallowing some strychnine. He is said to have asked the bartender for a drink and being refused went into a rear room where he took the poison. He was discovered writhing in agony on the floor and died before he could be relieved of the poison. In his pocket was found a letter addressed to him at Box 11, Elmer, Minn. Beyond the fact that he was a sort of an itinerant in this section, little is known about him.

RANGE ALUMNI MEET.

Large Number of U Graduates Expected at Chisholm.

Chisholm, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meeting of the Range Alumni association to be held here May 29, promises to be very well attended. All the range towns will send a good sized delegation as will also Grand Rapids. The committee is endeavoring to get Richard Burton of the University of Minnesota to speak. In the event that they fail to secure him some other well known Minnesota man will be asked to make the principle talk. A. G. Peterson is chairman of the arrangement committee.

ITASCA BOARD LETS CONTRACT.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 12. — The county board has let three large road contracts.

The portion of the Duluth-St. Vincent state trunk road which is left in the west side of the county, about seven miles, was let to Leimer & Co., contractors from Cloquet, for the sum of $13,145.05.

The north and south state road north of Deer River to the Koochiching county line, a distance of thirty-eight miles, was let to the Northwestern Construction company of Minneapolis for $49,110.20.

The balance of the Rice river road running west through the town of Good Hope to the Beltrami county line, a distance of fifteen miles was let to M. L. Jasper and Charles Pogue for $21,816.15.

The road from Spring Lake west through the county, was held up owing to some technicality.

A bridge across the Balsam brook near the C. V. Smith place was also let, the Hennepin Bridge company being the successful bidders, at $11,381.

SIZE OF HIS FINE CAUSES ANOTHER PLEA

Virginia, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fine of $100 and costs after he had pleaded guilty to running an unlicensed drinking place startled Frank Lulich in Judge Carey's court to such an extent this morning that he said he guessed he would change his plea and take a chance on a hearing. The court accordingly wiped out the fine and told him to get a lawyer and be on hand this afternoon. The trial is now on and it is predicted he will be found guilty, as Chief of Police Owen Gateley claims to have strong evidence against Lulich. A foreman of the Bailey lumber mill complained to the police that the men were getting liquor in the locality of the mill and the police started a little detective work that traced the matter right to Lulich's door and he was arrested. When haled into court he first pleaded guilty, but as stated, desired to take it all back when told how much it would cost him and his trial followed.

REPORTING LESS SCARLET FEVER

Two Harbors, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—City Clerk August Omvedt reported last night at the city council meeting that during the week only four new cases of scarlet fever had developed and thirteen families were released from quarantine during the same period of time. This leaves only ten cases in the city. It is very probable that the public library which has been closed for about two months will soon be opened again.

A petition was read from the property owners in block 10 requesting that the alley between Third and Fourth streets be graded.

A request was submitted by Lunz brought up and the members voted to buy a Wilcox maching at a cost of $3,000, on condition that the company bring the machine here for a thorough trial. These supported the resolution: Van Dyken, Anderson, Strand, Rothfus, Hedman, Esse and Strand. R. B. Tubman voted against it.

Kick on Sunday Ball.

Rev. A. H. McKee, Rev. L. B. Sherwin, Rev. Carlson, Rev. Johnson and Mr. Mixsell and Mr. A. A. Scott appeared before the council and petitioned that body not to allow certain grounds on Seventh avenue to be leased for baseball on Sunday. They raised the objection that a park so close to the central part of the city would disturb those people who desired to keep the Sabbath without being disturbed by a noisy crowd of baseball fans. The council assured the delegation that it would be given another hearing before anything definitely was done in regard to the matter. It is understood that a meeting was also held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. and a petition was sent to the railroad company officials protesting against their leasing the grounds for Sunday ball.

Is Baldness Among Women Increasing?

Wigs, colored or otherwise, rats, switches, transformations, curling tongs, sharp metal hair pins, artificial waving methods, singeing and a round dozen more strictly modern devices, have combined to ruin the hair of many women, so there is decidedly an increase in baldness, though lately the magazines and papers have rather stopped the advance of hair trouble by showing that simply air, sunshine and proper care will develop heavy, beautiful hair upon any head. Great care should be taken when washing the hair to not remove more than the excess oil from the head. A perfectly safe, economical, cooling, invigorating shampoo can be had by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, which every good druggist has, in a cup hot water. This mixture cleanses gently, yet thoroughly, and gives to the scalp and hair the vigor that insures scalp-health and hair-beauty. Canthrox shampoos make the head feel good and are very beneficial where hair is faded, dull and brittle, the regular use of which will greatly enrich the color of the hair and give to it a beautiful gloss and softness.—Advertisement.

YEOMEN ARE HOPEFUL.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Yeomen held an open meeting of their homestead last evening, to allow the public to take part in the discussion concerning the erection of the new building. A number of the members and a few of the citizens attended, and the matter was discussed at some length. Figures were shown to prove that a building of the kind they propose to build, would be not only a social, but a financial success.

At their regular meeting held on Thursday evening further action will be taken, and committees will be appointed to look after grounds and finances. The leaders in the order here are confident that with the proper amount of the right kind of boosting the building will be a reality within a few months. District Manager Harouff left the range cities Tuesday and will return here for the meeting Thursday.

FOR THE FIREMEN.

Ely, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee planning for the firemen's meeting here, July 22 to 25, hope to secure the services of some well known aviator and have flights given on the three days of the tournament. On two evenings a display of fireworks will be given, and in fact everything that can be done to make the event a big success is being already planned for by the committee. For some time little red, white and blue stickers advertising the tournament have been in evidence. Plans for the "Home Coming" are also being pushed, and the week of the tournament will be one well remembered, and it is planned to make this the biggest of all tournaments given by the association.

SERVICES ON STREET.

Ely, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The churches are planning on holding during the summer months a number of services on week-day evenings on the streets of the city. Last year the custom was begun and proved very successful. The first one will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church announced a supper in the parlors of the church on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week.

TWO ELY COUPLES WED.

After the service a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home, after which the young couple left on the morning train for an extended wedding trip. Both are well known here, Mr. Seraphine having been for several years connected with the Ely Miner, also being a prominent member of the fire department. Mrs. Seraphine is a graduate of the Ely schools, having made her home here since childhood. After their wedding trip they will make their home here.

Miss Johanna Martel became the bride of Marico Slogar, senior member of the firm of Slogar Bros., Saturday evening. The service was read by Rev. Father Buh. After the service a wedding supper was served at the home.

CHISHOLM BRIEFS.

Many Chisholm Gardens.

Chisholm, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The opening of spring gardening is on. From present indications Chisholm will not be behind towns of her class in this regard. The village set the pace early this year by cleaning up the alleys and streets and citizens everywhere are busy cleaning their yards of rubbish and preparing the gardens for the spring seeding.

Hibbing To Clean Up.

Hibbing, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Clean-up Days" will be observed here by practically every citizen, according to the plans that are being made. The village officials are receiving notifications from proprety owners that piles of rubbish will be ready to haul away on Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, while rakes, hoes and shovels are being sold at a rapid rate.

HAVE YOU HAD THE GRIP?

There are certain disorders, such as the grip, that especially debilitate and make the body an easy prey for more dangerous diseases. Ask those who have had the grip regarding the present condition of their health and most of them will answer: "Since I had the grip I have never been well." They still have profuse perspiration, the persistent weakness of the limbs, the disordered digestion, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart caused by the thin-blooded condition in which the grip almost always leaves its victim after the fever and influenza have subsided. They are furthermore, at the mercy of relapses and of complications, often very serious. In an attack of the grip there is a rapid thinning of the blood and not until the blood is built up again is complete health restored.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills quickly make the blood rich and red, drive out the lingering germs from the system and transform despondent grip victims into cheerful, healthy men and women.

Try the pills for any form of debility caused by thin blood.

LOSS OF APPETITE

Most Successfully Treated By Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Loss of appetite is accompanied by loss of vitality, which is serious.

It is common in the spring because at this time the blood is impure and impoverished and fails to give the digestive organs what is absolutely necessary for the proper performance of their functions.

By purifying and enriching the blood and giving vitality, vigor and tone, it is wonderfully successful in the treatment of loss of appetite and the other ailments that are so prevalent at this time. MARKET HAS A REACTION

Wheat Off on Light Demand and Better Weather in the Northwest.

Flaxseed Down With Moderate Offerings and Small Buying By Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 12.—The market was weak at the finish. May wheat closed ¾c off; July ¾c off, and September ⅛c off at 88¼c. May durum closed ⅛c off, and July unchanged.

Oats closed ⅛c off at 37⅛c for on the track, and at 36⅛c for to arrive.

Rye closed unchanged at 57@59c, and barley unchanged at 54@59c for choice stuff.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed at 37¼c bid, and July at 37⅝c bid.

Puts on Minneapolis July wheat closed at 90c and calls at 90½c.

Wheat quotations eased off today, largely as a result of improved weather in the Northwest and predictions of higher temperatures for tomorrow. It was also the general impression among traders that yesterday's advance was not justified by actual conditions, and that led to some realizing. A continued good export demand was reported for all grades of wheat, and further business was said to have been worked.

Wheat stocks at Duluth are now down to 7,803,000 bu, a reduction of 109,000 bu in the last two days, and with further charterings of steamer space reported, supplies here are expected to show a substantial reduction by the end of the week. It is noted that as a result of the export demand that has prevailed during the last week, a larger proportion of the grain movement is now being attracted to Duluth. Inspections here today came to 119 cars of wheat as against 61 cars at Minneapolis.

A reduction of 7,977,000 bu in the week was shown in Bradstreet's world's visible wheat supply, stocks being estimated at 146,487,000 bu, as compared with 169,738,000 bu last year.

Liverpool closed slightly higher today, but the demand was reported to be not so urgent, as a result of rains in the Danubian districts.

Crop reports were again uniformly good in the main, though complaints were heard of too much rain in Northern Ohio and Southern Michigan.

May wheat opened ¼c off at 93¼c and declined ¼c more up to the final hour. July opened ¼c off at 94c, and declined ⅝c more and the September option opened unchanged at 88⅜c and declined ½c.

Business in durum was only nominal. May opened ¼c off at 88c and held there, and the July option opened unchanged at 89c, and did not move either way.

Flaxseed Sells Off.

Business in flaxseed was quiet today with the price changes showing moderate declines. Opening quotations were practically unchanged and then the market eased off moderately on less inclination on the part of crushers to bid up for supplies. There was also a tendency with holders to sit tight awaiting seeding developments.

The foreign markets were irregular. Buenos Aires closed ¼c off, Antwerp ⅛c off and London 1¾c up.

May flax opened ¼c off at $1.57½ and it closed ⅞c off at $1.56½ asked. July opened unchanged at $1.58½ and closed ⅞c off at $1.57⅝ asked. September opened unchanged at $1.60 and closed ⅝c off at $1.59⅜ asked, and the October option unchanged at $1.57½ and closed ½c off at $1.57 asked.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.36¾ bid and July at $1.39¼ bid.

The Iowa weather and crop report says: "Local and generally light showers occurred in nearly all parts of the state, but the rainfall was not heavy enough to interfere with the field work. Plowing in some sections is completed and corn planting has progressed rapidly. If favorable weather continues the bulk of the crop will be in by the close of the coming week. Winter wheat is jointing."

* * *

The European visible wheat supply is 73,860,000 bu against 73,808,000 bu last week, an increase of 52,000 bu.

* * *

Broomhall's foreign crop report is generally favorable except as follows:

France—The outlook for wheat is only fair, weather unfavorable.

Russia—More rain needed in the Southwest.

Roumania—Rain urgently needed.

Hungary—The chief wheat districts are still suffering from drouth.

Spain—The dry districts have sustained permanent damage.

* * *

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Strength in Manitoba offers prompted wheat shorts to cover at the opening here and values were ¼d to ⅜d higher. There continued in evidence a good demand from the Continent and the spot market was steady. Following the opening, the weakness in corn and less inquiry for Australians, with free Russian offers, encouraged profit-taking, and values declined ⅛d to ⅜d. At 1:30 p. m. the undertone was easy with prices unchanged to ⅛d higher.

"Corn opened unchanged to ⅛d higher on unfavorable reports from Argentina, and confirmed advices of rain there last night. Later profit-taking developed and prices declined ⅜d to ⅝d on a private cable received by a leading firm here that the weather in Argentina was clearing and the fact that shorts have largely covered, resulting in the sharp decline. At 1:30 p. m. the undertone was weak, ½d lower.

* * *

The spot situation in Argentine corn continues strong with much arriving, and also much in the interior unfit for shipping. The reduction in the exportable Argentine surplus will aggregate 10 per cent. The wet weather is unfavorable for seeding operations and soil preparation for wheat.

* * *

B. W. Snow wired Baker from Topeka, Kan.: "My observations that the Kansas wheat acreage is much larger than any one has estimated, is confirmed by the first three counties that have completed their assessors' returns. The Coburn estimate was for 8,310,000 bu. His figures for Harper, Smith and Cove counties in three different sections of the state, totalled 337,000 acres. Have obtained assessors' reports for these counties and they foot up to 370,000 acres or 10 per cent above the state estimate. I am satisfied that when returns are all in, Kansas acreage will run close to 9,000,000, and every acre of it now promises to yield the full capacity of the land. It looks like a repetition of the North Dakota crop of two years ago."

* * *

Chicago grain stocks—Wheat, 4,214,000 bu; decrease, 136,000 bu; last year, 5,286,000 bu; corn, 3,948,000 bu; decrease, 960,000 bu; last year, 2,018,000 bu; oats, 4,136,000 bu; decrease, 1,957,000 bu; last year, 3,582,000 bu.

* * *

Parker Paine had the following from Chicago: "Whether there is any real cause for uneasiness or not, many experienced wheat traders are beginning to talk about too much rain in many sections, and the possibility of an over-growth of straw which makes it liable to lodging and poor filling later. Aside of this possible development, the conditions are about as fine as ever over the winter wheat belt. Allowing for some natural reaction from yesterday's strong swell, we think the trade and the country will favor the buying side if May contracts continue tight and the northwest strong."

* * *

The world's visible wheat supply is estimated by Bradstreet's at 146,487,000 bu, compared with 169,738,000 bu last year.

* * *

The government weekly weather report says: "The week as a whole was moderately favorable, although cold weather with frost and rains delayed seeding in the Northwest. Seeding was also delayed in parts of the Ohio valley. In most other districts moderately warm weather favored the crop growth."

* * *

In view of the late spring it is predicted that there will be no increase this season in the acreage sown to wheat in the Canadian Northwest. The area sown to flaxseed is thought likely to exceed earlier expectations in Manitoba. Considerable flax will also be sown in the newer sections of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

* * *

The Western markets have begun to sell Missouri wheat and it is noted by the trade that the Southwest, which looks for a 300,000,000-bu yield, has been selling the July option and later freely.

Western Kansas dealers now regard the wheat crop in that portion of the state as assured after the recent heavy rains. In the Arkansas river valley the prospects are regarded as better than in more than twenty-five years.

* * *

Farmers in the Missouri river valley expect to derive $100 to $200 an acre for their potato crops, which are usually marketed during July and August. The yields are from 150 to 300 bu an acre and they seldom sell for less than 60c a bu delivered in bags at the cars.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Revised Kansas Estimates Give Wheat Bearish Trend.

Chicago, May 12.—Assertions that the wheat acreage in Kansas is much larger than had been estimated, gave the market today a bearish turn. Commission houses were taking all offers freely until word was passed along that a leading expert figured the Kansas acreage at 9,000,000 instead of 8,300,000, the best previous calculation. The effect was an immediate setback for prices on new crop futures. Quotations started a shade off to ⅜c up, but afterward went under last night's level except for May in which trading was light.

Neither hessian fly damage nor a decrease in the world's available stock caused more than a slight temporary reaction. The close was weak at ⅛c to ½c net decline.

Unsettled weather had a strengthening effect on corn, but values failed to make much of a rise. Argentine advices continued bullish. The market opened ⅛c lower to a like advance, with subsequent tendency to harden.

A sag, however, ensued owing to reports of increased rural offerings. The close was easy, ⅜c down to ⅛c up, compared with last night.

Oats ruled steady. Trade was light and evenly balanced.

Firmness at the yards helped provisions upgrade. First sales ranged from 2½ to 7½c higher and the market later scored an additional gain.

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Weaker on Favorable Northwest Weather.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 12.—Wheat opened slightly weaker here today, mostly on reports of more favorable weather conditions in the Northwest. The market, however, was so extremely dull that the firmer cables and lighter receipts had but little effect. The heavy rains and snow in Western Minnesota and North Dakota have been a benefit to the recently planted crop, rather than a hindrance, according to expert grain men. It is claimed that the cold and damp has had the effect of giving the plant a more hardy root and placed the ground in condition to withstand the usual summer drought common to that part of the spring wheat district.

Wheat—May opened 90½c; high, 90⅝c; low, 89¾c; closed 89¾c. July opened 91⅛c; high, 91¼c; low, 90¼c; closed 90¼c. Cash—No. 1 hard, 95¼c; No. 1 northern, 92¼@94¼c; to arrive, 92¼@93¼c; choice to arrive, 94¼c; No. 2 northern, 90¼@92¼c; to arrive, 90¼@91¼c; No. 3 wheat, 88¼@90¼c.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 66@66½c. Oats—No. 3 white, 37@37½c. Flax, $1.53@@1.56¾.

Millers reported an increased inquiry for flour today. Prices unchanged. Shipments, 52,800 bbls. Barley, 44@56c; rye, 57@59c. Bran, unchanged.

STOCKS ARE VERY DULL

Speculation Listless and the Movement Is Unusually Narrow.

Covering Purchases Produce Firm Tone in Final Trading.

New York, May 12.—Most of the standard stocks opened slightly higher today, but the demand was light and the upward swing attained no force. Few orders were awaiting execution and trading was unusually dull. Missouri Pacific was sold on the announcement after the close yesterday of the plans for extending the road's notes. After opening ¼c higher, the stock reacted 1⅝c to within a fraction of the recent low level. Weakness of this issue caused a sympathetic shading of prices elsewhere, but recessions were slight. During the first half hour fluctuations were narrow and irregular and no general trend was apparent.

Stock prices hovered within half a point of yesterday's close during the morning, except for a few issues affected by specific influences. Weakness of Missouri Pacific and a further rise in sterling exchange rates, presaging further gold exports, tended to restrict speculation.

Bonds were steady.

Prices rested at a dead level in the afternoon. Speculative interest was so small that traders found it difficult to make profitable turns in either direction. The list showed a tendency to make up the earlier losses. London bought stocks here for the first time in several days, taking about 6,000 shares.

The market closed steady today. Speculation was listless with prices variably changing on an unusually narrow movement. Covering purchases produced a firmer tone in the final trading, but business was meager and limited to a handful of stocks.

Moderate advances were scored through the list of mining stocks at Boston during the early trading today on the appearance of substantial investment inquiry in some of the leading issues. The close was easier.

Butte & Ballaklava developed more strength than it had shown in some months on the report that the crosscut on the 1,600-level had gone through a vein sixteen feet wide, half of it showing six per cent or better copper, nine ounces of silver and $1 in gold to the ton. The stock closed 30 cents up at $3.25.

TRAIN ROBBER'S SOB STORY IS DOUBTED

San Francisco, Cal., May 12.—"I turned bandit because I was out of work and desperate. My wife was sick and my two children in need."

That is James S. Hogue's explanation of his attempt last night to hold up the Southern Pacific's coast line limited. After he had obtained about $1,500 in money and jewelry from passengers, Hogue encountered two railroad detectives in the dining car. A pistol fight ensued in which Hogue was shot twice in the hand and once in the face.

Cook Knocked Him Out.

The car's cook knocked him senseless with an ice packer, and when he recovered consciousness Hogue turned his pistol against himself, but succeeded only in inflicting a slight wound in the cheek.

At an emergency hospital here today he said.

"I didn't have a cent, and I had to walk the five miles from home to the tunnel where I flagged and boarded the train. That was my first job. I wish I'd killed myself."

Southern Pacific officials, however, assert that Hogue is an old hand at train robbing. They say he is the man who robbed trains at San Mateo and Tropico last fall.

MEXICANS DECEIVED BY THE GOVERNMENT

San Francisco, Cal., May 12.—False reports disseminated by government boards in Mexico City, which threatened to work mischief for Americans at the capital during the first days of the United States occupation of Vera Cruz, have reached the West coast and fanned into flame anti-American sentiment.

This information was brought here yesterday by the steamer San Jose. According to the San Jose's advices, when the cruiser South Dakota arrived at Acapulco, April 28, a batch of the amazing communications sent out from Mexico City was taken aboard the warship by the British vice consul, who was acting as American consul, in the latter's enforced absence.

The reports said that 1,200 men from "the piratical forces of Admiral Fletcher" had been killed at Vera Cruz, mostly by Mexican women, in making a landing; and that this country, as a result of its aggressive policy against Mexico, had embroiled itself with Great Britain, Germany and Spain.

These reports, the British vice consul said, were accepted literally by the great mass of the population.

Kingston, N. Y., May 12.—A bomb thrown mysteriously into a bedroom occupied by Mrs. Darwin Hinckley seriously injured her and one of her daughters. Another daughter escaped unhurt.

HOKE SMITH IS FOR TOLLS REPEAL BILL

Washington, May 12.—Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia today championed repeal of the clause in the Panama canal act granting exemption of tolls to American coastwise vessels in the coastwise trade. He told the senate he would vote for repeal "because of our treaties with

NEW SHIP SETS HIGH STANDARD

Cleveland, Ohio, May 12.—The oldest ship manager on the Great Lakes Saturday launched what he declared will be his last ship and at the same time set a new standard for fresh water vessels in the iron ore trade.

At 11:30 the steamer Howard M. Hanna, Jr., was dropped into the water at the Globe yards of the American Shipbuilding company, with Miss Antoinette Paine, granddaughter of Capt. Richardson, sending for the second time the name of Howard M. Hanna, Jr., to a steel ship built for one of her grandfather's companies.

More interest was manifested, perhaps, in the man who will manage the ship than in the ship herself. White haired, erect and 73, Capt. Richardson was easily the attraction at the luncheon at the Union club in the afternoon. Men who have been associated with him in the lake transportation business for more than thirty years bore testimony to his strength of character. Others spoke of his great confidence in fresh water ships, and all agreed on his loyalty to his friends.

As an advocate of 12-foot fore and aft hatches and spaced to 24-foot centers, Capt. Richardson stood alone for years, while the 9-foot hatch spaced to 12-foot centers came, gained favor, and suddenly dropped out of high favor.

In the ship that was launched for him Saturday Capt. Richardson went further than any other owner on the Great Lakes. Between 300 and 400 tons of steel more than in any ship of her size went into the Hanna, Jr. In many parts of the ship where one-inch rivets have been used, rivets an eighth of an inch larger were used. No rivet hole was punched to full size. Each was reamed to fit the rivet. Hatch covers were made heavier than ever before and hatch combings raised higher from the deck and strengthened.

Deck houses are all of steel, weighing 12½ pounds to the square foot, where steel formerly weighing 7½ pounds to the foot was used. The angles that stiffen the deck house are 5 inches by 3½ inches, as compared with 2½ inches by 2½ inches.

Below the pilot house, which is above the texas and forty feet from the water when the ship is loaded, every window will be an 18-inch deadlight, brass framed and fitted with glass three-quarters of an inch thick. Inside of each deadlight will be a cast iron shutter. The skylights also will be of steel with deadlights. Formerly windows with wooden frames and heavy window glass were used in these places. The only wood in the entire ships will be in the pilot house interior and the paneling in the cabins.

In the November storm hatch covers and cabins were ultimately held responsible for much of the loss of property. It was with a view to preventing such a fate for this ship that the deep sea ideas were incorporated in this vessel. H. N. Herriman, marine architect, drew the plans for the ship, and she was constructed to the rules of the Great Lakes register. As a result of this ship being built, the rules for classifying ships in the register in the future will require such a ship as the Howard M. Hanna, Jr., to meet the highest grade.

The steamer will be completed about June 15. She will be 524 feet over all, 54 feet beam and 30 feet deep. Her capacity will be 9,000 tons.

LOST LIGHTSHIP IS DISCOVERED

Buffalo, N. Y., May 11.—Lightship No. 82, which disappeared from its station in Lake Erie, fifteen miles off this port during the great storm of Nov. 9 last, was located on the bottom of the lake off Point Abino today by the government steamer Surveyor. The vessel was found by means of heavily weighted dragbooks.

The lightship was missed the day following the storm that raised havoc with shipping throughout the Great Lakes region. She carried a crew of six men. Experts expressed belief that the bodies of the crew would be found in the freehold of the ship. Divers will be sent down as soon as weather conditions permit.

POULTRY, EGGS AND BABY FOWLS ARE WANTED

There are a large number of people in Duluth and vicinity who will buy breeding stock, eggs, baby fowls or chickens for laying this season.

Some one will gladly purchase what you wish to sell.

Present advertisers say they are getting splendid results.

"Herald want ads" are the best poultry salesmen available.

Circulation Greatest— Rates Lowest

The Duluth Herald has the greatest circulation of any newspaper in Duluth. Its rates for classified advertising are less per thousand circulation than those of any other paper in Minnesota. Best results are gained from ads when definite information is given. When information is lacking the presumption is that desirable features are lacking. Information as to contract rates and the probable amount of space your ad would take gladly given.

FOLK IS PRACTICALLY TOLD TO GET OUT AT CONFERENCE HELD IN M'REYNOLDS' OFFICE

CLASH OVER INQUIRY INTO NEW HAVEN

Commerce Commission's Lawyer Insists on Examining C. S. Mellen.

Disregards Protest That It Might Be an Immunity Bath.

Thinks Magnate "Worth More as Witness Than as Defendant."

Washington, May 13.—Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway, will testify tomorrow before the interstate commerce commission in its inquiry into the New Haven's affairs, notwithstanding early indications that the inquiry might be ended lest immunity be given witnesses.

This was anounced by Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel for the commission, after a stirring conference with Attorney General McReynolds.

Following adjournment of the hearing early in the day until next Monday, Mr. Folk and Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord went to the attorney general's office, where Senator Kern of Indiana and Senator Norris of Nebraska had preceded them. Within a few minutes Mr. Folk and Mr. McChord left the conference, showing evidences of excitement.

Why He Left Conference.

"The conduct of Mr. McReynolds was such that we did not care to remain."

At the outset of the conference, which was called to consider the advisability of continuing the inquiry, the attorney general declared that the whole matter was within control of the commission. Reference was made to suggestions that had been made that the examination of Mr. Mellen and directors of the New Haven might give them immunity from prosecution as the result of an investigation being carried on by the department of justice.

Read Earlier Letter.

Mr. McReynolds then read a letter sent to the interstate commerce commission yesterday in which he suggested that the commission consider carefully the effect of the examina-

ROSE UNDER CROSS FIRE

Star Witness Against Becker Admits Discrepancies in Stories.

Calmly Meets and Denies Aspersions on His Character.

New York, May 13.—"Bald Jack" Rose, the informer, underwent the ordeal of cross-examination today at the trial of Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

Martin T. Manton, chief of Becker's counsel, began by asking Rose why he changed his name from Rosenzweig to Rose. Rose said he had changed his name twenty-three years ago. He denied that he had ever been in jail during that time. Manton hurled at him a long list of questions asked to bring out the life the witness had led.

Rose calmly met each implication denying that he had engaged in petty larcenies, that he had been associated with women of the streets, that he had been a "steerer" for an opium den.

Knew Rosenthal Many Years.

Rose's acquaintance with Rosenthal, he said, dated back twenty-five years. They had twice been associated in business. He denied that they had been quarreling in a business connection. It is a contention of the defense that Rosenthal was the victim of a gamblers' war.

The defense introduced transcripts of yesterday's testimony and from the first trial, showing certain discrepancies in the matter of meetings between Rose and Becker. Rose admitted the discrepancies, but did not explain them.

Shapiro's Story Differs.

Counsel for Becker obtained late yesterday an admission from William Shapiro, driver of the gray murder car, that testimony he gave on direct examination at yesterday's session was not the same as that he gave at the trial of the four gunmen.

The record shows that Shapiro then testified that while driving the four gunmen to the Metropole hotel he heard "Dago Frank" say "Everything is all right. Becker has the cops fixed." During his direct examination yesterday he testified that it was "Whitey Lewis" who made the remark.

Shapiro said his testimony yesterday was the truth. It is expected that his admission will play an important part in the trial later on.

JOSEPH W. FOLK, Attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

JAMES C. McREYNOLDS, Attorney General for the United States.

NEW PROGRAM IN CONGRESS

Rural Credits Law Is Abandoned for This Session.

President Approves Action Taken in House Caucus.

Washington, May 13.—President Wilson will abide by the Democratic house caucus action in abandoning rural credits legislation at this session of congress.

Representative Glass of Virginia, chairman of the banking and currency committee, conferred with the president today and explained that in his opinion the Federal reserve bank act will extend credit aggregating $500,000,000 on farm lands. This will, in a measure, cover the ground for which the rural credits act was designed. Moreover, it was pointed out, the rural credits bill framed by Representative Bulkeley and the subcommittee was not broad enough in its provisions to satisfy the full committee.

Would Aid Tenant Farmer.

The president, it is understood, especially desires that the rural credit act should extend credit to the tenant farmer. Under the measure prepared by the subcommittee, only the land owners would have been able to get credit.

In the opinion of the president it would take many weeks to discuss and frame a rural credits measure which would be broad enough in its provisions to satisfy the full membership of the banking and currency committee. Consequently President Wilson is willing to accept the caucus action pending further consideration of a rural credits bill which would meet with approval of party leaders.

New Program Adopted.

The caucus last night voted to limit the legislative program for the remainder of this session to anti-trust measures and appropriation bills.

Of the 230 members who attended the caucus not more than twenty voted against the program. President Wilson had suggested to house leaders who called upon him earlier in the evening that no attempt be made to pass rural credits during the present session.

The house today began adjusting itself to the new legislative program of concentration on anti-trust bills,

TELL ABOUT NARROW ESCAPE IN MEXICO

Refugees at Galveston Were Almost at Mercy of Mob.

Galveston, Tex., May 13.—Stories of anti-American riots along the Gulf of Tehauntepec and an attempt by a Mexican mob to burn a train bearing American refugees, are told by a party of Americans who fled from Mexico to Guatemala and then came here on the steamship Brighton.

James B. McFadden of Beaumont, Tex., together with John Vane and Edgar Phillips of Canton, Ohio, and L. A. Austin and wife of Cleveland, left Mapastepec, Chipas, April 21, because of growing sentiment against Americans. They took the train for Guatemala, but on their arrival at Tapachula, a mob surrounded the coaches and demanded the delivery of the Americans on board. The police guard tried to drive back the Mexicans, who tried to set the passenger coaches on fire.

Federal troops were rushed from a nearby post and for several hours the mob was held in check. Then the officers commanding the troops demanded a ransom of the Americans for protection. It appeared, the refugees said, as if the Federal officer was about to give the Americans over to the mob when the Jefe police denounced the Federal officer for asking a ransom, and the refugees were permitted to depart. They made their way across Guatemala and took the steamship Brighton at Port Barrios.

DENIES ANY PLAN TO ATTACK VERA CRUZ

Mexican General Writes Statement to Newspaper in City.

Vera Cruz, May 13.—Gen. Funston need fear no trouble along his outer lines, if a letter sent into the city last night by Gen. Rubio Navarrete, in command of the advanced positions of the Mexicans, is a true indication of the Mexicans' attitude.

Gen. Navarrete addressed the editor of a local newspaper, Los Suceso, regarding the reported movement by his forces against Vera Cruz.

"I beg that you deny this news," said Gen. Navarrete, "since, in accordance with orders which we have received, all offensive movements have been stopped while the armistice lasts."

Too Weak to Attack.

The Americans are informed regarding the position of the Mexicans in the vicinity of their outposts, and know reasonably well their strength. So weak are they at present that the staff has felt no uneasiness regarding the outcome of any aggression, but they have feared somewhat the complication which might follow the harrassing of their lines by small bodies of troops.

Gen. Navarrete's assertions, although not reaching the American headquarters in official form, have served to convince Gen. Funston that there is no intention to precipitate trouble at this quarter.

Three Women Die in Fire.

Yuma, Ariz., May 13.—Three women were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Hotel Imperial. After the flames had been subdued the bodies of Miss Naomi Strong and Miss Genevieve Brown, school teachers, and Miss Brown's mother, were found together at the head of the stairway.

DO HONOR TO JEWISH BOY

Illinois and Chicago Bow at Bier of Slain Marine.

Hospital Ship From Vera Cruz Due at New York Thursday.

Chicago, May 13.—The distinction which never attended the young Jewish marine, Sammy Meisenberg, in life, was his today when his body, wrapped in the flag for which he died at Vera Cruz, was brought back to his home.

He was the only Chicagoan among those who gave their lives in the occupation of the Mexican port, and not only the city but the state united today to honor his memory.

When the funeral car reached the La Salle street station today police were present to maintain order, but the great crowd was silent and orderly. A guard of honor received the coffin, and an escort of 500 men appointed by Governor Dunne and Mayor Harrison escorted it to the city hall. There the body remained on view for hours while two seemingly endless rows of sympathetic admirers filed past, entering at Washington street and leaving at Randolph street.

Prayers in Yiddish.

The Meisenbergs are orthodox Jews, and many of their coreligionists were among those who marched solemnly through the marble-vaulted corridors of the municipal building, the men in their long black frock coats, familiar in every Ghetto, and the married women in their wigs, pulled tight about their heads from the part in the

LAME, HALT AND BLIND AT ST. RITA'S SHRINE

Nine Thousand Seek Miraculous Cures at Chicago Church.

Chicago, May 13.—The lame, the halt and the blind were among the 9,000 persons gathered about St. Rita's Roman Catholic church here today, attracted by stories of the miraculous powers of St. Rita's shrine, said by Rev. Father Joseph F. Greene, who brought it from Rome, to contain a portion of the leg bone of St. Rita.

The pilgrimage is an annual event, always marked by stories of wonderful recoveries from affliction of some of those who attend the novena. Last year the novena developed several stories of cripples who threw away their crutches, of the blind who saw, and the dumb who spoke. Father Greene, when asked for confirmation of these stories at the time, was careful to state that "so the patients told me." He did not vouch personally for any "cures."

NEW YORK NURSES TO BE NEXT TO GO

Each Large City May Be Asked to Furnish Fifty-One.

New York, May 13.—The second quota of nurses to be sent to the front will be from New York city, according to Miss Annie Rhodes, secretary of the National Red Cross nursing service, who said today that each of the large cities of the country would be expected to furnish fifty-one nurses for service if conditions in Mexico require the presence of more troops. Washington has already furnished its quota of fifty-one nurses, Miss Rhodes said.

Several Red Cross nurses yesterday were inoculated against typhoid, and next week they will be vaccinated against smallpox.

While the nurses are undergoing the required physical examinations and submitting to vaccination, costume makers are rushing orders for the new nurses' outfit, officially adopted at their annual convention in St. Louis two weeks ago.

The new Red Cross nurse gown will be a onepiece dress of gray chambray, with white collar and cuffs and white apron. The cap will be of the same material as the gown, with a red cross decorating the front. A blue cloth military cape will complete the costume.

TENSION HAS GROWN LESS

Mediation Plans Are Rapidly Being Matured.

Elimination of Huerta Is Among Proposals Under Discussion.

Washington, May 13.—With plans for the Mexican mediation conference at Niagara Falls, Ont., next week rapidly maturing, tension of the international conflict was relieved somewhat today by the several important developments.

Assurances reached this government that no ammunition had been landed at ports from German ships, a matter that had been somewhat in doubt since the departure of Kronprinzessin Cecilie from Puerto Mexico several days ago.

Silliman Safe.

From the French legation in Mexico City came positive information that the American vice consul, John R. Silliman, who had been held prisoner by Mexican Federals at Saltillo, actually was on his way to Mexico City under guard, to be turned over to the Brazilian minister there, who would guarantee his safety until he reaches Vera Cruz. The state department has vigorously insisted that Huerta release Silliman.

Concern was aroused, however, over the reported execution by Mexican Federals of Samuel Parks, an American cowboy, who disappeared from Vera Cruz several days ago while believed to have been deranged on account of the excessive heat. Unofficial reports persist that Parks was executed, but Gen. Funston has communicated nothing official concerning him except his disappearance.

Chance for Trouble.

Secretary of War Garrison today directed Gen. Funston to ask the Mexican commander, Gen. Maas, for information about Parks. In some quarters, it was said, serious complications might arise if it proves true that Parks was executed.

As stumbling blocks in the path of preliminary attempts to compose the Mexican problem appeared to be gradually disappearing today, suggestions of the mediators' tentative plans unofficially were revealed.

Might Eliminate Huerta.

A report that the South American envoys tentatively were considering a plan for possible establishment of a form of government to include two administrators to be named by the Federals, two by the Constitutionalists and a fifth by the mediators, attracted some attention and immediately drew from Carranza's agents the declaration that any such proposal would not be acceptable to their chief. One reported detail contemplated the elimination of Huerta.

WOULD "GO OUT IN BLAZE OF GLORY"

O'Shaughnessy Tells President Wilson of Dictator's Position.

His Report Confirms Information From Other Sources.

Dictator Is Reported to Have Shipped Gold Abroad.

Washington, May 13.—That Gen. Huerta, preparing for a crisis in his dictatorship, has long been planning to leave Mexico City with his troops and make a last stand at Puebla, midway between Mexico City and Vera Cruz, was understood today to have been told President Wilson last night by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, former charge of the American embassy in the Mexican capital.

The president, it is said, was informed that Huerta had picked Puebla for his last refuge in case rebel assailants got too close to Mexico City, and that late developments in the revolution had caused him already to begin fortifying and provisioning Puebla.

Realizes End Is Near.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy is said to have told the president that Huerta had no intention of resigning, but that the Mexican dictator realized that his regime could not stand long. At Puebla, according to plans said to have been determined upon some months ago, he would fight rather than consent to elimination.

Realizing that he eventually must be deposed, Huerta, it is said, desires to acquire as much glory as possibly before the inevitable happens.

Not Over 6,000 Soldiers.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy is said further to have told the president that the number of troops which Huerta has at his command is greatly exaggerated, and that as a matter of fact they number only 4,000 to 6,000 men. Neither Zapata nor Villa would have any great difficulty in taking the city, is understood to be the view of Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

His information is along the line of other reports reaching the government within the last few weeks. Further

MILITIA MAY BE CALLED INTO CAMP

Army Officer Says That Is War Department's Plan.

Boston, May 13.—It is the unanimous opinion of the war department officials that orders will be issued to assemble the troops in each of the states in mobilization camps, according to a report submitted to Governor Walsh by Maj. J. W. Heavey of the regular army.

Maj. Heavey, who has just returned from a conference with Washington officials at the request of the governor, said that volunteers would not be drafted into the service until the militia proved inadequate.

CHARGE ARSON AND MURDERS

Colorado Militia Officer Faces Court Martial for Crimes.

Affair Is Result of Destruction of Ludlow Colony.

Denver, Col., May 13.— Charges of arson, murder, manslaughter and larceny against Maj. Patrick J. Hamrock of the First regiment, Colorado National Guard, were filed before a general court martial at the state rifle range today. The charges grew out of the battle between the state militia and coal miners at Ludlow, on April 20, and the fire which destroyed the strikers' tent colony.

The arson, murder and manslaughter charges were brought under the fifty-eighth article of war and larceny charges under the sixty-second article.

The arson article deals with the burning of the strikers' tent colony. The murder article contained twenty-seven specific charges and charges Hamrock with responsibility for the deaths of two women and eleven children.

Manslaughter Charges.

The manslaughter article, with twenty specifications, charges responsibility for the deaths of five strikers,

SMOOT OPPOSES THE TOLLS REPEAL BILL

Washington, May 13.—Declaring the administration demand for the repeal of the Panama canal toll exemption was "unworthy of some of the revolutionary fathers," Senator Smoot of Utah today argued vigorously against the repeal bill in the senate.

"The attempts that are being made in our own country and by our own citizens to convince the American people that the United States is violating its treaty obligations and is looked upon by other nations as lacking in national honor, I repudiate," said Senator Smoot. "The Constitution confers upon congress the power to regulate our domestic commerce and in doing so we are not subject to the charge of violating our treaty obligation.

"Senators, have you stopped to think that the assaults upon our national honor came from within and not from without?"

OWEN BILL FINDS FAVOR IN COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 13.—With two dissenting votes, the senate banking and currency committee today agreed to report favorably to the senate the Owen bill to regulate stock exchanges. The measure was amended in minor points.

SALE IS NEARING THE END

MINING LAND WILL BE SOLD

Owners Unable to Agree on Disposition of the Property.

Court Orders Sale and Pro Rata Division of the Proceeds.

Because joint owners of a tract of mining land on the Vermilion range are unable to agree upon what disposition should be made of the property and to settle other difficulties which have arisen, the tract will be sold under an order of the court and the proceeds of the sale divided pro rata among the fee holders.

Judge Dancer in district court ordered findings and judgment in favor of John Brennan, a Superior attorney and mining man, who sued other joint owners of a 160-acre tract in section 3, 61-15, south of Tower on the Vermilion range, for a partition of the property, or in case a partition could not be had without prejudice to the rights of all owners, a sale of the property and a division of the proceeds.

The owners are John Brennan, 18.66 per cent; John B. Dow, 12.5 per cent; Elizabeth Dow, his wife, 12.5 per cent; J. M. Vale and Meda Vale, his wife, 12 per cent; John Jenswold, Jr., and his wife, Lena Jenswold, 6 per cent; Joseph Roy and his wife, Sarah Roy, 19 7-12 per cents and A. L. Arpin and his wife, Fleurette G. Arpin, 6.25 per cent.

The court sustains the claim made by Brennan in his suit to enforce a division or sale of the property that the value of the tract was about $15,000. It was the claim of J. B. Dow and J. M. Vale, defendants, that the property is now underlaid with a rich ore body, the exact extent of which has not been fully determined and that $200,000 would be a fair valuation to place upon the property. Judge Dancer found that the tract had been partially explored for iron ore, but that there had not been shown to exist any commercial body of ore which could be mined at a profit.

After the suit to enforce a sale or partition of the land had been instituted, the Dow faction brought another action in which Dow and his associates sought to proceed under Chapter 177, laws of 1907, section 7 of which provides that when a majority of the owners of a mine fail to proceed with the development and abandon work for one year, the minority may proceed under an order of the court.

The counter action was tried before Judge Dancer in connection with the first law suit and the issues involved disposed of about a week ago. The court denied the desired authority to proceed on the grounds that it had not been shown that enough ore had been shown up to warrant such action. The law on which the second action was brought was attacked as unconstitutional in the action brought by Dow and against Brennan, but the court did not find it necessary to pass upon this point.

Mr. Dow is a well known mining operator on the ranges. A few years ago his connection with the Anglo-Saxon Mining company, which operated a gold mine at Georgetown, Col., brought him before the public as a mining promoter.

"NAPOLEON" ASKS LODGING OF POLICE

Alleged Relative of "Little Corporal" Held as Insane Suspect.

Louis Napoleon, 45 years old, who claims to be a descendant of Napoleon Bonaparte, came into police headquarters last evening and asked for a night's lodging.

Napoleon talked rather strangely to the officers and his story of the relation between himself and the famous Corsican caused them to lock the man up as an insane suspect. This morning he was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where he will be given treatment for several days, after which, if he fails to show any improvement, he will be brought before Judge Gilpin of the probate court.

ROLLING PIN AS FIREARM

Assessors Get One Good Laugh During Their Monotonous Task.

Ax Also Listed as Weapon —Assessment Is Progressing.

Item No. 43 of the personal property schedule calls for the listing of fire arms of all kinds.

Under that head one woman sent in the return, to the assessors "one rolling pin, 5 cents," and directly under it was "one ax, 10 cents." The sheet containing the return was received this morning by City Assessor J. Allyn Scott. "It looks as though Duluth had one militant woman, whether she is a suffragette or not," said the assessor.

The enumeration of a roiling pin as a fire arm caused considerable amusement in the office this morning, going a long ways to relieve the tediuni of the hundreds of reports which are being received and checked dally. The assessor says that it is probably the most unusual report that he has received since he has been in charge of the office.

The making of the personal property assessments is progressing satisfactorily and the field work will be completed by the end of the month. None of the deputies has reported any difficulty in securing the information requested. One of the first rules of the department is "be courteous at all times." If anyone refuses to admit a deputy he is instructed to pass to the next house and inform the office of the occurrence. In those instances an arbitrary assessment is levied and it is a rare exception when the person assessed doesn't make haste to the assessor's office upon receipt of the card stating the amount of the assessment. Invariably they are up in arms and looking for a heavy reduction.

DENIES NEW TRIAL TO SAARI BROS.

Court Stands By Verdict Awarding Them But $4,000.

Unless an order entered today by Judge Dancer in district court is set aside by the supreme court, a verdict for $4,000 awarded John and Jacob Jacob S. Saari, co-partners trading as Saari Bros., against the Cloquet Tie & Post company, will stand as a judgment, despite the fact that the plaintiffs, Saari Bros., are dissatisifed with the amount received at the jury's hands.

Judge Dancer today denied the alternative motion of Saari Bros. for judgment of $7,366.78, notwithstanding the verdict or for a new trial. The alternative motion was based on the claim that the amount asked for is the sum to which they are entitled as twice the minimum market value of ties and pulpwood which the jury, in special findings, found has been converted to the use of the Cloquet Tie & Post company at Brevator, May 26, 1912.

Saari Bros. brought suit for $40,000 damages, alleging that the defendant company sent a big drive of logs and timber down the Mudhen river during the early summer of 1912, broke storage and sorting booms and swept away the forest products belonging to its competitors.

The controversy between Contractor R. B. Hartmann, in charge of the building of the new normal school, and union men of the city is still unsettled. At a meeting of the trades' assembly the Bricklayers' union announced that they would not lay a brick on the job until the contractor has discharged his non-union carpenters and employed union men. The ultimation of the bricklayers is expected to delay the construction of the building unless the contractor decides to employ the union men.

MASS MEETING OF CHILDREN

Entrants in Garden Contest Will Hear Lecture on Planting.

A mass meeting of children from all of the schools of West Duluth, who intend entering the garden contest recently inaugurated by the West Duluth Commercial club is being planned for an early date. It is probable that the meeting will be held the last Thursday evening this month.

The lecture to be given that evening will be on preparation of the soil and planting, and will be a follow-up lecture on the one given recently by A. B. Hostetter. A good speaker on this subject will be secured.

Much interest has so far been taken in the garden contest. Approximately 300 children from the four schools have already signified their intention of entering and fully that many more will enter before the final closing day on June 15.

All children under 16 years of age residing in any of the four school districts will be eligible to enter the contest whether they attend school or not. A sum of $50 has already been raised for prizes and it is expected that as much more will be added to the prize list before the summer is over.

P. H. Martin, president of the club, and Charles G. Futter, secretary of the garden committee, are receiving a number of requests for information regarding the contest from the children, as well as their names as contestants. They have also been requested to arrange lectures on general gardening throughout the summer, and this scheme may be carried out.

Francis Baudin, 17, one of four West Duluth young men who was caught in the act of breaking into the grocery store of Charles Chilstrand, 201 South Fifty-ninth avenue west on the night of April 26, yesterday received a suspended sentence at the hands of Judge Dancer of district court. The court, a week ago, imposed a straight reformatory sentence upon Baudin and paroled his three companions, Clyde Schardt, 17; John Budnick, 23, and William Hartman, 18. Yesterday Judge Dancer decided to change his mind and give Baudin another chance in spite of the fact that he has a record as a juvenile delinquent which is none too good.

He was placed on parole under a suspended sentence and directed to make regular reports to Probation Officer F. E. Resche.

TWO SUITS IN EQUITY

Mississippi, Hill City & Western Road Claimed to Be Bankrupt.

Princeton Roller Mills Alleged to Be Infringing on Patent.

Two suits in equity, one asking the court to foreclose trust deeds held against the Mississippi, Hill City & Western Railway company and the other asking for an injunction to restrain the Princeton Roller Mills of Mille Lacs, Minn., from using a patent bleaching flour process, were filed with the deputy clerk of the United States court yesterday. The cases will come up for a hearing during the regular July term of court.

The suit against the railway company is brought by Walter A. Eggleston of Minneapolis, trustee, who has retained Davis, Kellogg & Severance of St. Paul as his attorneys. The plaintiff claims that the Mississippi, Hill City & Western Railway company, which operates its lines from Hill City, in Aitkin county, to North Dakota, is insolvent and unable to make payment on the trust deeds and bonds held against it.

On Oct. 13, 1908, the plaintiff claims, the railroad company delivered a mortgage to the Empire Lumber company of its property for a note amounting to $30,000, payable Oct. 1, 1913. The company, Mr. Eggleston alleges, then issued bonds payable semi-annually, and that these are unpaid, as are trust deeds given to him on Oct. 13, 1908. He asks the court to foreclose on the deeds and to force payment of the bonds. If necessary, the plaintiff asks the court to appoint receivers and sell the property in order to pay the outstanding debts.

Patent Infringement.

The suit against the Princeton Roller Mills, millers at Mille Lacs, is brought by the Alsop Process company of St. Louis, through the company's attorney, Bruce S. Elliott, also of St. Louis. The plaintiff company alleges that the Minnesota corporation is infringing on a patent sold on Dec. 18, 1905, to the Alsop company, giving it the right to use the Andrews method of bleaching and aging flour. The court is asked to issue a temporary injunction restraining the Princeton company from using the patent, and to set a date for a hearing on the matter, regarding the issuing of a permanent restraining order.

The Andrews patent includes the use of nitric acid in a chemical combination, which forms nitrogen peroxide. This acid, together with the air and diluted with water, is brought in contact with the flour, bleaching it. The use of a metal wire in forming nitrogen peroxide is the cause of the infringement, the plaintiff company alleges. The patent was originally issued to John Andrews and Sydney Andrews of the county of Antrim, Ireland, on Feb. 11, 1902, giving them the United States rights. They sold their patent to the Flour Oxidizing company, and the process was later sold to the Alsop Process company on Dec. 18, 1905.

SAYS NEIGHBOR ATTACKED HER

Mrs. Louisa Watsick, 6416 Worden street, who alleges that Emil Markwat, her neighbor, assaulted her on Feb. 27 last, this morning brought suit in municipal court for $500 damages.

Through her attorneys, Kenney & Kenney, Mrs. Watsick claims that Markwat, who lives at 6462 Worden street, came into her yard and beat her. She states that she is a widow and obliged to work for a living, and that as a result of this assault she has been unable to work since Feb. 27. She asks for $500 and the costs of the suit.

The damage suit has been placed on the regular May calendar next Tuesday morning.

SAYS ADVERTISING INCULCATES THRIFT

Irvin S. Cobb Reads Paper at National Conference.

Lawrence, Kan., May 13. — "Sound advertising does not lead to the destruction of the saving instinct of the American people, nor to the reckless spending of their money. It leads to intelligent and rational spending."

These statements were made in a paper by Irvin S. Cobb, magazine writer, read at today's session of the National Newspaper conference in progress this week at the University of Kansas here. Mr. Cobb's paper was prepared in answer to the question, "Is advertising destroying the thrift of the nation?"

Shriners' Interest Centers in the Elections at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., May 13.—Dr. Frederick R. Smith of Damascus Temple, Rochester, N. Y., today was elected imperial potentate of the imperial council. Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at its annual conclave. Dr. Smith succeeds William W. Irwin of Wheeling, W. Va. He was today elevated from his previous position of deputy imperial potentate.

The selection of the next place of meeting and the election of imperial outer guard were expected to come before the imperial council at its business meeting today. There has been keen rivalry between San Francisco and Seattle for the 1915 convention, which it has been agreed would be held on the Pacific coast.

Events on the program today included an exhibition drill by all patrols at a local park, a garden party given to the visiting women of the convention by Mrs. John M. Slaton, wife of the governor of Georgia, and a dinner complimentary to the newly elected imperial potentate and members of the imperial council tonight.

Resplendent in Oriental costumes and headed by the bands of the various temples, 20,000 members of the fraternity last night marched in the annual night pageant of the order. The march lasted nearly five hours.

BASEBALL AT WORK FARM

Prisoners Will Learn to Steal Bases Instead of Property.

Will Spend Their Recreation Hours Exercising on the Diamond.

These are the days when baseball fever stalks abroad in the land and spreads its contagion broadcast.

Even prisoners committed to the county and city jag farm at least six or seven miles away from the nearest baseball diamond have developed bad cases of "baseballitis."

Supt. Fred Ward of the work farm believes that the surest and safest cure is to allow the misdemeanants to spend their hours of recreation by exercising a bat, ball and glove.

All of which means that a baseball nine is to be organized at the new county and city work farm this summer. No longer will delinquent citizens who are doing time at the farm be obliged to content themselves by reading the "dope" of an occasional sport sheet which comes their way. In the future they will have baseball of their own.

The Marshall-Wells Hardware company and the Kelley-How-Thomson company have donated a complete outfit for the use of the prisoners. A team will be organized at once. It is possible that games with outside nines may be arranged. In this case, it would be necessary, however, for the jag farm team to play at home.

Around the courthouse there is talk of arranging a game between the courthouse team and the farm aggregation this summer. E. R. Grignon, one of the stars on the courthouse team last year, says that the game will in all probability be a hard fight as the members of the larceny squad at the work farm are reputed to be proficient in base stealing.

Supt. Ward, in his monthly report, submitted to the work farm commission yesterday, mentions that a baseball outfit has been donated for the use of the prisoners at the farm.

"We believe that we can head off much trouble," states the superintendent, "in keeping the men's minds occupied at some healthy recreation during their spare time."

NO TROUBLE TO FIND GARDENERS

State Employment Bureau Will Provide Men to Do Spading.

Residents in and about the city, who need help in preparing gardens and planting seed will be able to find plenty of help this spring.

The state free employment agency, corner of Michigan street and Third avenue West, is besieged with men in search of work, and many are in need of employment if but for a few days.

The warm weather during the last few days has aroused interest in gardening all over the city, and many residents are already busy clearing the ground and preparing the soil for seed. Hand rakes and spades are being kept busy and in some places plows are being used where gardens are large enough.

Manager Burke of the free employment bureau has had no calls for help in gardens so far, but stands ready to secure men for such work at short notice.

ABANDONED STEAMER SEEN IN MID-OCEAN.

Sydney, N. S., May 13.—The steamer Karamea, Capt. Moggi, which arrived today from London, brought word of an abandoned steamer in mid-Atlantic. The derelict had no funnels.

Capt. Moggi suggests that the hulk may be the burned steam Columbian. He states, however, that she would have had to drift at the rate of eleven knots to make the spot where the derelict was passed.

WILL BE PAYABLE AT ANY OFFICE

Restriction on Postoffice Money Orders Will Be Removed.

Beginning July 1, money orders will be payable at any postoffice in the country, instead of at the office designated by the sender, according to an order received here yesterday by Assistant Postmaster Weld from Postmaster General Burleson.

This new order will prove of great advantage to a large number of people, especially traveling men, who have been compelled to cash their money orders at the postoffice designated, thus often inconveniencing themselves and wasting much of their time.

The order from Postmaster General Burleson follows:

"Pursuant to authority given by the act of congress approved Feb. 5, 1914, it is hereby ordered that on and after July 1, 1914, domestic money orders shall be paid in accordance with the following rules and regulations:

"All domestic money orders shall be made payable at a designated money order office as at present, but those issued at any money order office in the continental United States, excepting Alaska, may be paid at any money order office in the continental United States, excepting Alaska, if presented for payment on or before the expiration of the thirtieth day following the date of issue. If presented after that date and within one year from the last day of the month in which issued, they shall be paid only at the office designated in the money order as the paying office, or repaid at the office of issue."

TWO DOMINICAN PORTS BLOCKADED.

ANNA HOWARD SHAW LECTURES IN ROME

Delivers Striking Address There on Woman Suffrage.

Rome, May 13.—Rev. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw of New York today delivered a striking address on woman suffrage at a public meeting under the auspices of the International Council of Women. Dr. Shaw said the first duty of patriotic women is to bring the practical life of governments into harmony with the fundamental principles of justice, which demand that the laws governing the people give equal privileges and equal opportunities to all, regardless of sex.

During the last five years, she said, woman suffrage has grown from an academic to a practical question and all political parties have realized that it is one with which governments must speedily deal.

JUDGE WILL PASS EIGHTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY ON BENCH

Hon. J. D. Ensign, senior judge of the district court, will celebrate his eighty-first birthday tomorrow.

He will probably spend the day on the bench presiding at the trial of some lawsuit from present indications. He is not planning on any special observance.

Judge Ensign was born in Erie county, N. Y., May 14, 1833. His father was R. S. Ensign, who died in 1906. The Ensigns are an old American family. The judge's great grandfather served as a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

Judge Ensign came to Duluth in the spring of 1870 and was prominently identified with the city's early history. He took up the practice of law while a young man and has always followed this profession. He was mayor of Duluth for two terms.

The judge recently passed his twenty-fifth year of service on the bench. He assumed office on April 16, 1889, and has served continuously since that time.

Despite his advanced age, Judge Ensign is in exceptionally good health. Every morning he takes his daily constitutional by walking from his residence to the courthouse, the weather permitting. He has been actively engaged at the trial of cases and is in court as much as the younger judges on the bench.

NEW BUDGET PLAN OFFERED

Last Word in Business Methods in State Government.

Dr. Durand's Plan for Bureau Head Adjusting His Allowance.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Now that the efficiency commission has completed a consistent outline for a business-like state government, a budget system grows out of that almost unconsciously. Whenever such a system is adopted it will be the most natural thing in the world for the department directors to get together on the estimates of their subordinates, check them, adjust them, and see that the total comes somewhere within reason. It will be the most natural thing in the world to get the department heads together with their estimates, check them, adjust them, and see that the grand total comes somewhere within reason. And as that is done there will be nothing to hinder putting before the legislature on the very day it assembles the needs of all the departments of the state. So the legislature can chew over them for ninety days instead of having them dumped before the committee on the floors of the two houses about the time the bell is ringing for adjournment.

It goes without saying that such a system will result in more intelligent appropriations. It will enable a legislature which wishes to economize to do so without swinging an axe in the dark.

Dr. Durand's Plan.

That, however, is not the whole of the budget system. The efficiency commission has before it a plan drawn up by Dr. E. Dana Durand, which is partly his own idea, enriched by suggestions from the volume published by the Wisconsin authorities and by the conclusions of the Taft commission, which spent two years of time and about $300,000 on that sort of study.

Among other things this plan shows how the head of a bureau can adjust his allowance when he gets it from the legislature and within the purposes which the legislature has designated and tell how he intends to spend it any particular way. He will file that with the auditor. By and by he finds he needs more of this and can get along with less for that, and so long as he keeps within his appropriation, he will file a revised allotment with the auditor, first getting the approval of his superior officer. That is simply a matter of good housekeeping. In that way the legislature can make its appropriations as specifically as it pleases and yet there can be considerable flexibility in the expenditure. It won't be necessary for the legislature to decide that a certain stenographer shall have $720 a year and another $840. On the other hand, if any department fails to carry out the purposes of the appropriation within the sum allotted, the information will be before the next legislature, and that very fact will make the responsible man careful about keeping the true course.

This and some other new wrinkles added to the established rules for making the budget satisfies the efficiency commission that they have before them about the last word in business methods for a state government.

HOME RULE BILL TO PASS COMMONS

Compromise Probable Until Measure Is Before the Lords.

London, May 13.—This month probably will see the passage through the house of commons of three great controversial measures, home rule for Ireland, disestablishment of the Welsh church and the abolition of plural voting. The first two will have been passed for the third time under the parliament act and no matter what the house of lords does with them they will become law. The plural voting bill still has another time to pass through the house of commons.

Of course the greatest interest is taken in the home rule bill. There has been much talk of compromise and settlement by consent, but the best informed opinion of the country is that nothing in this direction will be done in the house of commons and any settlement must be reached when the bill is before the lords.

The Nationalists and Ulster Unionists have stated their demands quite plainly and there seems no room for compromise between them. The Nationalists have agreed to the temporary exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the bill, while the Ulstermen demand permanent exclusion. Neither side apparently will recede, although Nationalists have been heard to say that perhaps there will be a little more concession to "save the face of the Ulster leaders, but no exclusion." It was thought Mr. Balfour, who knows his Ireland well, would be the man to find common ground on which the opposing leaders could meet, but his speech at the Hyde park demonstration, in which he spoke against compromise, has ruled him out, and now it is for the lords to find the way out, if the question is to be settled by consent.

NEXT SUNDAY WILL BE PEACE DAY

Duluth Churches Asked to Unite in International Program.

Sunday, May 17, will be Peace Sunday.

Duluth pastors have been notified through the secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America that this day has been set apart for the promotion of peace relations throughout the world, and churches are asked to hold special services on the occasion.

The secretary states that 25,000 sermons were preached last May, and the hope is expressed that 75,000 will be preached next Sunday. The Federal church council is co-operating with other peace organizations and the churches of Great Britain have taken similar action. The schools of the United States will observe Monday, May 18, as Peace day. The date has been set as near as possible to the anniversary of the first Hague peace conference.

JAMES J. HILL CHAIR PLANNED FOR HARVARD

Cambride, Mass., May 12.—A professorship of railroading for the graduate school of business administration of Harvard university has been almost completely endowed, it is announced tonight. The chair will be named in honor of James J. Hill.

The Hill professorship plan was started, it is understood, by Howard Elliott, chairman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad; Robert Bacon, former ambassador to France, and Thomas W. Lamont, a New York banker.

AMERICAN COURSE IN MEXICO APPROVED.

London, May 13.—The Mexico City correspondent of the Times, telegraphing from Vera Cruz, compares Mexico City to Naples under King Bombay, he says "spies are everywhere and summary arrests of Americans and Mexicans are frequent. Prominent foreign residents expect the fall of Huerta through a local revolution or defeat by Gen. Villa."

In an editorial on the Mexican situation the Times says:

"There is no disposition in Great Britain to sneer at the course President Wilson has followed through the Mexican entanglement—a course with which his present reluctance to prepare for war is quite in keeping. He has shown, as we have always gladly acknowledged, remarkable patience, high mindedness and forbearance in pursuing his ideals."

SAW INTO JAIL AND LYNCH NEGRO.

Shreveport, La., May 13.—Ed. Hamilton, a negro held on the charge of assaulting a 10-year-old white girl, was taken from the parish jail yesterday afternoon and lynched.

For three hours 1,000 men and boys stood in the rain outside the jail, hammering away with a heavy railroad iron at a steel door that kept them from the negro. Steel saws finally were used.

Sheriff Flournoy had telegraphed the governor for troops, but before a company could be assembled the negro was taken from the jail, dragged half a block to a telephone pole opposite the parish court house and strung up. A knife was left sticking in his body.

ASQUITH HOPEFUL AS TO HOME RULE.

London, May 13. — Premier Asquith in the house of commons pledged the government to introduce an amending bill to the home rule measure, in the hope of passing it by agreement between the parties. If this offer is accepted, the original home rule bill and the amending bill will become law practically simultaneously. This, he contended, was the only proper way of carrying out any agreed settlement which might be reached.

A. Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, said he was unable to share the premier's optimism regarding the possibility of a settlement. The crux of the situation, Mr. Law said, lay between Premier Asquith and John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, as under the government's "gag" system the house of commons was powerless. The only alternatives open to the government, the speaker declared, were the exclusion or the coercion of Ulster, now that the cabinet had decided against an appeal to the people.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, carpenter, 125 Marcellus avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may have a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Something About Government Ownership

No. 4

It was an epoch in the world's history when the Bell System opened a long distance line between New York and Chicago, in 1893, and demonstrated that speech could be transmitted 1,000 miles.

Today the business man in Denver sends his voice clear and distinct into the office of the New York merchant, 2,000 miles distant.

A small army of skilled telephone workmen in the Rockies are now building the home stretch of the great Bell route from New York to San Francisco, and transcontinental conversations over the Bell System will be one of the wonders ushered in by the Panama-Pacific Exposition next spring.

Last year the first 900-mile telephone line was built in Europe, where practically all telephone systems are government owned, two decades after a thousand-mile line had been in successful operation in the United States.

WHO OWNS BOULEVARD?

Fifth Ward Improvement Club Makes Inquiry of City.

Suggests Names for New Park at Ninth Avenue.

Who owns the Boulevard?

The question was brought up at the meeting of the Fifth Ward Improvement club last evening. It arose on complaint of a merchant who is a member of the club, who said that from experiences he has had the Boulevard is not a public highway.

Recently, he declared, he attempted to drive over the Boulevard with a grocery rig on which he had some furniture. The driveway, he said, was the only place that was passable for traffic in that vicinity at the time, and as he was about to get onto the highway, he was ordered off by employes of the city.

"What we should know is whether the Boulevard is a public highway, and whether it is a legal city road that can be used by everybody, or whether it is only for a 'chosen few,'" said he. "Most of us ordinary taxpayers have always been of the opinion that the Boulevard was city property and for the use of all, but my recent experience leads me to believe that it is a private roadway."

A resolution was adopted by the club to inquire into the ownership of the Boulevard, and W. L. Pierce, secretary of the club, was instructed to make the necessary inquiry of Mayor Prince.

"Observation Park" and "Grand View" were indorsed as desirable names for the new park at Ninth avenue west and Third street. The former name was given preference and the latter second choice by the members. These names will be recommended to the park board as appropriate for the park.

The club indorsed a resolution asking the city to build a retaining wall on the north side of Fourth street between Sixth and Eighth avenues. About thirty yards of dirt were washed onto the street at this point about five years ago by the breaking of a retaining wall. Members of the club will ask that the city build the wall and charge the cost to the abutting property.

Estimates of the cost of building the dam in the Twin Lakes, which was washed away in a heavy downpour of rain in July, 1909, were from $1,200 to $1,500 if the work was done by contract. It was claimed that if H. W. Cleveland, superintendent of city parks, was given authority to do the work he could do it at a cost not to exceed $900. The dam will restore the Twin Lakes which were in former years one of the prettiest spots on the Boulevard drive.

Buckingham creek above Michigan street to Third street will be encased in a culvert, according to reports made by members of the club. This work will be started this summer by the city. At First street a falls will be created in the creek and members of the club intend that this shall be one of the beauty spots in this section. The members propose that the falls shall be called "Kitchi Gammi falls."

WIRES BEING PUT UNDERGROUND

Traction Company Spending $18,000 on Conduit Work.

The laying of a conduit for the electric wires of the Duluth Street Railway company in Superior street between Eighteenth and Thirty-first avenues west is nearly completed. The cost of laying it for the distance is estimated at $18,000, the average price per foot being $3.

A twenty-duct conduit has been laid between Eighteenth and Twenty-first avenues, and a ten-duct conduit the other ten blocks. An official of the company said yesterday that an orange fiber duct, considered the best material available, was being used.

The company is taking no chances in the use of material in covering up the conduit, according to the official. A new concrete mixer, which works automatically, weighing the gravel and cement in right proportions is employed in mixing the concrete to put over the conduit. This machine was recently purchased by the company.

Work on the removal of the old paving from Superior street, to make room for the new paving, is progressing rapidly. James W. Preston, superintendent in charge of the work for the city, has a large crew of men on the job and from the manner in which the job is being pushed the business men of the street believe that the work will be completed in rapid time.

ORPHEUS ENTERTAINMENT.

Chorus Work and Soloists to Be Heard; Also Congressman Miller.

The Orpheus Singing society has planned a musical and literary entertainment to be given tomorrow evening at Woodmen hall, Twenty-fifth avenue west and First street. In addition to several musical numbers by the chorus as well as soloists, the program will be featured on "The Philippines and Its People," by Congressman Clarence B. Miller.

The lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views, illustrating the life of the people of the islands as well as the work done by the United States government in battling disease, making roads and educating the people.

The entertainment will be the final of a series given by the club before its members leave for Minneapolis to take part in the sangerfest of the Swedish Singers of America, to be held there, beginning June 7.

SERIES OF ADDRESSES.

Lectures Will Be Given at Bryant School Social Center.

The first of a series of educational talks along political lines will be given this evening at the social center at the Bryant school, Vernon and Third streets. Dr. David H. Day and Frank Crassweller will talk this evening on the purpose of the initiative, referendum and recall.

Other subjects will be taken up by future speakers. Among those who have promised to speak in the near future are G. W. C. Ross, A. G. McKnight, Richard Funk, Richard Jones, James P. Boyle, E. J. Kenny and Edward Armstrong.

Lindgren Funeral Held.

The funeral service for Louis Lindgren, 50 years old, 3907 West Fifth street, who died Saturday evening, was held this afternoon from Olson & Crawford's undertaking rooms. Interment was made in the Scandis cemetery.

West End Briefs.

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church held its regular meeting this afternoon at the church. Mrs. C. C. McManus was leader, and a paper was read by Mrs. John Page.

Mrs. J. W. Preston, 2509 West Second street, entertained this afternoon for the Ladies' Aid society of Grace Methodist church.

The Men's Welfare league of the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue and Second street, will meet this evening in the church parlors.

Mrs. Gust Hjelm will be hostess for the Ladies' Aid society of the Swedish Mission church at its meeting in the church tomorrow afternoon.

Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, returned this morning from Grand Lake, where he conducted services last evening.

Savings Association's Plan of Making Mortgages Is Found Unlawful.

Court Orders $5,000 Mortgage and Promissory Note Canceled.

Tactics employed by the Union Savings association, a South Dakota corporation doing business in Minnesota, have invalidated a mortgage and promissory note for $5,000 executed four years ago in its favor by Erick W. Lund and wife, Kate Lund, according to a decision handed down in district court yesterday afternoon by Judge Bert Fesler.

The court finds that a usurious rate of interest was charged, contrary to the Minnesota statutes and directs the company to deliver the instruments for cancellation. If this is not done, the recording of a certified copy of the judgment with the register of deeds will bring about the same results as though the mortgage and notes were canceled of record.

Only those who become members of the association and who subscribe for its stock are eligible to borrow money, but the court, in analyzing its way of conducting business, decides that the corporation is not a mutual building and loan association, and consequently is not entitled to the rights, immunities and special privileges of such organizations.

On April 1, 1910, the Lunds executed a mortgage and notes for $5,000 to the association. The mortgage covered two lots in Aurora and provided for a payment of 6 per cent interest, annually, a monthly premium of 50 cents on every $100 borrowed, $75 attorneys' fees in case of a foreclosure, and $43.50 monthly dues on seventy-five shares of stock in the corporation for which the Lunds were obliged to subscribe in order to get the loan.

After the Lunds had paid in $2,975, the savings association represented that there was still due a balance of $5,900, despite the fact that the mortgage and notes evidenced an indebtedness of but $5,000 originally. The court in its decision yesterday held that the terms of the deal were usurious and enjoined the association from foreclosing the mortgage.

It was stated today by the company's representatives that the Lunds' contract was one of the first made in this territory, and that the system has since been changed. There was formerly a withdrawal fee of $10 a share, which has since been reduced to $1 a share, and the former heavy penalties have been withdrawn. The claim was set forth that the Lunds had paid but one and a half years on their contract, although it had been running about four years, and that the penalties and withdrawal fees were responsible for the heavy charges that piled up.

TRAFFIC FAIR THIS SPRING

Increase Shown in Merchandise, Groceries and Staple Goods.

Movement Falls Off in Lumber, Coal, Grain and Forest Products.

With the exceptions of coal, lumber and forest products and grain, the in and out volume of freight being handled by the railroads operating from Duluth, is making a favorable comparison with last year, and the outlook is regarded by officials as distinctly better than at this time a year ago.

Cars moved during April were reported by A. E. Piering, the manager of the Lake Superior Demurrage bureau, at 21,175 or a falling off of 6,174 cars from last year. That was practically accounted for by a decrease of 3,381 cars in the grain movement, which came to 1,240 cars; 1,059 cars in lumber and forest products, reported at 2,629 cars; 1,144 cars in coal handlings reported at 10,685 cars, and 299 cars decrease in cement, lime, stone and sand, which aggregated 955 cars.

Increases in Staples.

Increases were shown in general merchandise and groceries, iron, pipe, steel and machinery and the hay and straw movements.

Traffic moving over the Great Northern railroad's territory made relatively a more favorable showing, the road's handlings for the month aggregating 7,500 cars, according to officials. It moved over 1,400 cars of grain, or about the same volume as last year, and its coal haulage, placed at 4,000 cars, was well ahead of a year ago. The road besides took care of a larger volume of general merchandise and settlers, attesting the extent of the development that is taking place over its territory.

An increased coal movement for last month of about 15 per cent was also noted by the Northern Pacific railroad. "Our general merchandise traffic is picking up nicely, and during the last week we have had a rush of incoming lake stuff going out from here over the West," said John I. Thomas, general agent of the company today.

Crop Prospects Goods.

From reports being received at the Northern Pacific offices here, seeding is as far advanced as a year over most sections of the Minnesota and North Dakota grounds. In the opinion of agents, there is no cause for apprehension, except in perhaps in a few low-lying sections of this state.

The movement of a considerable tonnage of iron ore from the Cuyuna range this season, is regarded as assured by Mr. Thomas, taking into account the tonnage now in sight and the contracts that have been entered into with prospective new shippers.

It is expected by Duluth railroad officials that substantial terminal improvements will be carried through by the roads later on in the season as soon as a definite line can be obtained upon the crop prospects. It is admitted that additional facilities are absolutely necessary, if the traffic likely to develop as the result of even an average crop yield, is to be economically handled.

SENATOR BOYLE SPEAKS BEFORE MEN'S CLUB.

State Senator James P. Boyle, candidate for congress from this district, was the chief speaker last evening at the annual meeting of the Men's Club of the Unitarian church, Eighteenth avenue east and First street.

He discussed the workingmen's compensation law, the minimum wage legislation and mothers' pensions. He asserted that the laws governing these social problems have come to stay and that the people favor them, as well as the better class of employers. Henceforth, he said, these qestions will receive much more attention than in the past.

The officers elected by the club for the coming year were as follows: W. B. Brinkman, president; G. W. C. Ross, vice president, and A. P. Bills, secretary-treasurer. The business meeting followed a dinner at which the men were hosts to the women of the church.

BILL ON ELECTION OF SENATORS PASSED.

Washington, May 12.—Under a special rule the house passed the senate bill, providing temporary machinery for the conduct of popular elections of United States senators. There was practically no opposition to the measure. The bill provides for the election of senators at an election called for members of the house next preceding the expiration of a senate term. The procedure governing the election of representatives at large, or of state officials, would govern senate elections. The bill is designed to operate until state laws prescribing procedure can be passed. Several states already have provided such laws.

On the west coast of Colombia conditions are not improving.

BARONESS LEADS FASHION WITH SANDALS AND TOE RINGS

—Copyright by the Bain News Service.
BARONESS DE GUESTRE.

Cable dispatches from Paris say the jewelers are laying in stocks of toe rings to be used with the newly fashionable sandals. A noted actress named Prevost was seen in the lobby of one of the theaters last week with jeweled sandals on her feet and jeweled rings on her pink toes. So it appears that the fashion set by the baroness de Guestre last winter has found general favor and no doubt it will be seen soon in New York.

The baroness appeared in a loose Greek robe with sandaled feet at the Theatre des Champs Elysees last winter during the season of opera and created a sensation. The baroness, who is highly original, designs all her own gowns. These pictures of her were made at her chateau near Paris by a photographer of the Bain news service.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Woman's Independence Has Resulted in Her Incompatibility.

The cry of "incompatibility" is abroad in the land. Time was when the word was not in general use. Its meaning was obscure to a considerable part of the population. Doubtless there are men and women now who aren't quite clear in their conception of the word, but these do not belong to the present generation.

Incompatibility was a word that was employed first by the new order of woman to describe her dissatisfaction with matrimonial conditions. Formerly, the same shortcomings in both sexes which it defines were called by uglier and shorter names.

One hears constant reference to the "incompatibility" of this and that couple in the married relation, until one is forced to inquire whither it will lead us. Its origin is not far to seek. Incompatibility first reared its head when women commenced to sense that it was possible for them to exist economically, independent of men. The entire scheme of things changed when women learned that their efforts directed outside their homes brought a return sufficient to support them.

That there were fewer unpleasant features attached to this method of winning a livelihood made the avenues of support slowly opening to women most alluring. From these abuses, and the understanding gradually acquired that it wasn't absolutely necessary to endure them, has the twentieth century definition of the word "incompatibility" evolved.

Women are making it nearly as hard for men to live with them agreeably as ever men made it for women. A taste of freedom and of power is not helping to make each and every woman remember that she should temper her new found liberty with consideration and generosity and refrain from patterning after man's practice of usurping the advantage whenever he could.

Incompatibility is fast coming to be a rock on which many a matrimonial bark flounders that should be able to steer its course safely, and could, if it would only make the effort to do so. It is coming to be the definite excuse of too many people who are only shirkers of life's responsibilities. It offers men and women too much latitude. It points to the destruction of certain qualities necessary to race stability.

Many things that come under the head of incompatibility in these days of easy divorce are in reality such things as character is made of and the means by which souls are saved.

SERIOUS-MINDED YOUNG WOMAN

Duluth's New "Leading Lady" Reads Galsworthy and Ibsen, Is a Suffragist and Would Systematize Tango Steps—Will Wear a Green Wig.

A very serious minded young woman is Miss Lola May.

She possesses quite definite ambitions along the line of her chosen career, the stage.

Miss Lola May—the name sounds frivolous, but Miss May says it is her own and she must use it—is the new leading woman with the Baldwin Players, who will be seen in stock productions at the Lyceum this summer, opening Sunday.

Between rehearsals—and rehearsals come morning, noon and night with a stock company—Miss May reads Galsworthy, Brieux, Echegaray, Maeterlinck, Ibsen and some others for pleasure. She even admits attempting Nietsche, but says she was forced to seek a commentary, and read him "canned" or in capsule form.

Miss May is a suffragist, and attends meetings regularly in New York.

Miss May is an enthusiastic supporter of the Drama league and says it is doing much to encourage better drama in America.

And last, but not least, she wants to reform the tango, or rather systematize it. "It is so nowadays that before you dance you have to take your partner aside and spend fifteen minutes drawing a chart showing what steps you do and what you don't," says Miss May. "Therefore, let us systematize. It will save so much time, and time is precious to a stock actress."

Will Wear New Wig.

Miss May will give Duluthians an opportunity to see just what a green wig looks like on a real live woman when she appears in "The Spendthrift." Many have seen colored wigs on figures but few have seen them on persons. Miss May will wear a green gown and the correct tint of face powder. Colored wigs have been a society fad abroad but have not been worn to a great extent on the stage. Fashionable women have had not only hair and gowns match, but jewels as well.

Miss May's first real work on the stage was as the original Hope Langdon in "The Gentleman from Mississippi," that ran ninety weeks in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia. At the close of that successful engagement she began work on "Baby Mine," in the original New York company. Typhoid fever prevented her taking part in this play, but she will have an opportunity to appear in "Baby Mine" at the Lyceum this summer.

Other plays the Baldwin players will present in Duluth are "Madame X," "The Easiest Way," "Alias Jimmie Valentine."

Miss May arrived in Duluth Monday. Her last appearance was in Philadelphia where she was in "The Lure," a play that ran in New York six months and in Chicago three months. She played in the production of "The Lure" that has been prepared for moving picture production. This film has not been released yet. Speaking of the money film artists are said to have, Miss May said: "Why shouldn't they be rich? One gets up at 6 or half past 6, works from 8 or 9 o'clock until 6 or 8 at night and goes to bed at 10 o'clock so as to be able to get up early the next morning. One can't spend very much in two hours."

It takes several months to produce the film for such a play as "The Lure." Many hours are taken up getting the proper lighting conditions and the movements are necessarily very slow to avoid blurring the pictures. One director of film productions will not allow the actors to speak above a whisper, as words spoken in the ordinary tone of voice detract from the acting that is the essential part of the movies. Miss May prefers regular acting where there is an audience to talk to and bond of sympathy to be established.

When a moving picture scene requires a street setting the necessary area has to be roped off otherwise the curious onlookers would crowd around until the actors would have barely enough room to move. In a "fainting" scene as Miss May was being carried into a house a small urchin yelled "Hit her" as a suggestion for restoring her to consciousness.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Indian War Pictures.
EMPRESS—"At Saratoga Springs."

Amusement Notes.

Every known form of entertainment except moving pictures is to be seen in the big entertainment Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is bringing to the Lyceum on Saturday.

There is opera, both grand and comic; vaudeville, pantomime, circus, ballets, dancing—tangos and trots—old-fashioned dances; uproarious comedy, drama, in fact everything that tends to amuse or entertain.

From the Follies Bergere, Paris, come the Arnaud Brothers, known as the musical clowns; New York city supplies Bernard and Western, and from Italy comes Peppino and from Hungary comes Forechere. Abe Attel, former featherweight champion, is also with the show.

Mrs. Thaw flits through the entire program. First she appears in modern dances, in which she is assisted by Jack Clifford, then as the little artist's model in the musical divertissement. Later she appears beautifully gowned and covered with jewels.

* * *

Joseph Rieder, who is in Duluth acting as lecturer for the Indian war pictures at the Orpheum this week, says that the possibilities of motion pictures in the amusement field have not yet been even imagined.

"Take these pictures for an example," said Mr. Rieder. "You can try to figure what they cost to produce. An entire army of men and women was encamped for weeks on the Dakota prairies while the pictures were being taken. The camera men and directors alone would make the salary list of an ordinary theatrical company look small, and when you consider the cost of transportation you get some idea of the total cost. As nearly as could be estimated the producers spent fully $100,000 on the pictures before a film was ever seen. It took two full months just to stage the pictures for the camera.

"There is one big reason why motion picture plays can be made more realistic than plays produced on a stage. On the stage you have to have artificial settings, and they are more or less limited to certain scenes. In motion pictures you have all of nature for your stage, and you can set your play where it actually occurs."

The pictures will remain at the Orpheum all this week with a daily matinee, and next week "The Spoilers," a dramatization of the novel of that name, will be presented.

* * *

Tonight will witness the farewell performance of Don Clark and his company in the musical comedy success, "At Saratoga Springs." With a trio of comedians who are far above the average and a group of pretty chorus girls, "At Saratoga Springs" and Don Clark in particular are entertaining Duluthians with their fun and frivolity. The comedy lines of the show are more than plentiful. Don Clark, Pete Curley and Bert Rose make a good trio of fun dispensers. Don Clark as a light comedian "feeds," Pete Curley as an Irishman and Bert Rose as a Hebrew to very good advantage. Miss McBride, prima donna with the company, has some very neat song numbers which she renders in a very charming manner.

"The Colonial Minstrel Maids" will be the attraction at the Empress for four days, starting Thursday matinee. In the fullest sense of the word it is an all-girl show, there not being a man in the cast.

The minstrel first part is even more entertaining than those of the male organizations.

Specialties are given in the Olio by Katherine Selsor, the girl who talks, the Lolleta Sisters, acrobatic singers and dancers, Aline, the girl with the hoops, and Marie Genaro, the flexible Venus. The show closes with a cabaret.

FINGER PRINT TEST SAFE.

Baltimore Evening Sun: "The finger print test is practically infallible."

This is what Dr. Charles Glaser, analytical chemist, said recently when asked to comment on a dispatch from New York to the effect that a notorious criminal had discovered a way to eradicate the whorls and loops on his digits, making it difficult to bring out the characteristics necessary in the finger print identification.

The man mentioned in the dispatch was found dead on the streets of New York. In an effort to identify him the police took an impression of his finger tips. They were found as smooth as paper and the infallibility of the finger print system was in doubt. For two weeks the New York police department chemists worked to bring out the lines. They accomplished their purpose, but the marks were only faint. They were puzzled to know what means had been used to destroy the characteristics.

Doctor Glaser explained that a criminal might eradicate the whorls and loops very easily by means of lye "I imagine an application of lye, without at all mutilating the finger tips, would take off the top layer of cuticle. To the naked eye, then, the lines would be indistinct. Through a magnifier, however, they would be visible, more particularly on the impression taken.

"There are seven layers of cuticle on the finger tips. A man might remove one or two or even three of these. The more removed of course, the less possible of detection are the lines. By some process or other, though, the line could be brought out. The finger print test is hard to beat."

Dr. E. E. Higley of Denver remarks: "A lie is a serpent in the garden of speech."

It is said that a new business corporation is formed every forty minutes in New York

REORGANIZING THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

Within a few days the plan of the economy and efficiency commission for the reorganization of the state government and the state fiscal system will be laid before the commercial organizations, the newspapers and the citizens of the state.

Some weeks ago a tentative plan was made public, and as a result of that publicity many helpful suggestions came in.

Now the definitive plan, as agreed upon by the commission, is being put into final shape for submission to public opinion.

Though it will be the legislature that acts, it is upon public opinion that the plan must largely depend for its success.

If the public approves this plan, and insists upon getting the very tangible gains it will yield in better and cheaper government, then the legislature will surely enact it into law.

If the public is indifferent, as always it will get the fruits of indifference—the failure of this improved plan and the continuance of the old order of the extravagance and waste and potential fraud that lack of system always entails.

If the public approves this plan, and thinks that it ought to be adopted, we shall quickly hear that candidates for the legislature and other state offices from the governor down are declaring themselves in favor of it.

It was a good plan as it was tentatively announced some weeks ago.

It is a vastly better plan as it has finally been approved by the commission.

It deserves at least a respectful and earnest public hearing, and in The Herald's opinion it deserves every possible ratification including the final and official ratification of enactment into law.

Here, as stated succinctly and lucidly by Chairman Charles P. Craig of the commission, are the things this plan proposes to do:

1. To reduce the cost of administration through alignment of the various functions to prevent DUPLICATION AND WASTE through LOST MOTION.

2. To increase executive power to "do things" through centralizing responsibility and control.

3. To decrease the power to build up political machines through applying CIVIL SERVICE RULES to all official appointments.

4. To effect scientific control of expenditures through applying a strict BUDGETARY SYSTEM of estimates to all appropriations for governmental account.

If the commission has done these four things, it has performed the greatest possible service to the state and all its people.

Within a few days the details of its plan will be before the state, and any thinking citizen may judge from it whether these four things have been achieved.

If they have, as we believe they have, it will be a very foolhardy aspirant to office who will put himself in the way of crystalizing these suggestions into law.

Snow in Montana and South Dakota and tornadoes and cyclones in Wisconsin, Iowa and Arkansas. Again the Gopher state is in a class by itself.

OUR DUTY TO COLOMBIA.

According to the man who was president when it was done, "we took Panama." Colombia, the country of which Panama was a part, curiously enough never has liked this, and its people have spent most of their waking hours since in hating us, not only because we "took" Panama, but because we refused to do the decent thing about it.

One of the things—the big and honest and manly things—this administration has done has been to attempt to right this wrong to Colombia. A treaty has been arranged, which is now before the Colombian congress, that is intended to square it.

It is an instance of how ready partisans are to seize upon any possible pretext for criticism, that the Republican, Bull Moose and anti-Bryan newspapers of the country have been charging that this treaty is an apology and confession of wrong, so abject that we could not ratify it without sacrificing both dignity and self-respect. These charges were based on a report of the terms of the treaty that was published in Paris.

Incidentally, whence came this notion that a great country cannot admit a mistake and correct it, cannot do what is everyday decency in an individual, without "sacrificing dignity and self-respect?" It is a new thing, and very strange; yet we hear it in connection with canal tolls exemption and the Colombia treaty.

Well, the terms of the Colombia treaty, announced in Bogota, are before the country. Here is the "abject apology":

> The government of the United States, wishing to put at rest all controversies and differences with the Republic of Colombia arising out of the events from which the present situation on the Isthmus of Panama resulted, expresses, in its own name and in the name of the people of the United States, sincere regret that anything should have occurred to interrupt or mar the relations of cordial friendship that had so long subsisted between the two nations.

If Colombia is content with that, surely this country ought to be. To regret that anything should have occurred to interrupt a friendship is not abject. It is simple human decency.

England has ordered another cruiser to Mexican waters. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be assumed that the cruiser's officers and crew voted favorably on the proposition.

PROOF OF THE PRESIDENT'S WISDOM.

Neither those of extreme monopolistic views nor those whose views are extremely populistic appear particularly pleased with the president's appointments to the Federal reserve board.

As it wouldn't be safe to trust the nation's finances to either of these extremes, their discontent goes far to account for the general satisfaction that exists in business and financial circles with the president's selections.

It would be an awful joke on some of these Bull Moosers if the colonel should come home with a change of views as to party amalgamation.

VOTE FOR THE SUPREME COURT AMENDMENT.

The judicial repeal of statutes by mere majority decisions of supreme courts—five to four, four to three or three to two—has made a good deal of scandal and discontent in this country.

A law demanded by the people and needed by the people is fought through the legislature, perhaps after years of bitter need and patriotic agitation.

Then a supreme court, by a majority of one, declares it invalid and unconstitutional—in effect, though not in form, vetoes it.

Thus one man, one human being with the frailties of humanity none the less because he is a judge, has the power to override the will of the people and the will of the legislature.

That is too much power for any one man to have.

In Minnesota, if the people at the November election adopt the supreme court amendment to the state Constitution, that never can happen again.

For if this amendment is adopted, "no statute shall be declared unconstitutional unless five members of the court shall concur in the decision."

As the amendment increases the number of justices of the supreme court from five to seven, this means that the court can never veto a law on the ground of unconstitutionality unless five of the seven vote to annul it.

The veto then must be by a five-two-vote—never by a four-to-three vote.

And that's the way it should be.

Nobody should hesitate to vote for this amendment for fear it will increase expenditures by increasing the number of officials. While it increases the number of justices from five to seven, it makes no change in the state's payroll. The legislature already has created two supreme court commissioners who are acting as assistant justices, and the law creating these commissionerships provides that they shall cease when the number of justices is increased.

The adoption of this amendment will not add a penny to the state's expense, but it will provide a supreme court large enough to handle the state's business and prevent delay in the determination of causes, and it will prevent the judicial vetoing of legislation by a mere majority vote.

What Makes Or Breaks Big League Players

From an Interview with Connie Mack, by Henry Beach Needham in McClure's.

Mack paused and thought for a moment before he went on. Then he said slowly:

"I have come to the conclusion, however, that the continued 'class' shown by the Athletics can be put down—if you want it in a sentence, right over the plate—to clean living and quick thinking.

"And without the one you can't have the other—the quick thinking. There's nothing to that.

"Temperance is a fine thing—and don't get the wrong angle on that temperance," he cautioned. "For one thing it applies just as much to eating. One of the most brilliant players of the last ten years ate his way out of the American league! If you think that's far-fetched, remember that a former citizen of my home town, Ben Franklin, spoke of men who 'dug their graves with their teeth.' I would make the guess that more folks die from overeating than from starvation—that is, in America.

"Who puts the ball player out of the game? You would naturally say 'the umpire,' wouldn't you? Well, all the umpires together haven't put as many ball players out of the game as has Old Man Booze!

"Say, I'm not one of those who sit on a fellow and try to talk him out of getting married, even if he's a youngster making a comparatively small salary," said Mack. "If I make up my mind that the girl's all right, I—I encourage him to go ahead and hitch up for life. Good wives have a strong influence on high-strung baseball players. They help their husbands to think quick, because they help them to live clean."

"Suppose we jump from cause to effect," I suggested. "How about the quick thinking?"

Connie Mack beamed. Quick thinking hits him right where he lives.

"I guess we won't slow down here," he said. "There's Schang, our brilliant young backstop, who the season before he came to us was catching for a semi-pro team in Buffalo, and who then had a short experience with the International league club of that city. In the world's series at an important stage of the fourth game, with the Giants at bat, Murray was on third and Cooper on first. McGraw signaled Cooper to steal second; at the same time Murray was given the tip to start as if to come home. Schang took two steps in front of the plate, bluffed Murray back to third by pretending to throw and then caught Cooper, who is a very fast man, at second. It was the concensus of opinion that Schang's strategy and throw, taken together, constituted as sensational a play as was ever seen on the diamond. It sure was quick thinking—by a steady cleanliver."

"They say that Merkle pulled a bonehead play in the last game," ruminated Mack. "But, as I look at it, it was quick thinking on the part of 'Home-Run' Baker and our lead-off man, young Eddie Murphy. If you recall the play, Murphy was on third when Baker hit to Merkle, the Giants' first baseman. Murphy, who had started home as the ball was hit, stopped at just the right place between third and the plate. Baker, seeing that Merkle had the ball and could tag him out, also stopped. Merkle tried to touch Baker, but our third baseman started back for home, enticing Merkle to follow him. When the Giants' first baseman was off his balance, Murphy made a dash for the plate. Merkle finally threw to McLean, the catcher, but too late to get Murphy, and he also lost Baker, who made first safely. You might call that quick thinking by wireless, for Murphy and Baker acted together intuitively—without those signals we hear so much about."

When Needham first asked Mack to explain in a word the success of his team in the world series, Connie replied:

"We had the best ball club and showed our best baseball."

But, when he put the same question to him again, three months later, Mack answered:

"I've thought about that, off and on, ever since you asked me before. Our batting, our fielding, our teamwork, yes, and our superb pitching, which sure did fool the experts—all these were factors, big factors, in our landing on top. Then, there was the boys' gameness, which I could illustrate over and over. Back of it all put down the youth of the players, for—'Youth will be served,' you know. Barring our pitchers Bender and Plank, who are veterans in years but as young as the best of them, our baseball machine doesn't average above 25 years for the twelve 'parts'—the regulars, I mean. Our great infield averages under 27! Of course, this counts heavily in the box score."

A Matter of Principle

New York World: Young Mr. Rockefeller repeats that the maintenance of certain labor conditions in Colorado is "a matter of principle which we could not concede or arbitrate."

To the feudal lords of medieval Europe the attachment of the serf to the soil was a legal right and a matter of principle.

In the pulpits of the South in 1860 property rights in black slaves were upheld by citation from Scripture and the Book of Common Prayer as a matter of principle.

In England it was long a matter of principle that government should not restrict a woman's free right to crawl on hands and knees through low mine tunnels dragging a carload of coal by a harness about her waist.

It is a matter of principle to some capitalists that parents shall be free to hire their little children to work long hours in shops.

The right of combination and organization, even if forced upon the unwilling, which Mr. Rockefeller would deny to workingmen, is defended by the lawyers of industrial monopoly as a matter of principle.

Mr. Rockefeller is correct in stating his "matter of principle." What he fails to note is that matters of principle are ever perishing in the development of human institutions. No matter of principle is big enough to stand out to the end against public necessity. For that matter, public necessity itself is a paramount matter of principle.

John Lind.

"John Lind may not know how to speak Spanish, but he knows how to keep silent in English," says 'McGregor,' who reports affairs at Washington for Harper's Weekly. "A strong, reticent man, with an unerring instinct for truth, his reports from Mexico have kept the president well informed concerning every phase of the troubled situation there. The literary quality of his communications is so fine that when the time comes for their publication they will take their place among the thrillingly interesting annals of the American continent."

Not Favor—Justice

Editorial from the St. Louis Republic.

We have refrained from comment on the details of the issues dividing miners and mine owners in Colorado, for the reason that the questions immediately at issue there but as the small dust of the balance by comparison with the greater question which lies behind them.

With all our boasted humanitarian advance in the realm of labor troubles we, as a people, organized in state and nation, have adhered closely to a single principle: that the whole matter is none of our business.

The bitterness of labor troubles arises out of the fact that both employers and employes know that, speaking generally, there is no help to be obtained from the force of public opinion, and that the contests that arise must be fought out by brute strength. What recourse has the locked-out workman, deprived of his job in the beginning of winter, with nothing to feed his wife and child? The employer is "within his rights;" we, as members of society, are not concerned "so long as no violence is done." This is infernal nonsense. Is it not "violence" to take away a man's job under such circumstances? Or take the other side of the picture: Here is an employer, confronted with wage demands that mean bankruptcy at a time when orders must be filled in order to meet notes at the bank, the proceeds of which have gone into material and wages. Suppose work is stopped at his plant at the behest of a labor union and it is picketed to prevent his getting other men. We look on, and see nothing we can do "so long as no violence is done." Infernal nonsense again. Is it not "violence" to drive a solvent business man to his ruin?

The demonstration that we can do nothing is short and simple. We are told that if the state were to compel arbitration it could not compel the acceptance of the award of a board of arbitration because that would involve forced labor—which is slavery—or the abrogation of the right of free contract. Therefore, we can do nothing except to interfere "in case of resort to force."

This demonstration contents itself with taking up the things we cannot do and emphasizing the fact that we cannot do them. But proof that we cannot enforce acceptance of an arbitration award upon unwilling employers or protesting employes only raises the question whether there is not something that we can do which will ameliorate the situation.

This thing we can do, under our law, by making proper statutory provision for it: We can, in any case of serious labor difficulty, on the instance of one party or both, cause a thorough investigation to be made by a properly constituted tribunal, without prejudice or favor, and a solution worked out and recommended to the contestants for ratification and adoption. This would place the moral weight of a just public opinion upon the side of the aggrieved party, or, where both were at fault, would make clear what their respective rights were.

Of all the cases questions brought to the bar of public opinion, none, probably, are harder for the average citizen to judge than labor troubles. An intelligent opinion must include a knowledge of the state of the given industry; we must be able to judge whether a cut in wages means that employers are exploiting workmen, or whether they are simply asking them to bear their portion of a universal burden of hard times. It must include a knowledge of the technical points involved; how many readers of the Republic know what "drawing pillar cars" means to a coal miner? It must include a knowledge of "the customs of the trade" for obvious reasons.

These requireemnts are so severe that there is little or no intelligent opinion on labor matters, and the average reader of newspapers "passes them up," or forms opinions in the light of certain general sympathies or prejudices. From this it results that the antiseptic force of public opinion has, as things now stand, no opportunity to work on disputes between labor and capital.

When capital is tyrannical it is so because public opinion cannot get at it to compel reasonableness. When labor is tyrannical it is so because public opinion cannot get at it to compel reasonableness. No man or set of men in this nation is strong enough to persist in demands that the great majority of right-thinking, law-abiding men consider unreasonable and unjust.

Neither labor nor capital gets its rights under our laws. Each gets exactly what it is able to get by force; in the heart of employer and employe alike burns that fierce resentment felt by every man who finds himself compelled to fight an unequal battle for what he conceives to be his rights, unhelped by society. We do not need to be "friendly to labor" or "friendly to capital;" this is not a matter which will ever be settled by any kind of favor or favoritism; we have too long discussed labor questions as if they involved the peculiar privileges of privileged classes. What the whole situation needs is not a special bent toward one side or the other; it needs that society hold the balance with an even hand and weigh without fear or favor.

The power of public opinion is greater than the force of any aggregation of capital, of any organization of workingmen. By reason of the complexity of labor troubles public opinion has had no chance to work on them. We can create that chance and the popular sense of justice will do the rest.

Had Another Guess.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Congressman Clarence B. Miller of Minnesota smiled the other evening when the talk topic turned to deduction and other bright detective work. He said it reminded him of an incident along that line.

Some time ago two men were sitting on a park bench. One of them was a detective. Not far away was another bench occupied by a man and a woman.

"Lovers," smilingly remarked the young man, indicating the couple on the opposite bench.

"What makes you think so?" asked the detective, following the other's glance.

"Nothing could be more apparent," positively returned the young man. "Can't you see how eloquently he is pleading for a kiss?"

"You have got another guess about that lover business," declared the detective, after a moment's scrutiny. "They are married. What he is begging her for is a half dollar."

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the Spanish-American war was going on, a young captain named Frank L. Greene, from Vermont, lay in the typhoid convalescent ward of a hospital at Chickamauga on a cot alongside that of a young soldier named Sam R. Sells, from Tennessee. Naturally they got acquainted. When one of them was ready to leave the hospital there were hearty expressions of hope that they would meet again. They did, but some years later, and then they did not know each other at first. Their next meeting was as fellow members of the committee on pensions in the house of congress. And one of the first pension cases they had to pass on was was that of a young man who was in the army hospital at the same time they were.

* * *

Here's another coincidence that Greene found himself snarled up in. When he was a young man, Greene traveled all over Europe, working his way as he went, just for the joy of sightseeing and finding out what the world was like He happened to strike Rome in time for the big jubilee held for the late Pope Plus XIII on the fiftieth anniversary of his papal rule. After a lot of difficulty Greene got a ticket for the affair, but it got torn before he reached the doorway where he was to present it, and a soldier on duty there refused to accept it. Greene argued and pleaded and finally the soldier let him in.

A couple of years ago Greene fell into conversation with an Italian fruit dealer on a street corner in his native St. Albans, Vt. They talked about places where Greene had visited in Italy, and it came out that both had been at the papal jubilee.

"I was serving time in the army then," remarked the fruit dealer, "and was assigned to one of the doors where people gave in their tickets for the big celebration. I'll never forget one American who had a ticket that was no good. He coaxed and carried on until I had to let him in."

Rear Admiral Frank Friday Fletcher, who handled the taking of Vera Cruz, is accredited with being an authority on more different branches of naval affairs than any man in the United States. He entered the naval academy at the age of 14 years and 10 months—which event was signalized by his boyish nickname of "Friday" being made a part of his regular name in the academy records—and he has been learning one thing and another about naval matters ever since.

He knows a lot about gunpowder, about target practice, and about ordnance mechanism. Most of the three-inch field guns in use by the United States today conform to inventions by Fletcher. And the modern way of handling a fleet was Fletcher's idea. It used to be that vessels in a fleet were kept in proper alignment and the proper distance apart by means of charts. Fletcher simplified this by having lights placed on the vessels to be used somewhat like sights on a gun. The pilot sights along the two signal lights on the vessel ahead of him and knows just where he belongs without the bother of backing and filling or any monkey business whatsoever. The whole idea is so absurdly simple that it was extremely stupid of somebody not to have thought of it before.

* * *

Just because he is a master of details, Fletcher is probably the strictest disciplinarian in the navy. When a man works under Fletcher he has to go the whole distance. No half way business and no skipping over the fine print will do.

Fletcher is a man who has little to say, either personally or officially. One would take him at first size-up to be almost morose. Yet his reserve is not that of the crab. He is agreeable enough when one knows him; he simply doesn't say much.

To look at Fletcher one would say that he would be about the last man in the world to be called Friday by his associates.

If properly approached, Representative Ansberry of Ohio will confess that he is one of the foremost pension grabbers in congress. When the armed conflict with Mexico broke out Timothy was asked if he purposed to organize an Irish regiment and hasten to the front.

"Ah, no," replied Tim, smiting his chest; "but I shall stay right here and make a brave fight to get a pension for every man that does so."

Kent Cooper of the New York office of the Associated Press found himself in Fowler, Colo., one hot summer day waiting for a train. It was a lonely wait and he sought to make conversation with a native who was seated on a trunk thoughtfully whittling a stick.

There was a cloud in the sky the size of a man's hand and Cooper asked pleasantly:

"Do you suppose it's getting ready to rain?"

The man gave him a disgusted look and went on with his whittling.

"I was just wondering if it's going to rain," repeated Cooper, thinking he might not have made himself quite clear.

"Only blamed fools wonder about that out here," replied the native, without ever looking up from his knife and stick.

"Why, doesn't it ever rain here?" pursued Cooper.

"Don't know," replied the man, "I've only been out here a little over twelve years."

The True Imperialism.

Here, where the tide of conquest rolls
Against the distant golden shore,
The starved and stunted human souls
Are with us more and more.

Vain is your Science, vain your Art,
Your triumphs and your glories vain,
To feed the hunger of their heart
And famine of their brain.

Your savage deserts howling near,
Your wastes of ignorance, vice, and shame—
Is there no room for victories here,
No field for deeds of fame?

Arise and conquer while ye can
The foe that in your midst resides
And build within the mind of Man
The Empire that abides.

—William Watson.

Our Navy Can Shoot.

New York Times: That was a tolerably good example of American gunnery afforded by the men of the mine ship San Francisco in Vera Cruz harbor. With their five-inch guns they shot out the windows of the naval college, one by one, with the precision of the best target practice. There is a good object lesson in this for the navies of the world. The question has often been asked what our navy would do in actual service with the modern armament. Here is one good example of what it can do.

Wanted—A Real Man for State Executive

Views of the state press on a much needed change.

Or Hammond and Lane.

Lake Crystal Union: Congressman Hammond of St. James has consented to be the Democratic candidate for governor. A race between Hammond and Eberhart will result in a Democratic governor.

Truly, a Circus—and Senseless.

Fairmont Sentinel: In the matter of spellbinding we will put Mr. Hammond up against any man in the field. By the way, why not have a joint debate with Hammond, Lee, Eberhart, Lawler and possibly the lone Populist from Otter Tail as participants? It would be a "circus" worth going to see.

Hammond Admired at Home.

St. James Journal-Gazette: The people of St. James of all parties and almost without exception are pleased because of the honor shown our most prominent citizen, Congressman Winfield Scott Hammond, by the Minnesota Democrats when they chose him to head their state ticket in the coming election. Those who do not feel elated are, as a rule, those who fear that he may not be elected but his past record as a vote-getter is good assurance that he will give any other aspirant for the office a race worth while.

Mr. Hammond has been a resident of Watonwan county for nearly thirty years, he has held various county offices, advancing step by step to the place he now holds and in which capacity he is serving his fourth term.

St. James appreciates the worth of Congressman Hammond and he will receive the hearty support of its citizens.

Well?

Princeton Union: There must be a scarcity of cap O's in the Isanti News office. In several editorial paragraphs in that bright little paper a cipher is used for the governor's middle initial letter—Adolph 0 Eberhart.

Good Men to Select From.

Granville Enterprise: The Democratic conference at St. Paul had all the earmarks of an old time convention, with a bolting delegation, etc., but was productive of a very good result in the selection of Congressman Hammond as the Democratic choice for governor. If Lee can only beat Eberhart, which seems within the range of probability, then the voters would have two good men to choose from with no likelihood of going very far wrong which ever choice might be made.

No Occasion for Regret.

Roseau Times: The Republican nominee for governor, be he Governor Eberhart or W. E. Lee, will have W. S. Hammond to reckon with. In the event of the nomination of Governor Eberhart the anti-Eberhart people will go to Hammond and in the event of Mr. Lee, the Eberhart cohorts will go to Hammond. It certainly does look easy for Congressman Hammond. Should the final result favor the St. James statesman, the people will have no occasion to regret his election.

And the Blessing Is Obtainable.

Slayton Herald: Eberhart's plan for an efficient and economical form of government is a good one, but the people of the state have come to learn that even should such a form of government be established Adolph is not the man who would be a successful leader. Such a form of government with a man like Hammond as leader would be a blessing to Minnesota.

The Old Order Changeth

Chicago Tribune: We do not despair of seeing William Howard Taft, Nicholas Murray Butler, William Barnes, and many other notables who adhere to the safe and sound theory of sedentary locomotion, fleeing to the Socialist party as to a refuge from dangers which impend.

As a conservative prop of government the Socialist movement is just coming to appreciation. The I. W. W. is doing this service for it. Mr. Taft and many other statesmen have been accustomed to use the word "socialistic" as sufficiently condemnatory of any radicalism, a word which was a warning finger pointed towards the abyss and the chasm.

Thus it was a convenient word. No particulars were needed. If a thing were "socialistic" it smelled of brimstone. The I. W. W. leaders knew differently. They knew what a rural tory organization the Socialist party is; how close akin Victor Berger and John D. Rockefeller actually are. If Mr. Rockefeller has not sufficient imagination to see that Socialism would establish the tightest kind of government and has not confidence enough to know that no manner of laws can keep the stronger from getting the upper hand of the weaker, that's Mr. Rockefeller's fault. The I. W. W. leaders know it and they attack Socialists as they attack monopolists. The Socialists see their danger. They know the difference between logic and brickbats. As a non-revolutionary, calm, conservative, standpat, rural tory organization of men they present an alarmed front of defense to radicalism and call upon the sober-minded citizens of the republic for help.

Therefore, in the course of time, we expect to have an announcement of Mr. Taft's candidacy as head of the national Socialist ticket.

One Consolation.

Indianapolis News: On further reflection it may occur to some of the loy'l that it is probably just as well that they didn't get those jobs as consuls in Mexico which they have been after for the last year or so.

Pat Grew Thoughtful.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Post Wheeler of the diplomatic service smiled the other evening when the phrase "six of one and half-dozen of another" was used. He said it reminded him of an esteemed party named Pat.

Some time ago Pat had occasion to go to a city quite some distance from his home, and being rather short of coin at the time, he decided on pedestrianism instead of a parlor car. On the way he saw numerous canal boats going to and fro, and a happy thought struck him.

"Boss," said he, addressing a captain, "it's mesilf thot's goin' to Smithville, an' would loike to work me way."

"All right, old pal," was the obliging response of the captain. "I guess we can accommodate you."

With this Pat was taken to the towpath and told to lead a mule. This he did all the morning, and part of the afternoon. Finally he dropped the mule and sought the captain.

"Shure, boss," said he, "it's mesilf thot's goin' to quit the job."

"Goin' to quit, eh?" responded the captain. "What's the matter with you?"

"Begorra, an' Oi have been thinkin' it over," answered Pat. "An' I've come to the conclusion thot Oi moight just as well walk as to work my passage."

The Man With a Background.

Ray Stannard Baker in the American Magazine: We could not have a thinker in the White House—at least a thinker could not be supported there—unless there was a good deal of sound and earnest thinking going on in the country at large. Brains of the fine, high quality which have been absorbed for so long in the task of subduing a continent, inventing new machinery, and managing great enterprises are mental adjustments of life. At least twenty books have been written during the last half dozen years which contain more sound thinking and more honesty of expression on public affairs in America — one is tempted to say—than all the books written (by Americans) in the last century. A new type of man, the man with a background, is appearing in public affairs, men who know things outside of business, and who can think. As Mr. Wilson himself says: "A promise of statesmanship follows a threat of revolution." Mr. Wilson has drawn many such men around him at Washington. Secretary Houston and Secretary Lane are fine representatives of the new type. And there are other men not in office who are employing great intellectual ability in the solution of public questions, men like Mr. Brandeis of Boston.

What Else?

Chicago Tribune: The expenditure of senatorial eloquence to prove that tolls exemption is not a subsidy is a striking indication of the inexpensiveness of that commodity.

If tolls exemption were not a subsidy there would have been no tolls exemption controversy. The gentlemen arrayed in heroic defense of the "national sovereignty" against the insolence of perfidious Albion know exactly what they are after, and it isn't a bit of patriotic sentiment.

Tolls exemption is a subsidy, and a nice fat one.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE WRECK OF THE NOBLE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Out in the angry billow and wave
The steamer Noble with twenty brave,
Fighting the storm in that night so dark,
When not a star lent a kindly spark;
But on that desert of water and wave
The seamen cried, "O, save us, save!
Until we reach the harbor and see
The lights to welcome us home from the sea.

"What a wonderful story we'll all have to tell
Of the angry waves that we fought so well—
Glad will the wife and the children be,"
Said the men. "They are waiting anxiously."
And one said, "Mother I can plainly see
Is watching and waiting and praying for me."

The storm rolled on with its awful roar
Till the hearts of the sailors grew sick and sore,
Yet they sailed her on till they saw no more,
Till death rose out of that watery grave
And the sailors cried, "God save us, save!"
Yet no answer came but the hissing wave.

"We're lost! We're lost!" the captain said,
"Before the dawn we'll all be dead,
I see no lights to guide us on,
We lost our course, we must have gone
Away from the harbor." Upon the deck
Fell the surging waves, bringing ruin and wreck,
And pallid the faces of seamen shone,
As they heard the dirge of the sea in its moan,
And their thoughts were of loved ones behind them at home.

Then came the dash of destruction and death,
The ship whirled round, and short as a breath
The lives of those poor misfortunate men
Were cut away,—Yet they might have been
All saved; if the lights in the harbor had shone
The ship would have safely been guided home.
But now they are buried in graves unknown
That the sorrowful sea will never disown.

RIGHT ONE AT LAST.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Neither of your esteemed contributors, Mrs. Lester nor Mr. Lowell, has the right "Cows Coming Home." When they are found they will be heard "Coming down the dingle, with their sweet colingle, colangle, colingle lingle lingle, when the cows are coming home."

And I am thinking for those of us whose shadows fall athwart the aftermath of life, there will be misty eyes as we welcome "Brindle and Buttercup and Clarabell" and memory recalls visions of the days long past.

Thanking you and your correspondents for their interest and contributions to the Open Court, I remain, truly yours,

W. D. EDSON.

While Judge Edson was writing the above The Herald's presses were probably running off the Monday edition containing the poem he referred to, and it was well worth while searching for.—The Editor.

PUTTING THE EDITOR IN HIS PROPER PLACE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

When you get us all stirred up about a midsummer festival I am with you. I'll contribute my dollar for an associate membership, and get out and wave a flag, and wear a mask, or do anything to help the good cause along.

When you wallop Governor Eberhart, I'll trail along, and heave a brick toward the state capitol with anybody.

When you back up President Wilson and demand peace, I'm with you to the last ditch. I object as much as anybody to getting shot at for 50 cents a day and the right to contract typhoid fever.

But when you tell me that my old Plymouth Rock hen doesn't "set" but "sit," by the shades of Uncle Norton Chapman, you go too far. You can't upset the traditions of a lifetime in this careless way. If I grant you this, you will have me, like Gilbert Chesterton, doubting the multiplication table.

I warn you now, Mr. Editor, to confine yourself to questions of public policy and discuss them, but leave us in peace to our homes and chickens. My old Plymouth Rock "sets." My father's Plymouth Rock "set" back in Posey county, Ind. My grandfather's Plymouth Rock "set" back in old York state, and my great grandfather's Plymouth Rock "set," down in Vermont, wedged between the rocks. I am a progressive up to a certain point. I could sit on a cracker barrel if they had any out here in Lakeside, and bust a trust with any chin-whiskered, tobacco-chewing guardian of the nation, but I warn you to let my Plymouth Rock set in peace. Your old friend,

Duluth, May 12.

NO TIME TO FIGHT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have noted with regret the controversy which has developed in regard to the proposed Fond du Lac bridge. This is a much needed bridge, and its construction should not be held back by any misguided rivalry between Duluth and Superior. In your issue of May 6 it was reported that certain gentlemen from Superior claimed that the farmers of east Carlton county were opposed to the proposed bridge and that a petition of 150 farmers from east Carlton and Douglas counties had been signed, objecting to the proposed Fond du Lac bridge. This is misleading. The petition referred to was signed almost entirely by people from Douglas county and was signed by very few from Carlton county. I know that 95 per cent of the farmers in the Wrenshall district favor the Fond du Lac bridge. It should not be forgotten that some years ago the people of Wrenshall opened up the road to Fond du Lac by private subscriptions. Some gave money, others gave their hard work, and they would now like to see a bridge across the St. Louis river which would allow their road to be improved and used. They are now circulating a petition to be signed exclusively by actual farmers in the Wrenshall district in favor of the bridge and which they will forward to congress.

The Wrenshall district is the future market garden of Duluth. The soil is rich and when the Fond du Lac bridge is built a good market will be close at hand. This will benefit the consumer as well as the producer. It will mean the development of a large territory tributory to Duluth which is now inaccessible. The people of Wrenshall would like to see the approach built to the steel plant bridge, as it would be used a great deal. We would like to see both routes improved, but the Fond du Lac route is shorter and more direct. In the meantime we hope that the rivalry between our obstreperous cities at the Head of the Lakes will not be permitted to delay a much needed improvement. Let them forget their differences and all work together for the common good. Yours truly,

J. E. DIESEN.

GEORGE M. SMITH IS NOT "OLDEST SETTLER."

To the Editor of The Herald:

I do not get in the papers very often, but it seems to me every time an old Duluth dies he's "the oldest settler in Duluth." I have not disputed it before out of respect for the dead, but when a live one bobs up and claims the title, I cannot let this go by. I know George M. Smith very well, and he is one of the finest men in Duluth, and I think he's the oldest passenger agent, but he is not the oldest settler. My father, E. H. Hall, is the oldest settler in Duluth and was the oldest before Mr. Rakowsky died. He came to Duluth in January, 1855, before Rakowsky did, and now lives at 4511 Regent street, Duluth. He took up a homestead at what is now known as "Hall's addition," extending to the car line at Fortieth avenue west. He was in politics in West Duluth years ago and was secretary of all the mines on the Mesaba range when the Merritts had control; was very well off at one time and influential. He now lives at the above address. Let's at least give him that title. I have no doubt you have men on your own staff who know him, at least you did have. Any of the Merritt family or other old-timers will back me up in my statement that E. H. Hall is the oldest settler in Duluth and was such before Mr. Rakowsky died. If you could make some sort of correction I, as well as others, I am sure, would appreciate it, with all due respect for Mr. Smith, for whom I have a great regard and respect. Yours very truly,

J. M. HALL,
4710 Cook street.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Agent, Wirth's Red Cross drug store, 13 West Superior street.

DOCTORS FACE SUIT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

Alger-Smith Co. Employe Charges Physicians With Malpractice.

Dr. H. E. Wunder and Dr. William Goldsworthy, practicing physicians doing business under the firm name of Wunder & Goldsworthy with offices in the Providence building, are defendants in a malpractice suit for $10,000 damages filed in district court yesterday by Mathew Alexander.

Alexander alleges that although he had a ticket from the defendants which insured him medical care and hospital treatment when needed, the physicians refused to comply with their contract by which they agreed to give him proper medical attention.

Alexander says that he called at the offices of the physicians on Jan. 11, 1913, and presented his ticket. Although he was suffering excruciating pain in the right arm and shoulder due to infection and blood poisoning, he says, Dr. Wunder instead treated him for a superficial wound on his left hand and gave him no further examination or attention.

The plaintiff alleges that he came back four days later still suffering, but was refused further treatment at that time. A week later, however, he was placed in a hospital and given treatment for his arm. He says that he was obliged to leave the hospital on March 10, 1913, although his arm was badly swollen. He returned to the hospital on March 31 at the suggestion of another physician who operated upon his arm after it had been found that necrosis of the bone had developed.

Alexander charges the defendants with unskillful treatment and alleges that as a result his arm and shoulder have been permanently impaired. He says that he has lost one year's work and asks $10,000 general damages.

A few months ago, Alexander brought suit against Alger, Smith & Co., his employers, claiming that during the winter of 1912-1913 the company failed to live up to its contract with reference to hospital care and medical attendance. He sued for $3,000 damages. Drs. Wunder and Goldsworthy are the company's physicians in Duluth.

The suit was brought to trial but the jury disagreed on Dec. 24 last after having been hung for fifty hours. In that action, Alexander set up substantially the same claims as in the suit filed yesterday against the physicians. While working for the company, he says, $1 was retained from his check every pay day to insure him medical treatment and hospital care in times of illness.

ST. LUKE'S HAS BANNER YEAR

Annual Reports Show an Increase in Patients and Business.

Dr. A. W. Ryan Is Elected to Continue as Head of Institution.

More patients were cared for, 25 per cent more operations were performed and more business in general was done at St. Luke's hospital during the year ending May 1, 1914, than in any year since the institution was founded thirty-two years ago, according to the reports made at the annual meeting of the board held at the hospital yesterday afternoon.

Following the annual reports Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, who has been at the head of the institution for the last twenty years, was yesterday re-elected to the office, while W. J. Johnson was again chosen secretary-treasurer. Mrs. F. W. Paine, A. C. Le Duc and H. R. Spencer were named directors for the next three years and W. J. Johnson was chosen a director for two years to fill the vacancy left by the late Henry Taylor.

The annual reports were made by Dr. Ryan, Mr. Johnson and Miss F. E. Smith, superintendent. The receipts for the year were $21 short of $65,000, while the expenditures lacked $135 of reaching the total receipts. There are 100 beds at the institution and the reports showed that these were practically all filled throughout the last fiscal year. The record reached was 105 patients. At present there are seventy-five patients at the hospital. During the last year improvements totalling $7,000 were made in the interior of the building.

St. Luke's hospital is the oldest charity in Duluth, having been started in 1882 by Rev. C. A. Cummings, then rector of St. Paul's church. At that time Duluth was in the throes of a severe typhoid epidemic and the victims were being cared for in box cars along the water front. The people of Duluth donated liberally to a fund that was then started for the erection of a hospital and the Rev. Mr. Cummings was asked to take charge of the institution. A small building was then erected near Third avenue east and Superior street and several years later the present structure was built.

MURDERESS KILLS SELF WITH POISON.

New Orleans, La., May 13.—Augusta Agnes Edwards, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, committed suicide in her cell here by swallowing poison after being informed that the supreme court had overruled her petition for a new trial.

The woman shot George Washington Riehl to death on a crowded street, July 24, 1913. At her trial she claimed Riehl had betrayed her under promise of marriage.

840 GALLONS OF WHISKY SEIZED.

Ottumwa, Iowa, May 13.—One of the biggest seizures of liquor ever made in the state took place here yesterday when Chief Gallagher seized 219 cases containing 840 gallons of whiskey consigned from Peoria to several Ottumwans. The liquor was taken on a search warrant sworn out by the law and order league counsel under the Webb-Kenyon law. Two moving vans were needed to haul the shipment to the court house where it is stored.

REHEARING ON JACK JOHNSON INDICTMENT.

Chicago, May 13.—The United States circuit court of appeals has granted a petition of District Attorney Wilkerson for a rehearing on several of the counts in the indictment against Jack Johnson, negro prizefighter, convicted of violating the Mann white slave act. The argument was set for May 18.

Johnson was convicted a year ago, and while the higher court upheld a number of the counts in the indictment it reversed others and ordered that the negro be resentenced. Mr. Wilkerson asked for a new trial on the ground that the findings of the lower court against Johnson should be upheld in every count.

HINKY DINK'S MEN OUSTED

Bathhouse John's Followers Also Swept Aside in Chicago.

Judge Owen Cleans Election Officials' List in the First Ward.

Chicago, May 13.—Every election judge and clerk in the First ward was removed from office in an unexpected order entered late yesterday by John E. Owens, county judge in charge of the election machinery. The First ward is the downtown business section and includes numerous lodging houses and what was until recently the segregated district. It has been represented in the council for many years by Michael (Hinky Dink) Kenna and John (Bathhouse) Coughlin.

Judge Owens said his action was the result of an investigation which has been under way since the election of April 7, when Coughlin defeated Miss Marion Drake.

"Between now and next September I am going to appoint big business men to serve as judges and clerks of elections. I am going to put it out of the way of Kenna and Coughlin to make any suggestions," said Judge Owens.

"I will probably wait until the supreme court passes on the suffrage bill, and if the constitutionality of the act is upheld, I may appoint women officials. I shall refuse to accept any recommendations of Kenna or Coughlin or any of the rival Republican organizations with which they have been trading for a year."

middle. Some were observed to be reciting prayers in Yiddish.

Thousands will be in the funeral procession tomorrow, including the governor, the mayor, United States Senator Lewis and Congressman Sabath. All will make addresses at the funeral, which will be held at Anshe Kanasses Israel synagogue. In line will be policemen mounted and afoot, detachments of United States infantry, cavalry, marines and sailors; regiments of the National Guard, veterans of the Civil war and Spanish-American war; Jewish and other organizations, representatives of the city, state and Federal governments and many others.

Montana at Boston.

Boston, May 13.—Flags were half-masted throughout the city today in honor of the arrival of the cruiser Montana, bearing the bodies of three New England men killed at Vera Cruz.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Cambridge for Corporal Daniel A. Haggerty of the marine corps; at Eastham for Walter L. Watson, seaman, and at Highgate, Vt., for Rufus E. Percy, private in the marine corps.

Hospital Ship Returning.

New York, May 13.—Wireless reports from the hospital ship Solace, with the men who were wounded when Vera Cruz was occupied and the sick from the fleet now in Mexican waters, indicated that the ship would arrive at the New York navy yard tomorrow.

Besides the wounded she bears the bodies of Clarence Rex Harsbarger, apprentice seaman of Waverly, N. Y., and Henry Pulliam, fireman, of Pulaski, Va., both members of the crew of the Utah. They died on board the hospital ship just before she left Vera Cruz.

The Solace brings 103 patients.

The bodies of Harsbarger and Pulliam will be brought ashore in their flag-draped coffins and sent to their relatives. No separate honors will be given, as their names were included in the roll call read by Secretary Daniels to the president before the eulogy was delivered here on Monday.

Funerals in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 13.—Philadelphia today paid its tribute to its two sailor lads who fell at Vera Cruz. For six hours a stream of people passed through Independence Hall, where lay in state the bodies of George McKenzie Poinsett, the first to lose his life in the occupation of the Mexican seaport, and Charles Allen Smith.

The bodies rested in the chamber of the first supreme court of the United States, and within a few feet of where the Declaration of Independence was signed and where lay in state the bodies of Former President John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay and Abraham Lincoln.

Descendant of John Hart.

Surrounding the coffins were floral tributes from President Wilson, the crews of the battleships Florida and New Hampshire and from civic and patriotic societies. Near Poinsett's bier also rested a wreath from the Descendants of Signers of the Declaration of Independence. Poinsett on his mother's side was a descendant of John Hart, a signer.

The funeral pageant that escorted the flag-covered coffins to their last resting places in local cemeteries was imposing. In the line were bluejackets and marines from the navy yard, military organizations, civic and patriotic societies. Virtually all business was suspended during the hours in which the funeral was held.

Bury Gunner's Mate.

Batavia, N. Y., May 13.—The funeral of Gabriel A. de Fabbio, gunner's mate, who lost his life at Vera Cruz, was held today from St. Joseph's church. Rev. Charles H. Cotter, bishop of the diocese of Western New York, preached the address. The funeral was the largest ever held here.

Three specifications under the larceny article charge that $350 in money was taken from the person of Luis Tikas, that the ruins of the tent colony were looted and pillaged and that officers and militiamen permitted the looting of the ruins.

The court-martial was convened with Col. W. A. Davis as president and Capt. Edwin A. Smith, acting judge advocate.

Maj. Hamrock announced that he did not care for counsel and was ready to proceed to trial at once.

Rebuilding Colony.

Trinidad, Colo., May 13.—Rebuilding of the Ludlow tent colony progressed rapidly today on a site just back of the old colony which was destroyed by the battle and fire of April 20, in which more than a score of lives were lost. It is expected that within a few days the entire San Rafael Heights strikers' colony will be transferred to its former location, commanding a view of several mines which recently were scenes of battles between strikers, mine guards and militia.

At 5 o'clock this evening the proclamation commanding enforced disarmament goes into effect. Arms thus far surrendered by strikers have been fewer than are generally believed to have been in recent use. No trouble, however, is anticipated when United States soldiers set out to relieve "suspected" persons of any arms that may be found.

Ammons' Program Advances.

Denver, Colo., May 13.—The million-dollar-bond-issue bill devised to meet past and possible future expenses of the state militia was to be read a third time in the senate today, after having passed on second reading yesterday after the most vigorous resistance thus far met by the administration forces during the present special session of the legislature.

The strength of the administration forces prevailed throughout the session, during which many amendments to the measure were defeated.

The remainder of the administration program, including the firearms bill, the liquor law and the measure for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes, is likewise believed to be in control of the administration supporters.

information from these sources is that Huerta has been shipping gold abroad, in contemplation of his ultimate exile.

Firing at Tampico.

Heavy firing at Tampico was resumed at midnight and the Constitutionalists say that they expect to capture Tampico today, according to a dispatch received at the navy department from Admiral Mayo. He reported that "the general impression seems to be that the expectations of the Constitutionalists will be realized."

In an earlier dispatch Admiral Badger said the heavy firing around Tampico stopped about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He reported further that the Constitutionalists, so far as could be ascertained, had used only one field gun, which was fired at long intervals. Apparently reliable information from the scene of fighting is to the effect that the Constitutionalists at one time advanced their lines and temporarily occupied some of the Federal trenches. Admiral Mayo said it was reported that the casualties on both sides had been very heavy.

Ask About Parks' Fate.

Secretary Garrison has directed Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz to ask Gen. Maas, the Mexican Federal commander, what has become of Samuel Parks, the United States private, who, while supposedly insane, rode through the Mexican lines, and has not been heard from since. A like inquiry has been transmitted by Secretary Bryan to Gen. Huerta through the Brazilian minister in Mexico City. It has been reported that Parks met death in the Mexican lines.

Mr. Garrison said today that he had no official information concerning Parks' fate. He said that Gen. Funston had reported unverified stories repeatedly to him concerning the execution of the American private, but has made no report based upon official advices.

Secretary Garrison said that his future course will depend entirely upon the nature of the replies to inquiries now being made jointly by the state and war departments.

"There is nothing to be gained by getting excited before we know what the facts are," the secretary added.

Gen. Funston's official report in the Parks case so far has been confined to the assertion that the American soldier with two horses, disappeared through the Mexican Federal lines and has not since been heard from.

Plan for Envoys.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 13. — The South American mediators will arrive in Buffalo, en route to this resort, at 8:25 Saturday morning, according to a message from Washington, received today by the management of the hotel, where the mediation congress will be held. The party will be taken from Buffalo in automobiles. A cablegram from Vera Cruz stated that the Mexican delegates would arrive in Key West late today and would reach here late Sunday night by special train.

NEW PROGRAM IN CONGRESS

and appropriation measures, with adjournment in contemplation by July 10. The date is tentative, but administration leaders hope to adjourn by that time.

House leaders, under the caucus-bound program, will insist that the Covington anti-trust bill, the Clayton anti-trust bill, and the Rayburn bill for Federal regulation of railroad stocks and bonds be passed in the order named, or at least voted upon and sent over to the senate.

This is the fixed program, at the insistence of President Wilson, but it will not necessarily preclude consideration of other matters that may be deemed urgent if there is sufficient time before the tentative adjournment date.

Expedite Appropriations.

Majority Leader Underwood made it clear today that the action of the caucus means that the anti-trust measures must be passed, but that it does not necessarily "preclude" other things. Appropriation bills will be expedited, but will give right of way to the anti-trust bills.

The appropriations committee today framed an emergency deficiency bill to provide funds to meet the estimates recently submitted by the war department, aggregating almost $3,000,000 for expenses, past and immediately in the future, on account of activities in Mexico and on the border. This also will not be interfered with, and the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill probably will be disposed of tomorrow.

It was declared in some quarters today that efforts would be made later to bring up the resolution for a national prohibition amendment to the Constitution.

Coal Barge Wrecked.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 13.—The coal-laden barge Enos Soula, Newport News for Eastern ports, was thrown upon the Brigantine shoals by an eastern gale early today and wrecked. Her crew of four men were rescued by the tug Coastwise, which had the barge in tow and proceeded to New York.

FOLK IS PRACTICALLY TOLD TO GET OUT

tion of Mr. Mellen and others, on any criminal prosecution which the government might desire hereafter to institute. He then said his letter expressed fully and clearly the position in the matter he always had maintained; that the question was within the control of the commission, and that he was content that it should determine and pursue whatever course it thought would best subserve the public interest.

After the conference Senator Norris, author of the resolution which instituted the New Haven inquiry, went to Mr. Folk's office.

"The Whole Truth."

At the conclusion of this meeting Mr. Folk said:

"We are going right ahead with this investigation, and Mr. Mellen and directors of the New Haven will be put on the stand. We are going to bring out the truth—the whole truth—no matter whom it hits or whom it hurts."

Senator Norris said:

"In my judgment, nothing has developed that should change the commission's program. I see no reason why it should not push the case to the finish and put Mr. Mellen and others on the stand. It is a matter of justice to the people that every fact in connection with the rotten operations that went on for years should be brought out."

"Practically Asked to Leave."

Mr. Folk was asked why he left the conference at Mr. McReynold's office. When he hesitated, about replying, Senator Norris said:

"Well, I will tell you. He and Commissioner McChord left because they were practically asked to do so by the attorney general."

Mr. Folk smiled and remarked: "As the senator has told you that, I will say that the conduct of Mr. McReynolds was such that we did not care to remain."

At the present time it is the intention to proceed tomorrow with the examination of Mr. Mellen. That is the judgment of the commission and that probably will be the procedure.

No Question of Immunity.

Mr. Folk earlier in the day dictated the following statement:

"It is not a question of immunity, but of whether the truth shall be suppressed. Mellen, as a witness telling the truth, would be a thousand times more valuable to the public than Mellen possibly could be as a defendant.

"The situation is now as it has been from the beginning. It is insisted that all witnesses having knowledge of the matters under investigation be placed on the stand, and they will be questioned without limitation as to the questions to be asked. The whole truth will be brought out if it is possible to do so, no matter whom its hits.

To Secure Honesty.

"The great question before the American people today is to secure honesty in the management of the railway systems of the country. The revelations already brought to light in this investigation and the further disclosures that Mr. Mellen and other witnesses can make should be of immense value and result in legislation that will cause it to be just as grave a crime to plunder the public through a corporation as it is now personally to rob an individual."

Excused the Witnesses.

When Examiner Carl Gartner opened the proceedings today he announced that all witnesses, except Mr. Mellen, would be excused until next Monday. Those excused included the directors of the New Haven, Lewis Cass Ledyard, William Rockefeller, George F. Baker and George MacCulloch Miller, and Samuel C. Morehouse, attorney for the Billard company.

Mr. Morehouse is ill at his home in New Haven. Mr. Ledyard, who was present today, was given permission to appear next Tuesday, instead of Monday. Word was received from Mr. Baker that he was prepared to appear whenever he was wanted.

An adjournment of the hearing was taken until tomorrow.

NO SHIPS TO TAMPICO, REITERATES DANIELS

Oil Men's Committee Goes to See the President.

Washington, May 13.—Secretary Daniels today reiterated his determination not to utilize the naval forces at Tampico as a police guard to permit the resumption of operations in the oil district.

"We are not taking any one back to Tampico," said Secretary Daniels. "We have brought away all except those who have made up their minds not to leave."

Repeated requests have been made by representatives of the oil interests to have American warships sent back up the Panuco river, so work could be resumed at the oil wells.

Oil Men to See Wilson.

President Wilson will give audience today to a delegation of oil men representing the various American oil companies interested in the Tampico oil fields. The delegation will be headed by Richmond Levering of Richmond Levering & Co., No. 27 William street, New York City.

On May 7 the American oil men interested in the Tampico fields held a mass meeting in New York at which resolutions were adopted urging that this government take steps to protect the oil interests threatened by revolutionists. The committee was then appointed to visit President Wilson. Richmond Levering was named chairman, and other members are George S. Davison, president of the Gulf Refining company, Pittsburg; W. A. Thompson, vice president of the Texas company, New York; Thomas A. O'Donnell, director Mexican Petroleum company, Los Angeles; Joseph Trees, president of the Penn-Mex Fuel company, Pittsburg.

The members of this committee represent practically every American concern having extensive interests in the vicinity of Tampico.

SULPHUR IS THE ONLY THING FOR ITCHING ECZEMA

Use Like Cold Cream to Subdue Irritation and Clear the Skin.

In the treatment of the various forms of disfiguring, itching and burning Eczema such as Acne, Ringworm, Salt Rheum, there is nothing known that can take the place of bold-sulphur cream.

It effects such prompt relief, even in the aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

For years bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions by reason of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties. Bold-sulphur is not only parasiticidal, but antipruritic and antiseptic, therefore invaluable in overcoming irritable and inflammatory affections of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, yet in every instance it instantly stops the agonizing itching; subdues the irritation and heals the inflamed, raw skin right up and it is often years later before any Eczema eruption again appears.

Those troubled should obtain from any good pharmacist an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it directly upon the abrasion like an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome.

TWO MORE DEATHS IN VERA CRUZ FORCE

Private and Marine Are Victims of Fatal Accidents.

Washington, May 13.—Gen. Funston has reported the death of Maurice Welsh, private of Company A, Nineteenth infantry, to the war department. Welsh met death in a fall from a roof top at Vera Cruz while on duty.

The accidental death at Vera Cruz Sunday of Private Andrew Saunders of the marines was reported to the navy department. No details were given. Saunders' mothers lives at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Washington, May 13.—The state department today received further reports from Vera Cruz stating that the Mexican authorities refuse to deliver mail from Mexico City and that now 350 sacks are lying scattered along the tracks from Tejeria to Paso Del Macho.

LET MEXICANS TAKE CARE OF LIGHTHOUSE

Secretary Bryan Says They Are Welcome to Return.

Washington, May 13.—"We should be very glad to have the Mexican lightkeepers return and take charge of the light at Lobos Island," said Secretary Bryan today when inquiry was made concerning the latest phase of the situation growing out of the landing of American forces there.

AMMUNITION ON WAY TO GALVESTON.

New York, May 13. — The steamer City of Macon, under charter by the government, left New York for Galveston today, bearing supplies and ammunition. About the time the vessel left, the supply ship Celtic passed in quarantine returning from the South.

NO ARMS LANDED FROM GERMAN SHIP

Admiral Badger Makes Report to Navy Department.

Washington, May 13.—Admiral Badger at Vera Cruz today assured the navy department in an official report that the German vessel, Kronprinzessin Cecilie, had landed no arms consigned to Gen. Huerta at any Mexican port. He reported that 650 tons of general cargo on the vessels were landed at Vera Cruz, before departure for Havana, but that the arms and ammunition were retained on board.

WANT SOME WAR NEWS.

Seaman on the Montana Writes to Learn What Is Going on.

Green Bay, Wis., May 13.—Earl McLean, a seaman on the cruiser Montana, illustrates by a letter he has written to his parents here that the boys at the front are not advised of the latest developments. He asks them to send the latest on the war, especially to send him the daily papers so he may read all about the conflict in Mexico. McLean says he has been on patrol duty along the coast since the Montana reached Vera Cruz waters. He has not been so situated that he witnessed any of the fighting, he writes.

Hold Grand Forks' Suspects.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two of the suspects caught by the police in connection with a series of local robberies were yesterday bound over to the district court.

Bert Butler and George Davis, found with a portion of the loot in their possession, were both held for trial.

Hero Medal for Dog.

Portland, Ore., May 13.—A bronze hero medal was awarded to Buck, an English bull dog, by the Oregon Humane society yesterday—the first time a medal has been presented by the society to a dumb animal. Several weeks ago Buck's dog companion, Ted, while swimming in the Willamette river, became exhausted. He sank twice before Buck reached him and dragged him out by the ear.

BIG OUTPUT OF PIG IRON

Rate of Production During April Is 28,000,000 Tons Yearly.

Steel Prices Are Steady and Optimism Is the Keynote.

Blast furnace reports for April show that the production of pig iron in this country was at the rate of 28,000,000 tons annually, whereas the outputs of 1906 and 1907, years of exceptional activity, averaged only about 25,500,000 tons a year. The production of the month was in fact 74 per cent of the highest rate ever attained, and was much larger than had been looked for in trade circles.

The reduction of 55 and 65 cents a ton in iron ore prices for the season, means a decreased cost of production for merchant furnaces of at least $1 a ton, but as steel and iron prices are considered to have discounted the lessened cost of the raw product, no further declines in mill prices are looked for.

After their recent declines steel prices are now steady all along the line, and according to reports, stocks have got down to such a low level that manufacturers are led to expect a sharp increase in buying within the next few weeks. The country's requirements, including those of the railroads, are considered to be accumulating at such a rate as to warrant expections of a genuine and important revival.

Leading manufacturers feel that if the crops in the winter wheat territory turn out according to present estimates, a general expansion in business will follow. J. D. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, recently expressed himself along those lines.

A. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works was quoted as follows in the course of an interview in New York: "It is certain that if this tremendous crop is harvested, it will cause a greater distribution of large sums of money, and give ease to the market in general. This is one of the reasons I have for thinking that business is bound to improve considerably by July 1."

DESPONDENT YOUTH TAKES OWN LIFE

Ivan Torstensson, Unable to Obtain Work, Commits Suicide.

Despondent because he has been unable to find work since he came to Duluth about two weeks ago and lonely without friends, Ivan Torstensson, 20 years old, committed suicide in the Windsor hotel, 505 West Michigan street, by shooting himself through the heart shortly after 11 o'clock last evening. Death was instantaneous.

The shot was heard by several other roomers in the hotel and when they came to Torstensson's room they found him lying on his bed with a 38-caliber revolver gripped in his right hand. Charles Dunberg, one of the roomers notified police headquarters and Lieut. Barber, who answered the call, in turn notified Coroner McComb, upon finding that the young man was dead. The coroner ordered the body removed to the Crawford undertaking rooms. As it is a clear case of suicide, no autopsy will be held, an attendant at the undertaking rooms said this morning.

Mrs. Charles Borg, manager of the hotel, said last night after the shooting that Torstensson came to the hostelry about two weeks ago. He had been despondent, she said.

Among the effects of the dead man were found a pack-sack, which gave evidence of his having formerly worked in the woods, and a ticket issued in Odebyn, Sweden, where his mother is believed to reside. It is believed that he has no living relatives in this country and he will be buried here Friday at the county's expense.

SOCIALISTS OPPOSE WAR WITH MEXICO

Berger Barely Wins Place on National Executive Committee.

Chicago, May 13.—War with Mexico, was protested last night in resolutions adopted by the national committee of the Socialist party, in session here. The resolutions also asked for reimbursement for damage to the party quarters at Seattle, said to have been done by the United States sailors after alleged attacks in speeches on the army and navy.

Action on a resolution so worded as virtually to place the party on record for prohibition, according to the opposition, was deferred after heated debate. The subject was referred for study to a committee of five, who will report at the next annual meeting.

Victor L. Berger, former congressman from Milwaukee, narrowly escaped defeat as a candidate for member of the executive committee. He was finally elected after several ballots which brought on the warmest discussion of the meeting. Other members are: Adolph Gener, vice president of the Illinois District Miners' union; J. Stitt Wilson, former mayor of Berkeley, Cal.; Charles R. Murr, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor; Louis Duncan, mayor of Butte, Mont.

All but Mr. Berger were elected on the first ballot. He stood fifth in number of votes received, but did not have a majority. An effort was made to elect Arthur Leseuer of North Dakota, who stood sixth. There were four secret ballots in which two blanks were cast. Friends of Mr. Berger then forced an open ballot, and he was elected by a vote of 37 to 18.

PATTEN PROTEGE IS FOUND NOT GUILTY

Keith Is Acquitted of Murder—Insanity Plea Wins.

Chicago, May 13.—William Marshall Keith last night was found not guilty of murdering Walter Paul, the butcher, whom he shot to death after learning of Mrs. Keith's fondness for Paul. The jury, after five hours' deliberation, held that Keith was insane when he shot Paul, but had recovered and is sane now.

Keith's defense was provided by James A. Patten, millionaire grain broker, whose interest Keith aroused by a letter to Mrs. Patten. While in jail awaiting trial, Keith read a newspaper account of Mrs. Patten's interesting herself in another case, and he wrote to her begging her aid. Mrs. Patten was in court nearly every day of the trial.

Keith's counsel advanced evidence to show that Keith was a somnambulist, and he had killed Paul while walking in his sleep.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 13.—Iowa medical women in convention here, demanded the enactment of drastic health legislation that will cut down the tremendous infant mortality, stop the waste of money spent in trying to get well and bring into the world the eugenic child.

HIGGINS IS PRESIDENT

Succeeds Julius H. Barnes as Head of Duluth Boat Club.

Members Refuse to Let Captain "Dan" Resign His Job.

Ray Higgins was elected president of the Duluth Boat club at the annual meeting of members at the main club house last evening, succeeding Julius H. Barnes, who, for the last ten years has been president and guiding spirit of the organization.

There was no other candidate for the office of club executive. It was generally conceded before the meeting that Mr. Higgins was the proper man for the place and the election was unanimous.

W. S. Telford was elected first vice president; Anthony Puck, second vice president; A. T. Banning, Jr., third vice president; James E. Ten Eyck, secretary; Arthur P. Barnes, treasurer, and Dan Mahoney, club captain.

It was the intention of Capt. Mahoney to tender his resignation at the meeting and absolutely refuse to allow the consideration of his name. Some wind of the doings of the obdurate Daniel reached some of the members and was passed around. When Capt. Dan rose to his feet and attempted to speak he was greeted with noise so profound and persistent that he had no chance at all to make himself heard. Thus was the man who has been one of the real workers in the affairs of the club and one of its staunchest supporters literally forced to remain in the harness.

There was no opposition to the election of James E. Ten Eyck to succeed John E. MacGregor as secretary of the club. Mr. MacGregor, one who has labored long and diligently in behalf of the club, who has been one of the great boosters for rowing and all athletic affairs pertaining to the club, refused to allow the use of his name, and with no other candidate in the field the election of the popular rowing coach was made unanimous.

As in the case of the selection of the other officers the election of treasurer was made unanimous, there being but one man nominated for the position.

Contest for Directors.

A contest developed in the election of the board of directors. There were four new directors to be chosen, and for the four positions there were eight names presented. Harris Trux, Walker Jamar, Miller McDougall, Ray Fenton, Joseph Horak, Julius H. Barnes, Arthur Squier and W. N. Hart were the names presented to the members for their choice, and the four new directors elected were Julius H. Barnes, Ray Fenton, Joseph Horak and Miller McDougall.

Reports were read from the field sports department, the sailing, rowing and motor boat departments. These reports showed that the departments are in good shape and that the captain of each expects a very good season.

Before stepping out of the presidency of the club, Mr. Barnes announced that the new rowing equipment of the club had been given to the club and that the salary of the coach would be paid by him.

Reports showed that some 266 old members were lost during the last year, and against this some 133 new members were gained. The deficit for the past year amounted to $500, the largest loss occurring in the operating of the cafe.

There was a very large attendance of members at the meeting and the enthusiasm expressed over the approaching season augurs well for the club for the 1914 season.

Little Jack Neville, the faithful and ubiquitous boatman, came in for a vote of thanks, and John had it coming. He has been one of the club people who has stuck to the crews through the losing and winning years, and he has been one of the large assets that figured in the recent victorious years.

The Glee club quartet assisted in the entertainment.

FIFTEEN SENATORS TO SPEAK ON TOLLS

Vote May Not Be Taken for Ten Days or Two Weeks.

Washington, May 13.—It is apparent that the senate cannot reach a vote on the proposed repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama canal act for at least ten days or two weeks, unless Democratic leaders make an extraordinary effort to speed up the proceedings.

It is probable that fifteen senators will have to be heard before the vote can be taken. Under the present arrangement only one can speak each day.

Resolutions were adopted denying the reports of an alleged fourth degree oath, which it has been charged, is taken by the Knights.

THRILLING RIDE ON MEXICAN ROAD

Former Grand Forks Woman Writes of Her Harrowing Experience.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thrilling experiences aboard a train from Mexico city to Vera Cruz, after the seizure of the latter city by the Americans, are related in a letter from Miss Dora Gladen, formerly Y. W. C. A. secretary of Grand Forks, and for many years a resident of this city who has just reached the United States.

That the car on which she was a passenger was boarded at one point along the way by a Mexican Federal, in command of a small detachment of soldiers, and that he threatened to execute all Americans aboard, was one of the experiences she relates.

Train Turned Back.

Once she was within an hour's ride of Vera Cruz, but the train was turned back and sent to Mexico City again, and it was necessary, both going back to the capitol, and in returning to Vera Cruz, to face the insolent treatment of the Mexicans, mobs of which were at hand at almost every station, crying "Death to the Yankees" and "Death to the Gringos."

Famous Plainsman Is Out of United States Marshalship.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 13.—Capt. Seth Bullock, United States marshal for South Dakota for the past eight years, has closed his last term in that office here, Tom Taubman of Plankinton being the Democrat selected to fill his place.

Capt. Bullock was one of the early pioneers of the Black Hills section, and figured very strongly in the early history of that section. He is a close personal friend of Theodore Roosevelt and was appointed to office by that president in 1906, serving under Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson. He intends to retire from public life, and to spend a great deal of his time now in writing a history of the Black Hills, having spent many years in collecting and compiling his data to this end.

There are approximately 450 outstanding licenses issued to 325 individuals, partnerships and corporations.

Each concern is required to furnish a bond running to the state, but these do not have to be renewed at the expiration of the annual license term. The license fee is $2.

ALWAYS

Insist on Getting Well-Known Merchandise

DON'T BUY "ORPHAN" BRANDS

BUYING an advertised article is, in a true sense, buying merchandise with a reputation back of it.

When you buy merchandise without a brand or trade mark, you buy an "Orphan" brand, something that has no hallmark or fame, nothing to distinguish it from common, ordinary merchandise.

There is a type of dealer who is always offering his customers "Orphan" brands or "Just as Goods"—but you can do your share toward eliminating this kind of dealer.

Refuse to buy his "Orphans" or "Just as Goods." Go to the next dealer and "Get What You Ask For."

A WORD TO DEALERS

YOU build your business by treating your customers courteously, and giving them good service. Good service includes giving them the well-known brands of merchandise they see advertised.

When you sell them merchandise backed by the reputation of some well-known brand which they recognize, it removes any suspicion on the part of your customers that you are getting a larger profit.

In fact, customers buy more quickly and are satisfied. They like to trade with reliable dealers, because they know that some spurious article or "Orphan" Brand is not being palmed off on them as "Just as Good."

When you buy merchandise you always insist that you "Get What You Ask For." You will find it pays and is the best business policy to give your customers what they ask for; try it—and build a greater store.

CLEAN UP! CLEAN UP!
If there's rubbish in your home,
Clean up!
Scrub the place from "pit to dome,"
Clean up!
Throw your heart into the plan,
Make the place look spick and span—
Throw all refuse in a can;
Clean up!

If there's cobwebs on your heart,
Clean up!
"Clean up week" is here, so start,
Clean up!
Deeds of mercy show today,
Give your better self fair play;
Dig the gold out of your clay—
Clean up!

If there's venom in your breast,
Clean up!
Give your enemies a rest,
Clean up!
Scale hate's rust and free the mind,
Cut love's kernel from spite's rind;
Win your foes by being kind—
Clean up!

There is One who seeth all;
Clean up!
Does He think you great or small?
Clean up!
Throw off pride and play the man;
Join the clean up caravan;
All must die and life's a span—

—Philadelphia Ledger.

The city's clean-up campaign is in full swing. From one end of Duluth to the other the civic housecleaning is under way.

Yards are being raked, ash and rubbish piles removed, gardens fixed up, fences repaired and painted, and other improvements made. Much of the work is being done by women and children but the men were in evidence also, busy with rakes and shovels.

Most of the combustible stuff is being burned while the remainder is being hauled to the dump or the incinerator. In some localities the smoke from the many bonfires caused a noticeable haze and pungent odors were much in evidence. From all indications Duluth will present the best appearance of its history at the end of the ten days' campaign which started Monday. The weather is all that could be desired and the officials are highly pleased by the willing spirit of co-operation which has been displayed by the residents in all sections.

In other years the health department has put on a corps of extra inspectors to visit all premises in the city. This is not being done this spring. The authorities state that it shouldn't be necessary for any one to be informed of anything so self-evident as a filthy or dirty yard or basement. They assert that the importance of a clean city has been so well advertised that it should be generally appreciated, for economic as well as aesthetic reasons. The regular inspectors will check up any instances of neglect which they may discover in the course of their regular rounds and careful attention will be paid to complaints which may be registered with the department relative to unsightly or insanitary places.

VIADUCT TO BE SURFACED

City Considers Sixth Avenue Improvement to Be Imperative.

Refusal By Northern Pacific Will Be Considered By City Later.

Commissioner R. Murchison, head of the works division, announced this morning that the city will repair the surface of the Sixth avenue viaduct without loss of time.

The Northern Pacific railway has refused thus far to do anything, and the planking is so far gone as to be a serious menace to the heavy traffic streaming over it daily. The city feels that regardless of who ultimately bears the expense the condition is so dangerous that it cannot longer be neglected.

The estimated cost of the work is $3,800, as figured by the city engineering department. The entire upper part of the viaduct will be removed and new four-inch planking laid, together with a new walk and guard rails. It is thought that some of the creosote blocks on the approach can be used again.

The repairs will be made under the direction of James Lawson, superintendent of the maintenance division, who has devised a plan which he believes will enable the work to be done without seriously interfering with traffic. The surface is so narrow that it is not considered practicable to try to close half of it at a time. Instead, it will be handled in sections. Supt. Lawson will make an estimate of what can be done between Saturday afternoon and Monday morning. He expects to have electric lights hung so that full crews can work nights as well as days. Another section will be taken the next week-end and so on until the job is finished.

The question of who will maintain the surface of the viaduct has been in controversy between the railroad and the city and it is probable that the city will endeavor to force the road to settle the bill.

The many small curtains of scrim or muslin which belong at transom windows, French doors, bathroom windows, etc., are often very hard to make even after they are ironed in the usual way, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. An easy and successful way to do up such small curtains is to iron the headings only; then while the curtain is quite damp stretch it on the top and lower rods where it belongs. This stretching of it while wet will draw the curtain into the right size and shape, and without uneven edges.

ODD NAMES FOR CANINES

Water Spaniel Is Named in Honor of Commissioner Hicken.

Ole Johnson and "Murphy" Licenses Are Being Issued.

Ole Johnson of 632 Garfield avenue is the holder of dog license tag No. 13 and he calls his dog "Murphy."

Any one doubting that Ole Johnson doesn't call his dog "Murphy" can satisfy himself by a visit to the office of City Treasurer Grant E. McLean. All he'll have to do will be to "look in the book and see." What kind of a dog? It's a bull dog, of course.

Commissioner Hicken has attained a further pinnacle in the climb to fame. He has a dog named after him. "Hicken" is owned by C. J. Johnson of 1909 West First street, according to the dog license book. "Hicken" is a spaniel, a water spaniel, lest the water part of it be overlooked. It is claimed that he has as strong an antipathy for all law violators, especially after 11 o'clock at night, as he has a hankering for the aqua pura.

H. P. Thomas of 1 West Superior street is the possessor of both No. 1 tags. One is for a male Eskimo dog named "Jeff" and the other is for a female Maltese terrier named "Beauty." Both are snow white and a common sight along Superior street.

Joseph Elk of 7 South Sixty-fifth avenue west has the "skidoo" tag, No. 23. The record doesn't show the breed but gives his handle as "Paddy." If "Murphy" is a bull dog, probably "Paddy" is, too.

The various monicas of the canines cover a wide range of interest, including names of statesmen, soldiers, politicians, titles of all kinds and numerous freak designations. Among them are Rasu, Danger, Scamp, Rags, Scrap, Duke, Count, King, Queen, Spike, Tough, Bouncer, Rondo, Colonel, Bug, Ikey, Abe Lincoln, Dodo and Fly.

Thus far 156 licenses have been issued for male dogs and six for females. The former cost $1.50 each and the latter $5.

MILK AS COSMETIC.

New York Tribune: New milk, skimmed milk and buttermilk each possesses properties peculiar to itself, and all make simple and useful washes, having a general emollient action upon the skin. If used daily they make the skin soft, smooth and white and preserve it from the effects of exposure to weather. Buttermilk is wonderfully useful for freckles and relieves many irritations of the skin. Pure fresh cream is a simple and effective remedy for chapped hands and lips.

To improve milk as a cosmetic, add to it freshly grated horseradish, or flowers of sulphur may be used instead. These are useful for freckles and other discolorations and slight eruptions of the skin.

NO BEAT FOR HIM.

Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph: Young Giles, eager to join the force, came to New York to pass the necessary medical examination. This he easily did, and the next day he was interviewed by a high official.

"Well, my man," said the latter, "you look a promising sort of fellow. Where were you educated?"

"Oh," said the recruit, "I was educated at a public school."

"Ah! And you have good general knowledge, I hope?"

"Oh, yes."

"I wonder can you tell me, for example, how many miles it is from New York to Boston?"

At this the recruit became nervously agitated, and at length he blurted out:

"Look here; if you're going to put me on that beat I'm done with the force."

Coats, Suits, Gowns and Skirts

A broad stream of fashion flows swiftly through our Second Floor.

As the new styles appear they come here and pass on, to be followed from time to time by other charming, distinctive, different models.

Sometimes an imported model is closely reproduced—other times adaptations of unusual cleverness, or, again, original ideas which promise to please that most discriminating person, "The American Woman of Taste."

And our success is the more pronounced because of the unusually low prices at which these uncommon styles are marked to sell.

One of our best makers has made up for us the little lots of materials in styles in highest favor, and as a concession to us made some very attractive prices which we in turn pass on to you.

The Coats are on Sale at $12.50, $15 and $18.50

The Suits are on Sale at $18.50, $22.50 and $25

Along with this special purchase we have included some of the odd numbers from regular stock. They will appeal to your love of the unusual and uncommon, the refined yet fashionable.

There are all sizes at the above prices, but not all sizes in any one line, else we would not have been able to buy them to such advantage.

The New Wooltex Models May be Had in Duluth Only at Gray's

Most of you have admired the style, the grace and the beauty of the Wooltex garments, but only those of you who have worn them fully appreciate the long service that is worked into Wooltex fabrics and Wooltex tailoring.

Here are Wooltex Coats at $16.50 to $45.00.
Here are Wooltex Suits at $25.00 to $75.00.

And there are all sorts of desirable materials in all kinds of useable lengths for women's and children's clothes.

Some of the fabrics are heavy enough for boys' wear, and each and every remnant is marked to sell at prices much below regular.

ISLAND LAKE CASE ARGUED

Question of Village Near Red Lake Reservation Getting License Is Heard.

Government Seeks to Permanently Enjoin Village From Issuing License.

Bemidji, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whether or not Island Lake, a village just two miles from the Red Lake Indian reservation, in Beltrami county, is a duly incorporated village under the laws of Minnesota and in reality whether or not a chance to procure liquor so near the Indian reservation will be legally afforded, is being argued before Judge Stanton this afternoon.

Enjoin Village Officers.

W. H. Whelan, recorder, and J. W. Hickerson, president of the village board, have been placed under an injunction restraining them from performing the functions of their office. One of their functions was to have permitted a saloon to open this week. The government Indian department is the complainant.

SUPREME COURT DENIES REQUEST

North Dakota Tribunal Not to Hear Grand Forks Charges.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—The petitions of local people, submitted to Judge Burleigh F. Spaulding, chief justice of the supreme court of North Dakota that he or some other member of the supreme court sit as an examining magistrate in the alleged bribery hearing in this city in connection with the Cooper case, have been denied by the court.

This news came in a letter to States Attorney O. B. B. Burtness, through whose office the petitions were forwarded, with the request that they be favorably acted upon. The justices of the supreme court as a whole are united in the opinion, first, that it is not the intent of the constitution that members of the upper tribunal shall sit in such cases; secondly, that there is sufficient and good available legal machinery at the disposal of citizens of this city and county whereby further probe may be obtained, if so desired, for instance, the district judge, the grand jury plan of investigation or the securing of a justice of the peace before whom the hearings may be held, providing the action of the examining justice was not in accord with general sentiment.

CHANGE SEATS IN BOAT; ONE DROWNS

Peter Johnson Loses His Life in Lake Longtine.

Detroit, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Changing seats in a small boat on Lake Longtine, near here Monday, cost the life of Peter Johnson of Eunice lake. He was crossing the lake in a small rowboat, with Nels and H. H. Johnson, and the boat capsized when the two oarsmen tried to change seats. Nels and H. H. Johnson clung to the ends of the boat until William Longtine, who witnessed the accident arrived in a boat, but Peter Johnson sank. The body was recovered yesterday. Johnson leaves a wife and five sons, and a daughter, the youngest being 12.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Holms having sold their large home here for the new hospital, have moved to California. They already have a place at Santa Anna.

DECLARES RED MEN HAVE BEEN ROBBED

North Dakota Episcopal Clergyman Makes Serious Charges.

Fargo, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Over a million dollars' worth of cattle have been stolen from the Indians on the reservations in the western part of this state during the past five years. The Indians have been reduced from prosperity to squalor and helplessness. When seed and agricultural implements are needed in the spring time, they arrive in the fall and the implements are then not of the type required for conditions in the West."

These and many other charges are made by Rev. Dr. A. McG Beede, who has been here attending the Episcopal convocation. Dr. Beede has been a resident of the state twenty-seven years, many years of which he spent among the Standing Rock Indians. He speaks their language as fluently as their leading chiefs, has studied their character and is, perhaps, more familiar with their inner life than any other living man.

"The Indians in the western part of the state are immeasurably worse off from a financial, physical and moral standpoint, as well as real civilization than they were two centuries ago," continued Dr. Beede. "Two hundred years ago they were an agricultural race. They farmed and grew corn and had real homes west of the Missouri river. They lived far better than at present, were better fed and clothed."

Accuses Beef Trust.

The doctor's arraignment of the beef trust is most bitter. He charges them with running off Indian cattle, branding them, intimidating the Indians who protest and having such protection from the Indian officials they are able to continue their depredations with little handicap.

Controversies have been carried on between the doctor and Indian Commissioner Sells and Congressman Norton. He intends to continue his fight until the country is aroused over what he terms the most shameful conditions that exist on the reservation. He wants the red man to have the chance to which he is entitled and the right to live without being suppressed, intimidated and robbed. He wants to check what he terms the retrogression and the degeneracy caused by the existing methods of the United States government in handling the Indian wards.

MUST ASK LEGISLATURE.

Gopher Candidates Failing to Run Cannot Otherwise Recover Fees.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—Candidates for office who withdrew after filing are not entitled to a refund of the fees paid, according to a ruling by Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith.

The opinion was submitted to Secretary of State Julius A. Schmahl and affects the following: Samuel G. Iverson, James T. Elwell and Hubert Walraff, who withdrew as candidates for governor after paying $50 each, and Victor A. Tenney of Mankato, who paid $20 to file for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Second district and then quit the race.

Iverson and Elwell withdrew after the "elimination" conference at Minneapolis at which William E. Lee was chosen to lead the Eberhart opposition.

The attorney general, in his opinion, says that under the circumstances the next legislature should authorize the refunds.

CONTEST IDEA HAS HAD GROWTH.

Fargo, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The latest issue of Extension, the official publication of the extension department of the North Dakota Agricultural college, is an industrial contest number telling how the first contest among the school children of the state was inaugurated in Traill county in 1905. It was a corn contest. From one county in 1905 the contest plan grew to include forty-two of the fifty counties of the state in 1913 and the number of contestants from 200 in 1905 to 13,000 in 1913.

The corn contests grew into potato, pork production, poultry, butter and bread making and sewing and alfalfa contests. Rules for each of these are given in the issue.

Indian Woman Killed.

Omega, Minn., May 13.—The authorities are probing the death here of Kodegegun, an Indian woman from the White Earth reservation, whose body was found in the village with the head battered and swollen almost beyond recognition and about denuded of clothing.

The woman with another woman and two Indian men was seen in this vicinity late Sunday intoxicated.

$1,218 PER CAPITA.

Taxable Valuation of Minnesota Shows That Division Possible.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—If the taxable real and personal property in Minnesota were distributed evenly among the 2,250,000 inhabitants of the state, each man, woman and child would have approximately $1,218 worth to his credit.

This is shown by figures gathered by the state tax commission. Last year the total assessed valuation of real and personal property aggregated $1,370,000,000.

This at the most is not more than 50 per cent of the actual value of the property listed. Using this proportion as a basis for the estimate of the true value it is found to be $2,745,000,000, and dividing by 2,250,000, the result is $1,218.

These figures do not take into consideration the assessment for moneys and credits, which in 1913 was $156,000,000.

This, however, is not more than 25 per cent of the value of these two items. Using this proportion as a basis the total would be swelled by $624,000,000, and increase the $1,218 per capita by $277, making the total really $1,495.

AGED MAN MISSING.

Left Crystal Falls, Mich., in Storm, Not Returning.

ADDER IN AUTOMOBILE.

Poisonous Reptile Five Feet Long in Red Wing Machine.

Red Wing, Minn., May 13.—A poisonous spotted adder, five feet long, uncoiled itself from the folds of the leather automobile top of William Remshardt's touring car here, Sunday afternoon.

The reptile was discovered as the occupants of the car, Harris Anderson, Edwin Anderson and Mr. Remshardt, who was at the steering wheel alighted after returning from a trip.

It is supposed it crawled into the folds of the top, when the machine was deserted, while the three went on a fishing trip.

Neither one of the occupants knew of the presence of the unwelcome visitor until their attention was called to the snake, squirming out of the machine. The reptile was killed immediately.

Fargo, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sunday afternoon a unique service will be held in Fargo when the Jewish residents of this city will gather around the statue of Wergeland in Island Park, and appropriate addresses will be made. Wergeland, one of Norway's most famous writers, took up the question of permitting the entry of the Jews into Norway, which had been prohibited for years. His advocacy of the plan won the necessary permission and to show their appreciation of the services by Wergeland for their people, the Jews of Fargo, on the 100th anniversary of Norway's independence, will gather around the statue for the special service.

AFTER all, the purpose of a soap is to cleanse. Of two soaps equally agreeable to use the one that does the more delightful cleansing is the better for you.

There is no soap more agreeable than Ivory. Its sweet, natural odor is not surpassed by any perfume.

There is no soap the equal of Ivory in producing that glowing cleanliness which feels as good as it looks. It makes a copious, bubbling, pure white lather that enters every pore. It rinses easily, leaving the skin entirely free from soap and all foreign matter.

The skin dries soft and smooth without a suggestion of the greasy gloss left by poorly made soaps.

Last, but not least, Ivory is so mild and pure that even the children find Ivory Soap bathing a pleasure rather than a task.

Book for Men, Free

8,000 Words, 30 Illustrations

TO MY READERS:

Of the little illustrated advice book described below, which I gladly send free to all men who fill in the coupon, I beg to say that it represents the very nature which I am able to offer BEST information of a private you as a result of over 30 years' observation and study of my subject, during which time I have personally interviewed many thousands of men, young and elderly, single and married, rich and poor alike, who came to me in confidence with their confessions of debility, lost nerve force and failing strength.

It is, reader, this vast and unusual opportunity which has enabled me to compile this very popular and valuable little free book (over a million of which have been sent everywhere to men who wrote me for them), in a manner to reflect the exact living, breathing experiences and needs of real men who sought information as to the newer ways of self treatment without the use of drugs.

MANLY MEN MOVE THE WHOLE WORLD.

Remember, this book of over 8,000 words and 30 illustrations will come to you by return mail in reply to your request, and in a perfectly plain, sealed envelope, for it is no one's business but your own what the envelope contains. There is absolutely no obligation on your part to buy anything or pay anything, and merely the receipt of this book does not mean in any way that you are to use one of my VITALIZERS (see description below), and, in fact, only a portion of the book has any reference to the VITALIZER at all. Primarily it is a compendium of useful information for private reference, which you and all other men may easily profit by through life.

Therefore, please use the coupon, or, if nearby, I should be very glad to have you call.

SANDEN, AUTHOR.

It is a fact, reader, which you and I must recognize and admit, that the whole world admires, and is fascinated by strong, vigorous husky, manly manhood, and we must also admit that it is this same manhood and this alone which is back of the real leaders and producers in every walk of life. No matter where we go, we find it to be the manly, vigorous, vital fellow who forges to the front, who fascinates men and women of his community, who does the really great things. An unmanly man merely means nature's laws gone wrong, for it is he who halts and hesitates, who takes the back seat, who does not fit into the picture in a way that a manly, vital nature should. And yet, reader, it is my firm belief that any man, no matter what his past, no matter what dissipations or follies may have left their mark upon his physical and mental being, I say to you that such a man, unless there be some unusual reason, many hope for a complete return of his strength, vigor and self confidence, if he but go about his self-restoration in a natural, commonsense way.

I make a little appliance which we will call a VITALIZER, because I think that is the best word to describe its strange power. I don't want you to think of getting one of these VITALIZERS just now, but I would like you to investigate my claims as to what I believe can be accomplished by almost any weakened man who uses this VITALIZER faithfully for a few weeks. I speak, of course, of him who is willing to give up dissipation and lead a decent, conservative life, not only while using the VITALIZER, but for the future. The other kind of man, the dissipated, can hope for nothing from any treatment, no matter what it may be, hence such a man is eliminated from my consideration.

This little VITALIZER is made to wear upon the body all night. It weighs only several ounces and is no more unhandy than an ordinary belt, yet it generates a great FORCE that I call VIGOR, which flows into your blood organs and nerves while you sleep. Men say it often takes any pain or weakness out of the back in one application, and that 60 to 90 days' use has been sufficient to restore manly strength and to put men in the "never felt better in my life" class. Special attachments carry the FORCE of the VITALIZER to any part of the body, for the use of women as well as men in cases of rheumatism, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder disorders, etc.

Over two hundred thousand of these VITALIZERS have been used or are now being used by men all over the world.

You had better learn more of this VITALIZER. It is fully described in my free book. If you live near me, why not call and test the VITALIZER yourself.

WHAT THE FREE BOOK TELLS.

The free illustrated advice booklet mentioned above is meant to be a simple declaration of certain important truths that every man in the world should know. The day has gone by when men are kept in ignorance of the real problems pertaining to these private subjects, and this illustrated advice booklet, which I send to men sealed, by mail, gives certain important facts relating to sex, just as these facts are. The booklet also fully describes my VITALIZER and you are told how you may get one for your own use if you decide that you want one. Please use coupon below, or call. Hours 9 to 6; Sundays, 10 to 1.

Just Between You and Me

By BRUCE

BY BRUCE.

FIE on the gink who says money is the only sordid consideration in this world. Avaunt the pessimist; call "30" for the disbelievers in the lily pure of life. Johnny Coulon, the bantam weight champion of the world, has declared that in the event he wins $1,000 that was put up upon a bluff and perhaps a mahogany bar by Sammy Harris, manager of Kid Williams, that the money will be presented to the orphans of Chicago.

At the time of going to press all of us were rooting for Coulon, for there is a lurking suspicion that the orphan kids could make better use of the money than Harris.

And speaking further of Coulon, let it be stated that it is reported that the little Chicagoan is back in the form that made him one of the greatest of all the little men. Once back, free from the illness that threatened to send him reeling down the back stairs of the pugilistic game, Coulon should win the bantamweight championship tilt from Kid Williams at sunny Los Angeles on the ninth of June.

The Dope Is Wrong.

EVERY day that the Yankees win a game just postpones that much the day that the wiseacres can shout the old "I told you so" stuff.

Many of the sharps of the game there were who stoutly predicted the slump from the start of the Peerless Leader cohorts. And while the season is young and the teams are not for the most part in the full stride of their game, the fact remains fragrant and sweetly prophetic that the Yanks are running with easy stride and are the talk of the younger league—leaving the Federals out of consideration for the time being.

P. S. They do say that Frank Chance gave Hal Chase a mighty licking before Prince Hal left the New York team. Be that as it may.

* * *

Apprehensive and Nervous.

IN the days that preceded the ones of the present it used to be that England approached an athletic contest not with awe, but with a cocksureness that was born with the Briton. Now the case has changed. Note the hesitancy in entering the impending international polo contest. The licking that we administered to the brothers across the way in the games of some ten months agone lingers in the memory of the somewhat shaken Englishman, and there is already doubt in the mind of the most loyal Briton as to the ultimate end of the approaching series of games. In other words, brothers, we have the Britons, athletically speaking, on the run.

* * *

The Time to Speak.

ONE of the critics of the game declares that Ty Cobb is going back. Now is the time, in fact the only time, when such predictions can be made. In the winter and the early spring those who doubt the further supremacy of the Georgian may be able to gain some hearers; but as the summer approaches and the hot weather warms the muscles of man and arouses the heat of combat, there will be no further opportunity of predicting the baseball deterioration of the Georgia Peach. Speak now or forever hold your tongue.

Should They Shoot Him?

DR. OSLER became popular with perhaps some sons-in-law and very unpopular with some single ladies by his famous declaration that men people reached the age of 40, or was it 60, years they might as well be ...en out behind the barn and shot.

If this theory of Doc's was applied to the Pittsburg team the Pirates would be robbed of about half of their strength. Hans Wagner—yes the only one in mind—has reached the age of discretion, and yet he still continues to act like a youth of wild and impish impulses upon the baseball field. The great question seems to be where it will all end.

Brown Is Getting Ready.

NEWS from the range reaches out and cries "yes" to the state of preparedness of Pal Brown, meaning thereby that the lad who in the past held several of the range wards in his pocket, is soon to enter another boxing match. It is said that Joe Mandot will be the next opponent of Brown. If this is true the range youngster is going against one of the classiest lightweights in the game and a boy who has fought them all. Mandot is just one iota removed from the championship, and in meeting the New Orleans French Market boxer Pal will afford the fans from these large parts a nearup view as to his ring chances with the best in the boxing land.

* * *

The Coming of Ford.

WHILE the time is not ripe for any criticism of the White Sox, nor is it called for, it would appear that O'Brien is wise in the desire to add hitting strength to his aggregation, and the attempt to land Dad Ford appears to be a wise move.

Ford is fast and he can play any position on the team. He is a good hitter and generally cracks them at the time when busting the ball is a prime necessity looking to the immediate manufacture of runs.

Freer, from the intelligence conveyed by the box score, has not been hitting as yet. Both Phillips and Brackett are cracking the ball and with one more buster in the garden the team would look like a very formidable aggregation.

Hitters win baseball games. Hitting is also the great attractive side of the great national game—and it is hitters that we want.

Walter Glass, Mr. Fan.

WALTER GLASS, the Duluth boy, is at the present time stroking the varsity eight at Syracuse. The youngster, who learned his rowing A. B. C.'s under the guiding hand of James E. Ten Eyck, is promising greater prowess under the grizzled hands of James A. Ten Eyck. Duluth and Syracuse have evidently entered into an entente of the most cordial nature. In union there is strength and all that stuff.

NORTHERN LEAGUE

FLICKERS WIN AGAIN

Duluth Loses Opener to Grand Forks By 9 to 6 Score.

Leahy Is Hit Freely By Members of Wheeler's Tribe.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—The winning streak of the locals remains unbroken as a result of the first game with the Duluth White Sox, the Flickers winning by the score of 9 to 6. The win of yesterday marks the fifth straight victory of the locals.

Leahy was on the mound for the Dooks and was hit hard. Wheeler's tribe pelted his delivery for twelve blows, three of the clouts being for extra bases. Leahy had nothing on the ball but hope, and the bombardment was terrific and constant.

Work by Brackett in center for the visitors and McGraw for the locals cut off several hits, both of the gardeners performing in sensational manner.

The visitors scored a brace of runs in the fourth when Deitrich and Phillips singled, were advanced on an infield out and counted when Wolfe singled. In the sixth HI Brackett singled and Phillips got a life on the wild heave of Boss Wheeler of his grounder. Wolfe doubled, scoring both runners. McGuff was safe on an infield error and Sweeley's out at first sent Wolfe across the pan.

McGuff doubled in the eighth, went to third on a bad throw and counted when Short Sweeley singled.

The steady and consistent hitting of the locals made up for some lax play and proved too strong a combination.

VIRGINIA WINS EASY GAME FROM CHAMPIONS

Winona, Minn., May 13.—Virginia won again yesterday, taking the champs into the defeat camp by the decisive score of 6 to 1. Toraason was wild and ineffective, and hits, errors, wild pitches and some slow work combined to give the visitors a four-run lead in the second that was never regained by the home brigade. Pettit and Lampman kept the local hits scattered.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 13.—Pittsburg and Boston yesterday went ten innings to a 1 to 1 tie, Umpire Klem calling the game on account of darkness. Rudolph and Cooper pitched excellent ball and each pitcher scored his team's only run. Wagner's hand was badly spiked when Mann was retired at second trying to stretch a single in the tenth. He may not play in the New York series.

Detroit 4; Yankees 0.

New York, May 12.—Harry Covaleski, known since 1908 as the "Giant Killer" for his series of successes over the New York Nationals in that year, revisited the Polo grounds in a Detroit uniform yesterday and shut out the New York Americans 4 to 0. Covaleski yielded only four hits and only one New Yorker reached third base. Detroit won in the first inning. Singles by Bush and Kavanaugh, Cobb's double and Crawford's sacrifice fly scored two runs. Warhop then relieved Schulz and Burns' sacrifice fly let in Cobb with the third run.

Four hundred enthusiasts from Harrison, N. J., attended the game in honor of Second Baseman Kavanaugh of Detroit, whose home is in Harrison. Mayor Joseph Riordan of that city presented the player with a gold watch when he went to bat in the first inning. Kavanaugh singled. Score:

CUTLER DISQUALIFIED; WESTERGAARD WINS MATCH

Chicago Man Loses Head and Tears in to Annihilate the Des Moines Swede After Referee Person Calls Quick Fall on Nonpareil.

BY BRUCE.

Last evening at the Auditorium Charles Cutler lost his head and the match with Jess Reimer Westergaard. Cutler won the first fall of the evening with a bar lock in 34:50 after some pretty wrestling. The Des Moines Swede came back and won the second fall in exactly 8 seconds—and then things broke loose in the Cutler corner.

Large Brother Marty vaulted the ropes and argued with eloquent gesture with patient and mild-mannered Chris Person, claiming that Brother Charley was not down.

To the strenuous and oratorical protestations of Marty Cutler were joined the more dignified one of Charles. The brothers appealed to the "mob," so to speak, claiming that the shoulders of Cutler were not pinned to that mat. Regarding this contention there will be a dispute as long as wrestling is talked of in this town.

Some say that Cutler was down; others raise their voice and state that Chris Person acted too hastily. There's where the trouble started.

Cutler remained in his corner in the rest and recreation period between the falls and talked with those eagerly pressing against the reinforced ropes of the ring. At that it appeared as if the Chicago moose had regained his composure and that his ruffled temper had cooled. But signs, as is often the case, were grossly deceiving. Cutler rushed at the open-countenanced Westergaard at the start of the third bout and carried the Swede around the ring by the fury of his attack. Cutler acted more like a demented prize-fighter than a wrestler possessed of science and skill.

Person tried to separate the men and keep Cutler off. The referee was hurled to the ropes and Cutler renewed his savage attack. There was but one thing to do—and Person did that; he stopped the contest after five minutes of ineffectual effort to stop the dirty tactics of Cutler and awarded the match to Westergaard.

Cutler deserves little consideration at the hands of local patrons of the game for his actions. Cutler was unfair to himself, to those who had pinned their faith upon his ability—and worse still, to those who paid good money to witness the match.

On the match as far as it went it appeared to those with a more expert knowledge of the game as if Cutler was the better man of the two. Even if Person made a mistake there was no excuse in the world for Cutler holding any grudge against his opponent. His fight, if he had any, was against Person.

Cutler spoiled a match that promised great things in the beginning and added nothing to his local standing as a good sportsman. It is from such action as Cutler's that the wrestling game suffers.

Lehto to the Fore.

Karl Lehto showed better than at any time since his training under some of the real stars of the wrestling ring by his quick defeat of Marty Cutler. The Chicagoan was fat, but possessed of a remarkable strength. Cutler the second towered above Lehto, but the stocky Finn handled him effectively and with well calculated leverage and at no time was in difficulty. Karl took the first in 16:30 and the final one in 11:05.

In many respects this contest created more enthusiasm than the main card of the evening. The men tore at each other in hammer and tongs fashion—in fact, the mat evening may be said to have presented the ultimate in the line of strenuousness.

Lehto showed strength and superior knowledge of the game and outclassed his opponent—that was all and the entire answer.

Pete Petkoff and Billy Harvey put up a swell curtain rasier, the heavier Bulgarian triumphing over the West Duluth boy in straight falls, the first fall coming in 11 minutes and the final one in 9:05.

One of the largest audiences of the year packed the big auditorium, and for the sake of the sport and fair play it is a shame that the main bout of the evening terminated as it did.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR A GREAT ROWING YEAR

Despite Loss of Men Duluth's Chances Look Very Good---Senior Four and Eight Should Be Faster Than Last Year.

BY BRUCE.

"Don't think because we have lost some of our rowing men that the Henley project has been abandoned in the least," said Coach Secretary James E. Ten Eyck of the boat club today. "All of the men we have out at the present time are good boys and their hearts and souls are in the game.

"I have seven seniors. We are shy on starboard men. Hoover and Bessenboschel will be changed over. This will prove a handicap at the start. Out of the junior four we have lost Von Drasek and Williams. The former had the making of a remarkable stroke and his loss is very unfortunate. Williams was another star man and his going is very much regretted.

"Stanley is stroking the four, with Sperry at 3, Troyer at 2, and Forrestal at bow. It looks as if the junior four is going to develop into a winner."

Enthusiasm and pep seem to be the dominant characteristics of the squad of oarsmen in the Ten Eyck camp. The other evening Jim was engaged with one of the new squads and before he was through with the job he discovered that the senior eight had started on the trip around the horn. And the trip was completed.

The Senior Four Strong.

It goes without pleasantly saying that the senior four is there in every literal sense of the word. Horak, the two Moores and old faithful Rheinberger comprise what is considered in these parts the fastest four in the world.

In the morning the senior four rows as a four; in the afternoon the four becomes an integral part of the senior eight. There was bright belief at one time that the four would have done with the eight, but the leaving of large quantities of seniors has shifted the double duty upon the well-rounded and husky young shoulders of the members of this sterling water aggregation.

In addition to rowing in the senior eight young Hoover is also sculling in his spare time. Let us at this time suggest that under the present rowing arrangements, spare time is something to be vaguely dreamed of and eagerly anticipated.

It is the plan of James Elington Ten Eyck to have a durable double out later in the season. But as things are at present the able coach has his large and calloused and capable hands filled with a multifarious collection of duties that are engaging all of his attention.

Looking for the time being over in the general direction of the junior eight, permit us to use the well chosen words of Coach Ten Eyck, who spake as follows:

"These boys are green and new at the game, but awfully strong. This eight looks capable of rounding into real rowing form. The best quality in the boat right now is the spirit of the boys. They are willing, and in boat races willingness is a large item in the task of winning success. I have a lot of confidence in the present junior eight."

The Time to Boost.

Now is the time when the members of the Boat club should do the real boosting. Ten Eyck has been with the club for three years and has worked wonders with the crews. While it is true that he has lost some fine men and their loss will be keenly felt, it is also true that it looks as if the senior eight of this season will be faster than the senior eight of last year, and all the dope would lead one to believe that the senior four of this year is going to be, without a doubt, the greatest four in the United States.

What is wanted is a win at Philadelphia, and with the ability of Ten Eyck and the spirit that is being shown by the boys under his tutelage, it looks to the writer as if Duluth is again going to attract the attention of followers of amateur rowing over the country.

FRED STICKLES DIES AT EAU CLAIRE

Unfortunate Duluth Man Passes Away After Two Operations.

Fred Stickles, 50 years of age, well known to many Duluthians as "Dummy" Stickles, died Monday at Mount Washington sanitarium, Eau Claire, Wis., according to news received yesterday afternoon by Henry Cleveland, manager of the park department.

Mr. Stickles left Duluth for Eau Claire several years ago. He was injured in a runaway accident and one of his legs had to be amputated. This was followed by a second operation, from which he never recovered. He has been failing gradually, sinking steadily until death ended his sufferings.

"Dummy" Stickles was without funds or relatives and unless others come to the rescue, a pauper's grave awaits him. Mr. Cleveland has notified the Sons of Veterans, of which he was a member, of his death and is hopeful that the organization will assist with the funeral arrangements. Stickles was a printer by trade, but not a member of the typographical union.

WILSON GETS FRESH DATA

O'Shaughnessy Tells the President More About Mexican Affairs.

Report Strengthens Determination That Huerta Must Go.

Washington, May 13.—O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires of the American embassy at Mexico City, last night told President Wilson the story of what happened in the Mexican capital during the days immediately preceding and following the occupation of Vera Cruz, and gave him an intimate picture of Gen. Huerta.

It was the first time Mr. O'Shaughnessy had seen the president since his arrival in Washington last week. He was at the White House for more than an hour, and went away highly pleased with his reception.

The charge advised the president that Gen. Huerta was a very stubborn man, and not apt to surrender his position as dictator easily. He expressed the opinion, however, that any government set up in Mexico which has the support of the United States will stand.

Has no Grievance.

After he left the White House, Mr. O'Shaughnessy intimated that he believed President Wilson had a broad and firm view of the Mexican question. He quickly disposed of reports that he believed he had been badly treated by the administration. The president thanked him, he said, for his services in Mexico, and had expressed approval of his course. No other post has been offered the charge, and he indicated that he expected to be allowed to take an extended vacation in the United States. He plans to leave for New York next Monday to settle up the estate of his father, who died there recently. He denied a report that he plans running for congress.

"I don't know what party I would run with," he remarked with a laugh.

Huerta no Drunkard.

It is understood that Mr. O'Shaughnessy's account of Gen. Huerta was such as to strengthen, if possible, the president's determination to force the elimination of the Mexican dictator. He denied, however, that Gen. Huerta was the drunkard that he has been painted in some quarters, and he also told the president he did not believe the Tampico incident had been planned by Huerta to bring about trouble with the United States.

"Gen. Huerta knew nothing about the Tampico affair," he said, "until I took it up with him."

Fear for the safety of Louis d'Antin, who was left in charge of the American embassy building, was expressed by Mr. O'Shaughnessy. He said that d'Antin's mother was a Mexican and that the man is constantly having disputes with Mexicans over the United States, and in that way has made a number of enemies.

Furnished Sidelights.

Mexico's troubled history since the overthrow of President Madero was discussed. The president was given many sidelights on the character of the officials at Mexico City and on the way the United States is looked upon there.

One point brought out was the difference between the representations on behalf of Americans and American interests made by Mr. O'Shaughnessy and by the Brazilian minister at Mexico City. The charge was able to demand certain things, but the Brazilian can merely make requests.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy will continue for the present to retain the title of first secretary of the American embassy and will draw the salary attached to the post.

CLAIMS CARRANZA IS ZAPATA'S SUPERIOR

Rebel Agent Says Southerner Has Acknowledged Chieftainship.

El Paso, Tex., May 13.—Gen. Emilio Zapata will not enter Mexico City until the capital shall have been occupied by Gen. Villa's troops and Gen. Carranza, first chief of the Constitutionalist army, shall have established himself at Chapultepec, according to a statement by Roberto V. Pesqueira, confidential agent of Gen. Carranza here.

When informed of anxiety that Zapata would seize the capital and turn it over to his men to loot at their will, Mr. Pesquera declared that numerous messengers had passed between Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa and Gen. Zapata, and that a thorough understanding has been reached between them. He said Gen. Zapata had definitely acknowledged Carranza as his chief.

According to the Constitutionalist plan of campaign, the divisions of the north and northeast will converge on Mexico City at the same time Zapata approaches it from the south, and will enter the city at the same time with the southern chieftain if they do not precede him.

Gen. Carranza is taking steps now to complete the civil governments of the states of the north so that when he moves toward Mexico City he can leave Northern Mexico with stable civil governments, and not be under the necessity of leaving strong garrisons.

GOING TO INTEREST POPE IN MEXICO?

Vera Cruz, May 13.—Rev. Joseph Mora Del Rio, archbishop of Mexico, and Rev. Jesus Marcel Eschavarria, bishop of Saltillo, arrived here yesterday on their way to Rome. It was said the archbishop was going to Italy for a vacation, but those familiar with his efforts for peace in the Federal capital regard his trip as of more significance, saying they believe that he hopes to secure the active interest of the pope in Mexican affairs.

CLAIM ACOSTA WAS ON MEXICAN SOIL.

Douglas, Ariz., May 13.—Donieo Acosta, the Mexican shot by an American cavalryman at the boundary line, was hit in the back, it is learned, and Mexican rebel officials say this fact enforces their assertion that Acosta was shot while on Mexican territory. The bullet passed through Acosta's body, piercing the apex of his right lung, but he is expected to recover.

According to Private William Taylor, the sentry who shot the Mexican, Acosta ignored an order to halt and, after fleeing across a ditch near the boundary, turned and made an insulting gesture.

HELP ITALIANS TO LEAVE MEXICO.

Rome, May 13.—The Italian government has instructed its consul at Mexico City to provide for the return of such Italian residents as care to leave the country and to pay the expenses of those without funds. The government especially urges the departure of those at Monterey.

One of the features of the evening will be the presentation of the hustler emblem and the awarding of the medals and the loving cup presented by J. L. Washburn to the boy who won the most points during the season. No announcement will be made of the winners until Friday night. The banquet, on account of the large number of members who wish to attend, will be held in the boys' department gymnasium, which will be decorated for the occasion. The decorations will be in charge of Warren Moore and Douglas Walker. Plates will be laid for 200, and the gallery will be open for parents who desire to be present for the program and speeches.

The annual banquet marks the closing of the winter season and the opening of the summer activities. All the members of the club are invited to attend.

FILIPINO DESERTS; MAY JOIN MEXICANS.

Vera Cruz, May 13.—Rear Admiral Fletcher's Filipino servant has disappeared and the indications are he has joined the Mexican army.

Public notice of the Filipino's desertion has been posted and all outposts are watching for his reappearance. He was last seen boarding a train in the direction of Gen. Maas' lines. It is feared that he may have carried to the Mexicans valuable information regarding the American forces.

CLAIM CHURCH HAS GIVEN HUERTA AID.

Vera Cruz, May 13.—The alleged determination of Gen. Villa to deal severely with the dignitaries of the church and the disfavor with whom the rebels, both north and south, regard all those who wear the robes of the church are said to have for a basis the financial assistance of 20,000,000 pesos which the church is said to have extended to Huerta. But the churchmen are known to have protested against some of the assessments which they were virtually forced to pay.

HEALTH SERVICE IS VERA CRUZ FEATURE

Vera Cruz, Mex., May 10, (by mail to Galveston, Tex., May 13.)—The United States public health service, the same advance agent of modern civilization that reclaimed Havana, Panama and the Philippines from the scourges of yellow fever and plague, already is at work in Vera Cruz, fighting more deadly enemies than Mexican snipers or hostile troops.

Vera Cruz, however, presents few of the problems mastered in other tropical countries. It is reasonably clean, with a good sewage system and fair water supply.

The first difficulty the Americans encountered was to get the local authorities to co-operate.

Mexicans Fear to Act.

"I should not dare to do so," said the head of the local health bureau. "When Mexicans served the government of Maximilian, Benito Juarez hanged them in the plaza when his revolution carried him to power. I do not care to court the same fate."

Finally, after Brig.-Gen. Funston had assured all they would be protected and that no protocol for the surrender of Vera Cruz to Mexican officials would be signed by the Americans which did not include protection to the fullest extent for natives who had served the occupation, the local men put aside their fears and consented to serve. Only two demurred.

Tampico "a Pest Hole."

American officials found the local health service fairly well organized. There has been no yellow fever since 1909, when there was one case. There is some malaria during the summer season, but in that respect Vera Cruz in no way approaches Tampico, which is described as a pest hole.

One phase of the work of the authorities here, new to the health service, is the regulation of the social evil. A system of inspection, modeled after the European plan, has been in use in the segregated district.

Under the reorganized health service all features of the sanitation work will be co-ordinated in one efficient system, working with local officials and regulations so far as is possible, and directed by Americans.

The Liver as Aid To Blood Purity

The Natural Stimulus Required is Not the Purgative Kind.

Most Pills Are Better if Thrown Away.

Important as it to keep the bowels open, it should be remembered that such action does not necessarily mean that the liver has been stimulated. The action of S. S. S. is a natural liver tonic, but not a bowel mover. It works in the liver cells to assist in the natural and necessary function of converting from the blood certain constituents into what are known as assimilable products. These are readily absorbed into the body tissues to constantly provide new and healthy material for that which is being destroyed by the energy of tissue changes.

The presence of any blood trouble naturally suggests a sluggish liver, but there is required those medicinal properties which, upon reaching the liver, still retain their catalytic energy to keep on through the blood circulation to do battle with impurities wherever they may have settled.

Rheumatism, catarrh, anemia, most skin diseases and other results of impure blood, while implicating the liver by their morbid influences, are quickly checked by S. S. S. Its action throughout the blood circulation results in the stimulation of the tissue cells to the healthy and judicious selection of their own essential nutriment.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store, but insist upon having it.

Take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist, address The Swift Specific Company, 620 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

MORE WARSHIPS GETTING IN TRIM.

Philadelphia, May 13.—The United States repair ship Panther, equipped with appliances for repairing battleships and their armament, cleared from the Philadelphia navy yard last night for Vera Cruz. Orders have been received to prepare every vessel in the navy yard here for service, and work will be begun in a few days on the monitors Terrier and Miantonomah, which saw service in the Spanish war.

Indorses Mexican Policy.

Baton Rouge, La., May 13.—The upper house of the Louisiana legislature passed a joint resolution indorsing the Mexican policy of President Wilson, particular stress being laid upon the occupation of Vera Cruz.

CARELESS HUNTER TO PAY DAMAGES

Makes Boy Cripple for Life and Jury Awards Large Amount.

Because Peter M. Hansen, 15-year-old son of Martha M. Hansen, a widow residing at Chisholm, must go through life as a helpless cripple as a result of the careless handling of a shotgun in the hands of Carl Olson, 20, a former playmate, he is entitled to receive $6,750 damages from Olson.

Such was the verdict of a jury in Judge Dancer's division of the district court yesterday afternoon in what is believed to be the first case ever brought in St. Louis county to recover damages for a hunting accident. The jury was out but a short time.

Young Hansen, through his mother, sued Olson for $25,000 damages for the accidental shooting of Peter while he and Carl were hunting in the woods near Chisholm Oct. 5, 1913. Peter, the evidence disclosed, was entertaining Carl for a few days at the Hansen homestead, about twenty miles north of Chisholm.

On the day of the shooting, Young Hansen and another playmate were guiding Olson to a place where game could be found. Olson had shot and killed a bird and after reloading his pump shotgun he swung it around to a comfortable position on his arm. In so doing, the gun was accidentally discharged just as the barrel was pointed at Hansen. The charge of shot entered the boy's back and has seriously affected his spine. The youngster came into court on a wheel chair. Physicians testified that he would be a life-long cripple.

Olson is the son of a Chisholm saloon keeper, whose death occurred a short time ago. His mother appeared to help defend the action. John Jenswold, Jr., acted as attorney for the plaintiff and Austin & Austin of Chisholm appeared as attorneys for the defense.

The capital stock of the concern is $5,000 divided into shares at $1 each and the men forming the corporation are Martin Martinson, president; Myron T. Sayer, vice president; Robert Swenson, secretary; Alfred Swenson, treasurer, and directors, John Pfantz, Halvor Halverson, L. Fisher and Charles Augustine.

MILITANT SLASHES PORTRAIT OF DUKE.

London, May 13.—A militant suffragette, armed with a hatchet, seriously damaged a valuable portrait of the duke of Wellington in the Royal academy yesterday.

The woman was standing looking at the painting when she suddenly drew the hatchet from her muff and slashed the canvas three times. An attendant promptly seized her and took her to the police station, where she said her name was Mary Ansell.

The painting was by the late Sir Hubert von Herkomer, who died March 31 this year. It was considered one of his finest works.

Miss Ansell later in the day was arraigned at the police court, where the magistrate committed her for trial at the London sessions. The prisoner sent to the Women's Social and Political union a message asserting that her deed was a protest against the present unjust position of women, for which militancy was the only remedy, and concluding:

"I have done this deed deliberately and rejoice that I have not failed in my duty."

PITTSBURG TRUST COMPANY FAILS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 13.—George H. Getty, representing the state banking department, has taken charge of the affairs of the Dominion Trust company here. The bank's checks had failed to pass through the clearing house. The last report, made to the department Feb. 20, showed the bank had deposits of $245,000 and total resources of $259,000. Steadily decreasing business was given as the cause of the failure.

THE MOVIES IN HISTORY.

Indianapolis News: One of the good uses for moving-picture films is for recording historic events. Not long ago the king of Roumania ordered the production of a film of no less than 3,000 yards length, this being a reproduction of the Roumanian-Russo-Turkish war, which determined the independence of that country. The film will be kept in the archives of the realm. In order to carry this out the army lent 5,000 men in uniform with arms and baggage, led by the officers. Another case is that of the Italian government, which is collecting all the films taken during the war in Tripoli. In England the same thing is done for the films of the king's coronation events.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MAYOR POWER RAPS CRITICS

Hibbing Official Denies Interest in Property Bought By Council.

Says Efforts to Besmirch Are Prompted By Administration's Enemies.

Hibbing, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—An important step toward the construction of a joint district and municipal court and village jail was taken last evening when the village council voted to purchase lots 29, 30, 31 and 32, block 22, known as the G. I. Train lots on Second avenue, for $16,000. The Itasca Dry Goods company's warehouse is now located on the lots and the site is generally considered a most desirable one.

H. P. Reed, who was a member of the committee recommending this site and one other, stated that in his opinion since talking to other business men that the lots purchased were not in the center of the village and suggested lots at the corner of Lincoln street and Third avenue or lots across from the Train lots.

Councilman Curran voted "No" and the remainder of the board in favor of the Train lots.

Mayor Denies Interest.

Mayor Power declared that contrary to a rumor in circulation he was in no wise interested in the Train lots and that he was desirous of finding out who started the report. Mr. Reed admitted hearing it and admitted telling other people that he had heard it, but refused, even after the earnest solicitation of Mayor Power, to disclose his information source.

The mayor denounced the report as the work of enemies of the administration.

An application for permission to sell ice cream cones from a pushcart along the streets was rejected.

The council appropriated $50 for the use of the Memorial day committee in defraying the necessary expenses.

The application of Louis Kallanj for a renewal of his liquor license on Pine street was granted.

A resolution fixing the salary of the village treasurer at ¾ of 1 per cent of all money expended by the village was passed. This is the same rate of payment that was in force last year.

A request from Municipal Court Judge T. F. Brady, asking for a raise in salary from $3,000 to $3,600, was received and held over for future action.

Want Fire Apparatus.

The purchase of a motor tractor with which to replace the horses now in use on the hose wagon at Station No. 1, and a new combination chemical, hose and pumping machine auto-driven truck for Station No. 1 were among the recommendations submitted by Chief McIlharghey, also to buy two large chemical tanks for installation on the Alice wagon, smoke helmets, a life net, various nozzles for different uses and a complete set of furniture for the new fire hall at Alice, which will probably be ready for use in a short time.

HIBBING DESIRES FREQUENTER STOPS

Unless Trolley Line Accedes to Wish Franchise May Be Attacked.

Hibbing, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Though a letter will be sent at once notifying the trolley line that the Commercial club desires stops at every crossing in Hibbing, the council will not take any legal steps until after a thorough investigation has been made into the terms of the franchise.

J. J. Cox and D. D. McEachin appeared before the council last evening for the club and presented the view of that organization. The council asked that the club appoint a committee of lawyers to investigate the franchise and ascertain what legal action could be taken by the council.

To Play Mountain Iron.

Eveleth, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth high school baseball team will play its first home game of the season Saturday, when it meets the Mountain Iron team. The local team advanced a step toward the range championship by beating Virginia and expect to have little difficulty with the Mountain Iron team, which has already met defeat at Virginia.

Drunks Ordered From Town.

Hibbing, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twelve drunks faced the municipal court last week, according to the report of the clerk, and were ordered out of town or promised to be good, while more profitable customers kept up the receipts, which amounted to $75 for criminal work and $30 for civil, with expenses of only $2. The check for $103.50 was turned over to the treasurer.

CATARRH RELIEF IN FIVE MINUTES

Use Hyomei—You Breathe It

When your head is stuffed up from a cold or catarrh, and you suffer with dull headaches, or are constantly sniffing, coughing, and have that disagreeable morning choking, you need a remedy that will give the quickest, most effective and lasting relief possible—something that will go right to the spot, clear the head and throat and end your misery.

Surely use Hyomei—It is just such a remedy—is entirely harmless and pleasant to use. All druggists sell it.

The antiseptic oils of Hyomei mix with the air you breathe, so that its health-giving medication immediately reaches the sore and inflamed mucous membrane — you feel better in five minutes.

It is practically impossible to use Hyomei and not only be relieved, but permanently benefited.

Boyce drug store sells it with agreement to refund your money if you are not satisfied. Ask for the complete outfit—$1.00 size. It contains inhaler and bottle of Hyomei.

EVELETH TO ISSUE $200,000 IN BONDS

Proposes to Issue Securities to Make Permanent Improvements.

Eveleth, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special meeting of the city council was held last night and the first steps taken toward the bonding of the city for paving. A resolution was passed making the act passed by the last legislature giving cities the right to issue bonds for permanent improvements. This resolution has to be filed with the secretary of state.

Next Tuesday a special election will be called to vote paving bonds. It is the present intention of the council to ask for $200,000 bonds.

The streets and alleys to be paved will have to be designated, the kind of paving decided on and the proportion of the cost to be assessed against abutting property fixed.

To Employ Idle Men.

The purpose of the council in hastening action on the paving matter at this time is to provide work for the citizens who have been thrown out of employment at the mines. The work will probably be done by contract but a minimum wage will be specified and a clause inserted in the contract that citizens of Eveleth must be given the preference.

MILWAUKEE BEER CONCERN IS SUED

Aurora Man Wants Damage for Keg Injuring His Daughter.

Virginia, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A suit out of the ordinary is expected to begin in district court here this afternoon if an action now on trial is completed.

John J. Zupoupic is suing the Val Blatz Brewing company of Milwaukee to recover $2,500 for damage sustained by his 12-year-old daughter Aug. 12, 1912, when a keg of beer rolled from one of the concern's delivery wagons upon the girl breaking a leg and otherwise injuring her. It is claimed the brewery team was unattended, the driver not being in sight.

The case of Micklander vs. Keller et al is being wound up today and is expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

PICNIC PAVILION BURNS NEAR ELY

Fire Breaks Out Early in Morning and Property Is Destroyed.

Ely, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the pavilion at the Austrian picnic grounds, about one mile east of here at an early hour this morning. The building was built about nine years ago by one of the Slovenian lodges and has been the scene of practically all Slovenian lodge picnics since.

A call was sent for the Ely fire department, but owing to lack of water mains near they could do but little and the building was a complete loss. The estimated loss is $2,500.

AURORA WILL VOTE ON ISSUING BONDS

Sum of $35,000 Desired for Water and Light Plants.

Aurora, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council has decided to call a special election to vote on issuing bonds in the sum of $35,000 for water and light plants, $15,000 for water and $20,000 for lights. The present water supply is not sufficient and an eight-inch hole is being drilled at present in the bottom of the present No. 2 well, which is a shaft well. If this proves successful it is likely that a hole will be drilled in the bottom of the No. 1 shaft also. It will be necessary to install an air lift pump at each hole to raise water in sufficient quantities.

Light Plant Inadequate.

The present light plant is also too small to supply the needs of the village and an additional engine and dynamo will be installed this summer. The present dynamo was run all last winter at a 100 per cent overload and there are many in the village who want current, but are not at present allowed to connect.

A second charge was brought against him by two laborers, who claim he stole $50 from them. He will have to explain the second charge to the grand jury as well as the first.

The council also proposes to go ahead with the North side sewer work when twelve blocks will be provided with sewers. The school children always take an important part in the observance of the day, and this will be the case this year.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council at a special meeting Monday afternoon appropriated $25 to the first and the junior baseball teams for the purchase of suits, and both teams are getting into shape. The first team expects to have a very successful year and Capt. Hicks is busy getting his material so that games can be booked ahead for the season.

A new sixty-gallon fire extinguishing apparatus was also purchased for $450, and with the new chemical, the fire department will have very little trouble at small fires. The village sprinkler was not purchased and will be discussed at the next meeting.

All stray hogs are being captured and put into the village pound and a fine of $3 imposed upon the owners, as considerable trouble has been experienced with these animals running at large in the village. The matter of caring for cattle will be brought up soon.

English Women's Beautiful Complexions

There is no nation in which the women live as sanely as do the English and there is no nation in which the skins are as fair and clear. Under perfect, natural conditions a well balanced life would guarantee a beautiful and healthy skin. But the ordinary social and economic American life of today forces the system to furnish so much vital force for action that nerves, eyes and complexions all suffer. In addition to this strain many women further abuse their skin by covering it with pore-clogging powder instead of doing the wise thing—that is, using a lotion which protects and smoothes, without choking the pores.

The reason complexions suffer so much in summer is because powder does not offer sufficient protection against the hot sun. A plain spurmax lotion not only safeguards the skin from the elements, but in itself is a beautifier of great worth. To prepare this lotion at home, dissolve 4 ounces spurmax from druggist's in ½ pint hot water (or witch hazel) and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. This applied to the skin becomes invisible and imparts a velvety softness and dainty tint to a rough, faded skin, relieving that shiny, oily appearance, and its use will insure a clear, lovely complexion.

COURT REFUSES TO DROP CHARGE

Hearing of Alleged Grand Rapids Firebugs Still On.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state in the alleged arson case of the State vs. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Allen and Herman Deavers rested shortly before noon today and a motion of the defense that the charge against all the defendants be dismissed was denied by Justice Kearney.

The witnesses consisted of the firemen who testified as to the condition of the Marr building after the fire, the finding of the steel sheeting pried off the wall at the place the fire is supposed to have started, Robert J. Martin, deputy state fire marshal, who investigated the fire and Roy Peterson who testified that while seeing a young lady to her home he passed the Allen store and saw Mrs. Allen and a man whom he afterwards identified as Deavers leaving the Allen store about five minutes before the fire alarm sounded. The hearing is continued this afternoon when the defense offered its testimony.

INFORMATION IS SOUGHT FROM SOO

Asked About Building Duluth Line If Rates Are So Low.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—Why the Soo line built its road from St. Paul to Duluth if freight rates were too low when there was no prospect of a rise, was one of the questions asked of T. E. Sands, general freight agent of the Soo line, by attorneys for the shippers at the hearings before Special Examiner Edgar Watkins of the interstate commerce commission here late yesterday on the petition of the roads to raise the interstate rates to correspond with the intrastate rates.

Mr. Sands testified briefly on direct examination, saying that the case had been covered by witnesses for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, so that he did not need go over the same ground. He declared that the rates between the Twin Cities and Duluth are lower than rates for corresponding distances elsewhere and that rates generally are too low.

Roy Hall Desires Light.

On cross examination G. T. Simpson, representing Minneapolis shippers, and Roy Hall, for Duluth shippers, wanted to know if the present rates are not the same as they were when the Soo line built its Duluth branch two years ago, and if there were any petitions pending then for higher rates. They wanted to know why the Soo built its Duluth line if the rates were not compensatory and if they were remunerative why the road joined in asking for an increase now.

The railroads completed their case and shippers are being heard today.

WHEAT HAS AN UPTURN

Market Strong With Buying on Fear of Damage in Southwest.

Flaxseed Sells Off on Liquidation and Light Demand From Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 13.—The market turned strong at the close on reports of crop damage in the Southwest. May wheat closed ¾c up; July ⅝c up and September ⅝c up. May durum closed ¼c up and July ½c up.

Oats closed ⅛c up at 37⅝c for on the track, and 36⅝c for to arrive. Rye closed 1c up at 58@60c and barley unchanged at 54@59c for choice stuff.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed at 37¾@38c bid and July at 38⅛c bid.

Puts on Minneapolis July wheat closed at 90⅝c bid and calls at 91¼c bid.

The wheat market was weak at the opening today on lower Liverpool cables and favorable weather over the Northwest for the completion of seeding operations. This led to some offering and quotations sold off moderately at the start. The market firmed up later on reports of Hessian fly damage in Missouri and in a few other sections of the Southwest. Cash wheat was steady on the continued strength in the Chicago May option, in which there is reported to be a heavy outstanding short interest.

Further export business in all positions was reported by a Duluth house, and from the present outlook it is predicted that supplies of old spring wheat will be reduced to the vanishing point before the marketing of the new crop begins. New York exporters estimated that nearly 1,000,000 bu of wheat had been sold for shipment to Liverpool yesterday and today. Wheat stocks in the elevators here are now down to 7,257,000 bu, a reduction of 655,000 bu in the last three days. Stored of all grains here are now reported at 12,411,000 bu and from that is to be deducted 638,000 bu loaded on steamers, but not yet reported out of store. Of that 264,000 bu is bonded wheat, 231,000 bu durum, and 133,000 bu bonded oats.

The weakness at Liverpool was brought about by the easier American markets and cheaper Winnipeg offerings. Foreign crop advices were also favorable, except in sections of Hungary and Roumania.

Receipts here were in lighter volume today, being 41 cars against 94 last year, and there were 65 cars of all grains on the tracks for the day.

Minneapolis receipts were 83 cars, compared with 90 a year ago, and their stocks showed a reduction of 750,000 bu in the last four days.

There was no quotation in the May wheat option up till the final hour, July opened ⅛c off at 89c, and after weakening ¾@⅞c more, it firmed up to the extent of ⅜c. September opened ⅛c off at 88c and gained ⅛c.

Trading in durum was only nominal. The May option sold unchanged at 83c and July ½c off at 83½c.

Flaxseed Again Weak.

Flaxseed was weak again today in line with lower foreign markets, and the appearance of some liquidation. There was no support from crushers at the start, but with some good buying before the closing hour, quotations firmed up to well above the low spots. Final prices showed declines of 1⅛@1¾c.

Buenos Aires closed 2¼c off; London ⅞c off and Antwerp ⅜c off.

May flax opened 1¼c off at $1.55½, and closed ¾c off at $1.55¾ bid; July opened unchanged at $1.57⅜, and closed ½c off at $1.57⅛; September opened ¼c off at $1.59½, and closed ⅝c off at $1.59 bid, and the October option opened ½c off at $1.56½, and closed ⅝c off at $1.56⅛ bid.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.56¼ bid, and July at $1.38⅞.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Price Current says: "The weather since May 1 has been favorable to the wheat plant in the Southwest. The condition is so far advanced that little damage may be expected. Spring wheat seeding is about completed, although some delay has occurred in the Red River valley from too much rain. Oats seeding is drawing to an end over the country. The plant generally is in good condition. Corn planting has been quite general. So far as these three important grains are concerned, the start could not be much better."

The Atchison railroad crop report said: "Not a poor field of wheat in the territory we reach in Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas. It is estimated Kansas will produce 120,000,000 to 125,000,000 bu and Oklahoma 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bu. The corn is all planted, with that in Southern Kansas and Oklahoma coming up."

Shipments of oats to Europe are reported moderate. Exports from Argentina and Russia are very small. Native offers are light and prices have been advanced.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool: "Wheat opened under pressure of realizing, induced by the easier American cables, and values were ½d lower with May quoted. There is less inquiry for cargoes and parcels and there are freer Russian offers, and these, together with the highly favorable American winter wheat crop prospects and indications of large offers, helped to encourage profit-taking. Toward midday there was some covering and prices advanced slightly, influenced by the advanced slightly, influenced by the advanced strength in corn and a better demand for spot. At 1:30 p. m. the undertone was unsettled, ⅜@⅝d lower.

"Corn opened ⅜@½d higher and later advanced a further ⅛@⅜d, with shorts in July excited. Easier American cables were offset by the closing strength in Buenos Aires and reports of further rain in Argentina, with spot strong here and stocks also decreasing. At 1:30 p. m. the market was strong, ½@¾d higher."

* * *

An Argentine cable said: "Weather is unsettled and damage is increasing. Cancellation of many charters of steamers for early tonnage of corn are reported. Wet weather is also against wheat seeding."

* * *

Beneficial rains have fallen in Roumania and relieved somewhat the severe apprehension over drouth.

* * *

In Hungary the crop outlook is very unfavorable, and 15 to 30 per cent of the crop area is being replowed. Under most favorable weather conditions there will be a light crop. Supplies of old wheat are exhausted there.

* * *

Baker had the following wire from Chicago today: "Conservative traders and commission houses agree that there is little in sight at the present to induce buying of wheat. Strength in the May is against the bears, however, and traders most aggressive on that side say they are doing nothing in the market."

* * *

The Minneapolis cash market was firm with good local and outside milling demand for the top grades. One northern blue stem sold at 2½@4c over July, and velvet chaff at ?@2½c premium. Flour trade was slow. Cash one northern wheat sold there at from 92c to 94c, and No. 2 northern at from 90c to 92c.

* * *

John Inglis wired: "Along the Kaw valley, Topeka to Newton, Kansas, the crop is not so forward as expected, but general conditions are perfect. Heading will not be general for ten days. Cutting will be later than last year. From Wichita to Arkansas City, some of the soft wheat is showing heads, but there is a small acreage of it. Oats are good. Corn cultivating has commenced."

STOCKS ARE STILL DULL

Speculation Sluggish and Uncertain Early and Movement Narrow.

Prices Give Way Fractionally Toward the End, Closing Easy.

New York, May 13.—The stock market gave no sign at the opening today of awakening from its lethargy. Dullness was even more pronounced than during the preceding session and the active shares hardly varied from yesterday's close. London prices were virtually unchanged and at home no new factors were brought to bear. The only variations of consequence were among inactive stocks. Western Maryland fell 2 points to 20, the lowest at which the stock had ever sold since the formation of the present corporation in 1909. Harvester added nearly a point to its recent extensive gain. Coast line rose 1⅜.

Fluctuations were unusually narrow during the morning. For a time the market hardened slowly, but towards noon the movement was checked and the fractional gains were canceled.

Speculative pools were active in a few stocks. Utah Copper rose vigorously despite heaviness of some of the low-priced copper shares. Bonds were steady.

The market dragged in the late dealings. No pressure was applied except in the case of Canadian Pacific, selling of which was said to be affected by financial entanglements of London bankers. Cessation of the liquidating movement in low priced stocks gave the market stability, but traders hesitated to take a definite position. Sterling exchange rates relaxed from the high level indicating that the outflow of gold would not be resumed unless special inducements were offered by foreign bankers.

The market closed easy today. Speculation was sluggish and uncertain until weakness of several stocks diffused a heavier tone. Pressure against Canadian Pacific and the steady fall in Canadian Pacific induced short selling and prices gave way fractionally toward the end.

Marine

ORE COMING FROM CUYUNA

Cargoes Expected to Leave for East in Near Future

Low Rates Will Probably Curtail Operations on Great Lakes.

Cargoes of ore from the Cuyuna range are expected to be shipped out of Duluth within a few days. The output of the mines is already being shipped to the Northern Pacific and Soo docks at Superior. About fifty carloads of ore daily are expected at the docks.

Low rates are expected to curtail the amount of shipping this season, but the opening of new mines will offset these.

The Cuyuna range shipped 743,648 tons during the 1913 season. Of this the Kennedy mine shipped 266,125 tons; the Armour No. 2, 175,437 tons; the Armour No. 1, 105,086 tons; the Pennington, 110,000 tons, and the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs, 47,000 tons.

The low prices set for ore by dealers in the contracts closed so far will prevent a large amount of shipping, as the reduction in rate which followed the lowering in price, left the scale at "rock-bottom" figures, according to the carriers.

With the exception of three years, 1904, 1905 and 1912, iron ore prices, since 1900, have never been so low as they are this season. In only one year, 1904, have they been lower.

The reduced ore prices will mean more to the merchant iron producers than to the steel companies. All of the larger steel manufacturing concerns own their ore supply, none but the very smallest concerns buying in the open markets.

STEAMER PEAVY IS RELEASED.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 13.—After blocking the channel of the Maumee river near the Cherry street bridge for forty-eight hours, beginning at 5 o'clock Saturday morning the steamer George H. Peavey was released yesterday. A change in the wind and eight tugs brought the big ship from her bed of mud. The Peavey is unhurt. Part of her cargo of coal was lightered.

While the Peavey lay crosswise of the channel blocking traffic several large boats were unable to make any headway. Extra gangs of men were placed at work on the coal docks today to assist in unloading the vessels that had been detained by the Peavey. Rain prevented grain boats being unloaded.

Position Shifted.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 13.—The St. Clair lightship has been shifted from its old position in Lake St. Clair to a point about four miles southwestward, in about twenty feet of water, on the southern side of the upper end of the twenty-foot dredged channel. The vessel shows only the name St. Clair on each side, the number 75 having been removed.

New Coal Schedule.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 13.—Two trains an hour will be run to Sandusky over the Norfolk & Western and Columbus, Sandusky & Hocking from the mining regions of West Virginia to meet the demand for coal for lake shipment, it was announced at the C., S. & H. offices today. The new schedule goes into effect as soon as extra crews needed can be assembled.

RECORD OF WORK FARM

Report Shows That 173 Prisoners Have Been Received to Date.

Preparing Land for Crops —Sawmill Will Soon Be Running.

Since the joint county and city began operations shortly after the first of the year, 173 misdemeanants have been committed there from the district, municipal and justice courts of the county, according to the May report of Fred Ward, superintendent of the institution, which was submitted yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the work farm board.

The report shows that during the month of April, thirty-seven new prisoners were received, of which thirty-two were sent from the municipal courts of the city of Duluth, four from the district court and one from a justice court at Biwabik. The average daily attendance was 45.5 men. Two men escaped during the month. The total number of meals furnished the prisoners was 5,447, the total bill for the month being $329.20.

"Most of the time during the last month," said Mr. Ward in his report, "has been spent in getting the land ready for the planting of crops. Work at the sawmill is progressing slowly, but it is expected that it will be running in a few days."

Mr. Ward stated that he had sent out fourteen letters to Duluth men relative to an amusement and educational fund for the men and that as a result $75 had been received to date. From this fund, a $50 graftaola was purchased from a Duluth dealer who donated $10 worth of records. Other records were also purchased and donated.

At the meeting of the work farm commissioners yesterday afternoon, a committee consisting of A. H. Crassweller, president; Superintendent Fred Ward and Charles E. Adams, attorney for the board, was named to draft rules and regulations covering the parole of prisoners from the farm.

It was also decided at yesterday's meeting to build a few cells at the work farm to meet emergencies and to take care of unruly prisoners when needed.

BUSTER PROVES A FAITHFUL GUARDIAN

Dog Refuses to Allow Strangers to Approach Lost Boy.

Buster, a small dog owned by Myer Golberg, 608 West Second street, proved a faithful guardian of his little master, Mischa Golberg, aged 1 year and 10 months, after he had wandered away from his home and got lost on the streets today.

Mischa, who is always accompanied out of doors by his faithful companion, Buster, was lured into the street at 9 o'clock this morning by the sunshine and spring air and wandered away. He and Buster finally grew weary and stopped at 303 West Fifth street. The family there telephoned to the police that a child was there. In the meantime Mrs. Golberg had also telephoned the police that her boy had wandered away. About noon the police notified Mrs. Golberg that Mischa was at 303 West Fifth street and the mother immediately went after him and brought him home. Buster refused to let any strangers approach the little fellow until his mother came and growled in a menacing way when anyone attempted to question his little master.

The boy wandered away from home last week with his dog and was picked up at Sixth avenue west by Officer Oscar Olson.

Bottle Broke and Post-office Officials Again Appeal to Public.

Officials in the local postoffice again ask the co-operation of the public in the sending of parcel post matter.

Many local residents are constantly overlooking the regulations and the result has been that many of the packages sent have been broken in transit, while others were returned because they were not properly addressed, stamped or packed.

Last week a Duluth woman mailed a bottle of chicken soup to a friend in Minneapolis, neglecting, however, to properly pack the bottle. The result was that the bottle broke in transit and damaged other mail. It is to avoid such accidents and possible serious damage that the local officials are asking for the co-operation of the public.

Assistant Postmaster Weld this morning received the third circular from Third Postmaster General Dockery giving a complete outline of the parcel post rates of postage, insurance, wrapping, C. O. D. features and the newer regulations. Special attention is called to the fact that packages may now be mailed at any postal station, but that they must be properly wrapped and stamped. The insurance and C. O. D. features are also explained.

WIMBORNE MUSTERS ENGLISH TEAM

Polo Challenge Will Be Carried Out—Strong Organization.

London, May 13.—Baron Wimborne, organizer of the British team, which will try to bring the international polo trophy back from the United States, emerged today from the cloud of disappointments in which he had been enveloped and was enabled to muster a team to fulfill the challenge sent to Meadowbrook by the Hurlingham club. In the opinion of experts here, the new combination is infinitely stronger than the one originally selected by Baron Wimborne.

Capt. Leslie St. C. Cheape, after thrice declining the invitation to join the team, finally decided to step into the breach caused by the defection of Maj. Hunter. England's team has thus obtained the services of the finest player who has been seen in public on this side of the Atlantic this year.

The team will be as follows: Maj. P. W. Barrett, Capt. Leslie St. C. Cheape, Capt. H. A. Tomkinson and Maj. J. Y. D. Bingham with Maj. Matthew Lannowe as spare man.

The ponies, numbering thirty-five, will be sent to America on May 16. The team will follow on May 23.

LORD, SLIPPING, QUITS BASEBALL

Captain "Cans" Himself as He Is Going Back.

Chicago, May 13.—Harry Lord, the veteran third baseman and captain of the Chicago Americans, has quit baseball because "he felt himself slipping," according to a dispatch from Washington received here today. Leaving word with another player for Manager Callahan, saying that he was disgusted with his own poor playing, Lord left the team in Washington and boarded a train for his home in Maine today.

Manager Callahan has decided to make Shortstop Weaver the captain of the club, putting Alcock on third base and Blackburn back at second, according to the dispatch.

UPHOLDS NEW RULE.

President of Wisconsin-Illinois League Makes First Decision.

Green Bay, Wis., May 13.—President Frank R. Weeks of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, the first league head who was called upon to decide a matter involving the new rule which prohibits a player from touching or holding a runner at third base, announced today he had disallowed the protest of Manager Bubser of the Wausau club and upheld his umpire, James Davey, in declaring Cavanaugh out in the game at Appleton, when he was touched by Kench after hitting the ball out of the lot.

Coaching before a runner is on base will be prohibited on Wisconsin-Illinois league diamonds this year, the president says. He will instruct his umpires to see that coachers are kept quiet before a base is occupied.

APPEAL IS FILED.

Federals Take Important Step in Killifer Case.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 13.—The appeal of the Chicago Federal league club from the decision of United States Judge Sessions at Grand Rapids, Mich., in the case of the Philadelphia National league club relative to Catcher Killifer was filed here today in the United States circuit court of appeals.

This formal filing followed an announcement made by Judge Sessions last week that he had allowed the Chicago Federal league club an appeal from his court. The appeal will probably not be taken up until the fall term of court.

Take Your Shopping Seriously

It takes judgment to make the family purse do its full measure of service in these days of high prices.

The wise woman takes her shopping seriously and spends her money carefully.

She seeks the best advice she can get, and nine times out of ten she finds it in the advertising columns of The Herald.

She reads the advertising daily and keeps posted on what the stores are showing. If some fortunate turn in the market presents an unusual opportunity she is ready to take advantage of it.

She markets as carefully and with as much knowledge of the situation as her husband would show if he were buying a piece of real estate.

Advertising is a business education to the modern woman. It is her ready reference book.

She verifies the statements made in print from time to time and she soon becomes an expert on What's What and Who's Who.

SALE — MISCELLANEOUS

OUR METHOD OF SELLING FURNITURE, RUGS, ETC.,
for the home 35 to 40 per cent less than retail shop prices has brought huge success to the promoters of this business. We have knocked clean off the map the old idea that it is necessary to make 100 per cent profit on every piece of furniture sold in order to show a reasonable return on the dealer's investment. No concern in the furniture world has equaled our record the past year. We claim it is possible to furnish "good furniture" for the home at a much lower price than has been asked heretofore in Duluth by retail shops and yet win success galore. Our method of doing business with its wonderful price saving to purchasers has been the means of creating a much greater demand for "good furniture," rugs, etc., for the home because the average homemaker found he could buy much more for less money at our salesrooms. Therefore, we are trade stimulators and important factors in reducing the high cost of living.

MELLEN BEGINS HIS STORY OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD AFFAIRS

Is Examined in Spite of Objections By Attorney General.

Says Morgan Transferred Him East From Northern Pacific.

Rockefeller and Miller May Be Forced to Testify.

Washington, May 14.—Former President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad today took the stand before the interstate commerce commission in its inquiry into the New Haven's affairs.

Counsel Folk called Mr. Mellen despite the controversy between the commission and the department of justice as to whether the inquiry should continue, in view of the possibility of the testimony's rendering witnesses immune from prosecution in the courts.

The scene at the hearing was one of unusual activity. Commissioner McChord and Chief Counsel Folk arrived first. Then came Mr. Mellen and his attorney, J. W. H. Crim. Some delay was caused by the necessity of making a change in the subpoena to Mr. Mellen, so that it would call for all papers and documents related to the operations of the New Haven and its subsidiaries.

"Assistant to the I. C. C."

When Mr. Mellen ascended the platform and took the witness chair, Chief Counsel Folk began his examination by asking:

"What is your occupation?"

"I am assistant to the interstate commerce commission," replied Mr. Mellen with a broad smile.

"You were directed to produce all documents in relation to the operations of the New Haven railroad," suggested Mr. Folk; "have you them with you?"

"They are in possession of my counsel."

"I think it becoming to say at this point," interrupted Counsel Crim, "that Mr. Mellen is willing to give a full

HUNDREDS MORE GIVE UP GUNS TO TROOPS

Weird Collection of Weapons Seized in Colorado.

Trinidad, Col., May 14.—The proclamation of disarmament issued by Col. James Lockett by authority of the war department, which went into effect at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, today dominated the strike districts of Las Animas and Huerfano counties. The effect of the proclamation was evidenced late yesterday when hundreds of weapons of all descriptions were added to nearly 3,000 pieces previously surrendered. Importation of miners unauthorized under the war department's proclamation to enter the mines is the subject today of consideration by the military authorities.

The order requiring all persons to turn over to the soldiers any guns in their possession resulted in the accumulation of a weird collection of weapons. The total was something more than 3,000. Among the arms surrendered there were several hundred modern rifles and revolvers used by strikers and mine guards. There also were shotguns, target rifles and old style revolvers, relics of pioneer days.

BURY DEAD FROM MEXICO

Chicago, New England Cities and Blakesburg, Iowa, Have Funerals.

Riotous Scenes Mar Sad Occasion at Chicago and Cambridge.

Chicago, May 14.—Hundreds of soldiers and sailors in uniform, with bands playing, headed the funeral cortege which today carried to its last resting place in Waldheim cemetery the body of Samuel Meisenberg, the Chicago marine killed at Vera Cruz.

Governor Dunne, Mayor Harrison, United States Senators Lewis and Sherman, scores of fraternal organizations and hundreds of citizens and public officials marched in the procession. A squad of marines from the Great Lakes naval training school at Lake Bluff, Ill., fired a last salute as the body was lowered into the grave.

Rites in Synagogue.

Early in the day the body was taken from the Meisenberg home to the Anshe Kanasses Israel synagogue, where the funeral services were held at 9 o'clock with full Jewish rites.

Governor Dunne, Senators Sherman and Lewis, Mayor Harrison and Judge Hugo Pam of the municipal court eulogized the dead marine in short addresses.

At the conclusion of the services the funeral procession began its march through the city. Before reaching the cemetery, the cortege, with the exception of the mourners, disbanded.

The return of the body to Chicago was marked by a panic in the city hall

BRINGS SICK FROM MEXICO

Hospital Ship Solace Docks at Brooklyn With 101 Patients.

Winona Man Among Sufferers—One Death on Home Trip.

New York, May 14.—The naval hospital ship Solace docked at the Brooklyn navy yard with 101 patients from Vera Cruz. The ship also brought the bodies of Henry Pulliam and Clarence R. Harshbarger, navy men, who died of wounds suffered in the occupation of the Mexican city.

There were on board the vessel thirty-one wounded; the remainder were suffering from disease contracted in Mexico. Of the latter, however, many were convalescent. They will be sent back to Mexico.

Among the injured men in the naval hospital is Theofil V. Biscup of Winona, Minn., boatswain's mate, one of the first petty officers to receive injuries. In all sixty-one were taken to the hospital.

One Death on Way Home.

One man—Hunter Dobson, an ordinary seaman from the battleship Louisiana—died Sunday night of appendicitis.

Twenty-eight of the men were in such condition that stretchers were used in removing them from the hospital ship. Physicians said, however, that they expected no more deaths.

Charles L. Doyle, a seaman, whose condition for a time was precarious, was operated on by the ship's surgeons and showed marked improvement. He was thrown from his horse, which shied at a trolley car.

Many relatives came aboard the Solace today. A number of relatives and friends who applied at the naval hospital for those whom they supposed to be seriously hurt were directed to the ship, to find them ready to return to duty with the Solace.

The Solace will drydock for minor repairs. She is expected to sail for Vera Cruz early next week.

ENGLAND WILL NOT ACT AS TO MEXICO

Denial of London Paper's Statement Made By Foreign Office.

London, May 14.—A denial was issued by the British foreign office today of the report published in this morning's Standard declaring that Sir Edward Grey has under consideration a dispatch from Sir Lionel Carden, British minister at Mexico City, dealing exhaustively with the whole Mexican situation. The Standard added that Sir Edward Grey advised that no useful purpose would be served by South American mediation, explaining that he would shortly propose a policy to minimize possibility of further bloodshed.

The official denial today declares the Standard's statement wholly unfounded.

ANOTHER CHICAGO ITALIAN MURDERED.

Chicago, May 14.—Another Italian assassination was recorded here today when Leonardi France was shot in the back as he was passing the mouth of an alley. The murderer tossed the sawedoff shotgun from which the shot was fired into a garbage box and escaped.

The police attribute the crime to a feud between Black Hand organizations.

STEADY STREAM OF BARGES GO THROUGH THE PANAMA CANAL

Big Waterway in Commercial Use for First Time in History.

Schedule of Twelve Hours From Coast to Coast Is Made.

Washington, May 14.—For the first time in the world's history, waterborne traffic is now passing through the Panama canal, according to the reports that have been received at the headquarters of the Panama railroad in New York, forwarded here today.

Though confirmation of the report has not yet reached the Washington office of the isthmian canal commission, it is known that ample provision had been made by Col. Goethals for the institution of water service, limited at first strictly to barges, beginning not later than May 10.

Steady Stream of Barges.

As a matter of fact, according to the Panama railroad reports, the service actually began last Saturday and a steady stream of barges in tow is now passing through the canal.

The tremendous congestion in interoceanic commerce caused by suspension of service on the Tehuantepec railroad in Southern Mexico, as an incident to the rebellion, brought about this rather premature opening of the canal trade. Several of the great freight lines which, in conjunction with the similar service on the Pacific maintained trade lines between Europe and the Far East via Tehuantepec, have recently appeared at Colon and Panama offering cargoes for transhipment overland far beyond the capacity of the Panama railroad.

Regular Service Established.

Finding that Col. Goethals was willing to assist them by clearing an adequate channel for barges, at least through the Cucaracha slide, the company secured a lot of barges that have been used for harbor purposes at Colon and Panama, and established this service as an overflow to assist the railroad in meeting the trade demands.

Col. Goethals has not yet reported to Washington just when the canal will be opened to merchant ships, but the understanding here is that the waterway is practically finished; that even now there is a sufficient channel through the Culebra cut for almost any warship or liner, and that it is only from a desire to avoid a possible serious accident through an unexpected renewal of the earth movements in the cut that Col. Goethals has determined to allow a period for observation before acutally opening the canal.

Twelve-Hour Schedule.

It is understood that this barge service is to be operated on about twelve hours' schedule from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which allows about an hour's delay in each of the locks.

BURKE IS INDICTED FOR CANAL FRAUDS

Former Panama Zone Commissary Manager Formally Accused.

New York, May 14.—John Burke, former manager of the commissary department of the Panama canal zone, was indicted by the Federal grand jury here today for conspiracy to defraud and for other alleged offenses. He was dismissed some time ago.

KING GUSTAF AGAIN TAKES UP HIS TASKS.

Stockholm, May 14.—King Gustaf has completely recovered from the effects of the operation for ulceration of the stomach which he underwent April 9. His majesty today resumed the conduct of the affairs of state, and the crown prince gave up the duties of regent which he had performed during his father's illness.

EIGHT INCHES OF SNOW IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

Gloversville, N. Y., May 14.—Eight inches of snow fell at Pine Lake, in the Adirondacks, last night. Four inches of snow is reported at Lake Pleasant, and other sections of the Adirondacks report heavy snow storms.

BOMBS DROPPED IN CITY OF MAZATLAN

Rebel Aviator Does Good Work in Fighting There.

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan, Mexico, May 13, via wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 14.—Gen. Obregon's military aviators became effective again today in the battle that has been waged for many days at Mazatlan. An aeroplane, circling above the Federal entrenchments, dropped bombs with considerable accuracy into the fortifications. They exploded directly within the Federal lines, but the extent of the casualties was not reported.

GRAND MASTERS OF THREE NATIONS MEET.

St. Louis, Mo., May 14.—Grand masters of the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons from all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico, met here today for their annual conference. The day was given over to business meetings, and tonight the grand lodge of Tennessee will confer the third degree of Masonry on candidates from St. Louis. This ceremony will take place at the Shriners' temple, recently dedicated.

PREPARE FOR MEDIATION

Washington Diplomats to Study Over the Preliminary Plans.

No Word Yet as to Safety of Silliman in Mexico.

Washington, May 14.—While interest in the Mexican situation centered here today in the capture of Tampico by the Constitutionalist forces, diplomatic and state department officials were busily engaged in contemplating preliminary plans for the mediation conference at Niagara Falls, Ont., next week.

Following further reports from Rear Admiral Badger and Rear Admiral Mayo concerning the taking of the Mexican port by the Constitutionalists, Secretary of the Navy Daniels authorized Admiral Mayo to return his ships to the Panuco river. This was deemed expedient on account of hurricanes that now are menacing the smaller boats.

Conference May Be Important.

An important conference was expected later today on the battleship Connecticut between Admiral Mayo and the commanders of the Mexican Federal gunboats which steamed out of the Panuco river into the harbor yesterday, following the evacuation of the city by Huerta's forces.

American representatives to the mediation conference conferred today with state department officials, and the South American mediators were waiting for definite word from Huerta's representatives, who were expected to reach Havana today.

No Word From Silliman.

State department officers still were waiting with some anxiety for definite word from Vice Consul Silliman, who had been imprisoned at Saltillo. Nothing has been heard officially in Silliman's case since the Brazilian minister reported that orders for his release had been telegraphed by the

MILITANT CAMPS ON CARSON'S DOORSTEP

Mrs. Drummond Appeals to Him to Save Her From Arrest.

London, May 14.—"General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, leader of the militant suffragettes, today pitched her camp on the doorstep of Sir Edward Carson's residence in Eaton place and informed the Ulster Unionist leader that she, as a militant, had come to him as another militant to seek his protection from arrest.

Mrs. Drummond had been summoned to appear at the police court this afternoon in connection with her campaign of militancy. As she had made up her mind not to appear before the magistrate, she expected to be arrested and declared that she would remain on Sir Edward Carson's doorstep and appeal to him for protection when the police arrived to take her into custody.

Mrs. Dacre-Fox, another prominent militant, who also had been summoned to appear at the police court on a charge of inciting women to commit crime, appealed to the marquis of Lansdowne, Unionist leader in the house of lords at his residence in Berkeley square. She hammered at the door for a long time, attracting a big crowd, before she was arrested by the police.

TROOPS BLOW UP BARRACKS AS THEY FLEE

Defeated Huertistas May Set Fire to Big Oil Tanks.

Daniels Authorizes Sending of American Boats to City.

Rebels Likely to Seek to Import Arms at Captured Port.

Washington, May 14.—Further confirmation of the fall of Tampico into the hands of the Constitutionalists was received at the navy department today in a message from Admiral Mayo, transmitted through Admiral Badger.

This report says the Mexican Federal gunboat Vera Cruz still was up the river at the railway bridge.

Admiral Mayo further reported that the Federal troops blew up their barracks before retiring from the city. By 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, he said, the firing practically had ceased.

The captains of the Mexican Federal gunboats Bravo and Zaragoza, which came down the Panuco river from Tampico yesterday afternoon, have asked Rear Admiral Mayo for an interview, and he has informed them that he will receive them on board the Connecticut.

Ask U. S. Protection.

Three Mexican gunboats, crowded with Federal soldiers who escaped from Tampico yesterday when the last stronghold of Provisional President Huerta on the eastern seaboard of Mexico was taken by the Constitutionalist army, were today under the protecting guns of Rear Admiral Mayo's squadron of American warships.

Off Tampico.

It is probable that among the Federal officers on the Mexican warships is the commander whose refusal to comply with Rear Admiral Mayo's demand for a salute to the Stars and Stripes in reparation for an insult to the American flag precipitated the American occupation of the port of Vera Cruz.

With the fall of Tampico, the line of advance of the Constitutional forces toward the south has been drawn from

VILLA READY FOR SALTILLO

He Has 25,000 Men Mobilized for Attack on That City.

Hopes for Supply of Ammunition From United States.

Torreon, Mex., May 14.—The mobilization of rebel troops for the campaign against Saltillo came to a close last night when the last units left Torreon, accompanied by Gen. Villa and staff. This concentration has brought together an army of 25,000 men to test the strength of the Federal stronghold.

Villa has given instructions that the movements of his army be kept secret for the present. Instead of enforcing a rigid censorship, as formerly, he has exacted a promise from press representatives that nothing concerning the disposition of his troops be sent out.

"To establish rebel government throughout Mexico we need ammunition—more ammunition than we now have—and I am willing that the government of the United States shall supervise the importation of it," said Villa in commenting on newspaper reports purporting to indicate that President Wilson and others would be glad to see the rebels take Mexico City and end the present unrest in Mexico.

Must Get Ammunition.

"How can we take Mexico City if we have no ammunition?" asked Villa. "We must get ammunition after the fighting at Saltillo, as our supply then will be depleted.

"Of course the United States government must keep in mind the possibility that some one might provoke war between the two countries. It would be injudicious, to say the least, under such conditions, to permit the unlimited importation of ammunition into a country with which battles might have to be fought.

"For that reason I am willing to have a commission ascertain the amount of ammunition we need when Mexico City is taken with a view to having the embargo lifted on the quantity we require for that purpose.

Would Limit the Amount.

"A commission such as I propose easily could ascertain the amount of ammunition required by us to carry out our plans. Needless to say, the ammunition admitted by such a commission into Mexico would not be large enough to leave much, if any, after our operations for war with the United States, which, by the way, is the very last thing I think possible. Meanwhile we would do what we set out to do."

CATTLE ARE CONDEMNED

Thirty-Eight Cows in One Dairy Must Be Killed.

Dr. Robert Dixon, city veterinarian, has condemned thirty-eight cows out of a herd of 177, belonging to Bergtold & Ryan, Woodland dairymen, for tuberculosis.

The sweeping condemnation, one of the most startling developments in the history of local dairies, was made after Dr. Dixon had made a thorough test of the herd. All of those condemned showed positive reactions. In no other year, and probably in no two years combined, have so many cows been condemned as were condemned by the veterinarian.

Under the state law all of them will have to be killed. The maximum compensation which can be recovered is $35 for each cow slaughtered, or a total of $1,330. The owners would not have sold them for a considerably larger sum. Twenty of the thirty-eight are said to be fresh milch cows. Several are reported to have been under six months of age, indicating that they inherited or contracted the disease from other members of the herd.

The authorities state that the conditions at this dairy lead to the conclusion that some of the previous tests were not thorough, as they would in all probability have developed the fact that part of the cows were afflicted with tuberculosis.

"The elimination of these cows will greatly improve the standard of the herd, removing all danger," said Dr. H. E. Webster, director of public health, when he was asked about the wholesale condemnation. "No one need have any fears of using milk coming from the dairy, as all the tubercular cows have now been weeded out."

PLACING BLAME FOR ACCIDENT

Case of Injuries to Coal Dock Laborer Goes to Jury.

Responsibility for an accident which left Joseph E. Wickman, a strong, healthy coal dock laborer, a physical wreck, will be fixed by a jury which retired late this afternoon to consider the personal injury case which Wickman brought against the Pittsburg Coal company. The case, which has been on trial since Monday morning, went to the jury this afternoon. Closing arguments were made this morning by Samuel A. Anderson of St. Paul for the plaintiff and I. K. Lewis for the defendant.

Wickman is suing for $25,000 damages. He claims that while he was working on top of a sixty-five-foot rig on one of the Duluth docks of the defendant company his clothing became caught in a set screw on a revolving shaft and he was whirled around at the speed of 100 revolutions per minute. Barely escaping death, he came out of the accident with several broken ribs and a dislocated neck. The injury left him a life long cripple. The question that will be submitted to the jury is whether the company was negligent in not furnishing him a safe place in which to work, or whether his own negligence contributed to the accident.

JURISDICTION DETERMINED

Actions for Malfeasance of Administrators Confined to Probate Court.

Law suits involving charges of malfeasance on the part of administrators resulting in actionable damages to heirs are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the probate court and are not properly triable in the district court, according to a decision which was handed down by Judge Dancer in district court today.

Judge Dancer, on this ground, sustained a demurrer which had been interposed to the complaint of the heirs of the late John Stream in a district court action to recover $775.05 from Andrew D. Ellefson, administrator of the estate. The heirs are Signa Stream Winters, Naomi Stream and Esther S. Stream, daughters.

John Stream, their father, died April 8, 1905, and among other things left real estate interests located in section 25, 63-12 and section 6, 62-12. Ellefson assumed charge of the affairs of the estate as administrator Oct. 5, 1905, and was discharged after filing a final account on Sept. 25, 1911.

In the suit brought by the heirs against Ellefson, it was charged that he was derelict in his duty and failed to protect the estate against tax title sharks. The claim is made that he failed to redeem certain descriptions of land from the tax sales and that as a result the property was lost on a tax title. The amount of the loss is estimated as $775.05.

WILL OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Despite the fact that Memorial day this year falls on Saturday, the biggest day for merchants, Duluth stores will remain closed during the entire day.

At the dinner and meeting of the Duluth Retail Merchants' association held at the Spalding hotel last evening, the above action was taken by about thirty members, who were present. It was decided to remain open Friday evening, May 29, and to close all the stores on Saturday, in observance of Memorial day.

John J. Moe, president of the association, presided at the meeting, during which an interesting talk on "Advertising" was made by W. B. Brinkman of the George A. Gray company.

"LI'L ARTHA," AAD'S FAMOUS GOAT, HAS BEEN RECAPTURED

Most Traveled "Butter" of the Age Once More in Possession of Tom Bradley—Under Strong Guard.

Life only more is sweet as nectar for Tom P. Bradley, past potentate of Aad temple of Duluth, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

For why? He is once more in possession of Li'l Artha, Aad's goat.

The Herald received the following telegram at noon from Mr. Bradley, who is at Atlanta attending the meeting of the imperial council of the order:

"Li'l Artha, again in possession of its rightful owners, will arrive home with the boys if nothing unforeseen happens. Keeping him under strong guard."

Li'l Artha is, without question, the most traveled goat of the age. If he ever gets back to Duluth this year, despite the statement of Mr. Bradley that he is under strong guard, the Shriners of Duluth will be the most surprised desert survivors in North America. This animal has been stolen more times, has seen more sights, and has been more carefully attended and guarded than, perhaps, any other goat that ever lived. He has a remarkable history.

Li'l Artha came into the possession of Aad temple about one year ago, just after Mr. Bradley became potentate of the temple. Mr. Bradley and a trainload of Shriners from Duluth, went to St. Paul to attend a ceremonial of Osman temple, of which the mischief-making J. Harry Lewis was then potentate. Mr. Lewis took particular pains to see that the "baby pote," Mr. Bradley, was given more than special attention. The result was that he was surfeited with it, smothered with it and in fact Mr. Lewis "got it on" Mr. Bradley to such an extent that the latter rashly said:

"Lewis, I'll get your goat if it takes a thousand years."

Mr. Lewis remembered that remark. Shortly afterwards Aad temple gave a ceremonial. During the doings of the Shrine girls, Mr. Lewis was called upon for a speech. To the astonishment of everybody he walked out from behind the scenes leading a nifty little goat by a string. Handing the string to Mr. Bradley, he said:

"Tom, you said you would get my goat. Here it is. You've got it."

The animal was instantly named "Li'l Artha." The Osman visitors tried to steal it that night but failed; before their train went out, however, Li'l Artha was on board and that was the last Aad saw of him until last fall, when he was brought to another ceremonial, returned to Mr. Bradley and immediately became the object of almost every visiting Shriner. He was stolen by Noble Jones, known as "Oklahoma Jack," who wanted to take him back to Oklahoma City with him. Duluth Shriners, however, double-crossed Mr. Jones and got him away. St. Paul Shriners again succeeded in stealing the goat.

Since then Osman temple went to Panama and took Li'l Artha along under heavy guard. He was treated royally, but on the way back at New Orleans, the Dallas Shriners stole him. Warrants were sworn out for their arrest and a number of them were held in jail for several hours until they got bonds. These secured they were released. Of course it was all a joke, but it was a case where the Dallas men, who thought to have a joke on the Osman men, were caught at their own game.

Since then Li'l Artha took a trip to Manila, P. I., with the Seattle Shriners, who went there to initiate about 100 eligibles in the islands. They returned only recently, visiting Honolulu and Japan, and took Li'l Artha to Atlanta with them. He rode in a special car with two attendants, whose instructions were that only one of them could sleep at a time. He was returned, according to agreement made months ago to Mr. Bradley. How long the latter will have the goat is still a question.

WILL BUILD COAL DOCK

Northwestern Fuel Company Secures Vacation of Submerged Street.

The members of the city council agreed informally this morning to vacate the portion of Elm avenue, Rice's Point, which is submerged, in order to make way for extensive improvements at that point.

City Attorney Harvey Clapp reported that part of the avenue has already been vacated, and as the commissioners felt that the remaining portion would never be of value or use to the city they felt that they should not stand in the way of the contemplated improvements.

The Northwestern Fuel company is planning the construction of a large dock on that part of the harbor. It is asserted that the dock will cost $500,000 and that the expense of acquiring the property will be about $150,000. The dock will cover the avenue, which is about seventy-five feet wide, but above it a slip 150 feet wide will be dredged out.

AUTO FOR HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Believed It Will Save Salary of One Inspector.

The health department is likely to be the next branch of the city administration to be equipped with an automobile.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken, head of the division of public safety, submitted the proposition to other members of the council at an informal meeting this morning and it seemed to meet with general approval.

The machine would be used for the outside work of the department and it is claimed that it would not only increase efficiency but would prove an economy. A light car, costing between $450 and $500, would be secured. This would be driven by the inspectors in investigating sanitary complaints and visiting contagious disease cases.

Commissioner Hicken states that the runabout would enable the department to dispense with the necessity of hiring another inspector. One man was laid off during the quiet period two months ago and if the car is available the pay-roll would not have to be increased. The salary of an inspector would amount to $900 per year, or nearly twice the cost of the car, it is explained. It is stated that it could also be used for conveying some of the contagious disease patients to the hospital. Many of these are not very ill and could easily make the trip in the auto with the inspector. In this way the bills of the department would be further decreased. One-half the cost would be borne by the general fund and one-half by the health department fund.

Commissioner Hicken will probably advertise for bids for this car at the same time he advertises for prices on a car to be stationed at New Duluth for the police station. By purchasing two machines at one time he may be able to secure a better price. The health department car will be a two-passenger and that for the New Duluth police will be a five-passenger machine.

COURT TO SETTLE CONTRACT DISPUTE

A dispute over a contract to furnish and install electrical equipment in a local boiler works is being aired in a lawsuit which was brought to trial yesterday afternoon before Judge Bert Fesler and a district court jury.

William M. Trichtler, doing business as the Trichtler Electric company, is suing the Gogebic Steam Boiler works for $843.91, which he alleges is due him as a balance on his account with the company for his services under a contract to equip the Duluth Boiler works with certain electrical apparatus.

The Gogebic Steam Boiler works denies the liability and counterclaims damages in the sum of $746.41, charging that owing to the "faulty, defective and unworkmanlike installation" of the equipment put in by Trichtler, it was found necessary to have the job done over again and replace a large portion of the equipment.

In Judge Dancer's court this morning, a jury was drawn to try the action which the Barthe-Martin company has against Richard T. Bennett, Walter R. Mathews and George E. Lindberg, doing business under the name of Bennett's cafeteria. On Jan. 1, 1914, plaintiffs claim the defendants were indebted to them in the sum of $693.58, of which no part has been paid and for which judgment is asked.

CRIMINALS SCARCE AMONG THE "Q'S"

For the first time in five years, W. R. Wesson, deputy clerk of the district, this morning had occasion to turn to the "Q's" in his index ledger of criminal cases. The opportunity presented itself when one John Quisto was arraigned under an indictment charging him with robbery.

Although several hundred criminal cases have been handled in district court during the lest five years, until this morning none had been arraigned whose surname started with "q."

Quisto was indicted jointly with Elias Kickalo for robbery in the first degree. They are accused of having "strong-armed" Mike Alapera at Cedar Valley, near Floodwood, March 3, and to have taken from him $120 in cash. Kickalo was arraigned last week, but Quisto was not apprehended until later. The men will probably be brought to trial Monday. Quisto entered a plea of not guilty this morning. Judge Fesler appointed John Brown, a local attorney, to defend the men.

DANDELIONS ARE BLOOMING AGAIN.

Dandelions have made their appearance in Duluth.

The little yellow weeds are the sure harbingers of summer.

Countless methods of eliminating dandelions have been suggested, but those who have tried most of them say the only way to get the better of them on a lawn is to dig as many of the weeds as possible out by the roots, plant clover seed, and then keep the grass clipped short while the dandelions are blossoming.

ELEVATOR WILL BE REBUILT

Contract Let to Barnett & Record By Cargill Company.

The contract for rebuilding the working house of the Belt Line elevator, destroyed by fire on April 25, was let by the Cargill Elevator company today to the Barnett & Record company. Work is to be begun at once with a view to the plant being ready for operation not later than Sept. 15.

The house is to be rebuilt of wood for the reason that there is not sufficient time to erect one of fireproof construction between now and next fall.

It will be modern in every particular and will have a capacity of unloading eighty cars of grain a day, and with their other house it will afford the Cargill interests a total holding capacity of 160 cars daily, and a total storage capacity of nearly 5,000,000 bushels at the Head of the Lakes.

EDICT FOR OWNERS OF STRAY CHICKENS

Arrests Will Follow Complaints, Says City Prosecutor Gurnee.

Keep your chickens in your own back yard, or you may be arrested.

This is the edict given out this morning by City Prosecutor Gurnee, who said that a number of complaints are being made to him daily by residents from all parts of the city, and that unless chicken owners are more careful in the future, arrests will surely follow.

There is a city ordinance that specifically forbids permitting chickens to run about on streets or in other people's yards. A violation of this ordinance constitutes a misdemeanor and places the defendant in a position to receive a stiff fine or sentence in the county jail.

The poundmasters were all put to work last Sunday and they have been instructed to keep a watch on all chicken yards, to see if the fowls are straying about. They have been instructed to impound the chickens, which will mean a cost of twenty-five cents a day to the owners.

TRAIN KILLS SECTION HAND

M. Zigich Meets Instant Death When Struck By Fond du Lac Train.

While carrying some wood across the tracks in the Northern Pacific yards, Mojsya Zigich, 54 years old, section hand for the railroad, was struck and instantly killed by the Fond du Lac short line train at 8:45 o'clock this morning. Zigich failed to see the oncoming train as he came from behind a string of boxcars.

Zigich was severely cut and mangled by the engine, which struck him a glancing blow throwing him some distance. He was picked up by other section hands, who saw the accident. Coroner McComb was notified, and he ordered the body removed to the Crawford undertaking rooms, where it is being held pending funeral arrangements.

Zigich came to Duluth last January, when he secured employment as a section hand for the Northern Pacific railroad. He was married and leaves a widow and three children in Austria, from which country he came to the United States seven years ago. A brother is believed to be residing somewhere in the East, although his present address is unknown.

Zigich made his home at a Garfield avenue boarding house.

OBITUARY

C. H. Hansen, Danish consul at Chicago, is dead, aged 72.

Patrick Donohue, 94 years old, the oldest resident of Winona county, Minnesota, is dead at his home at St. Charles. He took up a government claim in the county in 1860 and lived there until he retired fifteen years ago.

Reuben Morey is dead at his home in Cottage Grove of heart trouble. He had been a prominent business man in Hastings, Minn., and in the early eighties was proprietor of the International hotel in St. Paul. He is survived by a widow and three daughters, Mrs. Charles Shellenbarger of Sidney, Mont.; Mrs. P. J. Tierney of St. Paul, and Mrs. Harry Nelson of St. Anthony Park.

E. R. Petherick, 88 years old, well known as an author and newspaper writer, is dead at his home in Madison, Wis., of heart failure. He had been in failing health for two years.

Mr. Petherick was best known as "Uncle Dick" to thousands of friends and newspaper readers in every part of Wisconsin. He was born in London, Eng., in 1847, and came to Sun Prairie, Wis., in 1849. At Madison, Mr. Petherick began his newspaper work as city editor of the Madison State Journal. He edited a newspaper at Eau Claire, and from 1894 to 1897, he worked on newspapers in Milwaukee. As political reporter and legislative correspondent he enjoyed the acquaintance and confidence of public men to an extent perhaps never surpassed in Wisconsin newspaper history.

In 1896, during Governor Scofield's administration, Mr. Petherick was named a member of the state board of control. He served for five years. During the last six years he was crier in the Federal court. He is survived by his widow.

"SOME NAME."

Houston Texas United States Bond is the name of the new clerk of the Spalding hotel. Yes, this is true; that is the full and complete name of the young man.

Mr. Bond was born in Chicago, but his uncle was born in Houston, Tex., and part of his name was gathered from that fact. The United States part was added on for sentiment, or perhaps to equalize the geographical spread of thought, and Bond came last.

Mr. Bond declares that he does not use his full name, and will not repeat it, unless the trouble with Mexico becomes intensified and he would enlist.

RAILROAD MEN ON INSPECTION TOUR

George T. Slade, first vice president of the Northern Pacific; J. M. Rapelje, assistant general passenger agent of the same line, who has been recently promoted to that position from the position of general superintendent; and C. L. Nichols, general superintendent of the line, reached the Head of the Lakes today in Mr. Slade's private car.

The Northern Pacific officials are on a tour of inspection of the line, having left St. Paul last Tuesday. Most of the day will be spent in Superior, the Ashland division of the Northern Pacific being the branch of the road that is being inspected today. The Lake Superior division of the Northern Pacific will be inspected before the return of the officials to St. Paul.

MacRae Is Recovering.
Word was received here today that George M. MacRae, general passenger agent of the Omaha, and a railroad man who is very well known at the Head of the Lakes, has recovered from the severe illness of the last few months. Mr. MacRae came to the Northwestern curling spiel and while here was taken with a severe cold. Later the cold developed into complications and resulted in the severe illness of the passenger official. Mr. MacRae will go to Old Point Comfort, Va., for a few weeks.

NOT COMMON SYSTEM.

Omaha and Northwestern Roads Contend They Are Separate.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—Vigorous protest was entered yesterday at a joint rate hearing before the state railroad and warehouse commision by counsel for the Northwestern and the Omaha railroads against that portion of a tentative rate order declaring these two carriers part of a common system.

Carl C. Wright of Chicago appeared for the Northwestern and J. B. Sheean of St. Paul for the Omaha.

By not being treated as separate systems the roads assert the revenue would be seriously reduced. Shipments originating on the Northwestern on its Southern Minnesota lines are transferred to the Omaha before reaching St. Paul. The joint rate basis is 85 per cent of the sum of the local tariffs. Wheat coming into St. Paul from a point 100 miles away, 75 miles over the Omaha and 25 miles over the Northwestern, would carry a joint rate of 9.595 cents per 1,000 pounds, but wheat carried 100 miles over a continuous system, as the order contemplates making these two roads, carries a commodity rate of but 7.8 cents, a loss of 1.795 cents under this rule.

Mr. Wright caused surprise when he said the Northwestern and the Omaha could have succeeded in having the injunction as to the state rates growing out of the Minnesota rate case continued as to them, as it has been as to the Great Western and Minneapolis & St. Louis, had it not been for competitive conditions.

The hearing adjourned until May 26, when rates lumber and coal schedules will be discussed.

This afternoon afternoon a little 5-year-old girl, daughter of Harvey L. Pittman, 618 Fifth avenue east, was badly burned, her clothes becoming ignited while she and other children were playing about a bonfire near her home.

The little girl ran about in a panic and before the flames could be extinguished she was very dangerously burned.

Strange New Drug Stops Scalp Itching

(From Advanced Science.)

"Ever since this paper published the discovery of that eminent London specialist, Prof. J. B. Hobbes-Curtin, that the drug quintone could be used for the successful treatment of eczema on the scalp, it has been growing in popularity.

"The treatment is simple and is used as a household remedy by many. Get two ounces of quintone from the druggist, dissolve it in one-half pint of hot water, and apply the solution twice daily to the affected surfaces.

"Not only has quintone proven invaluable for treatment of eczema on the scalp, but it has been successfully used for salt rheum, eczema, tetter, ringworm and other itching skin eruptions." —Advertisement.

THE COLUMBIA SHOE ANNEX

is one of the busiest mercantile spots in Duluth. There are only a very few exclusive shoe stores that carry more stock or do a greater annual shoe business.

We are sole agents here for the famous Hanan Shoes (for men and women), and our own Columbia $3.50 shoe (also for men and women) is generally acknowledged as the leader at that price owing to the close margin of profit at which we sell it.

We regret to announce the resignation of Ed Smith, who has been for more than ten years the manager of our Shoe Department. Ed is now a partner in the newly formed Smith Shoe Co., and we wish him Godspeed and good luck in his new field.

His successor is F. E. Blodgett, one of the best known shoe experts in Duluth, and he with the assistance of H. Evju, will welcome customers, old and new.

SCHOOL TEACHER WORKS WONDERS

Congressman Miller Talks on Educational Work in Philippines.

"The work of the American school teacher in the Philippines has been little short of marvelous and the system of industrial education on the islands is the most thorough of any in the world," said Congressman Clarence B. Miller in an illustrated address before the members of the John G. McEwen camp, Spanish War Veterans, at Memorial hall last evening. He talked on his recent trip made in behalf of the house Philippines committee.

Mr. Miller illustrated his talk with pictures taken by himself during his visit through the islands. He described conditions there and gave a complete account of the system of government and education. During the evening musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Edgar G. Smith and Miss Bernice Haverly.

"The population of the Philippines," said Mr. Miller, "consists of 6,800,000 Christians and 1,200,000 non-Christians or wild people. All are satisfied under American domination and enthusiastic over the progress their country has made under American rule.

"As soon as fighting had ceased on the islands the American school teacher appeared and his work has been little short of marvelous. In every town in the Philippines there is now, thanks to the efforts of the teachers, a primary school, a grade school and a high school. The system of industrial education through all the school system is more complete and more adapted to the needs of the people than any other school system in the world."

MASONS ADOPT NEW SUMMER PLAN

Will Confer Degrees With Entirely New Corps of Workers.

The Scottish Rite Masons will begin a series of meetings this evening which will mark an innovation in the work of the order. Heretofore, after the spring reunion, the work of initiation and conferring of degrees, work practically ceased until fall, but this year the work will be continued until the new class will have received the thirtieth degree.

Another new thing is that the regular workers of the degrees will have nothing to do during the conferring of the degrees on the class, an entirely new corps taking up the work.

The class numbers thirty-six and the work will begin this evening at the Masonic temple.

FRATERNITY MEN ENJOY BANQUET

Twenty-eight members of the Epsilon chapter of the Delta Sigma Nu fraternity were present at the Founders' day banquet held at the Commercial club last evening. An elaborate dinner was served and a program of speeches and toasts was given.

Among the speakers was Hans B. Haroldson, who spoke on "Old Times." Charles Cargill sang and Ray W. Fenton acted as toastmaster. The program was largely reminiscent and many events and incidents of school days were recalled.

ARNESON PROMISES SWEEPING REFORMS

Candidate for Railroad and Warehouse Commission Says He Will Protect Shippers and Abolish Soft Jobs.

James Arneson, formerly of Chisholm, who has filed for the Republican nomination for state railroad and warehouse commissioner, has just issued a platform in which he promises that if he is elected there will be sweeping reforms in the work of departments under the commission or he will know the reason why. He promises the shippers of grain will receive proper protection from crooked firms; that there will be a better system of grading than there is now, and that he will abolish "soft snaps" and relegate professional politicians to the scrap heap. Mr. Arneson says in part:

"No heavier tax is imposed on the people of Minnesota than that of careless enforcement of the laws regulating shipments of grain and farm produce. We elect a railroad and warehouse commission which is specifically charged with the duty of standing as the legal protector of all shippers. They are also charged with the duty of compelling railroads to provide clean, sanitary equipment and reasonable comfort to the traveling public. They are charged with many other duties, but I deem the paramount duty of the commission to be along the lines of public service to the great number of our citizens who have daily transactions with the big public service corporations.

"In this enlightened age it should be impossible for crooked firms or individuals to deal in the products of the farm. That such people should be permitted to establish their own grades, pay their own prices, and in many instances perpetrate a pure game of bunco by making trivial claims of "shortage," "spoiled in transit," etc. clearly shows the need for new blood in the antiquated system of this department.

"I know of shippers who have been swindled out of their entire consignment and have no redress except a civil suit against individuals who are judgment proof. A fine state of affairs when we have on the statute books laws providing that no person or firm can deal in produce or grain in this state without first obtaining a license and giving a sufficient bond for the protection of the shipper. Should I be elected, my solemn promise to the people of the state is that this law will be enforced without fear or favor.

"But by no means least is the complaint of the small shipper, whose grievance is entitled to just as much consideration as that of his stronger competitor. In all fairness, I think it is no more than right that the commission get out and meet the public face to face at least once a year. They are furnished railroad passes and liberal expense accounts for this purpose, and the law specifically commands them to do it.

"Instead of giving its aid and advice to the solution of the evils resulting from discriminations in freight rates, the commission has sought by all means within its power to obstruct proposed remedial legislation, and I dare say the distance tariff law passed by the last legislature will be made as obnoxious and as unworkable as possible because of the arbitrary application of its provisions.

"The members of the commission are doing just what other men have done before them. They are, no doubt, honest, capable men, but they are living in the dead past, when the need is for men with modern ideas of law enforcement. The people of Minnesota should not forget that our terminal markets have grown to immense proportions, and therefore men are needed on the railroad commission who are big enough and broad enough to deal fairly with every interest within our great state."

BRYAN TALKS ABOUT THE MEXICAN POLICY

Secretary Speaks at Political Rally at Wilkesbarre.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 14.—William J. Bryan, secretary of state, was the principal speaker at a political rally here last night in the interest of the state "reorganization" Democratic ticket, headed by A. Mitchell Palmer for United States senator and Vance C. McCormick for governor. Mr. Bryan pleaded for support of the ticket, saying its success will mean the endorsement of the national administration's policies.

Referring to the Mexican situation, Secretary Bryan said:

"The Mexican question was a legacy from the Taft administration, yet the president has put more of thought on it than on any other question with which he has had to deal. It is the problem that has weighed more upon his heart than any other. He is trying to solve it so as to maintain the nation's honor and do it through peaceful means. His course has not been pleasing to everyone. His course does not give as much occasion for big headlines or allow others to boast as they might of their willingness to have some one else killed. Yet I think in dealing with this problem he is expressing the sentiment of the American people and that he has the American people back of him."

CHESTERFIELD IS SHARPLY REBUKED

W. C. Sargent Finds Role of Good Samaritan and Instructor in Manners a Thankless One.

William C. Sargent has gone out of the Good Samaritan business, temporarily at least.

He has also permanently forsworn the Chesterfieldian role of instructor in good manners.

Yesterday Mr. Sargent was walking up Lake avenue. At the alley above Superior street a teamster was in difficulties. His horse was hitched to a light delivery wagon, and the hold back strap had broken. The driver was standing on the whiffletree, trying to adjust matters, and the horse showed signs of kicking the entire front of the wagon into kindling wood and making a mess of the driver. Mr. Sargent sprang to the rescue, seized a wheel of the wagon and drew it back from the horse's heels.

The driver sprang to the ground, but ignored the man who had come to his assistance.

"What did you say?" inquired Mr. Sargent, as a means of gently reminding the driver that a "thank you" might be in good taste and clubby.

"I said, 'Go to hell,'" said the driver, and Mr. Sargent stole softly away.

The First Norwegian Lutheran choir under the direction of John Olsen, and numbering about twenty, will leave for Minneapolis, Saturday, to take part in the program and festivities which will be held there Sunday and Monday next on the 100th anniversary of Norway's independence.

Invitations were sent out to about 130 choirs all over the Northwest and a monster chorus of about 1,900 voices is now assured. Meetings will be held in the big Hippodrome building on the fair grounds and patriotic Norwegian and American airs will be sung. ESTATE OF MARY LAWLER IN PROBATE

Woman Shot By Brother-in-Law Left Property Valued at $800.

An estate valued at $800 was left by Mary Lawler, who was shot and killed by her brother-in-law, Charles Patrick Lawler, in a room at the Astoria hotel April 10, according to a petition filed in probate court yesterday. Agnes Blaski, sister, asks that letters of administration be issued to Walter Grams, 727 West Seventh street. The estate consists principally of real estate situated in St. Louis county.

Mrs. Lawler is survived by four sisters and three brothers, who are Agnes Blaski and Anna Grams of Duluth, Lillian Datka of Minneapolis, Margaret Datka of Los Angeles, Cal., Lawrence Datka, John Datka and Michael Datka of Duluth. The heirs are represented by Walter Gonska. Charles P. Lawler, who shot the woman during a drunken frenzy, is now under indictment for first degree murder. He is now confined to a local hospital, where he is suffering from a severe mental and physical breakdown. His attorney, T. J. McKeon, will probably seek to have a lunacy commission appointed by the court to look into the man's mental condition.

Automobiles have been promised to the old soldiers and their wives, for the march to the cemetery. The parade will leave the city hall at 10 a. m., and at the cemetery the Grand Army ritual will be said. Judge L. G. Pendergast, a member of the post, will deliver the address at the cemetery that is a part of the ritual.

Preus Will Speak.

Other exercises are to be held at the city hall at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Speaking, songs by several school children as well as soloists, a flag drill by several school children and addresses are scheduled. Practical assurance has been made that the speakers will include J. A. O. Preus, commissioner of insurance from St. Paul, Minn.; P. J. Russell, city attorney of Bemidji and F. A. AMENDMENTS EXPLAINED

Arguments for Progressive Measures Made at Social Center.

Dr. Day Outlines Working of the Initiative and Referendum.

The initiative, referendum and recall, the change in the number of supreme court judges from five to seven, and the amendment requiring the decision of at least five of the supreme court justices to nullify an act of the legislature, were advocated as amendments that should be supported by the voters at the general election this fall by Frank Crassweller and Dr. David Henry Day at the meeting of the social center of the Bryant school last night.

These amendments of the eleven that will go before the people this fall were said by the speakers to be the most important. Mr. Crassweller laid stress on the fact that the passage of these will place more directly the reins of the government in the hands of the people.

Dr. Day clearly explained the process of the initiative and referendum. He said:

How Laws Are Made.

"Let us understand first how our laws are made. It is a wierd and wonderful process; a sort of farce comedy affair, when you get right down to bottom facts.

"The people elect John Smith as a representative and John Jones as a senator from their particular district, and send them down to St. Paul, there to join their wisdom and experience with other senators and representatives from all over the state, this joint wisdom and experience to be used in making the laws which govern us and in spending the money collected from the people in the form of taxes, for the various public needs of the people of the entire state.

"And the people, trusting in the honor and integrity of John Smith and John Jones to truly look out for the interests of the whole state, stay at home and pursue their regular occupations.

"But the railroads, the breweries, the telephone and telegraph companies, the street railway, gas and electric lighting companies, and other special interests are not so trustful. They know that John Smith and John Jones are drawing mighty small salaries. They also know that John Smith and John Jones are very anxious to get certain things done for their particular localities. They also know that John Smith and John Jones will be asked to vote for the bills of other senators and representatives in return for the votes which they will get for their own pet measures. In other words the special interests know the game. So they pack up their grips and go right down to St. Paul with John Smith and John Jones; stop at the same hotel with them; go up to the capitol with them, and stick right with them all the time. For these special interests propose to see to it personally that such laws as are passed shall meet with their approval. They know human nature and are taking no chances. They are right on the job all of the time. They have at the present time—a member of the Smith family—not John this time—keeping a watchful eye on the governor to see that he does nothing that would work harm to their vested rights—or wrongs.

What People Can Do.

"With such a condition of affairs it is small wonder that the rights of the people receive such scant consideration in the making of our laws.

"And what are we going to do about it?

"Why, we're going to put the people themselves on the job of watching legislation by means of the initiative and referendum.

"The initiative, simply stated, means that where the legislature refuses to pass a law that the people demand, the people themselves shall have the power to make that law. And when a law is once made by the people no one, not even the governor of the state can veto it. A law, once made by the people, can only be changed by the people.

"In actual practice, of course, the initiative is seldom used. When the legislature receives one of those initiative petitions the members generally become pretty well convinced that the people who signed the petition mean business, and so the legislature itself passes the bill and the submission of the question to the people is not necessary.

"The initiative is simply the voice of the people saying in no uncertain tone: 'You are our servants, not our masters. We want this bill to become a law. If you won't act, we will.'

"The referendum simply takes the veto power out of the hands of one man and places it in the hands of the people themselves, should they, by signing a proper petition, demand such action.

How Initiative Works.

"Thus, if the legislature should pass a law that the people were convinced was unjust or oppressive they could, by signing a proper petition, have that law referred to them at a state election and either accept or reject it as they see fit.

"Thus there will be no opportunity for a legislature to pass bad laws that the people of the state don't want, or for the governor of the state to veto good laws that the people do want—as was done in several instances at the last session of our own legislature.

"The initiative and referendum cause the people to take an interest in legislative matters that they would not otherwise take for the reason that the people know that it is 'up to them,' and that they are now in reality truly governing themselves—a thing that they have never been allowed to do before."

CROP OUTLOOK AIDS JOBBERS

Trade in Staple Groceries, Hardware and Woolens Is Good.

Normal Conditions Reported in North Dakota and Michigan.

Improvement is reported to be the rule this week in the volume of business being taken by Duluth jobbers. Confidence is said to be growing as a result of the present bright agricultural prospects. According to reports seeding operations have been completed through North and South Dakota and Montana. It is also estimated that excepting in a few low-lying districts in the Red River valley, the wheat seeding is nearly finished in this state.

The local wholesalers are pursuing a policy of covering their grounds more closely, and with good result from a standpoint of increased bookings.

Sugar Market Higher.

Trade in groceries, staples and features is steadily improving, according to the Rust-Parker-Martin company of this city and the Twohy-Elmon Mercantile company of Superior. The distribution of goods through this territory is said to be good, with retailers showing a disposition to anticipate their requirements in view of the firmer market prevailing in some commodities.

After selling down to the lowest point in years through the winter, the market in sugars is stiffening, quotations being advanced fifteen points this week in all grades. The demand is heavier as dealers are ordering to cover preserving requirements.

Coffees are now steady, but the large jobbers are buying from hand to mouth in view of the primary movement being still ahead of the last two years while a large Brazilian crop of the berry is expected this year.

The situation in teas is unchanged, but high-grade Japans are reported scarce and a cleanup of old stocks is expected before the marketing of the new crop begins.

In dried fruits futures in prunes have been advanced 30 per cent during the last few days on the expectation that this season's Californian yield will be only from 40 to 60 per cent of a normal crop. Rolled oats have advanced 25 cents a barrel this week and the rice market is strong. The first delivery of Norway herring is expected in Duluth within the next few days. Its quotation will be the lowest in some time, attributable to the large catch and the removal of the former duty of $1 per barrel.

Dry Goods Trade Active.

Current business in general dry goods is reported as fully up to expectations by F. A. Patrick & Co. Mail orders continue to make a good showing in the aggregate. The house advises that the output of its factories is sold well up to the fall in its Northern wool products. Nearly 600 operatives are now being employed in its manufacturing departments. A substantial market is thus afforded for fleece wool to sheep raisers in this district. Buyers are now out contracting for supplies.

Improved Footwear Call.

A substantial sorting up call in footwear is advised by the Northern Shoe company. Northern Michigan and Northern Wisconsin are proving the best productive grounds at present for the company's salesmen. Business originating from the Spokane territory, including Montana, Idaho and Washington, is said to be aggregating about double last year's volume.

From present indications the outlook for the fall trade in shoes is regarded as most favorable.

Furniture Orders Satisfactory.

Bookings in furniture lines are reported by the De Witt-Seitz company to be making a favorable comparison with last year. The output of the company's mattress factory for April was the largest for the month since it started operations nearly four years ago. Good orders are being taken by salesmen covering North Dakota, and business from over Northern Michigan has become nearly normal. Trade is also found to be developing nicely from over Northern Wisconsin.

Hardware Prices Steady.

The two Duluth hardware establishments, the Marshall-Wells Hardware company and the Kelley-How-Thomson company, aver that spring shipments in all lines have been in gratifying volume. A strong call has been met with in paints and oils and bookings of staple iron and steel lines have been heavy attributable to merchants being desirous of taking advantage of the average low quotations prevailing. No special changes in lists are reported this week.

Paper Orders Expand.

A satisfactory increase in the volume of sales in stationery, school supplies and building papers, was reported by the Peyton Paper company. Printers' trade is regarded as in an exceptionally healthy condition in the various towns through the district as evidenced in the demand for news print and general paper supplies.

ATTACK LITIGATION.

Kansas Gas Company Legal Controversy Takes on Another Phase.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—A brief declaring that the entire litigation in the Kansas Natural Gas company controversy has been conducted without proper consideration of second mortgage bondholders was filed with the United States circuit court of appeals late yesterday on behalf of the second mortgage bondholders' protective committee.

The committee believes that the money now in the hands of the Federal receivers belongs to the state receivers appointed by the district court of Montgomery county, Kansas; that a perpetuation of the dual receivership would wreck the company's property; that the distribution of moneys to the Kansas City Pipe Line company without permitting the second mortgage bondholders to object thereto, would work unwarranted injury, and that the interests of all parties concerned can best be served by making the management of the state receivers exclusive over all property including money now in the hands of the Federal receivers.

UNIVERSITY CASHIER IS SHORT $10,000.

Railway Men Pick Chicago.

St. Louis, Mo., May 14.—Chicago was chosen as the scene of the 1915 convention of the Railway Development association, which closed its annual meeting here yesterday. F. H. Labaume of Norfolk, representing the Norfolk & Western railway, was elected president.

CHEERFUL IN THE EAST

Business Sentiment More Optimistic and Revival Is Looked for.

New York Paper's Symposium of Views of Big Men.

Business sentiment is gradually growing more cheerful in the East and the large trade and manufacturing interests are now disposed to look for an extended revival within the next few weeks.

The chief basis for optimism is the present bright crop prospects, and the general expectation that a buying movement in all branches will begin as soon as the harvest is reasonably assured. The impression also prevails in commercial quarters that the railroads will be granted a measure of relief by the interstate commerce commission in an increase of freight rates.

Optimism is the keynote in a number of expressions of opinion on trade conditions from representative business men just gathered by the New York Sun.

Looks for Record Year.

W. H. Sheehy of Arnold, Constable & Co., dry goods importers and merchants, New York, said:

"General conditions in our business are healthy. Although the weather has militated against us to a certain extent, our sales show an increase over last year at this time. While it is too early to make any prediction regarding the fall, I think business will continue good.

"As soon as the railroad rate question is settled there will be a noticeable increase in business, I think. Now there is a feeling of uncertainty, but this feeling should end soon. President Wilson's appointments on the Federal reserve board appear excellent ones. I look for a record year, not only in our business, but in others as well."

Banker's View.

George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental & Commercial bank, Chicago, said:

"There seems to be at this moment some slight improvement in business activity and greater cheerfulness of outlook, influenced, no doubt, by particularly favorable crop prospects which, if realized, will do much toward ameliorating the situation. Although this suggestion may have become threadbare it remains true that an early granting of an increase in freight rates would do more toward stimulating industries than all other factors combined.

"Money continues reasonably easy with small demand from mercantile and manufacturing sources, but a brisk demand from interior banks which are caring for agricultural requirements."

Rock Bottom Prices.

Claus A. Spreckels, president of the Federal Sugar Refining company, New York, said:

"Prices of stocks are now at rock bottom. They can't go lower to any great extent, and there is no reason why they ought to.

"Now that the spring and good weather have come, building operations will be resumed, the railroads will begin to take back many of the men laid off from work that could not be done in the winter, and in a short time business will be humming along merrily.

"Under the improved conditions caused by the other essentials which are present the manufacturers will increase their output, which means more work for the railroads, and that means prosperity all around. Money is easy, and that means a great deal in promoting the boom.

"It is the general impression that the interstate commerce commission will grant the rate increase demanded by the railroads. I think that the general impression is that the railroads will get the full 5 per cent. If they do, this will have a tremendous effect upon the situation."

Auto Business Good.

Charles A. Stewart, general manager of the New York State Automobile Dealers' association, said:

"The automobile business is not only going to be good, it is good at the present time and we are looking forward to the biggest season we have ever had. The records show that more cars have been sold since January 1 than ever before.

"There could be no better indication than this, in my opinion, of the return of good times. People do not buy automobiles when money is scarce.

"Our reports from various members of the association bear me out in the assertion that we are entering into the most successful season the trade has known. The general hesitancy that has been one of the depressing features of the last few years is passing. Good crops, less uncertainty about governmental measures and a general readjustment of business are responsible for it."

Clothing Business.

William Goldman, president of the National Association of Clothiers, said:

"If the reports of good crops are correct there will be an active demand for merchandise soon because stocks on hand are now at a low point. As soon as there is a spirited demand for merchandise we can look for a general quickening of industrial activity. It seems a safe prophecy that with good crops there will be a general improvement in conditions.

"I think the tariff adjustment is about over. The market is not entirely quiet, but the general advance in the price of raw materials indicates that the tariff was a bugaboo that did not materialize. We went down in anticipation of the tariff and now that the bugaboo is gone we may have gone too far in the other direction. I look for normal prices soon."

KILLED PLAYING INVADING MEXICO

Winneconne, Wis., May 14.—Pretending he was the American troops invading Mexico, Virgil Smith, aged 12, son of a local grocer, shot and killed Frederick Codd, aged 9, son of Rev. K. Codd, with an old broken rifle.

The firearm was given to the Smith lad by a blacksmith so that he might play soldier with it. The trigger had been broken off and so far as known the rifle was not loaded when given to the boy. By using a nail for a trigger the boy got the hammer so it would snap.

THOMAS FOR TOLLS EXEMPTION PLAN.

Washington, May 14.—Senator Thomas of Colorado, Democrat, announced in the senate that he felt himself bound by the platform to support exemption of American coastwise vessels from Panama canal tolls. He said he was bound to conclude that the leaders of his party knew as much about the tolls question at the time the Baltimore platform was adopted as today, and that the tolls exemption plank was meant to be taken seriously.

The senator said he did not regard the exemptions as a subsidy and inconsistent with the anti-subsidy plank.

He urged adoption of his resolution providing exemption from tolls on ships of all nations passing through the canal.

NOT SO "BROKE" AS SHE SEEMED

Mrs. A. E. Hall Has to Turn Over Property to Court.

When Mrs. Andrea E. Hall, judgment debtor of Mrs. Victoria Stewart, admitted to Judge Bert Fesler in district court yesterday afternoon that she was the owner of a tract of land in Brazoria and Galveston counties, Texas, she was directed by the court to turn the property over to John A. Kenny as receiver in supplementary proceedings.

Mrs. Stewart recently brought suit against Mrs. Hall and her husband, Andrew A. Hall, to compel them to convey to her certain orchard land in Texas. Judgment for the amount she had paid for the property was awarded her, but Sheriff Meining returned the execution of the judgment unsatisfied. When cited under supplementary proceedings, Mrs. Hall testified that she was "so broke she could hear the pieces." When it later developed that she was the owner of certain property in Texas, she was cited to appear before Judge Fesler on an order to show cause.

Judge Fesler also issued an order restraining her from taking steps to dispose of any holdings which she is believed to own in North Dakota.

CAMPAIGNS COST $58.55 AND $1.136.45.

Washington, May 14.—Reports filed in the senate show that Senator Chamberlain of Oregon spent $58.55 in his campaign for renomination and R. A. Booth, his Republican rival, spent $1,136.45. The primaries are to be held May 15. Senator Chamberlain received no contributions, while Mr. Booth's amounted to $1,550.

Ogden, Utah, Shaken.

Ogden, Utah, May 14.—Two distinct earthquake shocks were felt here yesterday at 10:25 and 10:18 o'clock, the first being the heavier and continuing more than five seconds. Slight damage resulted in various parts of the city. A panic in the central junior high school was narrowly averted by the coolness of Supt. John M. Mills, who was speaking to the assembly.

"Excellent Tonic"

MRS. S. A. WEIR,
827 W. 15th St., Pueblo, Col.

"Peruna is an excellent tonic for the weakness that follows grip. If everybody could have a bottle or two of Peruna after they have had grip they would get well a great deal sooner than they usually do.

"There is no better medicine in the world for colds and grip than Peruna. One bottle did more to relieve me of a bad cold and case of grip than any remedies that I have ever taken."

Other things being equal, the ready-to-take medicine is the cheaper. On this phase of the subject Mrs. Weir says:

"I am a widow with a very small income, and have to look to every penny very closely. Under these circumstances your medicine is a godsend to me. One bottle of Peruna has accomplished for me more than an expensive course of treatment of any other sort. Of this I feel sure. As a matter of economy every one ought to have a bottle of Peruna in the house."

"I Speak from Experience"

LAUDS POLICY AS TO MEXICO

Senator Owen Reviews Mexican History and Shows Huerta's Acts.

"We Must Demand Order There," Is His Declaration.

Washington, May 11.—Asserting that President Wilson was more than justified in refusing to recognize Victoriano Huerta as president of Mexico, and that the United States must not turn back until it has established constitutional government in that republic, Senator Owen today startled the senate with a remarkable denunciation of the Mexican dictator. His speech was an intimate history of Huerta from the time he tore the reins of power from the hands of Madero to the present day. Through it ran the color of blood and its story reeked with murder, intrigue and violence where innocent men, who talked too much, went to silence behind prison walls and Huerta, by the force of arms and the impelling power of fear, imposed his will upon 12,000,000 people.

He rejoiced, he said, that mediation had been deferred.

Must Demand Order.

"But," he declared, "let no mistake be made. We must demand order, constitutional self-government, and that the right of sovereignty be placed in the hands of the people of Mexico, under safeguards that will promise liberty, human rights and stability of government to the people of Mexico and assure our own future peace and security, and if necessary, we must enforce these demands at the cannon's mouth.

"If we are compelled to use force, we must first pledge the United States against retaining Mexican territory in order to assure the world and the patriotic elements of Mexico of our unselfish purpose to promote civilization and protect human life and happiness as we did in Cuba. Patriotic Mexicans honestly desiring peace and justice and the establishment of the bona fide self-government of Mexico by the people of Mexico should cooperate with us."

ROBERT L. OWEN,
Senator From Oklahoma.

Senator Owen told again the story of the fall of Porfirio Diaz, the rise of Madero and the plot of Huerta and Felix Diaz, Porfirio's nephew, which led to the overthrow and death of Madero and put Huerta in the president's chair. He recited the uprising of Carranza, on authority of the legislature of the state of Coahuila, and told how Senator Dominguez dared denounce Huerta to the Mexican senate, declaring that Huerta had pacified the country by extermination and charging him with attempting to keep his post by inciting a conflict with the United States.

The senator said that shortly afterward Dominguez disappeared and was reported murdered. Then he told of attempts to secure an investigation of his death by the Mexican congress and how Huerta put the congress in jail.

Made Himself Dictator.

"Whereupon," he continued, "Huerta by decree, declared himself invested, in flagrant violation of the constitution, with legislative and judicial power, in affect, military dictator of Mexico. Moreover, he declared the constitutional guaranties of freedom from arrest for members of congress abrogated, and having thus vested himself with the legislative and judicial power of Mexico, he charged almost the entire Mexican congress with sedition and treason."

Senator Owen dwelt at some length on the "election" held for president of Mexico on Oct. 26, 1913. He said that while Huerta had announced that he would not be a candidate, he had enlarged the powers of his military state governors to cover the election machinery. Four days before the election, the senator said, despite formal assurances to the diplomats in Mexico City that he was not a candidate, election posters were sent broadcast urging the people to vote for Huerta. Huerta sent instructions to his governors, said the senator, to return the votes favorable to him and not to return more than a certain part of the precincts, thus insuring a void election. This program, he said, was carried out in every detail, and the Mexican congress, discovering that less than half the voting precincts had sent in returns, declared the election void and expressed a desire that Huerta continue as provisional president until some future time which might be fixed by congress.

"Huerta," he added dramatically, "still is dictator."

Only Two Governors Remain.

"Of the twenty-eight elected governors of Mexico at the time Huerta seized the governing powers," the senator said, "only two at the end of the year remained at home attending their duties. Ten of them had joined the revolution, a number had fled the country, and one had been murdered by a major general of Huerta, who tied the governor of Chihuahua on the railroad track and backed a yard engine over him to teach him better manners than to oppose Huerta. All vacancies were filled by military governors appointed by Huerta.

"Huerta's Federal officers of the army appear to have been instructed to take no prisoners. Every captured officer, high and low, was put before a wall and shot, most of the common soldiers taken prisoners were shot in like fashion, and a few allowed to save their lives by joining the Federal army. Every member of the cabinet named for Huerta was removed. Some of them fled the country, one of them was killed, but not one was left in the cabinet.

"During the fall of 1913 numerous evidences appeared of Huerta trying to involve the United States in some act of aggression or invasion. His purpose in doing this was to stir the patriotism of the Mexican people, make them forget his crimes, and induce them to get behind him as a defender of Mexico against an invading foe. Finally, April 9, he had the impudence to arrest sailors in our uniform under the shelter of our flag, at Tampico, and march them in derision through the streets. He knew perfectly well that his private expression of regret was no amends to the government of the United States for this international affront and indignity.

Failed in His Desire.

"Huerta desired to provoke some action that would unite behind him the revolutionary leaders in Mexico, after which he might obtain his peace, relying upon but benevolence, the dignity, and the patience of the government of the United States. He has failed. The United States should not now, under any circumstances, be content with anything less than the most complete and absolute restoration of constitutional self-government in Mexico. Hundreds of our citizens have been killed in Mexico, thousands of them have been robbed, millions of their property stolen, and all driven by violence from Mexico. Huerta has sought to involve us in complications with Japan, which might easily involve our nation in one of the bloodiest wars in history, if permitted to be worked out.

"The president was not only justified in refusing to recognize Huerta as president of Mexico and in seizing Vera Cruz to stop the landing of a shipload of machine guns and 2,000,000 cartridges, but he would have been fully justified in deposing Huerta by military force as a bloody despot and a treasonable usurper."

FREEDOM OF PRESS DECIDEDLY LIMITED

So Says I. D. White of New York at Kansas Meeting.

Lawrence, Kan., May 14.—The honest newspaper men of the country are in danger from the reckless editors and reporters who habitually distort the truth, Isaac D. White of the New York World told the editors at the National Newspaper conference at the University of Kansas today. Mr. White discussed the legal restraint that is being proposed for the freedom of the press in several states.

"When the well seasoned journalist hears of some new law designed to affect the newspapers,' declared Mr. White, "he is quite certain to resent the idea without stopping to consider whether it is good, bad or indifferent. We seldom seriously consider the other side of the proposition—that a lawless and licentious press might prove worse for all concerned, and particularly for us as journalists, than no press at all. When we dissect and analize 'freedom of the press' and look up its pedigree and see it tried out in the courts we discover that after all it has very well defined limitations, like all liberties must have under a popular government.

"Freedom of the press is freedom to do what the law permits. The four words 'accuracy and fair play' sum up the law of journalism, just as the Golden Rule embodies the ten commandments."

632 AMERICANS TO STAY IN MEXICO CITY

Names Are Registered at the Brazilian Legation There.

Mexico City, May 14.—Names of 632 Americans who intend to remain in Mexico were registered at the Brazilian legation last night. It is possible that some of these, however, will leave the capital later.

The names of 100 Americans have been signed to a list at the American club for passage by a special American train to Puerto Mexico, but this cannot leave until next week.

The utterances of the Mexican papers are marked by moderation and there is an expectant attitude pending the peace conference at Niagara Falls. A good impression has been created by the offer of the American government for the safe conduct of the Mexican commission to the United States. The papers say that Mexico appreciates this courtesy.

Woman's Realm

At the quarterly meeting of the Garden Flower society held yesterday the president, Mrs. R. P. Boyington, told how roses may be grown successfully in Duluth. Because the spring is late here and the climate cool is no reason Duluth gardens should not flourish if the proper care is given, she said.

"The first essential for successful rose bushes is a southeast exposure," said Mrs. Boynton. "Another point that is often neglected is good drainage, for roses cannot do well if their feet are wet any more than persons can. Drainage is obtained by putting into the trench all the discarded things for which no place has hitherto been found. It has always been said an asparagus bed is the place par excellence for discarded articles, but the asparagus plants will have to share their rummage sale booty with the rose bushes. A layer of manure is put upon the cans, bricks and other things that make the drainage, then comes a third layer of good garden soil.

"When a rose slip is planted the place where the rose is grafted on the Manetti stalk must be below the soil to prevent the hardy Manetti thriving instead of the desired variety of rose. If Manetti stalks assert themselves they should be cut off below the soil. They may be known by their groups of seven leaves, whereas the rose graft has only five."

Roses recommended as growing well in this vicinity were the Frau Carl Laing, the Mrs. John Laing and the Ulrick Brunner.

Mrs. Boyington urged members of the Garden Flower society to raise gladiolas, especially for the exposition to be held here next fall. They will grow any place potatoes will grow, she said, and told of seeing 3,000 that had been cut in one day on Duluth Heights. Gladiolas should be divided every three years. After they have been taken up and exposed to the sun until they are wilted they may be cut with a sharp knife. This treatment prevents their breaking and uneven edges invite decay.

Phlox was also discussed. If divided every third year and given the proper soil and attention this plant will thrive in Duluth.

Mrs. Boyington spoke of the arrangement of shrubbery, trees and flowers in relation to the house and the ways to get the best landscape results.

SUFFRAGE LUNCHEON.

Forty Duluth Women Honor State President.

About forty women attended the suffrage luncheon given at the Glass Block tea room yesterday in honor of Mrs. A. H. Bright of Minneapolis, president of the state suffrage association. Mrs. Bright, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge and Mrs. W. W. Lawrence were the principal speakers. The tables were decorated with ferns and yellow daisies.

Mrs. Bright told of the Mississippi Valley conference of suffrage associations held recently at Des Moines, Iowa. At this third annual conference suffrage organizations of nineteen southern and western states were represented. According to Mrs. Bright, one of the most interesting speakers at the conference was Mrs. Jennie Law Hardy of Michigan, formerly of Australia.

Mrs. Bright spoke of the success of the suffrage parade held in Minneapolis May 2 when 2,000 were in line, 300 of them men. The number of both men and women exceeded the expectations of Minneapolis suffragists. The first suffrage parade held in New York was no larger than the one in Minneapolis, and included only 100 men. The speaker expressed the wishes of the Minneapolis suffragists to give due credit to the men who had the courage of their convictions. Rev. Andrew Gillies of Minneapolis was to have been the speaker at the suffrage demonstration. His place was taken by Ole Sageng who has introduced the suffrage bill into the legislature twice.

Treated With Respect.

Those who marched in the parade were treated with perfect respect, Mrs. Bright said. The mayor ordered the court house chimes to be rung as the parade was being formed. Mrs. Eugenia B. Farmer who is 79 years old insisted upon walking in the parade instead of occupying a place in the carriage that was sent for her.

Mrs. Woodbridge told of the suffrage parade held in Boston. Although the first one held in that city it was one of the best in the country. There were 10,000 persons in the parade and 300,000 spectators. Miss Helen Upham of 1531 Jefferson street, a grand-daughter of Mrs. Woodbridge, took part in the demonstration.

As an example of what women with votes may accomplish, Mrs. Woodbridge mentioned the part played by them in putting an end to the recent disturbance in Colorado. A demand was made by 1,000 women that the governor telegraph President Wilson for United States troops. "If they had not been voters," Mrs. Woodbridge said, "they would have been disregarded in this instance as they have been in others."

Mrs. W. W. Lawrence said she was interested in women's suffrage because it is a part of the world-wide movement for the uplifting of women. The whole world may laugh at our nation if it wishes, she said, when we send missionaries to Confucianists, Buddhists and Mohammedans to tell them their theory that women are inferior to men is wrong and at the same time do not practice what we preach."

Among those at the luncheon were: Mrs. M. Cook, Mrs. Margaret Lawitzky, Mrs. H. T. Hare, Mrs. A. L. Atwood, Miss Mary Walsh, Mrs. C. E. Spring, Mrs. A. E. Walker, Miss Campbell, Mrs. R. Spiegel, Mrs. John H. Norton, Mrs. Gellar, Mrs. F. L. Barrows, Miss Margaret Culkin, Mrs. Helen L. Gage, Miss Glendon, Miss Quilliard, Mrs. E. Edes, Dr. Mary McCoy, Mrs. R. P. Boyington, Mrs. Alfred Gillon, Mrs. Margaret Peer, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. J. G. Ross, Mrs. J. E. Samuelson, Dr. L. Clark, Mrs. J. A. P. Neal, Mrs. E. C. Simmons, Mrs. Wilmot Bolds, Mrs. Harriet Carey, Mrs. Herbert Warren, Mrs. Z. D. Scott, Dr. Stella L. Wilkinson and Mrs. Mary Baldwin.

Mrs. Bright went to Minneapolis last evening.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

The old-fashioned new fashions owe many of their points to famous periods of history. The influence of the Directoire is seen in the flaring linen collars affected by the dandies of that time, in the cut of the jackets, the width of cuffs and the draping of skirts. The V-shaped decollete is an echo of the First Empire and the tight fitting basques, buttoned from neck to hips, with a sash ending in a large bow at the back, have come down from the time of Louis Philippe.

We have always thought the pictures of our grandmothers and great grandmothers in their beruffled hoop skirts were exceedingly amusing, but it may not be long before the style is in full force again, for ruffled skirts, boned at the hem, have made their appearance.

Some of the hats that tilt far over one eye or are raised high in the back look as if they might have been copied from paintings of Reynolds or Gainsboro.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

There Are No Two Ways to Bring Up Men and Women.

They were bending over the new baby—the young mother and the woman whose children are now full-grown. "Aren't you glad you have another son?" the elder women inquired.

"I don't know," the younger woman replied, looking down at her second son proudly and then at the other woman half wonderingly. "We had really hoped for a little girl. Of course it doesn't make any difference now, for I wouldn't exchange Robert here for all the girls in the world, but I would like a little daughter very much. She would remain closer to me while the boys are apt to leave me in time to take their places in the world."

"But," the experienced mother interposed, "girls are more of a problem. They bring additional responsibility. If they make a misstep, their doom is sealed. It's different with a son. Naturally, you want your boys to grow into good men and escape the consequences of wrongdoing, but if they do wander afield, the world makes it so much easier for you and for them."

The young mother looked at her new baby with affrighted eyes as though the future revealed for one brief instant the depths to which her child might fall—all the anguish it would mean to her, and the irreparable loss and suffering to her son. Then she said very quietly: "I do not believe it will bring me less suffering if my children go astray because they happen to be Henry and Robert and not Jane and Caroline."

I thought she answered nobly and as a true mother. Just the same it is generally conceded that boys are easier to rear than girls. A certain amount of latitude is permitted the boy, and if he doesn't overstep it he is none the worse in the eyes of the world.

Personally I do not believe that a mother's anguish is less poignant when her child passes the dead line of respectability because it is her son and not her daughter. I believe just as strongly that the idea regarding the difference between men and women which has been tolerated for centuries by mothers as well as others, is responsible for the ruin of more sons than daughters. That ruin is not less vicious or far-reaching because it wears the mask of respectability and upright manhood in many cases—because no one knows.

Every mother who believes that sons are more desirable because they are easier to rear should consult with her God and her conscience. There are no two ways to bring up good men and good women.

Amusement Notes.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw in "Mariette," a musical divertisement by Maurice Volny is announced as the attraction at the Lyceum Saturday, supported by a big company.

It is Mrs. Thaw's desire, it is said, to be judged for her artistic ability alone and not on account of the fact that she is the most talked of woman in the world. She has waited six years before returning to the stage for fear that she would be accused of seeking notoriety and dragging the crime with which she was connected before the public. Mrs. Thaw's return to the stage was made at the London Hippodrome and she did not consent to appear in her native country until she had achieved an artistic success abroad.

Messrs. F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, have supplied her with what is said to be a clever musical play and a company of well known artists.

In addition to "Mariette" a number of American and European novelties are introduced including Bernard & Weston, Arnoud Brothers and others.

There will be a matinee during Mrs. Thaw's engagement.

One of the most interesting features of the Indian war pictures at the Orpheum this week is the reproduction of the incidents connected with the rise of the so-called Messiah.

When the so-called Messiah sent forth his summons, and the ghost dances upon the Pine Ridge reservation began in 1890, the Indians made a concerted break for the Bad Lands. Necessarily, it was the task of Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, in charge of the campaign against the recalcitrants, to drive them out of their strongholds and back to the reservation to surrender.

Seventy miles from any railroad lies that portion of the Bad Lands. There are hills, there are hollows, there are almost insurmountable difficulties in reaching the place. However, that the pictures of the last Indian war might be correct in every detail, it was necessary for the motion picture camera men, the generals who took part in the campaign of '90 and '91, the hundreds of Indians and cavalry to make the trip.

And make the trip they did. Once more they found the strongholds which had been held by the Indians in the days of the past. Once more, through the great crevices, the soldiers fought the Indians back out of the broken, rough country and into the open. Once more the tepees were raised, only to catch fire during the battles and burn about the fallen ones. Once more, where all is bleak and dreary and dead waste, there came the call of the bugle, once more Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles and his staff gathered about an old box in a Sibley tent o' nights and mapped out the actions for the day to come. For this was war—war reenacted and there must be no detail missing. And this attention to detail figured in every picture which was taken of the Indian battles of the west. Six miles of film are shown, and every foot of it represents the planning of months, the councils of men who actually took part in the battles that every incident may be correct, and the appearance of the men themselves in the pictures who actually made the history.

There are said to be so many good things in the performance given by the "Colonial Minstrel Maids," the attraction at the Empress theater today, Friday, Saturday and Sunday it would be difficult to pick out the feature number. The company contains eighteen girls and the costumes are just as attractive as Cohan & Harris, Primrose & Dockstader or Al G. Field would select. The performance opens with a regular minstel first part, thtcostumes being Colonial. The four girls on the ends do black face. The music is all the catchy kind and is given with a dash. Frankie Sigel and Blanche Bishop do the principal ends. Their songs and stories keep the audience interested. After the first part there is an olio. Here "Aline" the girl with the hoops, jugglers and performs all kinds of difficu't feats with hoops. Miss "Aline's" style is different from ordinary hoop rolling acts, and is pretty and interesting. Katherine Selsor is billed as "the girl who talks." "Marie Genaro," the flexible Venus, adds some feats on the rings to the beauty and skill of her act, and the Loletta Sisters appear in acrobatic dances and songs. The performance closes with a scene at a cabaret show in which are introduced harp solos, violin selections, trios and a quartet. The entire performance is said to be clean with a laugh for everybody and a blush for none.

MARY GARDEN NOT MENTIONED

Cavalieri's Name Shines in Announcements of Chicago Grand Opera.

Chicago, May 14.—In the announcement for plans for the season of 1914-1915 of the Chicago Grand Opera company, made by Signor Cleonfonte Campanini, general director, the name of Miss Mary Garden is conspicuously absent in the list of sopranos, while that of Lina Cavalieri shines in the roster.

The announcement indicates that a limited tour will be undertaken after the regular season. The regular opera season will be the same in details as the last. The opening three weeks will be in Philadelphia, then there will be ten weeks in Chicago to be followed by four weeks in Philadelphia. During February the company will appear each Tuesday evening at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

New operas to be presented in Chicago will include: "L'Amere lei Tre Re," and "Dejanire" or "Mme. Sans Gene." Operas in English to be staged on Saturday evening will be "Marta," "Tales of Hoffman," "Lakme," "Faust," "Travatore," "Cinderella," "Carmen," "Aida," "Mme. Butterfly," and "Otello."

WHAT THE EFFICIENCY PLAN DOES.

What will the efficiency and economy commission's plan do if this state adopts it?

That is what every citizen wants to know before making up his mind whether to be for it or not.

That there is great need of a change in the state governmental and fiscal system every man in the state knows. The fact of increasing expenditures without increasing results has been carried home to every citizen by the club of rapidly rising state taxes.

Here are the things this plan will do:

1. It will reorganize the governmental system to eliminate waste, overlapping functions, needless activities and irresponsible boards, bureaus and officials.

2. It will provide a scientific budget system to put a careful check on all state expenditures.

3. It will create a modern and effective civil service system to eliminate the possibility of political machine-making.

These three things this plan will do, and these three things the state of Minnesota needs above all other reforms imaginable.

In a few weeks Minnesota will nominate candidates for the legislature. If anything comes of the work of the commission, it must come through the legislature.

The state should, therefore, study this plan carefully, and make up its mind whether or not it wants it adopted. If it does want it adopted, its people should see to it that candidates for the legislature are pledged squarely upon this issue.

Perhaps it is asking too much to demand that a candidate pledge himself to vote for the adoption of this or any other plan without amendment. It would be well if this could be done, for by the time the legislature meets this plan will be perfected in whole and in detail so that the state can make no mistake in adopting it. But if candidates will pledge themselves to work for a change, to consider this plan honestly and fairly and to work in harmony with its spirit, and if these pledges appeal to the voters as being sincere and dependable, that will be going as far as can be hoped for at this time.

This commission has done careful, thorough, honest, sincere, patriotic and public-spirited work. It has had the help of rarely competent experts like Mr. Durand of the state university, whose qualifications as an expert are recognized the country over. The results of this work are admirable, and it would be a great pity if they were lost through public neglect.

Yet if there is public neglect, they will be lost. There can be no thorough-going and effective reform in state government without creating opposition. Those who will lose power and position, or whose control of money-spending will be put under guard, will oppose this plan, and they have many friends to be aroused against it.

It is simply a question whether Minnesota wants the reform it has been clamoring for or not. It has the chance, now, to get it; but it will get it only if it insists upon getting it.

Six generations sat about the table at a family reunion in Wisconsin. What need is there of a eugenics marriage law in a state that can produce a family like that?

NOYES ON THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At the newspaper conference at Lawrence, Kansas, a letter was read, from Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, answering two questions that had been put to him relative to this great co-operative newsgathering association.

The first question was this: "To what extent is a member of a press association entitled to a monopoly of news in a community."

As Mr. Noyes said, this question answers itself. No newspaper, whether a member of this association or some other or of no association at all, is entitled to a monopoly of news. Moreover, a monopoly of news is a physical impossibility, and therefore an absurdity. Yet the charge that the Associated Press is a monopoly is predicated on the assumption that news can be monopolized.

The nearest thing to a monopoly in news is what is technically termed a "scoop" or "beat." This means that one newspaper, by good luck or shrewdness, gets a piece of news exclusively, and publishes it before any other newspaper can publish it. To that extent there can be a monopoly in news, but to no greater extent. Newspapers make a great deal of "scoops," and newspaper men expend mental and physical energy tirelessly to get them. Yet the moment they are published they are common property, and it is doubtful if any considerable proportion of readers give the achievement of a "scoop" even a passing thought.

To talk of a monopoly in news is as sensible as to talk of a monopoly in air.

What the propounder of this question really meant, however, is disclosed by his second question: "Should not the competitor of such a newspaper have the right to demand and receive the same news service at a reasonable cost and with the privilege of having the first cost to him rebated over a term of years?"

In other words, when newspapers associate co-operatively for the exchange of news, as in the case of the Associated Press, should their service be wide open to any newspaper that demands it?

This is the real issue in this controversy, and nothing could be clearer and truer, or more certain to appeal to every fair mind, than Mr. Noyes's answer to the question:

> I do not know what is meant by "having the privilege of having the first cost to him rebated over a term of years," and so cannot attempt an answer.
>
> As to the first part of the question, I think that a competitor has as much right to demand and receive the same news service as he would to demand and receive the use of the other paper's presses, composing room, editors, reporters and every other facility.
>
> Just as much right, and no more. And that is absolutely no right at all.

Each newspaper has its equipment for gathering the news of its field and publishing it. Does anybody suggest that any competitor, or anybody seeking to be a competitor, has a right to the use of the equipment of any newspaper? Of course not. Why, then, should there be any greater right where a number of newspapers co-operate in providing equipment for the collection of general news? Mr. Noyes has made it clear that there is no such right, and cannot be.

Indications are that if the mediators don't hurry up, Villa and Zapata will make their labors unnecessary.

BLOCK IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATIONS.

The Baltimore Sun reports that "Block Improvement association No. 1" has been organized there.

The folks living in a certain block have banded together in the common purpose of cleanliness and beauty of surroundings.

The first thing this association is to do is to get rid of the board fences in the rear of their houses, and to make the back yards attractive to the neighborhood instead of detractive.

It's a splendid idea. It is an idea that The Herald frequently has suggested for Duluth, and that it fully expects to see worked out here.

The value and advantages of block improvement associations are many and obvious. First, such an association can clean up its block thoroughly. It can look after neglected boulevards, which become bare or weed-grown eye-sores because neither the city nor the property-owners gives them proper care. It can see to proper tree-planting. It can make its lawns uniformly even and sightly. It can clean up and adorn its yards with flowers, shrubs, vines and vegetables. It can have work done cheaper co-operatively, and it can buy the best seeds and nursery stock cheaper that way. It can make its block a beauty spot that will radiate in every direction an example of cleanliness, order and sightliness.

We are sure such an association, if it is started here, will be able to get the help and good advice of the park superintendent, Mr. Cleveland, and of The Herald's garden expert, Mr. Roe. It can do much or little, according to its will and its means; but whatever it does will be for the advancement of community beauty.

Moreover, if one such organization is started here, many will follow it.

Wisconsin boasts of two thousand cheese factories. Who'd have thought Switzerland was so close to home?

ORGANIZATION AND MACHINE.

President Wilson has provided this illumination of the difference between a political organization and a political machine:

> I make this distinction between organization and the machine—organization is a systematic co-operation of men for a common purpose, while the machine is a systematic co-operation of men for a private purpose.

The distinction is clear enough, and we think pretty nearly everybody understands it.

Still, there are many who profess not to know the difference, and who call an organization a "machine" if they are not in it, and a machine an "organization" if they are in it. This practice may be confusing to some.

According to this class, our faction is an organization—the other fellow's faction is a machine.

This does not help toward clear thinking on public issues, and it is not intended to help. Rather, it is intended to confuse.

The Republican party, formed to preserve the threatened Union and, later through the exigencies of war, to free the slaves, was a political organization; and Lincoln was a great political organizer and leader.

That purpose served, the Republican party degenerated into an office-holders' trust and a privilege-serving bund under Hanna, Aldrich, Cannon, Smoot and Barnes.

A party with a high purpose yet unachieved is an "organization."

A party with no higher purpose than to parcel out jobs and to serve special privilege at public expense is a "machine."

A party with a high purpose is likely to come into power, serve its high purpose, and then cling there from habit while it rots from lack of worthy purpose.

So the "organization" is very frequently the parent of the "machine."

Col. Roosevelt says he will not talk politics until he gets to New York. Does he figure on working that "hat in the ring" climax business all over again?

The Bivouac of the Dead.

(The Mexican war inspired the following immortal poem. Its author, Theodore O'Hara, was a veteran of the campaign. He was a young man of 27 when the verses were written.)

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo;
No more on Life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few.
On Fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And Glory guards, with solemn round,
The bivouac of the dead.

No rumor of the foe's advance,
Now swells upon the wind;
No troubled thought at midnight haunts
Of loved ones left behind;
No vision of the morrow's strife
The warrior's dream alarms;
No braying horn nor screaming fife
At dawn shall call to arms.

Their shivered swords are red with rust,
Their plumed heads are bowed;
Their haughty banner, trailed in dust,
Is now their martial shroud—
And plenteous funeral tears have dashed
The red stains from each brow;
And the proud forms, by battle gashed,
Are free from anguish now.

The neighing troop, the flashing blade,
The bugle's stirring blast,
The charge, the dreadful cannonade,
The din and shout, are past;
Nor war's wild note nor glory's peal
Shall thrill with fierce delight
Those breasts that nevermore may feel
The rapture of the fight.

Like the fierce Northern hurricane
That sweeps his great plateau,
Flushed with the triumphs yet to gain,
Came down the serried foe.
Who heard the thunder of the fray
Break o'er the field beneath
Knew well the watchword of that day
Was "Victory or Death!"

Full many a norther's breath has swept
O'er Angostura's plain,
And long the pitying sky has wept
Above its mouldered slain.
The raven's scream, or eagle's flight,
Or shepherd's pensive lay,
Alone awakes each sullen height
That frowned o'er that dread fray.

Sons of the Dark and Bloody Ground,
Ye must not slumber there,
Where stranger steps and tongues resound
Along the heedless air.
Your own proud land's heroic soil
Shall be your fitter grave;
She claims from war his richest spoil—
The ashes of her brave.

Thus 'neath their parent turf they rest,
Far from the gory field,
Borne to a Spartan mother's breast
On many a bloody shield;
The sunshine of their native sky
Smiles sadly on them here,
And kindred eyes and hearts watch by
The heroes' sephulcher.

Rest on, embalmed and sainted dead!
Dear as the blood ye gave;
No impious footsteps here shall tread
The herbage of your grave;
Nor shall your glory be forgot
While Fame her record keeps,
Or Honor points the hallowed spot
Where Valor proudly sleeps.

Yon marble minstrel's voiceless tone
In deathless song shall tell,
When many a vanished year hath flown,
The story how ye fell;
Nor wreck, nor change, nor winter's blight,
Nor Time's remorseless doom
Can dim one ray of glory's light
That glids your deathless tomb.
—Theodore O'Hara.

"Trustees."

Chicago Tribune: The labor press of the United States is making much of a statement recently made by Mr. Schaffner of Hart, Schaffner & Marx before the Federal commission on industrial relations in Washington. The Hart, Schaffner & Marx firm has won national prominence by the trade agreement it has made with its 7,000 employes, an agreement which gives both the manufacturers and the workers peace with honor.

In giving his and his corporation's views on the labor problem, Mr. Schaffner had said: "I believe the officers of a corporation are trustees of the interests of all connected with the institution." The labor papers of the country welcome this statement. They see in this broadminded utterance of a large employer of labor proof that a new era in the relationship between capital and labor is at hand, an era in which the human factor in industry will be taken more and more into consideration.

Not only labor people but every citizen who has the peace and welfare of the country at heart will find in this broad liberalism of certain employers relief from the gloom which such stubbornly contested strikes as those of West Virginia, Michigan and Colorado have thrown over the nation.

Mrs. Taft Tells of Her Inaugural Day

Mrs. William Howard Taft in the Delineator.

After I had fallen asleep in the early morning hours, I was roused by loud, crackling reports which seemed to be in the immediate vicinity of my windows. I got up and looked out. It was light enough for me to see that the world was icebound and that the storm, instead of abating, had increased in violence. The crackling I had heard was the noise of twigs and tree limbs breaking with the weight of the ice which encased them.

In the morning Mr. Taft found President Roosevelt in the great hall below, genially alert.

"Well, Will," he exclaimed, "the storm will soon be over. It isn't a regular storm. It's Nature's echo of some of the senators' denunciations of me. As soon as I am out where I can do no further harm to the Constitution it will cease."

"You're wrong," said Will; "it is my storm. I always said it would be a cold day when I got to be president of the United States."

It was really very serious. Railroad and telegraphic communication was paralyzed all along the Atlantic coast. Wires were down in every direction and traffic of all kinds was at a practical standstill. Thousands of people, on their way to Washington for the inauguration, were tied up at points outside of the city, and it was impossible for a while even to get a telegram in or out. However, inaugurations do not wait for fair weather and the program had to proceed.

About 10:30 o'clock I saw the president and the president-elect in a closed carriage, accompanied by Senators Knox and Bacon of the inaugural committee, and a brilliant mounted escort start on their slippery way toward the capitol. The inauguration ceremonies would not take place until 12 o'clock, but there were a number of bills waiting for the signature of Mr. Roosevelt and it was necessary for him to go early to the office of the president at the capitol to attend to this and other business details.

Before they left the White House it had not yet been decided whether or not the inauguration would take place out of doors. Mr. Taft regretted exceedingly the necessity for disappointing thousands of people, but at the same time he recognized the danger of exposing the crowds to the wet and penetrating cold, and he considered, especially, the impossibility of asking Chief Justice Fuller, who was then more than 70 years old and very frail, to brave a blizzard even for the purpose of administering a presidential oath. However, he decided to wait until the weather had given its ultimate indication before changing the program. He said afterward that as he drove to the capitol there were many brave citizens in the streets who gave voice to as hearty cheers as could possibly be expected under the circumstances.

I was being taken care of by Capt. Archibald Butt, so I had nothing except the weather to worry about. With a last hopeless look out of doors I proceeded to don my inauguration finery, feeling duly thankful that it was not too springlike in its character. The newspapers said I wore a purple satin suit, and a small hat trimmed with gold lace. This is as good a description as any, though it might have been more flattering considering the importance I attached to the subject.

At least two years before the election, when no one could anticipate who would be the next president, President Roosevelt had announced at a cabinet meeting that he did not intend to ride back to the White House with his successor. It was a precedent which he did not like and which he desired to break. Mrs. Roosevelt went, with her family and friends, directly from the White House to the station to wait for her husband to join her after the inauguration. It was about 11:30 o'clock when Capt. Butt and I started in a limousine for the capitol, where we arrived to find the "scene set" for the ceremonies in the senate chamber.

This inauguration was said to be, by persons who had seen many, one of the most impressive ceremonies that ever opened the administration of a president.

As soon as Mr. Taft had finished speaking, Mr. Roosevelt walked rapidly up, and giving his hand a mighty grasp, said something which sounded like "Bully speech, old man!" and hurried out of the chamber, accompanied by members of his cabinet who were to see him off at the station. My husband told me afterward that what he really said was: "God bless you, old man. It is a great state document."

Since the ex-president was not going to ride back to the White House with his successor, I decided that I would. No president's wife had ever done it before, but as long as precedents were being disregarded, I thought it might not be too great a risk for me to disregard this one. Of course there was objection. Some of the inaugural committee doubted its wisdom, but I had my way, and it was arranged for Mr. Taft and me to ride back to the White House together.

By the time the inauguration ceremonies were concluded the skies had cleared and the sun had come out. Mr. Taft left the senate chamber with the committee, followed by the assembled dignitaries in the order of precedence. With Capt. Butt I hurried from the gallery and joined my husband in the great hall under the dome, on his way to the platform on the north side where the inauguration would have taken place but for the weather. In front of the temporary structure many people had gathered, and as we descended to the front they called for the new president. In response he stepped to the platform where the inaugural oath was to have been administered and bowed repeatedly.

They Condemn the President.

Harper's Weekly: Four groups have condemned the president's conduct of the Mexican situation:

1. Certain investors and standpatters generally. This group includes those who believe Indians, Dagos, Greasers and people generally except themselves need to be "governed by a strong hand" like that of Diaz. * * *

2. Some party opponents. The members in general of the other parties (the rank and file, to coin a phrase) have been notably fair, but this does not hold of some of the "leaders."

3. Yellow journals at large. This species of newspaper has done good in the world, along with harm, but when war or any fierce and salable excitement is in question its showing is a poor one.

4. Those fair-minded observers (and there are many) who, with no self-interest and no bias, think the president assumed too much when he undertook to help the poorer Mexicans against exploitation by bandits and by the less conscientious investors.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, one of those now in command in Mexican waters, is said to be the wealthiest man in the navy. He is in a position where he can work or let it alone. If he did not wish to, he could retire and avoid the hazards and annoyances of wars and near-wars. If he wished to cruise the high seas he could do so in a private yacht instead of on a man-o'-war.

Winslow is wealthy in consequence of his marriage with a member of the Havemeyer family. Now, as a rule, when a naval officer makes the kind of a marriage that Winslow did, the first the thing the officer does is to prepare his papers of resignation. He no longer has the same interest in holding a position where he may be called upon unexpectedly to let men shoot at him.

Just because Winslow is the kind of person he is, having a vast tonnage of money at his disposal, never caused him to give the slightest thought to changing his mode of life.

While he takes his life work seriously, Winslow is one of the most inveterate jokers in the navy. He is full of stories and chat and pokes fun at everybody about him. If he enters a friend's office, the first thing he says is:

"Why don't you go to work, you loafer?"

It was Winslow who took unto himself the job of slipping around to the rear of Cuba, during the Spanish-American war, and cutting the cable to Madrid, thereby causing the Spaniards no end of vexation. Nothing will pique an enemy so quickly as to see their means of communication being cut off, and there were a great many shots fired at Winslow's men. One of these hit Winslow in the hand as he stood at the rail of the Nashville watching the operations. The best and most graphic account of the fight in connection with the cutting of the cable was that written for the Associated Press by "By" Newton, now assistant secretary of the treasury, and yet Newton was not present when the thing happened. He got the facts some days later from a brief conversation with Winslow, who, by omitting all technical terms, made clear just what had taken place.

Old "Charlie" Adamson of Georgia, chairman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, is renowned for what Victor Murdock would term a constant state of sartorial collapse. His little factory-tied black bow scarf persists in lodging under one ear, and his whole garb is that of a man who is above being a fop. Also, it may be noted, that Adamson's face—wrinkles, mustache, eyes, and all—have a drooping effect that makes one think of the pictures in the stories about Capt. Kidd and his brave band. But we were speaking more of his clothes. One day he fixed himself all up in carefully creased black finery, with derby hat to match the scheme, and came unconcernedly to the capitol. Naturally, everybody spoke of his changed appearance and asked for an explanation.

"I just thought it would be a good joke," was all he would say.

The next day he resumed his usual clothes, and once again there were questions.

"Why don't you wear your new suit?" men inquired.

"Because," replied Adamson, "there is no longer any need for me to wear it—everybody has seen it."

* * *

Chairman Adamson addresses every woman he meets, whether old or young, as "daughter." The other day a party of women tourists chanced to meet him in a capitol corridor and one of them asked him if he could tell them where they could get a glimpse of Oscar Underwood and Champ Clark.

"Come right with me, daughters," said Adamson. And he took them in tow for a personal presentation to both Clark and Underwood.

"I've taken a great fancy to these women folk and am showing them about a bit," Adamson explained, solemnly.

And all tittered, wondering who their quaint escort might be.

When George Alfred Townsend, the one-time famous political writer who died not long ago, was writing his "Gath" letters for an Ohio newspaper, about the only reader who didn't care for the letters was Allen O. Myers, one of the editors of the paper. Myers thought they were extremely stupid. One night Townsend telegraphed to his paper outlining a long story he was preparing, and asked:

"Shall I send it by special delivery or wire?"

Whereupon Myers wired back:

"Send it by freight."

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma has a new name for the Congressional Record. He calls it the Congressional Silo. As those who have followed agricultural pursuits know, a silo is a receptacle into which one may load pabulum when it is green, then allow it to sour, and take it out in smaller quantities as needed.

In Love's Garden.

This is the old-time garden, still fair as fair can be,
Where Jenny, of the bright eyes, shook her shiny curls at me;
The same sweet walks and places, although long years have gone,
Since in the starlight at the gate she pinned the violets on.

Lives, they may sever,
Never more to meet,
But Love lives forever,
And Memory is sweet.

The twilight bells are ringing even now across the hills,
And still I hear the calling of the hidden whippoorwills;
They're singing now as sweetly as in the Maytime lands
Where once we knew the first sweet joy that comes of holding hands.

Lives, they may sever,
But hearts faithful beat;
Love lives forever,
And Memory is sweet.

Oh, days that passed in music, you come with light again,
And in our hearts the love dwells while eyes are dimmed with rain;
And memories, like roses, still in our pathway throng,
And sorrow for a lost dream is tender sweet with song.

Lives, they may sever,
Never more to meet,
But Love lives forever,
And Memory is sweet.

The State Press on the Republican Split.

The "Once Grand Party."

Cannon Falls Beacon: Mr. Lee is to be congratulated. He was the choice of the best men among those still clinging to the O. G. P.—the once grand party.

A Reasonable Supposition.

Stillwater Gazette: Some of the newspapers appear to be of the opinion that the steam roller, labeled Bill Lee, proved so demoralizing and disastrous to the fellows he flattened out that they will not fully recover in time to get their bearings and go out and battle for the man who put them into the elimination class. They may profess to be tickled to death that they were put out of the running, but they are no more pleased over the result than the fellow who was stung by a swarm of bees.

Not Much Hope.

Sunbeam Sunbeam: We suppose there is no use to kick about the result of that elimination convention, even if your favorite candidate did not win out, but we are of the opinion that it would have strengthened the party more if they had eliminated all of the candidates that have filed and chosen a new man. There is no doubt that Lee would make a good, clean governor, but he lacks the vote-getting power to defeat a popular man put up by the Democratic party. He starts out with one handicap, which is that he was the one to propose that elimination convention, and some people may be unkind enough to say that he attended to it to get delegates enough into it to properly eliminate the other candidates.

Simply Wild About Lee.

Grand Rapids Independent: Who are these who rail at Lee and his backing? There are the Democrats, who would like to see Lee out of the way, for with Eberhart to beat, it would be "nuts" for their candidates. Then there are the machine Republicans, who are desperately clinging to every straw and who want to belittle Lee so as to detract attention from their candidate.

But let us not be deceived. Lee is a big man. He has made a tremendous success of his own business. Place the state's business in his hands, and he will make a grand sucess of the administration of the state's affairs.

Sam Gordon Has a Hunch.

Browns Valley Tribune: Governor Eberhart, who with the close of his present term, will have served more than five years as the state's "chief executive," has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election, and should he be successful it will mean that he will occupy the governor's chair for more than seven years. The governor's ambition is to succeed Moses E. Clapp in the United States senate, and in order to do this he must stand for another term in order that his political machine may be kept in fine running order. But we verily believe that Eberhart is going down to defeat and that W. E. Lee will be the next governor.

Think of the Support Sacrificed!

St. Peter Free Press: Governor Eberhart is a total abstainer and has said repeatedly that he would sign a county option bill.—Preston Times.

This is no doubt true, since the Times says so; but that being the case why should he hesitate to make a public statement to that effect?

My, What a Swat!

Wahkon Enterprise: The trouble with Governor Eberhart is that he is mortally afraid that the primary election law will serve the purpose of its intention by giving the people a chance to rid themselves of a bombastic tool of the interests such as he shows himself to be.

Granny Is Very Candid.

Anoka Union: The politicians of Minnesota are about as envious a lot of critters as you will find in seventeen states. They are the dog eat dog kind.

Literary Meat and Advertising Bread

Unpopular Review: Let us consider an average magazine of the so-called popular sort. Some one defines it as follows:

> A magazine is a small body of literature, entirely surrounded by advertising. In this respect, it resembles a railroad ham sandwich with the advertising bread cut very thick and the literary meat in especially thin slices. The situation is well summarized when Dooley says: "Illmesy, mon, last night on my way home from wurruk I bought one of them popular magazines expectin' after I had eaten me supper and put on me slippers and lighted me pipe to sit down for a quiet evenin's enjoyment looking over the advertisements, and do you know, mon, 25 per cent of the domned thing was just nothing but litherachoor."

The magazine frequently gives great prominence to pictures of actresses—doubtless by favorable arrangements with their managers. With these may appear an article with an alliterative title, showing How Cleveland was Cunningly Conned; How Placid Philadelphia's Putridity was Purged; Why Denver Went to the Devil, etc. Then may follow an article explaining how our reporter, Wily Willie, went under "Jawn Dee's" window and, by making a noise like an extra dividend, secured an interview with him. Then a trifling poem or two, and a long continued dry-as-dust serial story, which serves in some measure as the talcum powder to disinfect, so to speak, the rest.

Then may follow a retraction article, showing that whereas we stated in our latest issue that an emissary of the Standard Oil company was responsible for the Chicago conflagration by sneaking up behind Mrs. O'Leary's cow and sticking a pin into her while she was being milked, we wish to inform our readers that we are now convinced that this was incorrect. Further investigation shows that the Standard Oil company was entirely innocent. It was an employe of the packing house trust who was guilty of the dastardly deed. Then perhaps will follow a passionate personal appeal from the publisher for subscriptions to about $10,000,000 worth of stock of the magazine company. (Send in any sum from $1 up, use the corner coupon).

All of this will be encased in a gaudy, if not neat, cover bearing a design showing a girl's face and some of her form. If you want to see the rest of that look at the corset advertisements inside. An old lady lately said that when she read her modern magazine she felt that she had been to an undress party where the men all came in their "unions" and the women in their "nemos." Then will follow advertisements for soaps, shoes, massage creams and a thousand other articles.

Counteractive.

Judge: "Miss Passee says she just dotes on you!"

"Then I wish some one would administer an antidote!"

Old Folks in Mexico.

London Chronicle: Mexicans, if they escape the ill-chances of war and revolution, are a long-lived race. Humboldt wrote: "It is by no means uncommon in Mexico to see natives, and especially women, reach 100 years of age," and his statement has been corroborated by more recent travelers. The president of an American life assurance company told the author of "Mexico Today" that he had met and conversed with a Mexican woman in her 139th year and that her age was attested by church register.

Mount Vernon Bells.

Where Potomac's stream is flowing,
Virginia's border through;
Where the white sailed ships are going,
Sailing to the ocean blue,
Hushed the sound of mirth and singing,
Silent everyone;
While the solemn bells are ringing,
By the tomb of Washington.

CHORUS.

Tolling and knelling,
With a sad, sweet sound,
O'er the waves the tones are swelling
By Mount Vernon's sacred ground.

Long ago the warrior slumbered,
Our country's father slept,
Long among the angels numbered,
They the hero soul have kept.
But the children's children love him,
And his name revere,
So where willows wave above him,
Sweetly still, his knell you hear.

CHORUS.

Sail, oh ships, across the billows!
And bear the story far,
How he sleeps beneath the willows,
First in peace and first in war.
Sleeps while sweet adieus are swelling,
Till you come again,
He within the hearts is dwelling,
Of his loving countrymen.

HOW JACKSON MIGHT HAVE SOLVED PROBLEM.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The writer, after reading an editorial in The Herald on the strike situation in Colorado, was meditating on "man's inhumanity to man," as expressed in the story of the misuse of the mine employes in that district.

It passed from meditation to a dream in which the spirit of Andrew Jackson appeared to take charge of the situation.

He took charge. He was not impressed with that bulwark of special privilege, "the courts," and paid no more attention to injunctions than he had paid to them on a former occasion.

First, he disarmed the miners and put them in a bullpen. After having them secure and fed and clothed, he gave orders that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., be brought forthwith. John D., Jr., was put in the bullpen and in fifteen minutes all questions were settled.

Says Scientist Is Wrong.

Bridgetown, Barbados, May 14.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt replied here to Sir Clements Markham's criticism of his discovery of an unknown river in Brazil by saying that the British geographer had unconsciously paid the greatest possible tribute to what he had done. He declared that best existing maps are utterly wrong in regard to all this part of South America, and said that they made mistakes as to the courses of the Gyparana and Jurnena affluents.

The mountains given on the maps are, according to the colonel, mostly imaginary. Where his party embarked on a mountain the maps indicated a valley.

The lower part of the river he had explored, said the colonel, had long been known to rubber gatherers under the name of the Arponan, and the upper part as the Castanao, but it had not been mapped.

THE PERVERSE JINGO

By SAVOYARD

Washington, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The attitude of the jingoes in congress toward the Wilson administration is amusing in its ridiculosity and aggravating in its rancor. For months they denounced the administration for its refusal to recognize Huerta, the Czolgocz. They lent moral support to that assassin and he was fool enough to believe that they spoke for the great American people, and thus he was encouraged to act the bully. Our nation, transcendently powerful, and Mexico, miserably weak, the administration with admirable patience ignored the capers and shines of the de facto "government" down there.

But a time came when forbearance ceased to be a virtue. The bloody usurper went a step too far, and the administration resolved to let the old scoundrel know where he is at. The fleet was dispatched to Mexican waters to make a demonstration and to force Huerta into good behavior. Then certain jingoes in congress—William Alden Smith, a senator from Michigan, and the Hon. Mondell, a representative, two fiery and untamed patriots in the larynx, discovered that the administration was as wrong in its rigor as it had been in its indulgence. They even strove to drop into sarcasm about it.

* * *

The great Patrick Henry once made a speech in which he delivered himself of this grand and patriotic declamation: "Give me liberty or give me death!" When I was a youth all us boys in Barren county, Ky., loved to declaim that Friday afternoons, when juvenile eloquence, written and spoken, was on tap at the country schoolhouse, and old Uncle Ford, our revered old teacher, was good enough to say that some of the boys sometimes delivered "Give me liberty or give me death" capitally.

Henry's speech had a great run during the Revlutionary period when Washington with his sword and Jefferson with his pen and Henry himself with his tongue were fashioning our liberties, and a rather good job they made of it, too. Recruits for the patriot armies wore caps on which were sewed the motto, "Give me liberty or give me death." One young chap got cold feet and remonstrated with his sweetheart who was sewing the motto on his cap, just as it was on all the others. She insisted, but he continued to protest.

"Well, what shall I sew on your cap?" she demanded with scarlet indignation.

"You just put, 'Give me liberty or damned badly crippled'—that's as far as I'll go," he answered, and stuck to it.

And that is as far as the jingoes in congress who are opposed to Wilson seem to be willing to agree to go.

* * *

Now our jingoes in congress don't care a rap about Panama tolls, they care nothing about the British lion, they care naught about the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, they care nothing about ship subsidy. They are agin Wilson. That's all. They cry out against England because the Irish vote hates England, though in a few weeks England will have granted Ireland home rule. Germany is as much dissatisfied with free tolls on our coastwise shipping as England; but never a whimper about Germany from an American jingo! Not he. He is willing to be crippled, but not killed, in the cause of liberty.

Washington, our first president, had two sets of jingoes on his hands—one strove to force him into war with England, and the other sought to engage our then weak republic in a war with France. The latter prevailed when John Adams succeeded Washington as president and we were at actual, though not declared, war with France.

* * *

It was during that war that grim old Tom Truxton, in the American ship Constellation, 38 guns, fought and captured in the same action two French men-of-war, La Vengeance, 38 guns, and Cayenne, 28 guns. It was one of the most glorious exploits ever performed by American craft, and Truxton was made commodore, then the highest rank in the navy, for it. Gen. Jackson named his favorite race horse Truxton and he was as fortunate on the turf as the heroic old sailor had been on the sea.

War would have been declared as well as fought, but about that time Napoleon Bonaparte got back from Egypt, seized the government of France, and made peace with us. Not long afterward he sold us Louisiana, not that he wanted to part with that colony, not that he needed the money we paid him for it, but to keep it from falling into the hands of England. But for that purchase by Mr. Jefferson the English flag would be over New Orleans and St. Louis this blessed moment.

* * *

The jingoes harried Jefferson and Madison. They denounced Lincoln for surrendering Mason and Slidell. They declared that Grover Cleveland was bullied by England when he refused to go to war about "bait" that was required by our fishermen and could only be obtained from Newfoundland.

And now they accuse Woodrow Wilson of cowardice, if not treason, for insisting that a repeal of the ship subsidy, granted in free tolls to our coastwise ship monopoly, is necessary to preserve the national honor from smirch! And they say he did not go to war with Mexico the right way. You can't please folks who are resolved to be displeased.

HOW ABOUT OPIUM?

There is a tax of $1.50 per pound upon this narcotic drug shipped in its crude state as gum opium, and yet 500,000 pounds was imported into our country last year. This tremendous quantity was valued at $2,690,497. The customs duty paid by the shippers was $812,028. This tariff represented 30 per cent of the total value of the opium and just what quantity of gum opium is manufactured for "hop" smoking purposes nobody can accurately determine. It is pure guesswork to estimate how much morphine, heroin and codeine is made from the 500,000 pounds of opium imported last year. This much is plain everyday fact, however, and that is that there existed last year one pound of opium for every 200 Americans throughout our entire country. This is certainly an appalling situation. It becomes especially so when we consider these drugs as actually being used by the very people living about us who have become slaves to the "dope habit." For instance from every 100 pounds of opium there is manufactured 10 pounds of morphine. This drug is a universal panacea for the quieting of pain. Since its manufacture by the great drug manufacturing corporations, morphine has displaced laudanum, extract of opium and other weaker and lesser refined products of the poppy plant. Because of its quickness of action it has been freely utilized by the medical profession. Since the invention of the hypodermic syringe by Cassargne in 1836 and the reporting of his discovery to his French medical colleagues, the hypodermic has gradually come into wide usage and nowhere with greater damage than in the hypodermic injection of morphine.

Physicians will administer morphine by means of the hypodermic syringe "just to keep the patient quiet." When the patient wakes up after the effects have worn away, oftentimes refusing to remain quiet, he or she receives another injection. If the injections continue the patient is invariably reduced into a regular morphine fiend. Thirty days constant use of morphine is sufficient to engraft the habit and make a chronic morphine habitue. Here is an instance: A strong cheery patient was admitted to an up-state hospital with a compound fracture of his left lower leg. Infection had set in and the condition was tedious and painful. With the bony fragments firmly fixed in position the man's first day's sufferings were severe. He moaned and cried aloud in a most pitiful manner. To relieve his misery morphine in one-quarter grain doses was ordered by his physician. Instructions were to REPEAT WHEN NECESSARY. Within a few days this cheery patient's disposition had changed to one of abject beggary. At every passing and momentary discomfort he would cry out for help. He soon—and all too quickly—discovered that he could have the morphine injected into his arm if he would moan and yell and make enough disturbance. Pityingly the attendant would try a ruse every now and then. Instead of morphine being dissolved nothing but sterile water would be placed in the barrel of the syringe. This would be injected into his arm. But soon, the patient began to discover this scheme, for the sterile water did not give the patient's nerve-racked body the "support" he craved. So—JUST TO KEEP THE PATIENT QUIET he got his "dope." Regularly he was fed with his opium medication. Within three weeks this cheerful and strong man both in body and in mind had become a morphine addict. Instead of trying to help his physician in every possible way to hasten the healing process of his fractured leg, he gave way entirely to the temporary comforts of the morphine narcotic, and his physician foolishly continued the injections JUST TO KEEP THE PATIENT QUIET.

He left the hospital a pronounced morphine victim. His once prosperous business went to pieces. He became a human parasite—living upon the charity of relatives and friends. The real cause of his downfall and degradation was the morphine fed to him in the beginning JUST TO KEEP THE PATIENT QUIET. Any physician can quote many similar instances. The morphine breaks the will power of the strongest man or woman, and ninety-nine cases out of a hundred "ONCE A MORPHINE USER—ALWAYS A USER," for the "dope" fiend WILL HAVE HIS DRUG. And the pity of it is that all "fiends" are not of the masculine gender. There are many women becoming addicted to the habit.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

SISSETON, N. D., has devised a new source of revenue for municipal expenses. A citizens' committee reported a clear profit of $10,000 for less than a year from the only saloon allowed in the place. When the town voted "wet" last spring, after several years of "draught," the matter of handling the traffic was turned over to the committee, which hired a manager for the one saloon permitted, paying him a salary of $1,800 a year and hiring all the help he needed.

All the surplus funds were to be divided equally between the funds of the municipality and a special good roads fund, and each has just received $4,000, the remainder being held as an operating fund. The committee estimates that the annual returns from this enterprise will average $17,000. For a community with a population of 1,100 this is a good revenue. It is a step in the direction which some of the German cities have taken in operating saloons in Germany. They are deriving a very handsome profit.

Duluth derives a revenue of $1,000 each from the saloons within its limits. This will run about $170,000 this year, as the number is now approximately 170. Handling the entire saloon business in a city of 85,000 to 90,000 population would be a much more difficult problem than in a town of 1,100. If the number were cut down to one for each 1,100 population and the average profit of each were $10,000, the city revenue would be $700,000 per annum, using the 1910 census. Such a solution of the local saloon situation has been suggested occasionally but that it will be attempted in the near future is unlikely.

STOCK BILL SPLITS SENATE COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 14.—An open break in the senate banking and currency committee promises to mark Chairman Owen's attempt to have a favorable report made on his bill to regulate stock exchanges.

The bill came up yesterday before the committee, and later Chairman Owen said that he had been authorized to make a favorable report. Only seven of the twelve members were present, however, and those opposed to the measure said a quorum was not present when the vote was taken, and that the authorization to report favorably was not binding.

Senator Shafroth afterwards said that neither the chairman nor those who disagreed with him were exactly right, but that the committee had authorized Chairman Owen to write a report and submit it to members for their signatures.

Many senators predict that even if the bill reaches the calendar with a favorable report it will not be included in the legislative program for the present session.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

Written for The Herald By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MAY 17.

Luke xvi, 19-31: The Rich Man and Lazarus.

CONNECTION.

In order to understand this story, we must know the situation. He was talking in the presence of Pharisees who practiced the cardinal vice of avarice. Keep in mind the parable in the last lesson about money. In that he shows how a bad man with a bad motive makes use of his financial influence in such a way as to provide for his future by putting other people under obligations to him, though he did it by a trick and the people he put under obligations to him were just as bad as he. The lesson in it was that a good man with a good motive may so use his money to bring benefits of a real and noble kind to others and gain their love and have them ready to welcome him on the other side. Now here he is telling those Pharisees of a man who had an exceptional opportunity to do that very thing and yet he made awful work of it.

THE LESSON.

I.

A Certain Rich Man's Opportunity, 19-21.

"Now there was a certain rich man, and he was clothed in purple and fine linen, faring sumptuously every day; and a certain beggar named Lazarus was laid at his gate, full of sores, and desiring to be fed with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table; yea, even the dogs came and licked his sores."

1. ABUNDANCE.—That abundance is described in a concrete way, by his clothes and food as well as by his house, though the latter is only implied. Among Orientals wealth is always shown by the clothes and "purple and fine linen" was the sign of the greatest wealth. The outer garment was very costly, for the purple with which it was dyed was taken from a rare and expensive shell fish, while the inner garment of fine linen was made from a flax that grew on the banks of the Nile and was so fine as to be almost invisible. He had plenty of money to help others with. Here were the signs of it. If he came by it honestly it was not wrong for him to have it and use it. Jesus doesn't imply that it was. Nor was it wrong in him to wear good clothes and eat the best food, faring sumptuously, "with mirth splendor" as the phrase means.

2. THE NEEDY.—Here was a man in need. And he was a worthy man. Poverty and sickness appealed to the kind hearted. The poverty was abject so that he had to beg, as so many paupers did in Palestine. He was a God-fearing man. He made his wants known. Moreover he was brought and laid under the arched doorway so that the rich man could see him without leaving his chair. The trouble of doing it was reduced to the minimum. If that man had any sympathy in his soul he would have responded to him with aid. Here was then his opportunity—plenty to help with; a case of need right under his eyes and such distressing need as would appeal to a heart of stone. Probably the dogs fought with him for the crumbs that were thrown out and they licked his sores with their rasping tongues. It was not only not wrong for him to have the money, provided he came by it honestly, but Jesus seems to approve the possesion of it. It was not wrong in him to live well and for that Jesus has not a word of disapproval. But it was that he used it all on himself and saw a poor man rot in disease and starve to death without aiding or even feeling like doing so. That was bestial, demoniacal.

II.

The Reversal of Fortune, 22-26.

"And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and that he was carried away by the angels into Abraham's bosom; and the rich man also died, and was buried. And in Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off; and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said, 'Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am in anguish in this flame.' But Abraham said 'Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now here he is comforted, and thou are in anguish. And besides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, that they that would pass from hence to you may not be able, and that none may cross over from thence to us."

1. DEATH.—They were on a level when they came to that point, neither better than the other. Nothing could keep them from dying; nothing could be taken into the other world but themselves. Whatever of moral wealth they had accumulated would be a part of themselves and would shine out in the other world. At death their relative positions began to change.

2. REWARDS.—They came to Lazarus not because he was poor, but because in spite of his ills he didn't rebel against God. His name Lazarus is a contraction of Eleazar, which means "God a help," and he probably realized God's help with grattitude. Notice his rewards—attended by the angels to his home, given the position of honor so coveted by all the Jews "in Abraham's bosom." Jesus uses the figures of speech that the Jews used and understood. Through the years of his privations Lazarus didn't lose his faith in God and now he is with the "father of the faithful."

3. PUNISHMENT.—He was buried—that's all he got out of his wealth. Then came what he might just as well have avoided. Hades comes from two Greek words, meaning "unseen." It was the unseen world. All go there, good and bad. But that they share differently over there is evident. In that unseen world is a place for the wicked and a place for the good. Jesus is not discussing anything but the punishment of the man who had every thing he needed and more, but used it all on himself though he had to harden himself against the touching and daily appeal of the greatest, most distressing need. Of that punishment these things may be said—it was torment by the very desires he had cultivated; the stings of a guilty conscience that is kept alive by a deathless memory; inability to repent; no relief even as he refused to relieve Lazarus; incurable sorrow.

III.

Warning to the Living, 27-31.

"And he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house; for I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. But Abraham saith, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them. And he said, Nay, father Abraham; but if one go to them from the dead, they will repent. And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, if one rise from the dead."

He only wants his brothers warned, no one else; he does not desire them saved from a wrong life but from this hell; he hints he was not warned properly; he does not try to love right.

The reply of Abraham is that the people on earth already have more knowledge than they use, more warnings than they heed. Again he said that a man from the grave would add nothing to the word of God. Another Lazarus was raised from the dead with the result that the people wanted to kill the one who raised him. Jesus arose and was rejected. We have enough light; what we need is eyes.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

The guilt of selfish use of worldy possessions is equally great whatever is the amount of possessions. Doing nothing when Lazarus lies at our gate is doing great wickedness. These truths have a sharp edge for us as well as for the 'Pharisees who were covetous;' and they are woefully forgotten by professing Christians.—McLaren.

Memory, with fatal fidelity reproducing the past and picturing what might have been, makes the sharpest pang of the deserved anguish.—Lindsay.

They needed no messenger from the dead to convince them of the superiority of a life of justice, mercy and piety over a life of unrighteousness, inhumanity and sensuality.—Bruce.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. Why is the possession of any kind of power an opportunity?
2. If neither poverty nor wealth is wrong in itself which has the greater perils?
3. Does our position beyond the grave always grow out of the way we do here?
4. How many different kinds of warning do we have now?
5. Do we need any kind of knowledge we do not now possess?

MORE REFORMS FOR CHICAGO FIRST WARD.

Chicago, May 14.—Continuing his crusade for the political redemption of the First ward, long the bailiwick of Hinky Dick Kenna and Bathhouse John Coughlin, Judge Owens has ordered that all polling places in the ward be removed from their present locations.

"I'm going to get them out of saloons, poolrooms and obscure corners generally," declared Judge Owens. "Such places as the art institute and the public library will be used."

Judge Owens previously removed all the judges and clerks of election in the ward.

SEVENTEEN DIE IN DISASTERS AT SEA.

London, May 14.—The steam collier Turret Hill has sunk, owing to the shifting of her cargo, off South Wold, in the North sea. The chief engineer, who was picked up by a passing steamer, said that the steamer turned turtle, heeling over so rapidly there was no chance to launch the boats.

The captain of the Turret Hill was picked up by another steamer after he had clung for several hours to a life buoy. The remainder of the crew, numbering twelve, are believed to have been drowned.

A steam pilot cutter was sunk yesterday by a steamer in Bristol channel. Five men were drowned and sixteen saved.

William Phillips Hall of Stamford, Conn., was elected president.

THE CALL OF THE GARDEN

These are the days when the little birds are chirping "Come out in the garden." But gardening is not all play. The correct implements, however, make for fewer blisters. What about a wheelbarrow, lawn-mower, hedge-trimmer, shovel, spade, trowel, rake, hose, hose-reel, sprinkler, grass-trimmer or a lawn-roller? The Advertising News in The Herald quotes these very necessary garden tools at a reasonable price. Do you read the ads? Does this talk remind you of the tough cutting last summer with that antiquated grass-chewer of yours? BUY A LAWN-MOWER.

REYNOLDS WINS CASE

Attorney De La Motte Not Entitled to Share in Fees, Says Court.

Declares Latter Betrayed Clients in Agreeing "Not to Prosecute."

Attorney J. W. Reynolds has come out on top in the contest in the courts with Attorney J. De La Motte over the question of division of fees in a number of the White Iron lake "fire cases." In district court yesterday Judge Fesler found against De La Motte, who brought suit against Reynolds, alleging that they had an understanding early last year by which Reynolds was to take charge of thirty-five of the cases and split the fees with him. Subsequently Reynolds took the cases, but no division of the profits was forthcoming, he alleged.

Judge Fesler in a decision handed down yesterday afternoon holds that the agreement was not as alleged by De La Motte. He sustains the contention of Attorney Reynolds that the contracts which De La Motte made with his clients in the fire district were illegal and void and that De La Motte betrayed them when he accepted $1,750 from the Adriatic Mining company not to prosecute. On Jan. 13, 1913, Reynolds claimed, thirty-two of De La Motte's clients came to him and asked him to take charge of their interests and to compel De La Motte to make an accounting.

Judge Fesler made no disposition of that phase of the case, touching upon De La Motte's disbarment proceedings. De La Motte alleged that Reynolds agreed to act as his counsel in the disbarment proceedings, but failed to defend him when the time came. Reynolds said that he prepared an answer in the case and asked $2,400 for his services.

where the body lay in state for three hours yesterday. So great was the crush to view the catafalque in the rotunda of the municipal building that scores of women fainted, while men caught in the smothering press cried for air. Only the names of twelve women who succumbed were obtained by the police, but among these was Mrs. Morris Meisenberg, mother of the dead hero. The crush became so great that Police Lieut. James Conroy sent in a riot call and reinforcements, some of them mounted, succeeded in restoring order.

A photographer who exploded a flashlight powder is said to have contributed largely to the disorder.

The catafalque itself, banked high with flowers, was protected by eight marines under Captain Robert Y. Rhea.

The first incident of the day occurred at the railroad station as the procession of soldiers, police and civilians was forming to escort the body to the city hall. The bereft mother, with her husband and her surviving sons and daughters, was about to enter a limousine when a street vender who had been hawking his wares about in the crowd approached and, ignorant of her identity, cried, "Buy a postcard picture of Sammy Meisenberg, the hero of Vera Cruz! Buy a picture of Sammy Meisenberg, two for a quarter."

The mother collapsed on the shoulder of her son Meyer and burst into tears, but did not faint.

It was a day of tremendous strain and excitement to the humble Jewish family, suddenly brought with its grief into unaccustomed prominence.

It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon before the casket was finally brought to the quiet of the decedent's home and his sorrowing family briefly was left alone with its dead.

Many thousands last night gathered around the undertaking establishment to which Meisenberg's body had been taken. Several women were injured in a crush which followed the explosion of powder caps placed by boys on nearby street car tracks. The explosions caused a report that a man had been shot and the crowd surged towards the tracks, knocking many persons to the ground.

Funerals in New England.

Boston, Mass., May 14.—Under gray skies, New England today buried her dead from Vera Cruz. The three men who died in the service of their country were Daniel A. Haggerty, Walter L. Watson and Rufus E. Percy.

Haggerty was buried in Cambridge; Watson in the little town of Eastham, on Cape Cod, and Percy at Highgate, Vt., on the Canadian border.

The widely different surroundings in which the three men spent their youth were reflected in the arrangements for their funerals. Cambridge, in the center of New England's metropolitan district and the seat of one of the state armories was able to honor the body of her son with a military ceremony in which thousands participated.

Sea Farers and Farmers.

A company of naval militia gave the only touch of official display to the service at Eastham, where men, women and children who live beside the sea gathered to pay tribute.

Farmers of the rugged north country honored the memory of the young marine whose boyhood home had been in Highgate and a company of the national guard with veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars, escorted the body on its last journey.

For the funeral of Haggerty there was a solemn high mass of requiem with military accompaniments in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, and the body was followed to the grave in Cambridge cemetery by a long procession. The town hall in Eastham was chosen for the Watson funeral, conducted by an Universalist clergyman with burial in the village cemetery. The Percy funeral was held in the Congregational church at Highgate Center, with interment in Highgate cemetery.

Scenes of Disorder.

Cambridge, Mass., May 14.—Scenes of disorder last night attended the effort of thousands to view the body of Corporal Daniel A. Haggerty. An immense crowd had gathered about the militia armory where the body lay in state, and as only twelve officers had been furnished for police duty the result was confusion as the throng pressed forward to the doors. Women, children and men were knocked down and trampled upon. Many fainted and were carried into the armory. There were so many that a sick room was established and this was found inadequate. Soon nearly every room contained some who had been hurt or overcome.

A hurry call was sent for police and for doctors. The latter worked for several hours over the numerous patients. The twenty additional police who responded, proved insufficient, and militia officers organized a provisional company, the members of which were sent out armed with rifles to keep the crowd in check.

Trampled on Over 100 Women.

More than 100 women were trampled upon and injured.

The street in the vicinity was littered with hats and other articles of clothing after the rush was over.

The parents of Haggerty had their dead to themselves only an hour or two in the Cambridge home. A great crowd which surrounded the house was then allowed to view the body. A short time later it was taken with a naval escort to the armory.

The school board voted at a meeting last night to name a school in the Mount Auburn district in honor of Haggerty.

Military Funeral in Iowa.

Blakesburg, Iowa, May 14.—Funeral services with military honors were held here today for Frank Devorack, the Iowa boy killed in the taking by the American marines and sailors of Vera Cruz. Townsmen joined the family of the young man in the ceremonies, an important part in which was taken by the Navy club of Des Moines and a company of the Iowa National guard. G. A. R. veterans of this vicinity also participated. Rev. Jonathan J. Lee of Ottumwa had charge of the services. Congressman Sant Kirkpatrick delivered the eulogy.

FUNERAL CORTEGE CROSSING MANHATTAN BRIDGE, NEW YORK CITY.

history of his connection with the New Haven. In fact, he courts the opportunity."

Was With Northern Pacific.

"When did you become president of the New Haven?" asked Mr. Folk.

"I became president about Nov. 1, 1903," said Mr. Mellen. "Immediately prior to that time I was president of the Northern Pacific Railway company."

"What persons were responsible for your being made president of the New Haven?"

"I think the person chiefly responsible," replied Mr. Mellen, "was the late Mr. Morgan. I had met him when I was second vice president of the New Haven between 1892 and 1897."

"Where did you meet Mr. Morgan to discuss the matter of the presidency of the New Haven?"

Morgan Made Him President.

"In his office in New York. My connection with the Northern Pacific required me to visit New York about ten times a year, and the fact that I was president of that road brought me into close relationship with Mr. Morgan.

"No, I entered into no negotiations with Mr. Morgan concerning the New Haven presidency. Mr. Morgan simply told me he was going to make me president. I thought it was a reward for good service."

"What was your salary?"

"It was $50,000 a year for a time, and afterward $60,000."

Mr. Mellen's examination today was brief, and his testimony had scarcely begun when an adjournment was taken until next Tuesday. It was stated that the adjournment was designed to allow Mr. Mellen time to secure certain papers necessary to his testimony and to arrange the documents to be submitted to the commission.

Rockefeller and Miller Sick.

No determination yet has been reached as to action in the cases of William Rockefeller and George MacCulloch Miller, directors of the New Haven, whose physicians have submitted to the commission certificates that they are physically unable to appear as witnesses in the inquiry. Their testimony may be considered by the commission to be essential to the purposes of the investigation. In that event it may be deemed desirable to resort to drastic measures to compel them to appear.

While neither the senate as a body nor the interstate commerce committee of the senate is taking any initiative in the resolving of differences of opinion which have arisen over the propriety of putting Mrs. Mellen and the New Haven directors under examination, it is understood that inasmuch as the commission is operating under a resolution of the senate, an intimation from the source as to action probably would be followed.

Norris Will Commission.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, author of the resolution, vigorously supports the commission in its efforts to develop all the facts, quite irrespective of any proceedings pending or in contemplation. That, in all probability, would be the attitude of the senate, if the matter should be given consideration by that body.

While the examination proceeded, Mr. Crim gave out a lengthy statement, giving Mr. Mellen's version of affairs. It reviewed the negotiations, beginning in 1906, between the New Haven and Grand Trunk.

Asked About Policy.

In the course of the examination Mr. Folk asked:

"When you became president of the New Haven what was the policy of the directors in obtaining securities of trolley roads and steamship companies?"

"They were getting control of such holdings. I was in accord with this policy."

Mr. Folk took up the acquisition of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway company by the New Haven and Mr. Mellen said:

"As I recall the details, 8,000 shares of the New Haven were put in my hands in escrow to be exchanged for 24,000 shares of the Westchester stock as soon as matters in connection with the franchise of the Westchester road were settled."

The value at that time of the 8,000 shares of New Haven was $1,200,000.

Dealt With Byrnes.

"With whom did you deal in regard to the exchange of stock?" asked Mr. Folk.

"Former Police Inspector Thomas F. Byrnes."

"What was your idea in regard to Mr. Byrnes arranging all this?"

"Well, I had a suspicion that the Westchester shares were scattered around in the hands of some people of influence."

"Politicians?"

"I do not know as to that."

"Had a Hunch."

Mr. Mellen said that power to grant the franchise of the Westchester road was in the hands of the board of estimate of New York city, and continued:

"When I was carrying on this transaction through Mr. Byrnes, I had a hunch that he could reach people of influence in regard to having the changes made in the proposed charter. I wanted to reach the people that it was necessary to reach. I wanted to reach the devil or anybody else who could amend the charter."

"Were the arrangements for the exchange of securities made in writing?"

"No, I was willing to sign an agreement, but the other party was not. I do not believe he was congenitally and constitutionally fixed so that he could sign anything."

In Names of Clerks.

Asked as to the names that appeared on the Westchester shares as holders of the stock, Mr. Mellen said:

"The shares apparently were made out in the names of clerks and others."

Mr. Mellen said he believed an "attempt was made to conceal the owners of the stock."

"It is my suspicion," he added, "that the shares were issued to contractors, who then placed them where they would do the most good."

"What did you regard as the value of the Westchester stock at that time?"

"Well I thought the stock was worth about 10 cents a pound."

TAMPICO'S FALL CONFIRMED

coast to coast and now embraces more than half the republic of Mexico.

Fear Extreme Reprisals.

That Gen. Zaragoza's Federals might attempt extreme reprisals in their reported retreat from Tampico was a fear unofficially expressed here today. It was suggested that as they fled back from the coast to the rich oil territory they might ignite tanks of petroleum, directing its flow into the river and threatening a disastrous fire in Tampico. Military observers here stated that such a move was not to be unexpected.

The capture of Tampico by Constitutionalists after a prolonged, stubborn siege that ended with fierce fighting in the heart of the seaport, adds a new chapter to the exciting history of the Mexican situation. While the South American envoys and members of the American mission prepared for the Niagara Falls conference next Monday, officials in diplomatic and government circles discussed the possibility of developments that might grow out of the rebel victory.

May Import Arms.

It was believed the Constitutionalists immediately would move to import arms and ammunitions through Tampico for use in their southern campaign. If that were permitted, some officials stated today that Huerta probably would protest that the halting of shipments of arms for him at Vera Cruz was unjust.

Secretary Daniels has given Rear Admiral Mayo full power to send American warships back up Panuco river to Tampico, if in his judgment conditions should warrant such action.

Can Protect Oil Fields.

With the transfer of Tampico from Mexican Federalists to the Constitutionists, President Wilson now feels it will be possible for the oil interests in the Tampico district to be protected. Gen. Villa and Gen. Carranza had given assurances that they would permit the conservation of oil in the Tampico district, and have notified the American government of their willingness to have expert civilians return to the fields and take charge of the flowing wells.

Unlikely to Land Forces.

Secretary Daniels explained that while Admiral Mayo had full discretionary powers to take his ships back into the Panuco river, that he would not land any forces at Tampico except in the case of the gravest emergency, without specific orders from the department. It was explained that he probably would place his hospital ships at the disposal of the authorities at Tampico for the care of the wounded, regardless of their allegiance.

Mr. Daniels said he had felt all along that American interests, including the oil properties, would be amply protected as soon as the fighting ceased and one side or the other was in absolute control of the situation.

He said that he had not yet received sufficient information concerning the Constitutionalist victory to determine what effect the victory would have on commerce in Tampico, but he expressed the hope that the port would be open to the commerce of the world.

Hurricane Season Coming.

One reason for sending the American ships back into the Panuco river, it was explained at the department, was because of the hurricane season, which is setting in along the Mexican coast. This makes it hazardous, particularly for the small boats in the torpedo flotilla and shelter will be afforded in the river. Officials here do not expect any objection to be made by Constitutionalist leaders to the American ships occupying positions in the river.

Practically all of the men who were operating the American oil properties, as well as the German and English properties, were driven out by the fighting between the Federals and the Constitutionalists. It now is believed that all the oil operators will be able to return and protect their property against fire and other losses.

Thomas O'Donnell of Los Angeles, director of the Mexican Petroleum company, who was among the representatives of oil companies who called upon the president yesterday, said today that the leading oil companies have experienced men on the boats living off Tampico who are in readiness to return to the fields immediately. He said that as soon as it is known positively that the firing has ceased, these men will be ordered back to the fields. The oil operators feel that the Constitutionalists will protect their interests and are especially anxious to get their experienced men back in the field.

Mexican authorities at Mexico City to the proper official at Saltillo.

Officials said no further representations had been received from Gen. Huerta regarding the Lobos island incident.

Senator Stone of the foreign relations committee had a brief talk with the president on the Mexican situation.

Gen. Maas Deposed.

News has reached Washington through officials sources that Gen. Carcia Pena, one of the highest ranking officers in the Mexican Federal army, has taken command of the forces outside Vera Cruz, superceding Gen. Maas.

This news caused all manner of speculation around the state, war and navy department. Some officials were inclined to attach special significance to the move, seeing in it evidence of Huerta's intention to strengthen his position around the port occupied by Americans, and possibly to assume an offensive attitude.

On the other hand, it was suggested that Gen. Maas' conduct had displeased the dictator and that his removal probably had nothing whatever to do with the international situation.

Influenced By Tampico's Fall.

Those who took the less optimistic view thought that the fall of Tampico might have had the effect of making Huerta desperate and leading him to take some step that might force the hand of the United States without waiting the outcome of the pending mediation negotiations.

In this connection it was suggested that the force driven out of Tampico might undertake to march through the mountains and effect a junction with the army between Mexico City and Vera Cruz. Some thought this highly improbable, however, as the railroad toward San Luis Potosi, over which the Federals fled from Tampico, is in operation for only about thirty miles, and the journey down the coast on foot would be impracticable.

Maas to Defend Capital?

Vera Cruz, May 14.—President Huerta has placed Gen. Navarette in command of the forces directly in front of Vera Cruz, with headquarters at Cordoba. It is believed that Gen. Huerta has called Gen. Maas to the capital to utilize him in the line of defense against the northern Constitutionalists.

Gen. Navarette is a man in whom Gen. Huerta placed great confidence, and is regarded as the best military officer in the Mexican army. Placing him in charge of Gen. Maas' command may have been due in part to the record of Gen. Maas at Vera Cruz when the American forces landed. Gen. Maas left the city early in the fighting, without calling out all his troops. For this he was seriously criticized by Gen. Huerta.

Was in American Lines.

Before taking command, Gen. Navarette was in charge of the work of establishing the line of Mexican outposts, and two days after the fighting in Vera Cruz ceased he actually traveled about unmolested within the American lines, gathering all the information possible. His men are not concentrated in sufficient numbers to arouse any fear of attack, and reports from Cordoba do not indicate that he had received any great support from the capital.

Meanwhile it is known that his intelligence department is working with telligence department is working with the American lines to obtain such information as it can, and that even the women who accompany the Mexican army to cook and care for the men are making frequent visits into the city, often as venders of fruits and vegetables.

LONGWORTH'S AMATI VIOLIN IS STOLEN.

Chicago, May 14.—An Amati violin said to have been sold by the late Theodore Thomas to Former Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, son-in-law of Theodore Roosevelt, was stolen early today from the show window of a Wabash avenue dealer in rare musical instruments. The thief, after smashing the plate glass window, used a long pole to reach the violin.

Pick Bull Moose Candidate.

Minot, N. D., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sever Serumgard of Devils Lake will be the Bull Moose candidate for United States senator, in place of A. M. Christianson, who had been boomed to make the race. At the state committee meeting here, H. R. Turner of Fargo was elected state chairman, succeeding Dorr Carroll of Minot.

HOW TO AVOID DOCTOR BILLS

(Health Notes)

"Practically all sickness can be traced to impurities in the blood which accumulates during the winter months. If old and young alike would follow the old-time policy of taking a good blood-tonic each spring, there would be much less fever and sickness and, as a result, a big saving in doctor bills.

"The best blood-purifying tonic known can be made at home at little expense, by dissolving in ½ pint alcohol, ½ cup sugar and one ounce kardene, then adding hot water to make a quart. This makes enough for a whole family and a tablespoonful taken before meals soon makes the blood pure and red, removing quickly all pimples, sallowness and lack of appetite. It is very strengthening to a tired, worn-out system, and gives one a world of energy and good health."—Advertisement.

BUYS ISLAND IN LAKE HURON.

Marquette, Mich., May 14.—Four bidders, most of them representing Lake Huron fishing concerns, appeared at the United States land office in the Federal building Tuesday, to make entry on an island in the Saginaw bay, 15.55 acres in extent. It is said that the little island was formed by the water washing the sand to a high spot in the bottom of the lake.

Because the applications were filed simultaneously, the land officers had to award the tract to the highest bidder, he being James A. Gay, who paid $365 for the right of entry.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acids in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary bisurated magnesia. It is inexpensive and you can get it at any drug store. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate." —Advertisement.

BEING OUT OF WORK HAS ITS PLEASANT AS WELL AS UNPLEASANT FEATURES

City's Idle Men Camp Out and Cook Their Own Meals.

Duluth, like all cities of the first class, and some of lesser standing, has a "jungle" where the man out of work, the man too strong to work and the professional "hobo" make their home, if that it can be called.

In these bright spring days the independent and care-free life these men in the Duluth jungle lead almost creates a feeling of envy.

The Duluth jungle is at the foot of the Sixth avenue wharf and there several hundred men have been making their home. A few days ago one man counted 234 inhabitants of the jungle, but there are not nearly so many now as there were a few days ago.

The mode of life which these men lead may not appeal to those who have been brought up only on the "hothouse" plan; but to the man who was once a real boy and delighted at playing at camping out or in having his "croney hole" under the bank of some stream, there is something about that style of life that appeals. These men cannot be said to be destitute and there is not a glum face among them. They are apparently happy and content. They get enough to eat, and not bad eating at that, and have quarters in which to sleep, which, while not luxurious, are not uncomfortable.

The accompanying pictures illustrate the primitive manner in which they do their cooking. At the foot of Sixth avenue there is usually a good-sized junk heap. Out of this heap the men have "snaked" a pot and some iron grating, the latter used as a grill. The men in the picture were making a "mulligan" when trapped. A mulligan is probably unknown to the average citizen but there is one thing dead certain to a man who likes the out-of-doors, and that is that a mulligan is good eating. It is composed of potatoes, some salt pork, beef if it can be procured, an occasional bird, some onions and other vegetables all boiled together. How it would suit the palate in a parlor is a question but it is a gilded success outside.

Sleep is taken in every imaginable place. One man has emulated Diogenes after a manner, for while "Di" lived in a tub this man sleeps in the end of a huge tug boiler. Most of the men, however, sleep in a pile of baled hay that is on the wharf and have comfort in the way of heat and a soft bed.

They are a good-natured crew down there too, and each one of them seems perfectly happy and ready to talk. There are all classes of workmen and non-workmen, and all nationalities.

NO PENSION SYSTEM NOW

Request of Water Department Employes Tabled for Present.

Unfair to Pension One Set of Employes and Not All.

The city will not establish a pension system for city employes at this time, although it now has power to do so.

This decision was reached at an informal conference of the city council in the mayor's office this morning, being brought up as a result of a request submitted by the employes of the water and light department that superannuated employes be given old age pensions.

The sentiment of the commissioners was that it would be inadvisable to pension the employes of any single department and that the municipality is not now in a position to pension all employes, the funds for which would have to be raised by taxation, according to an opinion submitted by City Attorney Harvey Clapp. Those engaged in hazardous occupations, chiefly policemen and firemen, will continue to receive pensions under the present system.

The opinion of the attorney, which was read at this morning's session, reads in part as follows:

"Under the provisions of the constitution and the statutes relative to home rule charters, and particularly under such a home rule charter such as that of Duluth, embodying the features known as initiative and referendum, I am of the opinion that it is within the power of the city, without any act of the legislature of the state, to establish a pension system and fund for employes of the city generally, the fund to be raised by taxation.

"Whether it is within the power of the city to establish a pension fund for the employes of one department, except those where the employment is hazardous, I am not prepared to say, and the question could not well be determined by any amount of investigation, or in any way except by testing it. Probably it would be proper.

"Whether it would be proper for the city to provide for such fund out of the earnings of the department within which the pension might be established, it is also impossible to say, and like the other proposition this will have to be submitted to a test. Probably, however, it would be proper.

"In any event, the plan of pensions would be proper and to insure its being effective it would have to be worked out carefully."

WANT $20,000,000 FOR CHINESE RIVERS.

Memphis, Tenn., May 14.—Plans for the construction of a system of flood control along the Yellow and Huai rivers in China were related today by Ernest P. Bicknell of Washington, national director of the Red Cross, at a meeting of the American Red Cross association, held in connection with the National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

It is estimated the project will cost $20,000,000 and reclaim 17,000 square miles of land. The undertaking is fostered by the Red Cross, which organization, Mr. Bicknell declared, has contributed $730,000 within eight years for the relief of persons made destitute by floods in China.

Other speakers were Sherman C. Kingsley and W. M. McGrath, who represented the Red Cross in relief operations in the Mississippi and Ohio river floods of 1913; E. T. Leis, who directed relief measures at Omaha after the tornado of last year, and Miss Fannie T. Clement of the Red Cross Town and County Nursing society.

CLERGYMAN SENT TO WORKHOUSE FOR RIOT

BOUCK WHITE,
Being Placed Under Arrest in New York City.

New York, May 14.—Bouck White, clergyman, author and Socialist, and Milo Woolman, writer, each a Harvard graduate, were sentenced to the Blackwell's island workhouse yesterday by a police court magistrate for their participation in the disorderly scenes enacted last Sunday morning at the Calvary Baptist church, of which John D. Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., are attendants. White and Woolman were two of a group which invaded the church during the services to make a public request of the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, to consent to debate the Colorado mine situation. A patrol wagon was called to the church after a demonstration in which White and his followers resisted efforts made to eject them.

White and Woolman each were sentenced to serve six months. White said he would appeal.

Instead of showing humility and acknowledging his wrongs in court, White talked "egotistically about the right of free speech," Magistrate Campbell said in sentencing the clergyman.

"I feel newly dedicated to the cause," White exclaimed, after sentence was passed upon him. "The work will go on without me."

White was graduated from Harvard in 1898, and from the Union Theological seminary in 1902. He was ordained in the Congregational ministry in 1904, and since 1907 has been prominent in church work in Brooklyn.

No Need Being Old or Wrinkled Before 75

Lillian Russell says any woman who has wrinkles before she's 75 is herself responsible for them. Sunshine and fresh air she considers more valuable as complexion preservers than nostrums and cosmetics.

The chief objection to cosmetics is that at best they only temporarily cover up defects. There are certain true aids to Nature, which may be applied with directly opposite effect. Ordinary mercolized wax, for instance, actually removes a bad or oldish complexion, by gradually, almost imperceptibly, peeling off the wornout scarf skin. Just one ounce, procurable at any drug store, will soon unveil an entirely new and natural complexion, with an exquisite girlish color. Of course cutaneous blemishes, like pimples, freckles, fine lines, moth patches, liver spots, disappear with the discarded skin.

To prevent or remove wrinkles, a face bath, which also produces natural results, is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is immediately effective and gives no untoward after-effect. —Advertisement.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Norway's Day of Freedom Not Forgotten in America.

Besides sending more than 200 residents to Norway for the centennial celebration of Norwegian independence, Duluth wil lobserve May 17 with a special program and entertainment Sunday afternoon at the Central high school auditorium.

During the last month, several large parties of Duluthians have left for Christiania, Norway, where the one hundredth anniversary of the independence of the Norwegian people is to be celebrated with festivals and entertainments, beginning next Sunday, May 17. It was on May 17, 1814, that Norway won its freedom from Denmark.

At least 40,000 Norwegians are believed to have gone to Norway from this country for the celebration and while this is a record representation the observanee of the day will not be lacking in the large Norwegian centers in America. In Minneapolis, especially, a monster celebration will be held and it is attracting thousands from all parts of the West.

In Duluth the celebration will begin at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the program opening with an address of welcome by Mayor Prince. The principal address of the day will be made by State Senator Ole Sageng of Otter Tail county, who was recently mentioned as a candidate for the governorship of the state, but who refused to run for the office.

Rev. H. A. Ofstie of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church in the West end will act as chairman at the meeting. There will be special musical numbers by all the Norwegian singing organizations in the city, including the Normanna Male chorus and Flaaten's orchestra.

GERMANY PLEASED AT A. B. C. EFFORTS

Foreign Minister So Declares to Imperial Parliament.

Berlin, May 14.—Only brief reference to the Mexican situation was made by Gotlieb von Jagow, the German foreign minister, in his survey of Germany's foreign relations, addressed to the imperial parliament today.

He said the German government was gratified to find the government of the United States, with which the German government continued to have the best relations, had decided to accept the mediation proferred by Argentina, Brazil and Chile. He declared that the uncertainties of the Mexican situation had been accentuated by the conflict which had risen between Mexico and the United States, while the business and personal interests of German subjects had been affected to a high degree by the civil war in Mexico.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR OFFICE MEN

A brilliant trio of speakers will address the members of the Duluth Office Men's association at their meeting at the Commercial club this evening. They are Congressman Irvine L. Lenroot of Superior, James Manahan, congressman-at-large of Minnesota, and Julius H. Barnes.

Congressman Lenroot will discuss the canal tolls question, explaining just what the present dispute means. The subjects of the others have not been announced.

Stanley Lamb will fill in with some character impersonations and Harry Soady will tell some of his dialect stories. Several musical numbers will be part of the evening's entertainment. The dinner will be served promptly at 6:30 o'clock.

HAS EXTENSIVE PLANT.

Zenith Dye House Has Latest and Most Efficient Equipment.

Few people in Duluth are acquainted with the extent of the new compressed air rug and cleaning department that has lately been installed in the plant of the Zenith Dye house at 232 East Superior street. This establishment now has a rug and carpet-cleaning department that ranks with the best outside of Chicago and there is not a plant in the Twin Cities that can compare with it. W. S. George, who has been in the carpet-cleaning business all his business life, is the foreman of the plant, which is under the general management of H. L. Garber.

Mr. George, previous to coming to Duluth, was foreman in the rug-cleaning plant of F. H. Brown & Co. in Minneapolis and is especially well qualified, through long years of experience in this business, to handle this big plant here. The compressed air plant is equipped with an Ingersoll-Rand air compressor that has a pressure of ninety pounds in the air and is 100 per cent more efficient than is the vacuum system. The Zenith Dye house is now prepared to clean all kinds of rugs, carpets, upholstered furniture, pillows and mattresses, as well as renovating, refitting, sizing, sewing and laying of carpets and rugs.—Advertisement.

THAT WARFIELD DAM.

State Warden Says It's Built According to Law.

Bemidji, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Answering several complaints he has received, S. C. Bailey, state game warden, has issued a statement that the Warfield dam nine miles south of Bemidji, and the fishway that accompanies it, have been constructed according to law. He says that the complaints he has received mention "slaughter of the fishes" and other things in that vicinity, but that investigation has shown that many of the complaints were founded on the fact that fishermen fished within 300 feet of the fishway. This, under the recent laws, would have been illegal, but under the late statutes fishermen are allowed to get within fifty feet of the fishway.

TREATY SITE TO BE MARKED

Place Where Treaty With Indians Was Signed in October, 1863.

Conference Held on Historic Ground Located Near Huot, Minn.

Crookston, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A conference was held on the site of the Crossing Indian Treaty near Huot, Minn., of general interest. It was participated in by Mayor Lemieux, Dr. Watson, Edward Enright, A. Robertus, George F. Hennings, J. A. Duffy, Theodore Labissonaire and Editor C. R. C. Baker of Red Lake Falls, and Senator John Saugstad, Capt. P. J. Eide, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Armstrong, Mrs. Magnus Lundberg and Messrs. Irving P. Dennott, C. H. Zeland, A. W. Rodgers and N. S. Davies of Crookston. The party visited both sides of the river at the old crossing or ford, and were deeply interested in the story of the treaty as told by John Dubee, who resides on a farm near the site of the old crossing and who was a member of the United States troops which were camped there under Governor Sibley, when the treaty was made between the whites, the half-breeds and the Indians. All were camped on a ridge close to the river on what is now the Thode farm, the half-breeds near the edge of the timber, the soldiers in the center and the Indians towards the east end of the ridge.

For three weeks ending Oct. 2, 1863, the date when the treaty was signed, the party wrestled with the peace compact but were unable to agree regarding a few important details. Finally, one morning Governor Sibley broke camp, crossed to the north side of the river, informing the Indians and half-breeds that if they didn't sign they would have to fight it out.

After proceeding about a mile, Governor Sibley and his soldiers were overtaken by a courier bringing a message from the Indians which conveyed the information that they were ready to sign the treaty. The troops were halted, a tent pitched, the compact signed and peace between the Chippewas, Pembinas and whites has been maintained ever since.

Locating Peace Monument.

The committee selected a beautiful picnic ground on the north side of the river close to the main roadway and on that site within a few weeks there will be held a big gathering for the purpose of locating the exact site of the monument, which will be placed somewhere on a nine-acre tract which is a natural park and owned by Edward Huot, a venerable pioneer of that section, 80 years of age.

There is a monster tree standing close to the north part of the old ford which was used at one time as a post-office. A metal box was attached to one side of the tree and in this the scattered traders and chance visitors left messages and occasional letters to individuals.

Mayor Lemieux began the practice of medicine at Red Lake Falls thirty-four years ago and for many years was the only physician on either side of the river for miles. Hundreds of times he had to ford the Red Lake river at the Pembina trail crossing where the monument is to be erected, and this operation in early spring or late in the fall when the water is icy was far from pleasant.

The site is to be marked at the gathering to be held soon, at which it is probable from 1,000 to 1,500 automobile loads will be present. Steps will then be taken to have a suitable copper plate inscribed and placed upon a fitting marker with due ceremonies next summer.

Further announcements in this connection will be made in the very near future.

Hildreth of Fargo or Casey of Dickinson Expected to Land It.

Fargo, N. D., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States district attorneyship for North Dakota is again a live topic as a result of the presence here of T. D. Casey of Dickinson. The term of ex-Judge Engerud, the present United States attorney, does not expire until next spring, but his successor has been a matter of speculation for some time.

M. D. Hildreth of Fargo, who was appointed assistant district attorney a few months ago, is a candidate for the position. He has been a leading Democrat for many years and was once a candidate for congress. Mr. Casey is also after the place. He formerly lived in Grafton and represented Walsh county in the legislature, where he had the distinction of being the only Democratic member of the lower branch of the legislature. He was also a congressional delegate at one time. He is widely known over the state as an orator.

Hildreth is understood to have the backing of National Committeeman Breugger and State Chairman McArthur, while S. J. Boyle, the new United States marshal, John Burke, and Assistant Attorney General Graham are reported as favoring Casey.

The money was sent in the name of a girl to whom the Burns girl had written, the girl in question being an inmate of his resort, and Short claimed that she sent it, but the government placed witnesses on the stand to identify his handwriting in the telegraph and convicted him without any difficulty. BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid, which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. Agent, Wirth's Red Cross Drug store, 13 West Superior street.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it and feel fine. A lady said one day, 'Oh, I feel so tired all the time and have headache.' I said, 'Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,' and she did and feels fine now."—Mrs. M. R. KARSCHNICK, 1438 N. Paulina Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Just Between You and Me

By BRUCE

CLIFFORD CLARENCE CRAVATH is some name for a ball player; especially is this true when it is considered that the gink sailing along under this fringed lace monica is one of the greatest hitters in the older league.

This "Gavvy" Cravath has assisted generously and timely with his blunderbuss bludgeon in keeping the Phillies in the race. Starting his professional baseball career at Los Angeles, the Cravath one was hired and fired by the Boston, Chicago and Washington clubs of the American league. Back he went to Minneapolis and then returned to the big show by the way of the Phillies—and think of the things he is doing nowadays with his bat.

Maybe the success of Cravath in the National and his emphatic non success in the American league bears on the statement of the Cubs that they play much faster baseball in the younger of the two organizations. But we would not make a ruling on that grave and much discussed question.

One of the peculiar points about the shining and glittering success of the Philly slugger is the fact that it was not until the thirtieth year of the home run hitter that he really began to be earnest. From that time on he has been one of the real live ones of baseball—and there are a lot of them.

The Case of Dad Ford.

THERE are lots of Fords. This is not an article dealing with a certain popular car: it is merely about the player who was with the Superior team last season and the same one who may be with our hurrah team this season. There are lots of Fords; Mrs. and Mr. Ford and the four little Fords. One of the little Fords is of very recent appearance. In the event of Ford signing with the Duluth team the city will add somewhat to its population and that census scandal will have more basis of fact in the records upon the other side of the bay.

Ford was signed by the Philadelphia team of the American league. He was farmed out and jumped to the Columbus team, as he tells the story, and played in the American association for one long and highly prosperous year under the name of Dad Mills.

Later Dad played semi-professional ball. Still later he was informed by Connie Mack that the suspension against him had been lifted and he went back to Hartford. It was then, again referring to the original text of the Ford story, that he was informed that he would have to get his wife in a different kind of climate. Ford says Mike Cantillon tried to get him, but the climate of the Head of the Lakes appealed to him. So, as he tells it, he is here because he is here and because of the wonderful climate—another of the talking points.

Ford played in eighty-four games last season and hit at the figure of .287. He was especially strong on doubles, busting out 22 during the season. Looking the former Red Sox over from the hitting standpoint, it would strike one that he is a player highly desirable for our side.

Say, This Is Really Awful.

HOWARD DREW has brittle legs. Howard Drew is an unobtrusive colored chap of Springfield, Mass. Then why this hullabaloo about the brittle legs? There are lots of people with rheumatism. Simply because the colored boy is the fastest sprinter in the world and the world's championship athletic games are going to be held in the Gruenewald stadium, Berlin, in 1916. Isn't that an awful name for a stadium? It sounds more like the name of a beer garden.

The athletic authorities, trainers and dopesters the world over are feverishly concerned about the deciding of the Olympic games of 1916. Germany, England, Sweden, Finland and France are out to snatch the laurels so consistently gathered in the past by this country. We need Howard Drew in the glorious business of protecting our copywright on the Olympic supremacy, and thusly it becomes a matter of grave portent as to whether he has brittle legs or no.

The Pennant for Detroit.

OWNER YAWKEY of the Detroit Tigers, while sojourning in our midst yesterday, expressed the opinion that the Tigers were going to win the silken flag that always looks so lovely at the start of every season, gayly furling over the proud pole, and ofttimes so forlorn at the nearing of the close, when the team is in the dumps. "If we make a good showing on our present road trip," said Mr. Yawkey, "the members of our team will play like fiends when they hit the familiar old stamping ground of Bennett park. In Kavanaugh and Burns we have picked up two great young ball players and the entire team is doing some slugging. We really believe that the Tigers, better than ever, have a grand chance at the flag."

He Was Some Pitcher.

SOME of the boys were gossiping regarding baseball players the other day around the luncheon table. Senator Jim Boyle was in the bunch, and he proudly alluded to the fact that when he was at the University of Indiana he held Notre Dame to three hits and two runs—yes, and Indiana got but one run and two hits. Large Edward Reulbach was twirling against the Boyle cohorts and whiffed seventeen of the Hoosiers. Jim fanned thirteen of the Irishmen which was going some. This was one of the best college pitching duels ever staged in the West.

The Move Appropriate.

THE making of Julius H. Barnes a life commodore of the Duluth Boat club is an appreciation upon the part of the members and directors of the club of the time and effort that Mr. Barnes has given to an organization that has thrived largely through the work of its past long-term president. The retiring president was ever lavish in time and money in his efforts to make the Duluth Boat club one of the greatest in the country and one of the assets of the city, both in an athletic and civic sense, and the making him a life commodore is simply a token of the appreciation and affection in which he is held by his fellow club members.

GUN CLUB TO OPEN SEASON

The grand opening of the Northwestern Gun club will be held next Sunday. This will be the formal start of the competition for the prizes that will be awarded on the result of the season's shoot, and it is expected that all of the members of the club will be out.

During the winter many new members have been added to the club. The affairs of the organization were never in such good shape as at the present time and everything points to the best season in its history.

There are a large number of prizes to be competed for during the season. The John Wold trophy is among the number, and in addition to this a large number of special trophies have been hung up.

Every year during the existence of the Northwestern Gun club has marked an increase in its growth. Since it has come into the field there has been an increased interest taken in trapshooting. With the prospects bright for a grand season, the coming year should be one of the best in the history of the Rice Lake road organization.

We Admit It!

NORTHERN LEAGUE

THE DOOKS LOSE AGAIN

This Time It Requires Grand Forks Eleven Rounds to Win.

Duluth Rallies in the Ninth and Almost Pulls Game Out.

Grand Forks, May 14.—Grand Forks is in possession of its lily white winning record today, but it required the Flickers eleven innings to defeat the Duluth White Sox in the game of yesterday, the locals winning the extra time contest by the score of 6 to 5.

Coming into the ninth frame it looked hopeless for the visitors. The count was 5 to 2 in favor of the home guards. The visitors gathered three in the first of the ninth and tied up the score. In the eleventh, Manager Eddie Wheeler busted on for two bags, advanced on a passed ball and scored the winning run when Morse hit to right for a sacrifice fly.

Davis started the game for the Flickers and was a puzzle, despite the fact that he was as wild as the proverbial March hare. Four walks in the ninth started the rally and the Sox and Davis was yanked for Morse.

In the eighth round, with two on the tow paths, Davis lined to Wolfe, the later picking the ball off his shoe strings and started a triple play.

KAWFEDS TO WAR ON REDS

Franchise to Be Transferred to Bellevue, Ky., Cincinnati's Threshold.

Statement Comes From Cincinnati, Denial From Kansas City.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 14.—Inside of one month's time the Kansas City Federal league club will be playing out its schedule with new quarters at what is now known as Spink's ball park at Bellevue, Ky.

This new deal comes as a thunderbolt to the local forces of organized ball and will bring the war of the leagues to the threshold of Cincinnati, for the new club will be known as the Cincinnati Federal league team and will play in avowed opposition to the Reds. It was stated on the authority of one of the Federal league agents here that the conference with the several Reds in St. Louis was but a move in the establishment of the park over the river, the promoters of the Cinfeds believing that with several athletes who have already become local favorites they can draw big crowds from the very start.

Kansas City, Mo., May 14.—"Another one of those rumors—and absolutely no truth in it," is the way Arthur E. Gordon, a stockholder in the Kansas City Federal league club described a report from Cincinanti that the local Federal league franchise would be transferred to Bellevue, Ky. C. C. Madison, president of the club, and other officials are out of the city with the club, which is scheduled to play in Pittsburg today.

MONTY WOODS IS HOPEFUL

Southpaw Member of White Sox Staff Praises the Dooks.

Monty Woods, the well known choir singer of Bottineau, N. D., also president of the debating club, as well as a member of the pitching staff of the White Sox, hit this town early today, coming direct from the scene of baseball carnage of yesterday, Grand Forks.

Monteith worked against the Flickers in the game of yesterday and declares that bad grounds, a high wind, such as has been one of the talking, or cursing points of North Dakota for the years past, and a number of hard luck incidents were responsible for the loss of the game.

"Duluth has a swell fielding club," says Monty. "What we need now is another hitter." Grand Forks, in my opinion, is going about as fast as it will go. You see most of the Flickers are experienced players from the more southerly leagues and they are in better condition than most of the other teams of the league. The Grand Forks bunch is due for a tumble.

"Fargo is not as good as Duluth. Winona has nearly the same ball club of last season. The catchers do not look as good and so far Collins is not so strong as last year. But Winona should be in the race all the way.

"Our club has not started to bust them yet, but we have played some good baseball. Wolfe is one of the best ground coverers that ever broke into this league, and McGuff at first is another fine fielder. Deitrich has been pelting the pill, but we need one more clouter at least. Cunningham has been pitching some classy ball and looks the goods. We will be up there, just see."

Monty will remain here until the return of the team.

LEAGUE SEEKS ADVANCE OF AMATEUR BASEBALL

Duluth Now Affiliated With National Amateur Baseball Association of America for the Betterment of the Game.

BY BRUCE.

For the benefit and also the information of the managers and players of the various amateur teams of Duluth, it may be well to say a few words regarding the Duluth Amateur Baseball league.

In the opening section of the by-laws of the league it is stated that the object of the league is "to perpetuate and promote amateur baseball throughout the United States and to surround it with safeguards so as to warrant for the future the absolute public confidence in the integrity and methods of amateur baseball clubs and their individual members."

This opening section tells of the object of the National Amateur Baseball Association of the United States. The Duluth Baseball association is a member of this national amateur association, just as every professional baseball club is a member of organized baseball.

Every division of the local league is represented by a man on the board of directors of the league. The national board of directors is composed of a director from every city where there is a member of the national association.

Here the idea is to organize amateur baseball upon a firm and lasting basis. Some of the various managers or players may have gained the impression that the league seeks to control or restrain the various games. Nothing could be further from the intent or spirit of the organization.

For Mutual Benefit.

The whole idea is to organize the various teams of Duluth for their own mutual protection and benefit, and further, to give the various managers and the players the voice in the governing of the league; only that the control shall be vested in those chosen by the various teams and that all teams and players shall agree to abide by the by-laws of the association.

Duluth is now a member of the National Amateur Baseball Association of America, and as such the men behind the local association and the various managers associated in the league are endeavoring to put the game by a very high basis.

The idea is simple and direct. In organization there is strength. By organizing for their own mutual protection and advancement, by endeavoring to make the games more uniform and more even, by endeavoring also to get the officials and business men of the city interested in the league, and, further, by putting players and the game upon a basis where justice and fair play and intelligent direction and co-operation will rule baseball of this city cannot fail of advancement.

This is the idea in a nutshell. Every team that comes into the league is assisting in boosting the game. Every manager that holds out is plainly showing that he is not progressive. The idea of the amateur national league is a big one: ten years ago its formation would not have been possible. The playing of games for the national amateur championship of the country is a big and splendid idea. Duluth should be in the movement, and to assist in making the local league a splendid success every manager of standing should work for the success of the league.

WILL SEND STRONG TENNIS TEAM EAST

California Experts Preparing to Defend Their Titles.

San Francisco, Cal., May 14.—California tennis experts are laying plans for this year's invasion of the East, and it is certain another formidable team will be sent across the Rocky mountains.

National Champion Maurice E. McLoughlin will leave for the East toward the middle of June. It is his present intention to do little tournament work in advance of the Davis cup international challenge match and the Newport championships.

Thomas C. Bundy, joint holder with McLoughlin in the national doubles title, hopes so to shape his affairs as to defend that title at least, and he is looked upon as a Davis cup team possibility also.

Miss Mary Browne, national women's champion, will try to retain the laurels she has held for the last two years.

William M. Johnston, the 19-year-old holder of the Longwood and New York state titles will defend his honors, but probably will compete in no other tournaments prior to the Newport meeting.

Johnston's doubles partner this year will be Clarence J. Griffin, who with John R. Strachan holds second place in the national doubles ranking.

MUCH DEPENDS ON COURT'S DECISION

Hearing on Motion to Dissolve Johnson Injunction Is Vital.

Chicago, May 14.—Hearing on the Federal league's motion to dissolve the Cincinnati Nationals' injunction against Pitcher Johnson, is scheduled for the superior court today, and on its outcome, according to President Gilmore, depend the futures of a number of ball players. Gilmore, who returned from the East today, said that if the court declines to uphold the Cincinnati-Johnson contract on the ground that the reserve rule or the ten-day clause were illegal, several ball players who have signed similar contracts would find their way clear to joining the "outlaw" league.

Gilmore said he would settle the differences between the Pittsburg club and Catcher Roberts and that the latter would be instructed to return to Pittsburg.

The Chicago Federals, led by Manager Tinker, left for their invasion of the East last night, opening at Buffalo tomorrow. The team won nine out of fourteen games at home.

"THE UPLIFT OF ANDERSON, OR THE STRUGGLES OF OLLIE"

Being an Extract of a Letter Dealing With His Present Soft Existence Contrasted With the Dull Drab Doings of the Past.

BY BRUCE.

Was it a philospher or a copper broker who declared that life was just one——exciting incident after another?

Life is great, but lads we must be brave. Who would have thought it—Ollie Anderson eating in the big time cafe, parading in his avenue clothes in the large towns, riding in palatial Pullmans and having a dressing room of his little own at all of the first-class baseball parks.

Once more we reiterate, who would have thought it?

This morning's mail brings sweet and cherful tidings from Ollie. The red-head is doing right well in the umpire sense. Have you heard? Caught on with the Feds. Surest thing you know. Don't know just how, but landed, and when he hits Brooklyn, the nearest place to New York city proper, Ollie writes that he changes in his little individual dressing room, after the cooling shower, dons his Broadway regalia and gives the Easterners the o-o with that assurance and nonchalance that go with the well-groomed and big time stuff.

"I wish you were in the baby major with me. Swell hotels; oil paintings on the walls, and you sitting right under a flock of electric lights that are coralled in a $1,000 chandelier. Do you get me? Here I'm going to the ball yard in a taxi in my avenue clothes. Change my rags in my own little dressing room. Umpire the game, doff the ring raiment, get shower, don avenue clothes, then nothing to do until tomorrow.

"This Is the Life."

"While en route from one large city to another city equally large, I cock my feet on a cushion, and the porter does not even scowl at me. I order my meal in the diner, top it off with a nice ten-center, and then back to the club car with the multifarious cushions and the rich russet velvet. Just think of this, bo, and then of the sweet old days! 'This is the life!'

Yessir, this life is strange—you can never tell. Back in the old days, the bush days, we used to hold frequent converse with Ollie. Always his orbs were set on the Elysian fields beyond; the large green diamonds that are watered every morning and the big stands with the radiant and multifarious fans. And now the dream comes true—and there are sprinkled around in this naughty world those who profess to disbelieve in dreams, despite the $50,000 production of Peter Pan.

Club cars, choice cigars, your own dressing room, the large night life of our large and leading American cities; hotels with running water and elevators that also run; oil paintings, the big brilliant clusters of lights that would make a blind man feebly feel their magnificent and munificent power.

Oh, it is great—yes, and to think that Ollie used to make the small circuit and put up, by gosh, at the Columbia hotel at Grand Forks, Bill O'D., and the Crookston house in the older days of the league, and was occasionally chased by the irate leading citizens of some of the smaller cities. Contrast is the poignant sauce of this life.

To think that when he made Devils Lake, the Chautauqua show was the big event that the ball players and the lowly and shunned umpire looked forward to. Contrast the present life of Ollie with that in hotels where you have a choice between cold roast pork for supper (6 o'clock supper) and roast beef that combines many of the leading characteristics of the beef that assisted to make Gen. Egan famous back in the daring days of the Spanish war.

The Old Days.

There is hope. The dusty days out at Fargo and Grand Forks were lonely, dismal and strenuous, for often the one policeman would get mixed up in a smear game and forget to come out to the ball game and look after the safety of the umpire. The winds blew not with poetical gentleness, but with cyclonic violence, the dust blew in the orbs of the umps and there were no cooling showers—only occasionally the shower of rocks.

But life is hard in order that we may appreciate the sweet. How would Ollie have ever learned to appreciate the table d'hote dinners with wine, the $1,000 chandeliers, the oil paintings and the cushions of the club car if he had not been nurtured on the grub they give you out Crookston and Grand Forks way; if he had not first gazed on the water color of George Washington and a band of brave confrerees crossing the Delaware? They say George never ran, but some of these hotel pictures of him do. And again if Ollie had not been compelled involuntarily to seek and find amusement in a small town for seven evenings of a week throughout the tiresome summer, do you suppose for one thoughtless second that he would appreciate the sights of our leading cities in the manner he is? Fie on the doubt—not in the least.

No, sir—the sand in our sugar makes us appreciate the granulated lumps we get in the leading cafes. The rough spots make the maturing man sigh contently on the cushion of life. The wallop on the nose teaches the tyro how to duck. If it hadn't been for the Preston house and the Red Eagle and some of those other houses where they bring water for the tub bath in buckets, Ollie would not now be enjoying life with that keen and capacious zest—and would not be promenading in his avenue rags with extreme gusto and the keen philosophical mind.

MAY POSTPONE POLO CONTEST

American Polo Association Makes Sportsmanlike Offer to England.

New York, May 14.—The polo association has cabled to the general committee of the Hurlingham club offering to postpone the playing of the Cup matches for two for two weeks if such a postponement would enable the English committee to rearrange the team which will play for the international trophy. This action was taken previous to word from England that the team had been finally selected and would sail for the United States on Saturday, May 23.

It is not known whether the Hurlingham committee will avail themselves of this postponement, which would bring the games on June 23, 25 and 27, in place of June 9, 11 and 13, as originally planned.

The question was referred to the national registration committee and the mail vote was ordered.

REBELS EAGER TO CRUSH FOE

Speedy Advance Is Sole Theme Among Villa's Soldiers.

Many Hope for Raising of the Embargo on Arms.

Torreon, Mexico, May 14.—"On to Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and Mexico City," is the constant cry heard everywhere here. In the streets, plazas, government offices, cafes and stores the speedy advance is the thing they talk of. A note of impatience runs through the conversation, and inquiry often brings the statement that Mexico is tired of war, and an expression of regret that the United States replaced the embargo on arms.

The embargo will only prolong the struggle, Gen. Villa said recently, and most Mexicans take that view, although regret rather than resentment is expressed when the action of the United States is discussed by educated Constitutionalists.

Get Ammunition Somewhere.

The Villa army, however, is confident it will secure ammunition somewhere. In the past much ammunition has been taken from the Federals and the soldiers are confident they can repeat this performance. Others feel that the embargo will be lifted, and an optimistic view is taken by all.

Every possible measure to insure success at Saltillo and points further south is being taken. Ammunition is being concentrated here and at Monterey, and the available food supplies are ample. Question of transporting the wounded has received special attention, and many vehicles have been remodeled for that purpose. Large stores of medical supplies have arrived, and the staff of physicians has been increased from fifteen to twenty.

Mount Many as Possible.

The horses are being given as much care as the men. Villa has learned that mounted infantry is his most serviceable arm, and as many men as possible are being given mounts. The greater mobility of such troops over the Federal infantry is regarded as a most important factor in the campaign.

When the Villa troops are moved by rail only the number of horses to be transported is considered. As a rule from thirty to thirty-six horses are carried in a car, and when they have been loaded their riders scramble to the roof and the train pulls out. If the journey is made at night the men sleep in blissful disregard of the danger of rolling from the roof.

Pay Is 30 Cents a Day.

There is little the Constitutionalist soldier worries about at present. There is no vexing routine, and even guard mounts are few and far between. Each day represents to him $1.50 in Constitutionalist currency, or about 30 cents gold. On this amount each man subsists while in the towns. While the men are in the field the government runs a commissariat, but in the towns the soldiers buy their own food. The streets of Torreon are crowded with little booths where the soldiers eat.

FILIPINO SERVANT MEXICAN PRISONER.

Vera Cruz, May 14.—Instead of Rear Admiral Fletcher's Filipino being welcomed as a recruit by Gen. Gustavo Maas, the American admiral's servant was arrested when he reached the Mexican lines, according to a report which has reached headquarters.

It was learned that the Filipino had no intention of deserting when he disappeared, but had entered the debatable territory to get mangoes for the admiral's mess, as he heard that the fruit was obtainable there.

NIAGARA POWER BILL AGREED ON.

Washington, May 14.—A compromise bill to regulate the water power diversion rights at Niagara Falls was agreed upon at a conference between Secretary Garrison and Representatives Harrison of Mississippi, Cline of Indiana and Cooper of Wisconsin, representing the house foreign affairs committee.

The bill gives the secretary of war the right to issue revocable permits for a daily diversion averaging 15,600 cubic feet per second on the American side and for the importation of 250,000 horse power from the Canadian side.

The control over the rates, tolls and services would be left to the state of New York.

WEST DULUTHIAN ESCAPES FROM MEXICO BY TRAVELING AT NIGHT

Guy Nettleton Returns After Three Years in Turbulent Republic.

Saw Attack on Durango—Countless "Generals" Have Followings.

Guy Nettleton, who for the last three years has been employed by a large lumber company in the heart of Mexico, returned yesterday and is spending a few days at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank M. Ashley, 131 North Sixtieth avenue west. Thrilling tales of hardship encountered by all foreigners in the country are told by the young man.

The picture of the young man standing beside his horse was taken early in March shortly before he started from Durango for Mazatlan in order to make his way back to the United States. This horse was killed by a stray bullet the day before he started his homeward journey and Mr. Nettleton was compelled to purchase a mule at a high price in order that he might get over the mountains.

It took Mr. Nettleton and a small party of refugees eleven days to make the journey from Durango to Mazatlan, a distance of 150 miles. The party was compelled to do most of its traveling over the mountains at night in order to evade as far as possible the bands of Mexican outlaws that were terrorizing the country. Luckily none of these bands were encountered during the trip.

Attack on Durango.

Mr. Nettleton was in the thick of the attack on the city of Durango which took place on June 17 last year. This was one of the first outbreaks of the new revolution. In describing this attack he said that the rebels looted all of the principal stores, and after looting and taking whatever guns, ammunition and valuables they could carry they burned the buildings. Among the stores looted were those belonging principally to subjects of foreign nations, and among them four American concerns.

Among the relics of the fray Mr. Nettleton prizes highly some pictures of what he calls "good Mexicans." These pictures were taken of slain bandits.

The prevailing opinion in Mexico, said Mr. Nettleton, is that Madero was terribly tortured prior to his assassination. The accounts given in dispatches stating that he was shot by unknown persons while being driven in an automobile, are discredited. That he was first put to terrible tortures such as being burned with red hot brands and subjected to other incredible forms of barbarism, and that when the demand for his release was made it was necessary to kill him, is the general belief of the people.

"Mexico will continually be a land of tumult unless the hand of some iron master is laid on its people," said Mr. Nettleton. "Every man and boy able to carry a gun is toting one now and nothing is safe from destruction. These bands are happy; they will never go to work at hard labor as long as the present freedom is given them. Every man, woman and child is aligned with some general and by him are given promises of riches, land and anything they demand.

"Under the present thieving system the people engaged in the warfare have as much if not more than they ever had before in their lives. They apparently care for no one and while cowardly as a class will put up a strenuous battle when cornered."

Until a little over a week ago relatives of Mr. Nettleton in West Duluth had not heard from the young man for eleven months. Mails from the interior had been tampered with and it was almost an impossibility to send out any messages. He got out of Mexico the last of March and since then has been spending a few weeks visiting points of interest on the West coast. Mr. Nettleton intends spending the summer with his father on the latter's farm in Midway.

GRAIN MOVEMENT IS NOW SMALL

Because of the low rate for the shipping of grain down the Great Lakes, the movement in this commodity during the last few days has been small. During the early part of the season when rates were higher, the movement was much heavier and stocks in Duluth-Superior elevators were greatly reduced.

Wheat stocks yesterday afternoon were estimated at 4,257,000 bushels and the aggregate stock of grain amounted to 12,411,000 bushels with two small cargoes to be subtracted from the total. The Sheldon Parks cleared with a cargo of grain yesterday.

LAKE CARRIERS IN HEALTH CAMPAIGN

Marine supply dealers have just received a circular from the Lake Carriers' association asking that they aid in promoting sanitary conditions on the vessels by observing rules of absolute cleanliness in handling and preparing foods. "Swatting the fly," use of the refrigerator and other sanitary devices are urged. It is the aim of the carriers to promote the most healthful conditions possible and avert diseases of all kinds.

The letter states that there are 475 vessels enrolled in the association and the crews employed on them number about 11,000 men. Members of all crews have been cautioned to be careful in handling machinery that accidents may be minimized. The letter follows:

"During the last four years the leading industries of the country have paid a great deal of attention to the question of safety to the end that the number of personal injury cases might be lessened. The railways have developed this safety campaign to a remarkable extent. Since the movement was started four years ago the Chicago & Northwestern railway has reduced the number of accidents nearly 30 per cent. During the last four years 10,000 fewer persons were injured on this railway system than in the preceding four years—a very real and gratifying achievement.

"On the Great Lakes the Lake Carriers' association has conducted a systematic campaign for the elimination of the avoidable accident by distinctly marking dangerous places and by appointing safety committees from among the crew of each ship. In addition the association has this spring begun a campaign on sanitation to promote the physical well-being of the men. A man is obviously not competent to do a day's work unless he is in good health. The initial steps in the campaign have to do with the care and preparation of food supplies. Every dealer on the whole chain of lakes supplying meats, milk, groceries and ice to the boats has received a circular from the welfare plan committee of the Lake Carriers' association outlining certain rules to be observed in the care of foodstuffs. Meats are to be kept in the refrigerator away from flies and not exposed to handling by prospective customers. Milk must be pure and cannot be transferred from one can to another until the cans have been thoroughly sterilized and ice must under no circumstances come in contact with food. Manufactured ice is preferred because being made from distilled water it is chemically pure, while natural ice may be of doubtful purity. The observance of these rules will go a long ways towards the elimination of typhoid fever cases because typhoid is a disease which is communicated to the system through food and drink.

"In addition, the sanitary committee of the Lake Carriers' association has defined the areas on the Great Lakes from which drinking water may be drawn for the vessels. It is known that practically all the water in the connecting rivers and for a distance from eight to twelve miles from the shore line of the larger cities is polluted. With pure food and pure water and absolute cleanliness aboard ship there should be a distinct improvement in the morale of the lake fleet."

PASSENGER FLEET WILL SAIL JUNE 8-9

The regular passenger navigation season will open at the Duluth-Superior port June 8 and 9. On the 8th the first steamer of the Anchor line will be put into commission and on the 9th the steamers of the Northern Navigation company will begin their season's trips. These vessels will make interlake trips.

The passenger traffic on the Great Lakes this summer will be the best in the history of the lakes. The Northern Navigation company will have three vessels leaving here, each on a separate day of the week. The schedule will be Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. The addition of the new steamer Noronic to this company's fleet will greatly improve the passenger service.

The Anchor line will also have three vessels, the Tionesta, Juniata and Octorara. This company's boats will leave twice a week.

SCHOONER SINKS IN AMERICAN CANAL

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schoner Bottsford, downbound in tow of the steamer King, took a steer while entering the American canal this morning and struck the end of the south pier. She punched her bow timbers and immediately filled with water, sinking at the pier. Her deck load of lumber will have to be lightered and patches put on. Her position does not interfere with steamers entering the canal.

SETTLE GRIEVANCES.

Tug Workers and Officials Agree at Cleveland Meeting.

Most of the differences that have existed between the officials of the Great Lakes Towing company and the grievance committee of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association have been settled at the meetings at Cleveland.

The Federal regulation that tugmen can be on duty only twelve hours out of twenty-four presented many complications that made a workable arrangement difficult. Details of the settlement are not yet known at the Duluth tug offices. Capt. Vroman, manager of the Duluth office, is in Cleveland attending the meetings. He is expected to return today or tomorrow.

FIERCE GALE SWEEPS LAKE ERIE.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 14.—A gale from the northeast Tuesday held boats in almost all Lake Erie ports and prevented ships entering many of them. At Toledo the current was so strong from the freshet of Monday that no attempt was made to take boats out.

The towing company refused Tuesday to tow vessels out of Cuyahoga river and the steamer Dundee lodged across the river at the entrance to the old river bed in trying to shift to a dock across the river. The vessels anchored outside under the breakwater had a hard time weathering the gale. The steamer Harvey H. Brown dragged her anchors and had to use her engines to hold herself. The steamer C. W. Chamberlain, which returned to port Monday afternoon, because of weather, was forced to come in from the east breakwater to the river for shelter.

Five tugs pulled on the Dundee for more than an hour before she was released. The water in the river backed up and for a while it looked as if the drydocks on the old river bed would have to be flooded to save the gates. The Dundee was released at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The Buffalo boats did not try to leave. The City of Erie was at this end of the route and the City of Buffalo at the eastern terminal. The high sea and high wind were too strong for a comfortable passage. The high est wind was forty-eight miles from the northeast during the middle of the afternoon.

THINKS BROTHER WAS STORM VICTIM

Another chapter in the dreadful lake storm of Nov. 8 last may be written with the presence here of Roy Hollingshead of Toronto, Ont., who is endeavoring to locate his brother, Capt. Ernest Hollingshead, from whom the former has not heard since last October.

The young man now in Duluth is of the belief that his brother was on the steamer Carruthers, which went down during the storm with its entire crew. Hollingshead is endeavoring to find some trace of his brother and is calling on the local marine men in his efforts.

Hollingshead was in Los Angeles last fall and when he last heard from his brother the latter was working as a mate on one of the lake steamers. He received a communication shortly before the storm and since then has not heard a word as to the whereabouts of his brother.

FIRE MARSHAL ORDERS SHACK DESTROYED.

Christina Hoppman, owner of a one and a half story frame shack and shed abutting on First alley at the rear of 422 West First street, has been ordered by Charles E. Keller, state fire marshal, to tear the buildings down. The property has been condemned as a firetrap, according to papers which the state fire marshal filed yesterday afternoon with the clerk of the district court.

A similar order from the fire marshal directed against E. L. Hogsted of Fond du Lac was also filed. Hogsted is directed to tear down a two-story frame building located on lot 67, Third street, Fond du Lac. From the standpoint of fire hazard, both buildings are pronounced dangerous.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING MINERS GIVEN POINTERS

Government Mine Rescue School Furnishing First Aid Advice.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the end of this week thirty-two employes of local mines will be skilled in mine rescue work and more than 200 will have completed a government course in first aid to the injured.

The government experts who are here with their special car have divided the men assigned by the mining companies for instruction into two classes, in each branch of the work. One class of sixteen in rescue work and 100 in first aid training was graduated last Saturday and the second batch will be handed their diplomas at the end of this week.

At Utica Mine.

Today the rescue class is working at the Utica mine where they are sent down the shaft in the equipment used in rescue work so that they can become accustomed to the new conditions. This evening a public demonstrations of the first aid training will be given at the Oliver club before the class that has been taking the training from local physicians.

The rescue classes are being conducted in the morning and the first aid work in the afternoon.

It is not at all unlikely that a request will be made by the local officials that, if possible, an evening or two this week be given to the local firemen in first aid work.

CHISHOLM HAS LET CONTRACT

Garbage and Lumber Contracts Awarded By Village Council.

Chisholm, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council last evening awarded the annual garbage contract to John and Anton Enricho for $125 per month. Three bidders submitted bids, ranging from $115 to $150 per month. The bid of $115 was not considered for the reason that it was not properly submitted.

The King Lumber Co. received the contract for furnishing approximately 38,000 feet of six-inch western fir lumber for repairs and relaying plank on Longyear lake bridge.

The plumbers working for R. E. O'Brien, who has the heating and plumbing contract at the Detention hospital, told the council they were not being paid promptly and asked the council to take some action. Mr. O'Brien is said to be $400 behind in wages on his help and the bondsmen will be appealed to, if no relief is given.

Present Resolution.

The resolution adopted by the Commercial club last Sunday, at a mass meeting in the Finnish opera house asking the council to provide work for the large number of unemployed, was read and filed, but since the passage of the resolution last Sunday the labor situation has been somewhat relieved. The council is now giving work to all the men possible. As soon as paving starts several hundred more men can be put at work.

Other outside work is opening up and the situation looks much better than it did a week ago.

LABOR SITUATION IS SOME BETTER

Wild Reports of More Chisholm Men Laid Off Groundless.

Chisholm, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local labor situation is reported to be somewhat improved today, following the decision of the council to employ as many of the idle married men as possible. There was a wild rumor last evening that the Oliver Iron Mining company had laid off a large number of men at the Monroe, but this was denied by one of the officials.

When the rumor was run down it developed that at the Leonard mine some of the men had been shifted, pending an arrangement to begin shipping from the stock piles. The men will be put at work in other mines at an early date.

Oliver People Shipping.

The Oliver interests are shipping about 600 standard ore cars daily from their four mines here, the Leonard, the Clark, the Monroe and the Chisholm and from present indications will continue to ship at this rate or heavier throughout the season.

The Shenango is a regular shipper and is getting out all the ore the capacity will permit.

The labor situation is somewhat relieved this week, since the village has increased its forces and a crew of men started today on township work in the vicinity of Dewey lake. The street gangs and park crews are working to the full limit at present and until paving starts no more men can be handled by the village. The pay roll shows that nearly 300 men are working for the village. Eight hundred applications have been received at the superintendent's bureau which leaves unplaced about 500 men. These are nearly all single men, most of whom have, since filing their application for work, left town. Many of the single men are not citizens, but this fact has not necessarily barred them from employment. The only rule so far adhered to is favoring men of families and those of property owners.

The New Baby is World's Wonder

Every tiny infant makes life's perspective wider and brighter. And whatever there is to enhance its arrival and to ease and comfort the expectant mother should be given attention. Among the real helpful things is an external abdominal application known as "Mother's Friend." It is so well thought of by women that most drug stores throughout the United States carry "Mother's Friend" as one of their staple and reliable remedies. It is applied to the abdominal muscles to relieve the strain on ligaments and tendons.

In a little book are described more fully the many reasons why "Mother's Friend" has been a friend indeed to women for more than two generations. This book was prepared not only to aid the inexperienced but to enable so many women to have at hand the timely hints, suggestions and helps in concise and neatly printed form for ready reference. It should be in all homes. "Mother's Friend" may be had of almost any druggist but if you fail to find it write us direct and also write for book to Bradfield Regulator Co., 303 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Georgia.

MINING CONCERNS JOINING MOVEMENT

Are Urging Hibbing Employes to Beautify Their Premises.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The park board and the village are not alone in their endeavor to arouse civic pride in the citizens by proclaiming "clean-up days" and furnishing garden plots for the residents.

The Pickands-Mather company, following out an idea that is in force at their locations all over the country, has offered prizes to the householders at the Utica and Albany locations for the neatest lawn, the best garden and the most attractive home. Every miner living in a company house is a contestant and the prizes range from $15 for the first prize to $5 for the third. The interest, according to the officers of the company, is increasing and those two suburbs of the village will be as neat as a pin this summer.

Oliver Also to Help.

The Oliver Iron Mining company, it is claimed, will devote the land formerly used as a ball park for garden plot purposes and will allot sections to their employes. They also intend to plant flower beds and park it after a plan of their own. The request of the council that the park board be given the use of this land was denied.

The preparations for the local clean-up days are progressing rapidly and the merchants report a large sale of the implements and materials that will be used.

SCHOOL BOARD TO BUY AUTOMOBILE

Hibbing Board Gets Offers of Machine to Transport Pupils.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty-two automobiles were offered the board of education last evening at prices ranging from $600 to $2,417, in response to a call for bids for a five-passenger touring car to be used in transporting the teachers to and from the locations and to be used by the superintendent and board in making trips of inspection.

There were also ten applications for position as chauffeur. All of the bids and applications were laid over until a special meeting to be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

To Settle Damage Case.

A settlement will probably be effected between the board and Joe Jarley, the 18-year-old boy who was injured while working on the Little Swan school. The case is the first in the district to come within the workmen's compensation law, Jarley having received his injuries last November. While working on the building an hour after he had been employed a timber struck his leg, breaking the bone above the knee. He was in the hospital until February, when he was allowed to leave, but has been unable to work and probably will not be able to resume his duties for two months more. Under the law he is entitled to $6 a week. The board offered him $200 and compensation for his board as a settlement in full and it was accepted pending approval by the court.

To Repair Washington School.

Calls for bids for the construction of cement stairways at the Washington school and the redecoration of the entire building will be issued within a few days, according to plans discussed last evening. The Washington school, which is the oldest building in the district, is badly in need of interior finishing, according to the report.

URGES METHODISTS TO PRAY FOR PEACE

Bishop Cranston Wants Pastors to Make Petitions Sunday.

Washington, May 14.—Prayers for the success of the South American mediating powers in composing the Mexican situation are requested in all Methodist Episcopal churches on Sunday, May 17, in a communication addressed to the churches today by Earl Cranston, senior bishop of the church. The bishops of the church, in session in Philadelphia recently, commended the president for accepting the mediation proposals.

In his statement Bishop Cranston says:

"In view of the fact that the representatives of the mediating powers and of the two governments concerned are to open their negotiations at Niagara Falls, Ont., on Monday, May 18, Bishop Earl Cranston of Washington, as senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, earnestly desires all district superintendents and pastors of the church to pray publicly in the congregations on Sunday, May 17, and to exhort all the people to continue to pray in private for the Divine blessing upon the efforts of the mediators, and for the spirit of conciliation and good will among the representatives of the governments concerned to the end that peace may prevail and friendly relations be perpetuated.

"The hour is critical and the church may render great service by such outpourings of faith and good will. This is the Master's way."

WHY DOCTORS NO LONGER CLAIM TO "CURE" PEOPLE

A few years ago it was a common thing for the family doctor to say, "I will cure you in a few days." This cheerful prophecy often gave the patient new hope and courage but it is no longer good form. Doctors still "cure" malaria and a few other troubles in which their medicines have a direct or "specific" action on the virus of the disease. In other cases they simply give supporting medicine and keep up the strength of the patient until nature effects a cure.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure chlorosis and other trouble due to thin blood because they have a specific action on the blood, building it up, purifying and enriching it. This direct action on the blood also makes them the best supporting and strengthening medicine. If you are thin and weak, breathless after slight exertion, if you have palpitation of the heart, gas on the stomach, cold hands and feet, if you are nervous and easily irritated and show other signs of weakened vitality, try these strengthening pills at once and let the rich, red blood cure you. Get a box today at the nearest drug store and begin at once to build up your health. Write now to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the free booklet, "Building Up the Blood."

EXONERATE DRIVER.

Not Blamed for Death of Grand Forks Girl.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—No blame was attached to Gus Olson, driver of the wagon that ran down and killed little Olga Johnson, by the coroner's jury which investigated the case. The jury held that Mr. Olson was in no manner connected with the affair, it being shown that the child was playing on the wagon to which the horses were hitched, and that they became startled at something, jumping in such a manner as to precipitate the baby to the ground, where she was ground under the heavy wheels.

French Beauties All Slender

In Paris (the city of the world's most beautiful women) the first thing the tourist notes when studying the beautiful native women is the absence of plumpness or flesh. They are always slender and graceful and so active and attractive. Their nervous, emotional temperament of course affects somewhat their physique, but most of them keep up a continual fight against increase of weight. One of the many good fat preventives and cures is easily made at home by mixing 4 ounces parnotis (all good druggists carry this) with 1½ pints hot water. When cool strain and take 1 tablespoonful before meals until weight is just where you want it. This is a safe, harmless method of fat-reduction and does not depend on dieting or unusual exercising. The parnotis treatment is gentle in action and restores the symmetrical lines to the figure.

DAMAGE TALK BULLS WHEAT

Market Up on Southwest News and Strength in Coarse Grains.

Flaxseed Sells Higher With Good Buying By Crushers' Interests.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 14.—The market was strong up to the close. May wheat closed 1¼c up; July ⅞c up and September ¼c up.

May durum closed ⅞c up and July ⅝c up.

Oats closed 1¼c up at 38½c for on the track, and 38c for to arrive. Rye closed unchanged at 58@60c, and barley unchanged at 54@59c for choice stuff.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed at 38½c bid and July at 38⅜c.

Puts on Minneapolis July wheat closed at 90¾@90¾c asked, and calls at 91⅜c bid.

Strength was shown in the wheat market today as a result of higher Liverpool cables, talk of damage through Hessian fly in sections of Illinois and Missouri, and the increasingly bullish position of old crop supplies. It is estimated by some experts that with the export contracts already entered into, the remaining wheat supplies in the county will show only a small margin over milling requirements during the next two months.

The extent of the foreign trade is to be judged from the statement of Julius H. Barnes of the Ames-Brooks company today that his house has disposed of between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 bu of wheat to go abroad during the last two weeks. Supplies have been picked up wherever they could be procured, Duluth, Winnipeg, Minneapolis and Chicago. "We have done an enormous business. The foreign demand in this country has been the best I have ever known it," he said.

Outside of the scattering damage reports in the states mentioned, the general crop news today was bearish. Nothing has happened to impair the high condition of the plant in Kansas, Oklahoma and other Southwest states, and good progress was reported in seeding through the backward sections of the Northwest.

American primary receipts were light today, being reported at 375,000 bu as against 545,000 bu last year. Inspections at Duluth were 55 cars or one less than a year ago. At Minneapolis, 64 cars came to hand compared with 127 last year, and their stocks decreased 1,100,000 bu in the last five days.

May wheat opened unchanged at 93¾c and gained ¼c up to the final hour. July opened unchanged at 93⅝c and gained a fraction and the September option held at yesterday's figure of 88⅝c.

There was a revival in the demand for durum, and its quotation was substantially appreciated. May durum opened ⅛c up at 88⅜c and gained ⅜c more. The July option opened ⅛c up at 89¼c and gained ⅛c more.

Flaxseed Turns Strong.

The execution of liberal buying orders in flaxseed led to substantial advances in quotations. Receipts at Duluth, Winnipeg and Minneapolis were only nominal, so that with present supplies in strong hands, the cash position of the seed was bullish. Some apprehensions were expressed over predictions of some experts that the acreage seeded in flax through the northwest will show a heavy decrease this season.

The market closed off from the high of the day with final prices showing gains of ⅝@⅞c.

Foreign markets were weak, Antwerp closing ⅝c off; Buenos Aires 1c off, and London 2⅝c off.

May flax opened 1¼c up at $1.56 and closed ⅝c up at $1.56⅝ asked; July opened ⅛c up at $1.57¼ and closed ¾c up at $1.57½ bid; September opened ¼c up at $1.59⅛ and closed ⅝c up at $1.59⅝ asked. The October option opened unchanged at $1.56½ and closed ⅞c up at $1.57⅜ asked.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.36⅝ bid, and July at $1.39⅜ bid.

MARKET GOSSIP.

John Inglis wired Logan from Oklahoma City—"Wheat still maintains its excellent promise. Does not show any undue growth in Oklahoma. Some fields are heading with ample moisture to mature the crop. Cutting will be ten days later than last year.

* * *

At Minneapolis there was good cash demand for the choice milling wheat. One northern blue stem sold at 2½@4c over July. The mills reported getting plenty of velvet chaff from the elevators, and spot sold at 2c over July. There was no change in flour. The demand was limited. Cash one northern wheat sold there at from 92⅞c to 94⅞c, and No. 2 northern at from 90⅞c to 92⅝c.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—"Steadier American cables yesterday induced covering and speculative support, and opening values were ½d to ⅝d higher. American new winter offers were firmer and this was attributed to less favorable crop advices. Following the opening, prices declined fractionally on a reduced inquiry, freer Russian offerings and an easier feeling in corn. At 1:30 p. m., the undertone was steady, ¼d to ⅜d higher.

"Corn opened under pressure of realizing ¼d to ½d lower and declined an additional ¼d, influenced by the lower closing of the Buenos Aires market yesterday and a private forecast here of larger shipments this week. Towards midday there was some recovery, influenced by an advance in spot here, and bullish advices from Argentine. At 1:30 p. m. prices were ¼d to ⅜d lower."

An Argentine cable said: "Plowing for wheat is making good progress. Corn weather is better, shipments are expected to continue small until the end of June. Estimates here place the crop loss at 40 per cent, but this is thought to be exaggerated."

H. H. Williams wired from Carrollton, Mo.: "Examined twenty fields in fifteen miles radius. The fly is in every one. Majority showed serious loss from the total. A good deal is plowed up. The soil is in fairly good condition but has no reserve moisture."

* * *

B. W. Snow wired from Marceline, Mo.: "From Carrollton I traveled fifty miles today into a region where there have been persistent reports of Hessian fly. I examined twenty fields and found traces of fly in only one and these not serious. The crop is in good shape but there is some yellowing on heavy soil from too much rain. The weather is now perfect. I see no reason to regard the fly as more prevalent than it is every year. There is some corn up and some is being planted with soil conditions good. Oats are much above the average promise."

* * *

T. W. Lewis wired from Minneapolis: "Yesterday's rapid recovery in wheat near the close was due to bears covering on reports of damage by fly in Illinois and Missouri. I do not think this can become an important factor and should it result in advancing prices a cent or so a bushel from this point, I think it advisable to sell wheat short."

* * *

Baker had the following wire from Chicago: "C. E. Marcey, head of the Armour Grain company, is out with a bullish statement on wheat. He believes that with 9,000,000 bu winter wheat in the visible supply and 1,500,000 bu of that sold for export and in process of loading abroad, there is only a small balance for home use the next two months. He believes that spring wheat will all be wanted and that we will be on a spring wheat basis with nothing but that grade to supply the United States mills. There has been about 1,000,000 bu hard wheat sold for export at Kansas City the last two weeks, also large sales for export and milling at Duluth. Export bids on hard winter yesterday were within ¾c of the Chicago May price. The Armour Grain company has made sales of hard and red winter wheat of late that net May price to 2c premium."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Denial of Hessian Fly Stories Makes Wheat Ease Off.

Chicago, May 14.—Opinions from a high authority that Hessian fly is no more prevalent now than is the case every year, tended today to make the wheat market ease off. At Carrollton, Mo., where damage reports have been persistent, it was said today that in only two fields out of twenty is there any trace of fly, and in these two not serious. Prices opened unchanged to ¼c lower, and declined moderately all around before there was a reaction.

Bullish views that other experts took in regard to Hessian fly damage led afterward to an advance. The close was nervous, ¼c to ½c net higher.

Bearish cables and fine weather carried down corn. Larger shipments from Argentina this week were predicted. Quotations started ⅛ to ¼c lower, and sagged a trifle more, but began to recover.

In later trading the market hardened with wheat. The close was strong, ½c to ¾c above last night.

Oats held steady. There were rumors that some Canadian shipments were being bought back by the sellers.

Packers appeared to have taken the bull side in provisions. First transactions were a shade to 5c higher and additional gains followed.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Steady Strength Dominates Dealings From Start to Finish.

Final Prices Show Gains of One to Two Points.

New York, May 14.—A vigorous buying movement aroused the stock market at the outset today from the apathetic condition of the last few sessions. In an effort to break the deadlock, room traders took large blocks of the leading stocks. Reading and Steel in particular were bought heavily.

These tactics were effective in raising prices all through the list, with several gains of a point or so in the first few minutes. The fall of Tampico, presumably removing the oil properties there from the fighting zone, caused a jump of three points in Mexican Petroleum, which has large interests in that city.

Speculative operations on Wall street veered toward the long side during the morning and trading was more active than in recent days. Prices were advanced steadily, although the movement was slow. All of the representative issues made a good showing with many gains of a point or more. Bonds were firm.

Buying was less urgent in the afternoon but the movement was still upward. Various stocks, including Steel and Reading, touched the highest points in weeks. Mexican Petroleum increased its advance to over 5 points. Foreign agents traded on both sides of the market, but bought a few thousand shares on balance.

The market closed strong today. Steady strength dominated today's dealings from beginning to end. Final prices showed gains of 1@2 points. Traders who had been unsuccessfully opposing the upward movement bought in their short contracts in the last hour, and gains were extended in all directions.

COPPERS HAVE STRONG TONE

The best trading in weeks developed in mining stocks at Boston today and substantial advances were the rule in the active issues. Improvement in the copper metal situation and strong investment buying on the brighter Mexican outlook were bullish factors in the day's operations.

Butte & Superior was again the feature, trading in it being in heavy proportions. The inquiry for the stock was brought about through expectations of a dividend announcement shortly. It closed $1.62 up at $39.87.

Alaska Gold closed 88c up at $28; Calumet & Arizona 84c up at $65.75; Granby 88c up at $81.38; Greene-Cananea $1.50 up at $33.50; North Butte $1 up at $26.75; Shattuck 60c up at $24, and Amalgamated Copper $1.13 up at $73.75.

In the Duluth curb list Calumet & Corbin sold at 29@30c, closing at the latter figure bid.

A wire received by Paine, Webber & Co. from Boston today said: "Current earnings of Butte & Superior are equal to almost $5 per share. A $3 dividend therefore would be entirely conservative."

* * *

The output of Shattuck-Arizona for April was 1,386,594 pounds copper, 26,323 ounces of silver and 299.37 ounces of gold.

The By-Laws of this corporation may from time to time contain such lawful provisions as are deemed advisable restricting the sale, transfer and assignment of the shares of its capital stock, either by requiring that such stock before being sold, transferred or assigned shall be first offered to the corporation or to the other Stockholders, or otherwise; and may prescribe the terms and manner in which such restrictions shall be enforced. All of such provisions when embodied in the By-Laws shall bind absolutely the stock of the corporation and all persons dealing with the same, their heirs, successors, legal representatives and assigns, and no stock issued to any Stockholder shall be sold, transferred or assigned, nor shall any right therein accrue to any purchaser, transferee or assignee thereof, except upon compliance with such provisions of the By-Laws.

The corporation shall have the right to purchase any of its capital stock and to carry out any of the provisions of the By-Laws regulating or restricting its sale, transfer or assignment.

At all elections of directors each Stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as shall equal the number of his shares of stock multiplied by the number of directors to be elected, and he may cast all of such votes for a single director, or may distribute them among the number to be voted for, or for any two or more of them, as he may see fit.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000).

Gallery of the "Live Wires" of Duluth

IN THIS SPECIAL EDITION will be found photographs of the men who are "doing things" in Duluth. They are the leaders in their respective lines of business or in their profession. They are the men who are typical of the new "booster" spirit that has sprung up in Duluth in the last few years. They do not hesitate to give time, money, thought or energy to any enterprise that has for its object the making of Duluth a bigger, or more prosperous city or a better place to live in. They may not all be financiers, or captains of industry, but each in his particular line has shown himself a wide-awake, energetic, hustling citizen, with a broad enough vision to see beyond the horizon of his own business and get a mental picture of the Duluth that is to be. A year from now, or five years from now, or ten years from now, this edition of The Herald will be treasured even more than it is today. The men whose pictures it contains are the men who will direct and lead the growth of the Greater Duluth. It is the biggest collection of photographs of Duluthians ever made. It is the most representative collection that could be made at this time. For more than three months the work of collecting the pictures has been under way. It is doubtful if another such collection will be attempted for many years to come. For this reason this city photo album is something the readers of The Herald should preserve. Within a few days it will be impossible to buy a copy at The Herald office or at the news stands.
